Commercial Art Course You Can Study at Home

His Package Design Makes a Hit

Would you like to be in the shoes of this successful commercial artist, getting good pay for his effective package design?

In such a big field as advertising art you have a good chance. A home study guide can help you try out your talents in letterheads posters, any of the many kinds of commercial art work.

You find that these simple principles succe-d not only in package design, but in other phases of advertising art.

For your copy of Advertising Design elf-Taught, send 15 cents in coins or stamps to the Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and the Name of Booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

ANOTHER PURPOSE

RUFFING by the declarer has as its primary function the getting rid of a loser or losers in his hand. The secondary purpose is sometimes more important. It may be to shift the lead to the dummy, for the laying down of established cards, the leading to a finesse or otherwise. Or it may be to help set up the long card or cards in some suit held by the declarer. Careful choice of what to ruff and what to discard may, and often does, decide the fate of a contract.

3 ♣	Pass	3 NT	Pass

Here is a deal on which pretty application of one principle is reported by officials of the New England Bridge association. It was in a duplicate game, and several kinds of bidding occurred, but at most tables the heart Q was led against 5-Clubs or 6-Clubs. The A, of course, won, but at some tables South discarded a spade on the first trick, consequently holding him to 11 tricks.

Where the slam contract was made, South carefully decided to discard a diamond, because he selected the plan of setting up his fifth spade. A club was next led to the K, when East played low, then the spade A and a small spade, ruffed by North. The diamond A put South in for a second ruff, and dummy returned its third trump. Now it made no difference when East decided to take his A, as the spades were set up and no tricks could be taken by the defense except the trump A.

Not Enough For Her

NEW YORK, June 17 (AP) — Described by his counsel as a man who was "only seeking a woman to live with in peace and security," Harry Behrman, 42-year-old tailor, was sentenced to from one to two years in Sing Sing today for Bigamy as four of his five wives looked on.

Mrs. Clara Rohr, wife No. 5, said that she still loved him and that he "was a good man and he has treated me well."

Asked Mrs. Kennah McNashkin, wife No. 4 who brought the complaint:—

"It that all he's going to get?"

Huns Over England

LONDON, June 17 — (CP) — A few German bombers were over Southern and Southwestern England during the night, causing some light damage and injuring a small number of people slightly, the Minister of Home Security and the Air Ministry said in a joint communique.

Aluminum Setup Said Cutting Bombers 20 p.c.

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP). —Senator Robert Lafollette (Prog.-Wis.) told the Senate yesterday that a preventable shortage of aluminum forgings had held down the production of Martin bombers 20 per cent this year and urged the establishment of a Federal aluminum authority to direct all United States production of the metal.

Declaring that the aluminum program has been 'warped by the overweening desire of private corporations to protect their post-war interests." Lafollette said the time has come for the Government to free itself of what he described as a "perfect monopoly" exercised by the Aluminum Company of America.

In a lengthy prepared address, the Senator said that Alcoa had discouraged the production of independent aluminum producing facilities, had maintained "intimate and dangerous ties" with the I. G. Farben Chemical Trust of Germany until April of this year and had minimized the shortage of aluminum in "over-optimistic, misleading advertisements and public announcements."

"Every day the aluminum crisis is allowed to continue, we are failing to produce planes and the United Nations are losing fighting men who died for lack of them." Lafollette declared. "The shortage of aluminum forgings has already lost for us one out of five Martin bombers from this year's output."

Germans In Control

VICHY, June 17 — (AP) — The Laval government ratified a contract today whereby the powerful French and German Dye Trusts set up a joint company in which the Germans control 51 per cent of the stock.

The Company, which will operate in France, will be known as Francolor Corporation and will be largely owned by the German I. G. Farbenindustrie of Frankfort. Shares also will be taken by the Kuhlmann St. Denis and St. Clair du Rhone Dye Trusts which dominate the French industry.

They Discussed A Second Front

President Roosevelt and Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, are pictured in Ford's study as they studied urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe during conversations which were disclosed by the White House only after Molotov had arrived back in Moscow.

U.S. Disbelieves Japs To Try Pair

WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP) — The State Department said last night that it "does not credit" a radio report from Berlin that the Japanese intend to courtmartial two United States newspaper correspondents.

The two men are J. B. Powell, former editor of the China Weekly Review, and W. B. Opper, former editor of the Shanghai Post and Mercury. They were in Shanghai at the outbreak of the war with Japan.

The Berlin radio, purporting to broadcast a dispatch from Shanghai, said the two, with H. G. W. Woodhead, a British writer, were held for court martial on charges of "espionage and disturbing the peace."

The State Department in an announcement, said it did not place credence in this broadcast because "the Japanese government has formally agreed to include these men in a group of Americans who are to be repatriated, and who are to leave the Far East under safe conduct this week."

THESE TIMELY BOOKLETS CAN HELP YOU GET MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

"How can we make our money go farther?" is a question many families are asking themselves these days. "Taxes have increased and prices have gone up. Yet surely there's some way we can cut our regular expenses so that we will have more left over for War Savings Certificates and contributions to war charities." If that is your situation, perhaps the Household Finance booklets on buying and budgeting can help you.

How to stretch family income is something we've been studying for a long time. Over the years, thousands of families have come to us for money to meet emergencies. These families have told us much about their problems. We have tried to help them with their difficulties. And in scores of cases we have seen what better management and careful buying can do for families with money troubles.

Out of our experience have come twenty-four practical booklets on money management and buying for the home. We feel that many other families as well as our customers may find these booklets helpful at this time. So we are now making them available to every family in Canada.

All these booklets have one main purpose—to help you stretch your dollars. Today, more than ever, you probably want to get the most that you can out of your income. If so, we invite you to send for any of the booklets which interest you.

Other volumes discuss how to buy and take care of hosiery, furniture, shoes, furs, gloves, textiles, fresh foods—almost everything used in the home of today. All the booklets are impartial, dependable and up-to-date. You may obtain any or all of the booklets for 2½¢ each in stamps to cover mailing costs. (Budget Calendar sent free.) MILLBROOK

Guild Entertains At Hostess Tea

MILLBROOK, June 17 (EN) — The Women's Guild of St. Thomas Anglican Church was the entertaining society for the third hostess tea of the season, the event, for which thirty-two daintily-laid tables were in use at the tea hour, being held in the Parish Hall from 5 to 6:30 p.m. on Thursday. Receiving the many guests at the entrance door were the president of the Guild Mrs. L. H. Winslow, and the vice-president, Mrs. G. F. Harrington. A number of the younger members conducted the guests to the tables of their individual hostesses, the large room being lovely with summer blossoms, and each small table having a bud vase of iris, roses or other fragrant flowers for its centrepiece.

The list of hostesses included: Mrs. W. E. Massey-Cooke, Mrs. D. R. Fowler, Mrs. Ivan L. H. Gray, Mrs. J. E. Allen, Mrs. R. A. Ford, Mrs. Douglas Shepherd, Mrs. Fred Lowery, Mrs. Louis Winslow, Mrs. G. Howson, Mrs. Percy Handley, Mrs. G. F. Harrington, Misses Rose Macnamara, Anna Fair, Muriel Smith, Ada Attwooll, and M. L. Collins.

Among the guests was the wife of the new rector of Cavan parish, Mrs. C. Chevis, whom many were pleased to meet when opportunity was given at the conclusion of the tea hour, a general introduction being given by Mrs. Winslow when she extended a warm welcome to those present and added a special word for the new mistress of the rectory.

Rev. Mr. Chevis took the work of the parish for the first time on Sunday, June 7, having moved here the previous week from his former charge at Fenelon Falls. Piano duets by Miss Collins and Mrs. Massey-Cooke, and piano solos by the latter, preceded the National Anthem which brought to a close a most enjoyable social occasion, the funds of the Guild profiting to the extent of between $35 and $40 from the undertaking.

After the secretary's report was read, the corresponding secretary read a descriptive folder on the Young People's Training School which will be held in Whitby from August 31 to September 5 and Miss Jessie Hawkins was appointed delegate from the Auxiliary.

In the treasure's report it was stated that in the first six months there was $5.60 less than last year. It was reported there were at the present time 23 paid up members.

Mrs. Ward announced that it had been decided by the executive not to have the usual expense tea, that is held in June each year, but rather that each member would contribute an amount of money.

The meeting was turned over to Miss Evelyne Little's group and Mrs. Cecil Moore took charge of the devotions.

Missionary Work.

Miss Vivian Jennings and Mr.s Towne gave a delightful duet "Down the Vale" by Frank L. Moir, accompanied by Mrs. Gordon Garnett at the piano.

Mrs. Grey, the delegate to Dominion Board, in Toronto, gave a most interesting and descriptive account of her experience. She reviewed the missionary work across Canada, in Japan, Korea, Java and the surrounding islands.

Mrs. J. A. Reynolds voiced the appreciation of the Auxiliary to Mrs. Grey for her splendid talk and for her generous hospitality in inviting them to her home.

Proceeds From Quilt Go To Soldiers' Aid

HAVELOCK, June 17 (ENS) — The June meeting of the United Church Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Peter Haig, with a good attendance and the president, Mrs. George Chiles, presiding.

The theme of the meeting was 'The Bales Go A-Travelling.' Mrs. T. Easterbrook gave the scripture lesson and the meditation on 'Giving.' The bale of clothing is to be packed Thursday, June 18. The receipts of the cookie sale by the Mission Band were $7.28. The Baby Band secretary, Mrs. E. Fennel is to be assisted in this work by Mrs. R. Campney. The annual picnic date at Mrs. H. Hospital Quota Being Filled Women's Group

HAVELOCK, June 17 —(ENS)— There were 25 ladies in attendance at the Red Cross meeting on Monday afternoon. The hospital quota has been received and a dozen ladies worked all afternoon with gauze, cotton, etc. The cutting committee cut out the little boys flannel shirts which were given out to volunteers to be made up. The 50 girls blouses have been returned and were labelled and folded for shipment, as for the layettes. One quilt was bound and a large quantity of wool was given out to willing knitters. A lovely quilt top was donated by Mrs. John Hunter and $1.50 donation from Mrs. Harriett, which were gratefully acknowledged.

Mrs. H. Roche, presided for the business session and opened with the prayer for peace. In the absence of Mrs. Couch, Mrs. Price acted as secretary and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

Two small accounts were ordered paid at the local stores. All arrangements were made for the Strawberry Social at Mrs. William Smith's home on Tuesday, June 23, and the committee will canvass for refreshments from those who were not present. The knitting convener asked anyone who had any odd knitting needles to please send them to the work room to be mated in sets of four.

No Executions

Berlin, From German Broadcasts), June 16 (AP)

MILITARY quarters said today that 2,000 Free French soldiers captured at the Libyan oasis of Bir Hacheim would be interned as prisoners of war.

These sources said that although the Free French could be regarded as irregulars under the terms of the French armistice and thus subject to summary execution, they would not be treated as such.

(This backing down on the part of the Germans apparently followed the firm attitude of the Free French authorities in London who promised adequate counter measures in the event the Free French were executed.)

TO PEOPLE WHO CANNOT SWALLOW PILLS

If you feel sluggish, depressed, liverish or are inclined to constipation—just try this treatment for two weeks: Take enough Kruschen to cover a dime, in warm water every morning.

Nothing could be easier to take, and Kruschen is not harsh, but is a mild, gentle, laxative.

Constipation is caused mainly by lack of moisture in the large intestine. Kruschen contains carefully blended mineral salts that bring back the moisture. Besides cleaning out stagnating poisonous waste matter, Kruschen helps to rid the bloodstream of other poisons resulting from constipation.

Get a package of Kruschen from your druggist and within two weeks you'll feel your old good health coming back. Two sizes: 25c and 75c.

Seduction Claim To Skip Draft

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17 (AP) —Cornelia Van Ree, 18-year-old mother, plaintiff in a $100,000 damage suit, charges that her sister and brother-in-law conspired for him to seduce her so the brother-in-law could escape being drafted into the United States Army by claiming the baby as his dependent.

Miss Van Ree said her child, a baby girl, born last Saturday, was a result of the alleged seduction.

Defendants in the suit, filed through a guardian by Attorney Joseph Brown, were the young mother's sister, Mrs. Alberta Turner, and Alberta's husband, G. E. Turner of San Mateo, described by the lawyer as an executive of a south San Francisco business concern.

The girl asked $50,000 actual and $50,000 punitive damages.

Turner said in a statement the accusations were untrue, and added he had no desire to avoid military service.

"Anyway, the story doesn't make sense," Turner added, stating he and Mrs. Turner were expecting a baby of their own.

CHEMISTRY HELPS TO WIN THE WAR

"The Water Supply Was Cut By The Enemy"

WATER—good drinking water—is all important to the fighting man. Its importance has been demonstrated over and over again in this and in other wars. Remember how soon Hong Kong capitulated after the Japs captured the water supply?

For assured supplies of safe drinking water, modern armies depend on mobile water tanks accompanied by trucks especially equipped to disinfect water by chlorine treatment—on the spot.

In the plants of its Alkali Division, Canadian Industries Limited produces Chlorine for many purposes, important amongst which is its use to assure safe drinking water for the people of Canada and for their armies in the field.

Chlorine is another of C-I-L's products of Industrial Chemistry which are aiding Canada's war effort.

Fog Over Aleutians Limits Action, Midway Reports Mixed

WASHINGTON, June 18—(AP)—War Secretary Henry Stimson said to-day the losses inflicted on the Japanese in the Pacific had temporarily but substantially reduced the threat of an attack on the Pacific Coast of North America. He has repeatedly said this might be expected.

War and Navy Department information is, he said, that the Japanese thus far had made only a "very small landing" in the Aleutian Islands off Alaska, but he stressed that fog and unfavorable weather obscured developments in the North Pacific.

Information is still incomplete, Stimson also told his press conference, on the earlier air and sea engagement off Midway.

"But after three days' fighting the enemy fleet was scattered all over the Pacific Ocean hustling away as fast as it could in the opposite direction, without air protection," he added.

In the Aleutians, Stimson said, the American and Japanese forces thus far had had only fleeting glimpses of each other through the eyes of airmen.

He promised that the Government would make available "every bit of information we can" about the Aleutians as well as the earlier engagements off Midway Island in the

Rumania-Hungary Split Keeps 600,000 Men Off Red Front, Glaring Across Own Border

ISTANBUL, June 17 (Delayed)—(AP) — Rumania and Hungary together are withholding about 600,000 troops from the Russian front and most of them are facing each other across the disputed Transylvanian border, a neutral traveller reported today after visiting both countries.

"Relations are so strained that anything can happen any time," he said. "Nothing will prevent the Rumanians from attacking the Hungarians to win back Transylvania."

The informant said both nations had agreed at German behest in mid-May to withdraw their Transylvanian troops but that neither had kept the pledge. (Only part of Transylvania remained under Rumanian sovereignty after a territorial settlement which Germany forced Rumania to make.)

The traveller estimated that Hungary nevertheless had increased her contribution of men to Germany's Russian front to 186,000 as compared with 100,000 last year, whereas Rumania had sent only 150,000 compared with 530,000 a year ago.

He added that Rumania had sought to conceal the extent of her latest mobilization by calling up the men invdividually rather than by classes.

Nazis Claim Ft. Gorky Has Fallen Now 2 Mi. Off Harbor

MOSCOW, June 18—(AP)—With point-blank artillery fire and infantrymen standing against tankled waves of attackers, Red Army and Navy forces have beaten back every German attempt to smash through the shell-scarred fortifications that guard Sevastopol and its cliff-lined roadstead, Pravda reported today in dispatches from the front.

The Communist party newspaper said that since yesterday steadily reinforced German shock troops had battered almost unceasingly at the grimly held Crimean base from north and south, disregarding a toll of 1,500 killed in a single day.

"The enemy attempted by every means to break through our defence, but failed," Pravda said. "Fighting continues in two directions, to the north and south.

"Yesterday afternoon a strong German force supported by tanks and aircraft launched an offensive from the south. Simultaneously the Germans also attacked from another direction. All these enemy attacks were successfully beaten off with heavy losses . . . even tanks did not help the Germans; they retired, being unable to stand our artillery fire and break the staunchness of our ifnantry."

2 Miles from the Harbor

In Berlin the German high command claimed today that German forces attacking Sevastopol have stormed the main fortifications north of the city, capturing Maxim Gorky Fort and driving to within two miles of the harbor entrance.

"On the southern front of the fortress the Russians, despite stubborn resistance, were driven out of important positions by German and Rumanian troops," the communique said.

"In the harbor district stores and supply vessels of the enemy were destroyed by air attacks.

The communique said that on the central front before Moscow German troops continued mopping up Russian forces which had been operating in the rear of the German li

Russian attacks along the Volkhov river front southeast of Leningrad again were reported repulsed.

"In the harbor of Murmansk," the communique said, "German dive bombers raided enemy supply steamships. German fighters escorting the Stukas shot down 11 enemy fighters."

French Cheer, Hun Shake Fist As Daring RAF Scoot Down Champ Elysees, Shoot Up Ministry

LONDON, June 18—(CP).—Flt.-Lt. A. K. Gatward said last night Paris "looked exactly as I imagined it" when he swooped down last Friday to drop the tricolor on the Arc de Triomphe and sail daringly down the Champs Elysees to the bafflement of the Germans and the delight of the French.

He used the Eiffel Tower for bearings to guide him to the Arc de Triomphe where he dropped the flag "weighted and folded so it would stream as soon as released."

"One of the things he wanted to look at particularly was the Ministry of Marine, because it was crammed with Huns and we had something for them," he continued.

"We came in as low as we dared and let fly with our four cannon at about 500 yards, and I saw sparks fly off the building. A good deal went through the windows. We sprayed the place from base to apex and dropped our second flag.

"We saw military cars stopped in the streets with Huns standing by them or dodging around trees in the avenue. We couldn't fly at them because there were too many civilians about—of whom most were waving at us.

"One very fat Hun shook his fist."

Battleship's Day Not Done–Vinson May Save U.S. If Carriers Lost

By ALEX. H. SINGLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 18—(AP).—Continuing construction of battleships was described by Chairman Carl Vinson of the House of Representatives Naval Committee today as "essential insurance" against a possibility that future carrier losses might turn sea warfare into an "old-fashioned slugging match."

He offered that observation in making it clear that the day of the big battlewagon was not done, despite the havoc wrought against them recently by torpedo planes, and that the United States Navy intended to continue work on battleships already started.

At the same time Vinson reiterated his contention the aircraft carrier had become the "backbone of the fleet" as he went before the rules committee seeking a go-ahead signal for an $8,500,000,000 fleet expansion measure which emphasizes floating aerial striking strength.

In a formal report, the House listed 1,009,245 tons of fighting ships built since 1934 now in service and 2,646,606 tons more under construction.

Passage of the expansion bill, designed to double the size of the fleet, would add to that total 500,000 tons of aircraft carriers, 500,000 tons of light and heavy cruisers, and 900,000 tons of destroyers and destroyer escort vessels.

In addition, it would provide for 1,000 smaller craft to combat submarines. The committee offered a breakdown, saying it would build 400 steel sub chasers, 200 wooden sub chasers, 200 torpedo boats and 200 other patrol craft.

2 Boys Run Down Let Die On Road

ARNPRIOR, Ont., Jue 18.—(CP)—Two Sudbury youths were killed early to-day when struck by a hit-and-run driver while walking along Highway No. 17 three miles north of here.

The dead are: Denni Cayes 16, Wilfred R. Ranger, Sudbury.

Bodies of the youths were found lying beside the highway between four and five o'clock this morning. Police said evidence at the scene indicated they were struck by a hit-and-run driver and brain tissue found on the main street of Arnprior showed the car had been travelling east.

Moving The Dutch

MOSCOW, June 18 (AP) — A A German plan for the transfer of 3,000,000 Netherlanders to Nazi-occupied districts of Eastern Europe is part of a vast scheme for resettlement of the conquered peoples with the aim of opening choice areas for Germans and weakening resistance to the forces of occupation, Tass reported in a Geneva dispatch today.

The Soviet agency said German colonists were to be sent into large sections of Holland, Alsace-Lorraine, Luxembourg, and the Baltic Republics.

Japs Pour Planes To Burma, China Can Switch To Siberia, 11th Hour

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHUNGKING, June 18—(AP). — While informed sources here believe the Japanese may attack Russian Siberia before the summer is over, the enemy now is concentrating on reinforcement of his air strength in the China and Burma theatres.

Army intelligence reports received here indicated today the Japanese now have 500 planes in Burma and have increased the number actually in China to 300, with a fresh influx of planes at Canton and Hankow.

Aerial preparations of the foe gave weight to indications the Japanese would intensify their efforts to tighten the cordon around the still free parts of southern China and thereby strangle Chungking. The present nutcracker offensive in the eastern China provinces of Chekiang and Kiangsi is an important part of these efforts.

On the Chekiang-Kiangsi front, the Chinese hold on the important railway looping through the two provinces has been narrowed to about 50 of the 450-mile length of the line.

Leaving Planes to Last

Informed sources here, discussing the prospects of a Japanese attack on easternmost Russia, said the Japanese had taken certain preparatory steps but were leaving one, reinforcement of the air force in Manchoukuo, to the last. There was no confirmation of rumors that the Japanese had shifted many planes from southeastern Asia and occupied China to Manchukuo.

Chinese informants said, however, that reinforcements of Japanese air power in Manchukuo could be effected easily at the 11th hour when the Japanese are ready to launch the attack on Siberia. Awaiting such reinforcements are large numbers of modern airdromes.

Evidence that the Japanese hope to take a crack at Siberia some day is seen in the report they have restored the Kwantung army in

Holland's Queen Flies To Canada

The Queen was met at nearby Rockcliffe airport at 12:50 p.m. E.D.T. by Prime Minister Mackenzie King; Princess Juliana, her daughter, and also her grandchildren, Princess Irene and Princess Beatrix.

Queen Wilhelmina

She will remain in Ottawa for a few days before going to Lee, Mass., where Princess Juliana has taken a home for the summer months.

It was the first time Queen Wilhelmina has seen Princess Juliana and the children since they came to Ottawa to live shortly after the German invasion of the low countries.

"The Queen of the Netherlands has arrived in Canada in order to spend a few days with her daughter, Princess Juliana, and her two granddaughters, Princeses Beatrix and Irene.

"Thereupon the Queen intends to visit the United States of America, where, in the course of her stay, she will see President and Mrs. Roosevelt."

Mountain Wreck Yields 2 Bodies

MALONE, N. Y., June 18 —(AP) Deaths in the crash of four Royal Canadian Air Force planes in Northern New York's rugged mountains reached three to-day with discovery of two additional bodies in a wrecked craft last to be accounted for.

The victims were identified as Po. R. A. Thompson of St. Lambert, Que., whose plane was one of three wrecked on ragged Lake Mountain 15 miles southeast of here; Warrant Officer Val Legacy of Amherst, N. S., and Lac. J. C. H. Theoret, of Lachute, Que.

Bodies of Legacy and Theoret were located soon after dawn in a crumpled plane on nearby "W" Mountain after a 24-hour search.

The planes, each carrying two men, were blown off their course on a training flight early yesterday. Three men are in hospital with minor injuries, two were treated for slight cuts and dismissed.

Two state conservation department rangers Orville Betters and George Tebeau, discovered the fourth plane, and relayed the information here from a mobile radio unit.

British 8th Army Is Divided Half Stays To Hold Port With New Siege In Sight

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

CAIRO, June 18—(AP).—The British army fell back to fortified positions near the Egyptian frontier today, leaving the fortress of Tobruk all but surrounded by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's German and Italian divisions.

Apparently Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie's 8th Army split into two forces, one remaining to man the defences of Tobruk against imminent onslaught in a siege such as that which endured for nearly eight months in 1941.

British forces still were on the perimeter of Tobruk's south and southwest defences, where they hurled back repeated Axis assaults last year and where they stood when relieved by a British westward offensive on December 10, 1941.

Thus the situation now was almost the same as that during the long siege.

R.A.F. in Heroic Role.

Allied air squadrons, supporting the ground forces, broke all records for bombing and strafing as the enemy moved eastward and the British forces pulled out of El Adem and Sidi Razegh.

In the absence of direct word concerning Acroma, 20 miles west of Tobruk, British quarters believed it probable that the British forces had retreated from there.

Tobruk's small but deep harbor is the best for more than 1,000 miles between Alexandria, Egypt and Sfax, Tunisia. The fort has been held since January 22, 1941.

Lines to Port Open

Land communications with Tobruk remained opened. But a thrust northeastward to the Mediterranean by the Axis would again isolate the port in which a British Empire and Polish garrison held out under siege almost eight months last year—from April 15 until it was relieved Dec. 10 by a second drive from Egypt.

Britons acknowledged that their tank strength had been reduced in desert combat to below that of the enemy.

British fighters and bombers, however, were reported maintaining aerial superiority. An R.A.F. commentator said the British squadrons had more planes in action over the desert than the combined German and Italian air fleets.

"There are not more than 100 German dive bombers in Libya and no attack on our positions has numbered more than 30 aircraft," he said. The headlong Axis assault on Tobruk has not yet reached the perimenter defences of the port.

Chances to retrieve the situation rest on the ability of the garrison to withstand Rommel's attacks until reinforcements arrive from Egypt to mount a counteroffensive.

A heavy Axis assault on Tobruk is expected by British commentators, who say an actual invasion of Egypt to reach the Suez Canal is impossible without possession of Tobruk.

Hun Get Scared Fear Britain To Destroy Them

LONDON, June 18 (AP)—A growing wave of terror is reported from many parts of Occupied Europe.

On the German home front itself, reports added, the Nazis have opened a new propaganda drive calling for fortitude and "Iron purpose"—and warning the people of the dire consequences of defeat.

Fire 2 Torpedoes Into Prinz Eugen

TORONTTO, June 18—(CP)—How a British submarine hit the Nazi cruiser, Prinz Eugen, with two torpedoes was told to a Toronto paper by Able Seaman Herbert Dougherty of Toronto in a copyrighted interview today.

Ab. Dougherty is home on leave from service with the Royal Navy and is visiting his mother here. Prior to being assigned to the submarine he was aboard a destroyer which aided in the evacuation from Dunkirk.

He told how the submarine ripped a salvo of torpedoes through the cruiser's hull as the latter was going at full speed from Trondheim in Norway to a Nazi drydock for repair work and how the underwater craft was forced to dive to the bottom to escape German depth charges. The British submarine lay on the bottom for nine hours.

Nazi depth charges shook the submarine "plenty" as she lay on the bottom, he said.

He related how on another occasion his submarine lay on the sea floor for 44 hours while German surface craft attempted to finish the British craft.

"They depth-charged us right and left," he said. "We didn't mind it for the first few hours, but after that the air got bad. The crew beban to get sleepy and some of them dropped right off on the floor. Those of us who managed to breathe, gave them air from oxygen bottles. We just jammed them in their mouths."

Allied Setup Good Despite Curtin Gloom

No Cause For Despair Even If Tobruk Falls Says Commentator–Points To Russia

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The violence of the fighting in the various theatres of combat, as the Axis strains to get its war machine into top speed for a killing, is producing the usually heavy fluctuations of emotion among the Allied peoples, and for no vital reason there has been a fair amount of gloom knocking about the last day or two.

Without possible doubt we're going to get a lot more of the sweat and blood and tears that Prime Minister Churchill promised long ago, but there are no present signs that we shall see anything worse than the war already has produced. After all, the collapse of France and Belgium, the crimson sands of Dunkirk, the sweep of the Hun forces across the Russian Steppes last Summer, and Pearl Harbor were tough spots.

The Allies are encountering some setbacks, but from my observation post the conflict has appeared to be moving along fairly well for our side. We've taken some hard knocks and handed some out but, after all, war is that way. Thus it was with some concern that one read Prime Minister Curtin's warning to Australians yesterday.

Mr. Curtin said that the news from Libya wasn't good and that the Russian situation held dangers for the Allied cause. "Australia is irrevocably linked with the wars in Libya and Russia," he continued, and added that the fall of Australia, a possibility always to be remembered, would open the way for a Japanese attack on Hawaii and the North American coast. This was particularly disturbing since a fortnight earlier the Prime Minister declared:

"I defy the enemy to land large forces in Australia. The enemy is being desperately driven to shortages in essential supplies which show themselves more directly in the forces of the Axis powers than is the case with the forces of the Allied Nations....and thus time runs against the Axis in every theatre."

What could have happened in those two weeks to alter the Prime Minister's viewpoint so radically? In that time heavy damage has been inflicted on the Japanese fleet at Midway and off the Aleutians.

In that fortnight the Russians have withstood all Nazi efforts to get their overdue offensive started. The Soviet naval base of Sevastopol was held in the face of fierce attacks, and to-day the German dead are piled high before the defences. The massed Hitlerian assaults in the Kharkov sector at the gateway to the Caucasus have failed to do more than dent the Russian line.

It's true that the news from Libya isn't good. Nazi Marshal Rommel—one of the great generals of this war—has staged a spectacular offensive which to-day is threatening the important British position at the port of Tobruk.

Ickes Warns Again On Coal

Claims People Not Heeding Warning To Stock Up

WASHINGTON, June 18. —(AP)—Harold Ickes, Fuel co-ordinator, warned to-day the United States is not providing itself with full protection against coal shortages despite the Government's repeated urging that all consumers "buy coal now."

Ickes' aides already are at work on an emergency coal allocation program, against the possibility the war haulage burden on transportation systems may cause coal shortages this winter.

Ickes said each householder should put in his entire winter's supply this summer, if possible, and he said he thought supplies adequate for 60 to 90 days were not too much for the ordinary industrial consumer to have on hand. Vital war industries and utilities, he added, ought to carry coal enough to last at least 120 days.

J. McG. Stewart, Federal Coal Administrator for Canada, said Canada depended upon the United States for 60 per cent of its coal and if there was rationing in the United States it would inevitably follow in Canada. He announced at the same time that arrangements had been made with banks to grant loans up to $250 to enable householders to buy their coal early.

Axis Using Rocket Bombs

Accurate, Penetrating—Tried In Sea Battle

LONDON, June 18.—(CP).—Axis planes participating in the great sea battle in the Mediterranean this week were reported to-day to have employed a new type of rocket bomb characterized by technical authorties as the most important innovation since introduction of the magnetic mine.

Some experts believe that because of its terrific penetrating power and high potential accuracy the new weapon might result in development of a technique that would supersede dive-bombing.

The rocket bomb reported used by the Axis planes, described as the aerial equivalent of a high-calibre artillery shell, apparently is similar to bombs which Russian Stormovik aircraft recently have been reported employing with great effect against Nazi tanks on the eastern front.

Self-propelled, the new bombs are attached to the under side of the wings and are aimed by pointing the plane's nose directly at the target. When discharged they leave a trail of sparks like the tail of a comet.

Introduction of such a weapon in the Mediterranean battles was not mentioned in Axis communiques, but the German radio continued to make broad claims concerning the damage inflicted upon the Royal Navy in that engagement.

Canucks Aiding Defend Alaska

VICTORIA, June 18 — (CP). — Canadians were aware to-day for the first time, that Air and Army units of the Dominion are operating with United States forces in Alaska.

Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, Canadian Army Chief of Staff, broke the news in a statement issued yesterday at his headquarters here where he arrived two days ago to take over the Pacific Command.

For some days, Gen. Stuart said, Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons and anti-aircraft units of the Canadian Army have been operating with the United States forces in Alaska.

It was the first intimation that Canadian forces had joined American units in the Far North where the U.S. Navy Department announced last Friday Japanese had made small scale landings on rocky Attu Island and on Rat Island in the Aleutian Chain.

Gen. Stuart said he had been authorized by Defence Minister Ralston to make the announcement.

In the meantime status of the Japanese force in the northern area remained obscure. Last Monday the U.S. Navy reported the sinking of a cruiser and damaging of seven other vessels, including an aircraft carrier, in a sharp counter stroke against the invaders.

Since then silence has shrouded operations in the area where possession of westernmost Aleutian Islands could be used as bases for operations against Russia or Canada and the United State with equal facility.

Gen. Stuart said he attached "considerable significance" to the Japanese move in the Aleutians.

"It is an obvious defensive attempt to neutralize, destroy or occupy such air bases in the Aleutians as can be used for 'jumping-off points for raids on Japan by shore-based aircraft," he said.

Gen. Stuart said that if Japan could hold a foothold in the Aleutians "she will be much closer to Canadian objectives than she was before....It is idle to say that we are not concerned with developments....."

Pacific and in the Coral Sea near Australia.

Stimson was asked whether the air and naval losses inflicted on the foe in the last several weeks had diminished the threat to the Pacific Coast of North America.

"Temporarily, I should say the threat was much less," he replied.

Fliers Still at Sea.

One reason the report was still incomplete on the Midway fight, Stimson said, was that many naval fliers still are at sea on aircraft carriers which were prohibited by radio silence orders from forwarding reports.

Outlinging the difficulties of obtaining a clear and complete picture of a modern sea and air engagement, Stimson noted that the only contact between the American and Japanese forces off Midday was by means of hundreds of airmen.

"They were shooting in many cases at the same target without knowing that the other fellow was shooting at it," he said. "Flying at about 300 feet a second, there is little time for observation.

"Inevitably when the reports come in there is immense confusion. At Midway, where the weather was clear, the information available gave us a good general picture of the outcome but there was much confusion as to just what ships were hit.

"I spent three or four days studying the army and navy reports as they came in from the Midway battle, and didn't know at the end just how many ships were hit or what kind of units.

"Of the fighting in the Aleutians, we have not been able thus far to get even the general picture we had of Midway.

"I think I can speak for the navy as well as the war department in saying what we give you is our best judgment based on the mass of conflicting data."

St. Nazaire Lair Well Plastered

LONDON, June 18 — (CP). — British planes attacked the Nazi submarine base at St. Nazaire on the occupied French coast last night, laid mines in enemy waters, and attacked military targets in Northern France and Belgium, the Air Ministry announced to-day.

One fighter plane was lost, a communique said.

There was no German aerial activity over Britain last night, but two Nazi planes dropped bombs on the south-west coast early this morning, causing some damage and a small number of casualties, the Government reported.

The Air Ministry communique gave no details of the attack upon St. Nazaire but an authoritative source said a small force of bombers participated.

Bad weather was said to have prevented the R.A.F. from striking at Germany again after Tuesday nights assault on the Ruhr and the Rhineland.

Housewives Are Asked To Use Army Menus

All the major centres and most of the smaller communities throughout Military District No. 3 will be brightened with the greatest display of patriotic decorations in history judging from the support accorded suggestions from the district committee for Army Week.

Local committees are carefully following the suggestions put forth by the central organization so that each community, regardless of its size, will have a display of which the citizens can be proud.

Army Week has been set aside for honoring the men who are wearing the khaki of Canada's fighting army and those in charge of arrangements for the local observances are determined that citizens of this district will be continually reminded of the objective of this special week.

Committee members feel that one of the best ways of keeping the people Army conscious for a week is to have lots of flags and banners on display and they are seeking the co-operation of every merchant, business man and householder in the area to make certain that the display will be a success.

The Peterborough Committee is making a special appeal to the proprietors of hotels and restaurants to decorate their establishments and further co-operate by using menus for that week comprised of the foods on the Army diet sheets. Housewives are also asked to adopt Army menus.

Merchants have already shown their willingness to help in assuring success for the week by promising to devote window space for the Army displays.

The enemy's recent attacks on Midway and the Aleutian Islands are interpreted as preparatory to a Siberian move. The Japanese, it is said, had hoped to eliminate a threat to what would be the rear of an attack on Siberia. But the Japanese failure in those will not necessarily delay an attack on Siberia, the Chinese say. The main factor is doubt over the course of the German-Russian war.

U.S. Bombers Said Aiding Sea Fortress

Hun Dead Piles Up On Kharkov Front, Tank Losses Heavy

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 18.—(AP)—German shock troops seeking since June 5 to seize Sevastopol's fortifications and its cliff lined roadstead were repulsed in fierce fighting again yesterday and Red Army men demolished or disable 47 Nazi tanks elsewhere along the front, the Soviet Information Bureau said today.

(Four-motored Consolidated Liberator bombers were reported unofficially in a Stockholm dispatch to London to be operating with the Red Air Force in defence of Sevastopol.

(The United States planes were described as "similar to those which landed in Turkey following a raid on Rumanian oil fields" by an American squadron last week. It was not stated whether their crews were British, American or Russian.)

Savage German attacks upon the long-beseiged Crimean naval base were turned back in the 13th day of the offensive and hundreds of Nazi dead and shattered assault vehicles littered the slopes, the Russians reported.

Tank Wrecks Everywhere

A toll of 32 additional tanks was reported piled up along central and northern reaches of the combat zone, 14 in a battle behind Nazi lines at the centre in which 700 Germans were declared slain.

The communique said Russian fliers destroyed or damaged 70 German troop trucks and 30 supply carts, silenced seven artillery bat-

Gas Cut To Ease Fuel Oil Setup, New 'AA' Rating

OTTAWA, June 18 (CP)—Another change in unit allowances for gasoline ration coupons in three Canadian provinces and establishment of a new category for certain non-essential motorists has been ordered to ease the strain on fuel oil supplies.

Effective at midnight tonight, Munitions Minister Howe told the House of Commons yesterday, the basic coupon unit for motorists in Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia will be sliced from five to four gallons.

At the same time, Mr. Howe expressed hope that the ration allowance in the gasoline-starved Maritime provinces may be raised from two or three gallons at midnight June 30. For the present, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will remain on the five-gallon basis.

Reduction in gasoline consumption, Mr. Howe said, was expected to provide sufficient fuel oil for household oil furnaces which cannot be converted to other fuels. Commercial buildings will still be required to change from oil fuel by July 31.

Conversion A Problem

Since he announced May 20 that no fuel oil would be available for heating private residences this winter, a careful study of the situation had been made and it was realized conversion of all oil-burning

COUNTIES COUNCIL DEFERS ACTION IN PORT HOPE SCHOOL CASE

Ratepayers And Teachers Present Their Cases To Councillors Member of Board Asked To Appear

COBOURG, June 16 (ENS) — Members of Northumberland and Durham Counties Council yesterday heard on the floor of the house, the facts in connection with the Port Hope High School tangle as presented on behalf of the teachers, the parents and on behalf of the 1,246 petitioners who asked for the resignation of the High School Board. Miss M. Hagerman represented the eight teachers who have resigned in protest of the Board's dismissal of the principal, G. L. Brackenbury; J. F. Johnstone addressed the council on behalf of the petitioners and C. E. Stephenson presented the case for the parents. Council decided, after listening to them, to ask W. J. B. Davison, who is the chairman of the High School Board and is also the counties appointee on the Board, to present his side of the case at Thursday's session of the counties council.

Unfair Treatment Alleged

J. F. Johnstone, bearing the petition, summarized briefly the facts in connection with the High School matter. The petition asked for the resignation of the High School Board, including the Counties' representative on the Board, because of unfair treatment in connection with the dismissal of Mr. Brackenbury, the petition read. The board had asked for Mr. Brackenbury's resignation without giving any reason and dismissed him without stating their reason, he declared. Mr. Johnstone then read the petition signed by 95 per cent of the pupils of the school which had been presented to the board. The petition asked that the board reconsider its decision to dismiss the principal. He also read a petition which had been signed by parents and guardians of students at the school which pointed out that last year 95 per cent of the pupils had passed their matriculation examinations and on the word of Mr. Davison at the commencement exercises last Fall, the school results were the best in 25 years. The teaching staff had registered its disapproval of the Board's' action by resigning to the extent of eight out of nine teachers, and the students had shown their feelings in the protest parade which they staged some weeks ago, Mr. Johnstone pointed out.

In addition the Teachers' Federation had taken the stand that the dismissal was unfair and had circularized 1000 teachers advising them not to apply for positions on the Port Hope High School staff until the matter had been settled. The school was in a serious condition as a result of the Board's attitude, he said. Furthermore, the Board had informed the citizens committee in reply to a question from the latter, that it did not feel that the interests of the parents and guardians should come first in the Board's deliberations, Mr. Johnstone declared.

Speaks for Teachers

Speaking on behalf of the teaching staff, Miss M. A. Hagermn stated that Mr. Johnstone had not been correct in his reference to the Teachers' Federation. The Federation did not blacklist any school. It had however sent out circular letters as was the custom, but in all cases it was left to the teachers themselves as to what action they wanted to take. It was quite possible that teachers would apply for the vacancies now open on the Port Hope High School staff but she expressed the belief that "self respecting teachers would leave Port Hope alone" as far as applying for posts on the staff.

In connection with the Principal, the staff had found him always cooperative and anxious to help in any way. Contrary to the statements of the Board that Mr. Brackenbury was not efficient, the Federation had found the Board's version was wrong. The examination results certainly showed that the school was operating effectively Miss Hagerman said.

"If we couldn't get along with Mr. Brackenbury we would have complained to the Board," she declared.

Tried to Interfere

She went on to point out that the Board had tried to interfere with the teaching on a number of occasions, and it had been shown that the Board was at fault. The students of the school were backing Mr. Brackenbury and ex-students in the armed forces had written to lend their support on the Principal.

"It was difficult for us to resign and break up our old ties. But we have taught principles of British justice and we feel that we must live up to our conception of fair play by taking the stand which we have taken," she concluded amid applause.

Side Of The Parent.

"I was not particularly interested in this at first, either on one side or the other, but I have since realized the effect on the parents. We cannot lose all these teachers without it affecting the pupil. My own daughter has ideas in regard to what she was going to go through school for, but the way things are now, she has not said anything more about it. There will be other pupils, too, who will go back to school with a very changed outlook. These teachers have taught sewing, which is not on the curriculum, and the students have done some fine war work. It seems to me that when eight of nine teachers resign the Board must be wrong. The Board has expressed its stand on the matter but it doesn't all add up. I know all the members of the Board. I know them well. But I cannot but say that it seems to me that little personal grievances have crept in and the Board is determined to make their point regardless of the cost."

Warden Dodge declared in comment that the crux of the situation was in the body who would not hear the complaint of those who had made representations in the matter. It was a matter for the Board to settle. The counties representative on the Board had not revealed everything in his talk with the special committee on Tuesday, stating that the Board wished to protect Mr. Brackenbury's chances of getting another job, the Warden said.

F. C. Richardson, solicitor for the petitioners and citizens, advised the council that, while the act seemed to bar any move to unseat the council's representative on the Board, the council still could ask for his resignation.

"Would that settle the difficulty, with our representative resigning?" asked Reeve Calver. "We think that if he were asked to resign and did so, the rest of Board would do likewise," answered Mr. Richardson.

On motion council decided to have Mr. Davison address the whole council on Thursday afternoon.

The Special Schools Committee, who heard Mr. Davison and J. F. Johnson in a special session Tuesday, brought in a report which recommended that no action be taken. However, the recommendation did not find favour with the council and it was not accepted. Reeve T. Reid of Clarke township asked if the function of the Special Schools Committee in the matter had been to act as judge and jury on it, or to sift the facts and report back.

"We wondered ourselves," observed Warden Roy Dodge, who sat in with the schools committee on the matter Tuesday, "if that last sentence should be left out and that we made no recommendation. If it is left in it may hinder the chances of these people to seek redress with other bodies."

"Has the counties council any jurisdiction in the matter anyway?" asked Reeve Percy Goody of Brighton Township.

"Only insofar as it affects our counties pupils attending Port Hope High School," replied Reeve Garnet Shields, chairman of the Special Schools Committee.

"Colonialism" In Canada

Speaking in the conscription debate in the House on Tuesday, the Hon. Mr. St. Laurent referred to a kind of loyalty in Canada which he banded as "colonialism," and which he named as one of the obstacles to national unity in this country. The people of French Canada, he said, had been in this country for three hundred years; members of his own family had witnessed all the important events in Canadian history. Canadians whose ancestors had been in this country for two or three generations, or less, he implied, were apt to feel that Canada was obliged to do whatever the Mother Country did. It was this feeling which Mr. St. Laurent called "colonialism."

We see what Mr. St. Laurent means. The feeling to which he refers does exist, and it is possible to call it "colonialism," but we do not see how we are going to get away from it by any quick means. It will take a long time for that feeling to die in Canada. There are in this country a vast number of people whose forbears came, not so long ago, from the British Isles. They are proud of this fact, and although they are good Canadians they are not anxious to break their connection with the race of Drake and Marlborough, of Nelson and Wellington. The life of man is short, but the racial memory is long, and a Briton can no more forget Waterloo than a Jew can forget the exploits of Joshua. Mr. St. Laurent does not need to be shown how his own people have adhered to the language and traditions of old France; but the France from which they came is not that of today, nor is it the France of the Republic or the Revolution. Their French loyalties are toward a France which is forever gone, the France of Louis XIV. The Britain toward which so many Canadians feel a strong affection exists today, more glorious than ever. Loyalty toward a live thing is a mere demanding tie than is loyalty to a ghost.

The growth of what is excellent is slow. Confederation made Canada into a political unity, but it did not make it into a homogeneous nation, complete with tradition and spiritual autonomy. These things will come only with time, and in the meanwhile we must do the best we can with borrowed tradition and a spiritual life derived from our neighbors to a great extent. In Canada we have a mixture of English and French law which suits our needs very well, but there are many important phases of conduct for which formal law makes no provision; are we to evolve our ideas of decency in human relations out of our "inner consciousness," as the Belgian scholar evolved his idea of a camel, or are we to borrow the British traditions of fair play and courtesy in daily life? A small population in a large country cannot produce a native culture and civilization by a single act of will. Such things must grow, and they must have roots. We have found the roots in those corners of our hearts which are still devoted to the Mother Country.

Spiritually Canada is necessarily dependent upon the countries which produce the two main streams of thought expressed in English — Britain and the U.S.A. Without wishing to be discourteous toward the French-Canadian people, we really must insist that we in English-speaking Canada are more interested in modern thought and modern art than they are. They have an active culture, it is true, but to an outside observer it appears to be occupied in consuming its own smoke; to vary the figure, the intellectuals of French Canada appear to spend most of their time in taking in each other's cerebral washing. We in English-speaking Canada are proud of what we produce in the way of art and literature, but we do not pretend that it is sufficient intellectual fare for grown men with active minds; we refuse to condemn ourselves to intellectual malnutrition out of a mistaken sense of loyalty. Therefore we read what comes from England and the U.S., and we discuss it and study it, all the while hoping that soon we shall be able to contribute largely to this pool of intellectual resources. To be blunt, we must seek for intellectual stimulus abroad because we are not content with as little of it as our French compatriots seem to be.

Perhaps our great-grandchildren will be as single-mindedly Canadian as Mr. St. Laurent, but we doubt it. Indeed we hope that it will not be so. We hope rather for a closer understanding among the nations of the English-speaking world which will ameliorate the violent nationalism of today. We should prefer that our great-grandchildren shared the cultures both of Britain and of the U.S., and added whatever they could to those cultures. We do not think that the future holds out much hope of an ardent Canadian nationalism, but if it brings a better understanding between the English-speaking nations and a better world for all nations we are prepared to let Canadian nationalism go. Meanwhile, we take what Mr. St. Laurent calls "colonialism" as a sign that we have an interest in things beyond these shores, and we consider that a very good sign.

Elmer Davis At The Helm

Mr. Roosevelt has established an Office of War Information which will co-ordinate and release news about the activities of America at war, and he has appointed the well-known news commentator, Mr. Elmer Davis, as Director. This move, we feel, will give satisfaction not only in the U.S., but also in Canada. We have for some time had difficulty in distinguishing between those reports from the U.S. which were acceptable as an official view and those which were expressions of personal opinion by important members of the Government. No attempt was made to confuse the public but often the effect was confusing in the extreme.

The new office will be called the OWI, thereby adding one more set of initials to the scores which already puzzle us. Anyone who is not in at the birth of an American public office is hard put to it to interpret the initials by which it is afterward known.

The President's choice of Mr. Davis for this post will be a popular one. He is a journalist of exceptional ability, and his broadcast commentaries on the war have been invaluable in their clarity, their wise conservatism and their strict adherence to fact. The President has the ability which is not always given to great men to choose first-rate assistants; this ability is amply apparent in his choice of Mr. Davis for this difficult and responsible office, and we congratulate our neighbor on acquiring another fine public servant to assist her in her war effort.

Recognizing The Movies

The appearance of Alexander Korda's name in His Majesty's recent Birthday Honors List was an event of considerable social significance. It was the official recognition of the movies as a part of the significant culture of the modern world. Of course many critics and a large portion of the general public had decided that the movies were important many years ago, but official recognition is slow and cautious. The British stage had been great for three centuries before Queen Victoria officially recognized that fact by conferring knighthood on Sir Henry Irving. The films have not had to wait so long; they have their Sir Alexander now, with Merle Oberon as a beautiful, if not transcendently gifted, Lady Korda.

British films are not seen in this country as widely as might be wished. Generally they are exhibited in large cities only, where there are enough movie connoisseurs to make up a satisfactory audience. For in most Canadian towns there exists a prejudice against British films; audiences feel that they will be slow in pace and inferior in technical matters to the Hollywood article. This prejudice persists from the days shortly after the last war, when British films were indeed vastly inferior to those made in the States. The British film industry ceased to function during the Great War, and the Americans stole a march on them then.

Now things are very different. The British have learned much from Hollywood, and have adapted their new knowledge to their own purposes; likewise the Americans have adopted some of the British traits, such as their care in casting minor roles, and their dodges for creating atmosphere and suspense in mystery films. Hollywood still has certain undeniable advantages, but it has been generous in recognizing the greatness of such British pictures as 49th Parallel (made in Canada), Pygmalion, and Major Barbara.

Since the outbreak of war the British film industry has been steadily at work, producing pictures for export, ranging from such frank propaganda pieces as The Lion Has Wings and Ships With Wings to more subtle works designed to create admiration for and sympathy with the British way of life, such as the film of H. G. Wells' Kipps. It is in this work that Sir Alexander Korda has been especially active, and his knighthood is a recognition of his good work. But it is also a belated recognition of the movies as a factor in the lives of the people of Britain, and as such it is an undeniable landmark in social history.

Red Cross Workers Wanted

Some time ago we published an account in these columns of the excellent work which the Red Cross is doing in preparing and dispatching parcels to the German prison camps where soldiers of the United Nations are interned. At that time the Red Cross was asked for 40,000 parcels; now the demand has been increased to 80,000. This means that the work of preparing these parcels has been doubled, and assistance for wrapping and preparing the parcels is badly needed.

The local branch of this great organization has taken on a part of this gigantic task, and it is asking for volunteers to help with it. If you have any time to spare you can hardly employ it better than in helping to prepare these parcels which are the tangible evidence to imprisoned men that we have not forgotten them.

While we are on the subject of the Red Cross we should like to mention that the local branch sent $300 to Kinmount recently to help those who had suffered in the fire there. Shortly afterward the Kinmount people returned $150 of this sum, saying that they did not feel justified in taking it all when the money might be used for war purposes. This, we feel, is the spirit which is going to win this war, and we are happy to draw attention to it.

One Moment, Please

Some time ago a preacher in Bournemouth, a watering-place in Hampshire, England, uttered a jeremiad in the course of one of his sermons which seems to have caught the fancy of some people in this country. We reprint it:

> We have been a pleasure-loving people, dishonoring God's Day, picnicking and bathing—
> Now the seashores are barred—no picnicking, no bathing.
> We have preferred motor travel to church-going—
> Now there is a shortage of motor fuel.
> We have ignored the ringing of church bells calling us to worship—
> Now the bells cannot ring except to warn of invasion.
> We have left the churches half empty, when they should have been filled with worshippers—
> Now they are in ruins.
> We would not listen to the way of peace—
> Now we are forced to listen to the way of war.
> The money we would not give to the Lord's work—
> Now is taken from us in taxes and higher prices.
> The food for which we forget to thank God—
> Now is unobtainable.
> The service we refused to give God—
> Now is conscripted for the country.
> Lives we refused to live under God's control—
> Now are under the nation's control.
> Nights we would not spend "Watching Unto Prayer"—
> Now we spend in anxious air raid precautions.
> The evils of modernism we would not fight—
> Now, see what Germany, the seat of this teaching, has produced.

The gist of this piece seems to be: You didn't go to church often enough, and look how God has punished you! And the implication, of course, is that regular church-going would have fended off the war.

We admire the simplicity of this argument, but we cannot go farther. We doubt if God has decreed this war as a punishment for people who refused to go to church to listen to such preaching as this. And although we should not dream of discouraging anyone from regular church attendance we do not think it quite fair to fasten responsibility for a global war upon the backsliders of Bournemouth.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Rationing makes many things short, including the "a" in its own pronunciation.

Let's hope that by this time those Japs on the Aleutians have been dis-Aleutianed.

Americans have a happy gift of phrase. The latest warning against careless talk is a simple "Zip your Lip."

QUAIL

They run all day
Among the shrubs;
Even the chicks can move
With a strange and effortless speed,
Their little topknots
Bouncing on a resilient hair
As merry as bluebells
In the spring wind.

When they are out of sight
One hears their lovely purling cry
Of well-being,
And wonders if the nightingale
Or lark
Can so enchant, enchant.

Anniversary Of Waterloo

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IT IS now almost a year since Hitler attacked Russia, and ever since that campaign began to go against Germany comparisons between Hitler and Napoleon have been popular. It must be confessed that much wishful thinking enters into all but the best of these comparisons. Napoleon was a tyrant; Hitler is a tyrant. Napoleon attacked Russia and came to grief; ergo, Hitler must come to grief in Russia. The best that can be said of such reasoning is that it has the virtue of simplicity.

But although it has been done to death the comparison of Hitler with Napoleon has its fascination. That is why I choose to remind you that this is the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo, when the power of the Corsican Ogre was finally broken. Oh yes, he was called the Corsican Ogre in his time, and Old Boney, too. We make up names for tyrants while they are living to express our hatred and scorn of them, and then, when they have been dead long enough, we become sentimental about them. Nowadays Napoleon figures in the public imagination as a Great Man. We speak of any man who has been especially successful in juggling with other people's money as a Napoleon of finance, and he is usualy pleased. Indeed, the less he knows about Napoleon the more pleased he is likely to be. And so, doubtless in another century, we shall refer to anyone who has been outstandingly successful (no matter through what fraud or chicane) as a Hitler, and we will make sentimental movies about the life and loves of the Little Brown Corporal. Can't you see them now, with some latter-day Robert Taylor in the principal role? The handsome young Hitler in jail, writing "Mein Kampf"; Hitler sorrowing over the Jewish purges which are forced upon him by his wicked advisors; and finally, Hitler stopping a battle in order that two young lovers may be united, although his own heart is breaking. They have done it to Napoleon many times; why not to Hitler? What a pity George Arliss will not be alive to play the part! It would just round out his gallery of historical characters nicely.

BUT to return to Waterloo. Europe thought that it was safely rid of Napoleon when he was dumped on Elba. But Elba was too close to the Italian coast. The Congress of Vienna was at work straightening out the tangled skein of European affairs when news came in February, 1815, that the Corsican had escaped and was on his way back to France. The Duke of Wellington wrote, when he heard the news: "He has acted upon false or no information, and the king will destroy him without difficulty and in a short time." The king referred to was the Bourbon Louis XVIII of France, and almost before Wellington had time to make his prediction this inglorious monarch had fled and France was once more rallying to Napoleon's cause. He approached his country through the Alps, knowing that this was the last way in which his enemies would expect him and the most difficult way for them to check him.

Napoleon moved rapidly, and was ready for battle before his adversaries. But he had not counted upon their loyalty to each other, and he placed too great confidence in the powers of the comparatively small army which he was able to muster. The invasion of France from the north was entrusted to Wellington and Blucher, with the Austrians and Russians attacking from the east. When Wellington moved toward the French frontier he found that Napoleon had already crossed the Sambre river and was ready to meet him. And so began the four days' campaign which ended on June 18 with the victory of Waterloo, which dashed the hopes of Napoleon to the ground, and won for Wellington an undying fame, accompanied with the somewhat more substantial tributes of the title of prince of Waterloo, a generous grant of estates from the King of Holland, the order of the Saint-Esprit from Louis XVIII and £200,000 (something rather more than a million dollars in modern value) from a grateful Parliament.

WHY did Napoleon lose at Waterloo? He was a genius in warfare, and it is generally admitted that Wellington was not. But he had a task for which his forces were numerically inadequate. When the two armies faced each other it was seen that the French troops were hardened veterans, united by a fanatical devotion to their former Emperor. Perhaps the most stirring reception Napoleon ever had was when he reviewed his troops prior to Waterloo. On the other side was a motely and seemingly ill-organized army. More Germans than British fought under Wellington. But Napoleon was failing in strength, and his seconds were Ney and Grouchy, neither of whom was adequate for his task. Perhaps the greatest single factor in Napoleon's defeat was Grouchy's failure to prevent Blucher from joining Wellington on the field. Napoleon had not counted on the loyalty which existed between these two men.

Waterloo was not the most exciting of the Napoleonic battles, not was it Wellington's most remarkable victory; but it was the nadir of one man's career and the pinnacle of another's. If Napoleon had had better generals he might have won the battle, and the whole course of our modern history might have been changed. But when we begin speculating on what might have happened if a battle had been won instead of lost, it is time to stop.

Curtin Unduly Pessimistic

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

JUST what inspired Prime Minister Curtin of Australia to contribute so sombre a picture of war developments as a basis for his warning that "Australia can be lost" is only conjecturable. Only recently he was broadcasting a fiery challenge to Japan to attempt an invasion of the down-under continent.

The Pacific theatre itself has witnessed no developments since then calculated to abate his confidence. Quite the contrary. The Midway Island fight should have added to his optimism. It was a hard blow for Japan's ambitions, yet Curtin all but ignored it to cast far and gloomy looks at the Libyan, Russian and Western Atlantic theatres.

His attitude would be understandable if it were clear that some home-front exigency inspired his remarks. But there has been no hint of dangerous apathy or overconfidence in Australia. That invites speculation as to whether he knows of or fears some shift in United Nations strategy which might decrease the flow of American help for Australia. For the general purport of his warning was that Australia is a vital pivot of the United Nations war effort.

The Australian leader elected to point a darker picture of Libyan developments than has come from any other British source. There was an implication that Axis capture of the Suez Canal to open an Indian Ocean route for attack on Australia was possible due to British reverses in Libya.

LOOKING FAR AHEAD

That is looking far ahead, through any but rose-colored glasses. British forces still hold a segment of Eastern Libya bulwarked by the port of Tobruk as an outpost for defence of Egypt and the Canal. Anglo-American air forces in the Mediterranean have just dealt Italy's disintegrating navy another heavy blow. A British supply convoy has arrived in Tobruk. Malta, on the vital Axis supply line to Libya, has been similarly relieved. The wear and tear of prolonged desert action in Libya must be as great or greater on Axis men and machines as on British. Why, then, Curtin's gloom?

Russia is giving as well as receiving heavy blows. Hitler's great offensive has yet to get rolling, and Russian accounts picture him as stalled both in the Crimea and on the Kharkov front.

United Nations shipping losses in the Western Atlantic are unquestionably serious, as Curtin pointed out. They affect civilian life in the United States more than anything else, however. The passage of American troop convoys to the British Isles goes on. Supplies for Russia are spanning the Arctic.

There has been no intimation from any quarter of any fundamental change in United Nation strategy which would divert to other fronts United States troops or fighting gear previously destined for Australia.

There is, of course, always a possibility that Japan's abortive attack on Midway Island and her Aleutian Island enterprise are diversion moves designed to draw American forces northward or to keep them on home defence assignments instead of mustering in Australia. It may be fear of such a development that has revived Curtin's apprehensions.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Now these are the commandments, the statutes, and the judgments, which the Lord your God commanded to teach you, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go to possess it: that thou mightest fear the Lord thy God, to keep all his statutes and his commandments, which I command thee, thou, and thy son, and thy son's son, all the days of thy life; and that thy days may be prolonged. Hear therefore, O Israel, and observe to do it; that it may be well with thee, and that ye may increase mightily, as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promised thee, in the land that floweth with milk and honey.

Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might .... And when thy son asketh thee in time to come, saying, What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which the Lord our God hath commanded you? Then thou shalt say unto thy son, We were Pharaoh's bondsmen in Egypt; and the Lord brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand....

And the Lord commanded us to do all these statutes, to fear the Lord our God, for our good always, that he might preserve us alive, as it is to this day.—Deut. vi, 1-5, 20, 21, 24.

All the paths of the Lord are mercy and truth unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies... Let integrity and uprightness preserve me; for I wait on thee.—Ps. xxv, 10, 21.

SIGNS OF ACTION

"FREEZING" of stocks of canned corned beef in Canada can be construed as a preliminary to decided action of some sort. In fact, this move on the part of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board may not be entirely isolated from the British advice to residents of the European "invasion coast" to move into the interior.

Corned beef is traditionally an item of active service diet for troops. Stoppage of its sale to the general public in Canada, and the survey that has been ordered of existing stocks, suggests that some other use for the supply is in view. It hints, in fact, of an army on the march. — Windsor Star.

HE ASKED FOR IT

MARK TWAIN once encountered Chauncey Depew at a dinner while the former's "Joan of Arc" was being published serially.

"I don't suppose you ever read novels, Depew?" asked the famous author.

"Oh, yes, I do," replied Depew. "I am very fond of them."

"Have you seen that anonymous novel, 'Joan of Arc,' in Harper's?"

"Yes, indeed," said the famous orator and wit. "I read it every month."

"Well, what do you think of it?" asked Twain, trying hard to appear casual.

"That's hardly a fair question to ask me," replied Depew, who, unknown to Mark, had learned the author's identity.

"Why?"

"You see," answered Depew, in the manner of one confessing a most humiliating secret, "I wrote the thing and am trying to keep it quiet."—Christian Science Monitor.

J. G. M. German Becomes Judge United Counties

COBOURG, June 18 — (ENS) — Judge J. G. M. German, newly appointed to the bench of Northumberland and Durham counties, was inducted yesterday in the County Court room. A large attendance witnessed the swearing in of the new judge. Judge J. J. McGibbon of Lindsay, senior judge of this judicial district, presided over the ceremony. Present with him were Judge Sheldon Smoke of Peterborough; Judge D. B. Coleman of Whitby and Judge Frank M. Field, retired judge of York county. Members of the bar in attendance were G. Langdon and T. Clive Thompson of Brighton; Jacob Low, J. R. Corkery of Peterborough; M. A. O'Shea of Hastings; Magistrate Ronald B. Baxter of Port Hope; J. R. Douglas and M. A. MacColl of Campbellford; Ross Strike of Bowmanville; D. H. Chisholm, of Port Hope; A. R. Willmott, T. F. Hall, Harry Deyman, F. C. Richardson, R. Affleck and Alan Field of Cobourg; John Callahan of Toronto.

Also in attendance were Cecil Mercer, M.P.P. for Durham county; Fred Slade, registrar, Cobourg; Mayor John Burnet and the town council; Fred Wight, governor of the jail, Cobourg; Chief of Police W. J. Carey; Town Clerk Alex Young; Captain Lorne Anderson, Tom Jones, U.S. Naval Air Service, Jacksonville, Fla.; Warden Roy Dodge and members of the Counties Council, wives of the members of the bar and bench and others.

After court had been opened, Sheriff John T. Field escorted the new judge to the body of the court where the judge's commissions were read by Crown Attorney Harry Deyman in his capacity of Clerk of the Peace. Judge German was accordingly sworn in as judge of the county court of Northumberland and Durham; local judge of the high court of justice; local master of the Supreme Court of Ontario and judge of the Surrogate court.

At the completion of this, the sheriff escorted the judge to his chair on the platform of the court, where Judge McGibbon handed him the gavel. A number of telegrams were read from notables who had not been able to be present. Felicitations were given by Warden Roy Dodge, for the counties; Mayor John Burnet for the town of Cobourg; D. H. Chisholm of Port Hope, senior members of the counties' bar; A. R. Willmott, for the Cobourg bar; Jacob Low for the Peterborough bar and John Callahan for the Toronto bar. John Callahan paid tribute to the qualities of the new judge, stating that he possessed the essentials of learning, experience and judicial temperament.

Judge McGibbon in introducing the new judge said that the duties of a judge placed upon him a greater responsibility than before in view of the conditions through which the country was pasisng. Judge McGibbon stated that at one time Durham and Northumberland counties were known as judicial districts No. 12 and 13. From these counties had come the late Sir Charles Moss, the late Chief Justice Armour and the present Chief Justice Riddell. It was said also that Sir John A. Macdonald had practised at one time before the Bar of this county. The Hon. James Cobourn, first speaker of the House after Confederation had lived here. The late W. N. Tilley had been born in the counties near Bowmanville. Judges of the counties had been the late Judge Benson, Ketchum, Roger, Ward, Cameron, McGlade and until a short time ago Judge L. V. O'Connor. Judge McGibbon said that it was unique that all his fellow judges in this judicial district of Peterborough, Northumberland and Durham, Ontario, Victoria and Haliburton counties were of the class of 1916.

"I feel very humble here today," declared Judge German. "I know most of the members of the Bar of Northumberland and Durham and Peterborough have practised here. I still feel humble and I wonder if I have those qualities which Mr. Callahan said made a judge. I hope that I have."

Judge German went on to point out that a successful judge must have a strong Bar. If the Bar was sound the Bench would be sound, he said. Being appointed a judge, was not a reward, but a change in work with greater responsibility, with one in the position of not defending a client but sitting in judgement of one's fellow man, he said. He followed in the wake of distinguished judges and he hoped that he would live up to the responsibility handed to him, Judge German said.

Ministers Hold Annual Picnic

GORE'S LANDING, — June 18 —(ENS)— The Ministerial Association of Durham-Northumberland held their annual picnic in Herald's Camp grounds on Monday noon. Eighteen ministers with their wives and families motored out for a few hours fresh air on the shores of Rice Lake.

A bountiful lunch was provided by the ladies and the ministers had their executive meeting. Games were also included and an enjoyable afternoon was spent in the park. The new officers for 1942-43 are president—Rev. Mr. Rowland, Port Hope; vice-president—Rev. France, Cobourg; secretary-treasurer Captin Greenwood, Cobourg.

Conant Advises Supervisory Judge Be Named

COBOURG, June 18.— Appointment in Ontario of a chief county and district court judge, armed with supervisory authority in the administrative sense similar to that now vested in the Chief Justice of the High Court, was advocated last night by Attorney-General Conant.

Mr. Conant's recommendation which was directed to the Department of Justice, was made at a banquet by the bench and bar of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, on the occasion of the swearing in of Judge C. C. M. German, as Judge of the county court of the united counties.

In his recommendation, the Attorney-General included a note of criticism of the Federal Department. "Having appointed a judge the Department of Justice seems to regard him as a person or official quite apart from all other Governmental agencies and that he must not be spoken to about anything or on any occasion. I do not," he said, "suggest that the Department of Justice, or any other official or department should interfere in any way with the exercise by any judge of his judicial discretion or the conduct of the court. That is a matter which is sacred."

Administrative Co-ordination.

But he did hold there were 'many situations and aspects of the county and district courts where there should be some supervision and co-ordination mostly of an adminstrative nature." Hardly a week passed without some of the county and district court judges contacting his department regarding arrangements for some of the courts, due to illness, absence or other inability of the assigned judge to preside. He stressed that the Provincial department had no jurisdiction.

"But we have found from experience that the Department of Justice will do nothing, and manifests little concern with such and similar matters," added the Attorney-General.

He declared he was satisfied that such an appointment by the Department of Justice would not result in additional expense because of the better arrangements and functioning of the county and district courts.

"Furthermore," declared the Attorney-General, "I think there could be a reduction in the number of county and district court judges. While, undoubtedly, some of the judges are overworked, there are some who have not enough to do."

A supervising county and district court judge would have sixty-one judges under him, said Mr Conant, while the Chief Justice of the High Court has only twelve. "I am confident that a chief county and district court judge could and would accomplish a great deal in the direction of expediting and making less expensive the administration of justice in the county and district courts."

The Attorney-General, at the outset, laid down the principle that practice and procedure in the administration of justice should be revised to meet modern conditions and requirements. He cited the 1941 Magistrates' Act, which prevented the ousting of a magistrate from is position except on substantially the same grounds that a judge may be dismissed. He spoke of how appointment of magistrates has been amended so that he may draw superannuation upon retirement.

SOLDIERS SCORE 8 RUNS IN TWO INNINGS TO DEFEAT JUVENILES

Youngsters Toss Away Early Lead Military Team Taking Two In Row

Soldiers came from behind to score eight runs in their last two innings and hand the luckless Juveniles an 9 to 7 defeat in the City League game at Riverside Park, Wednesday night.

Until the eighth frame the youngsters looked like sure winners. They opened out with three runs in the first inning and were in front all the way until the sudden scoring splurge for Soldiers in the eighth that saw five runs cross over the plate.

Until he weakened in the later stages Bob Crowe had pitched a whale of a ball game for the Juveniles. He had the Soldiers batters popping them up and until the seventh inning the boys from the Miltetary Training Centre were unable to put together two safe blows in any one frame. Crowe however, tired on end and the Soldiers broke through for three runs in the seventh. When the first three batters reached first in the eighth with no one out, Reg. Leether was sent into the box and two far from robust hits, a fly to the outfield and an infield out sent five runs in and the ball game was shot.

Looked Like First Win.

Up to that stage it looked like the first victory of the season for the Juveniles who had come through with some timely hitting, had driven Irish Kilfoyle to cover and had kept up the assault on Ken Fleming who relieved him in the fourth. The losers outhit the Soldiers 12 to 9 with Leether setting the pace with a triple and two singles. Fred Garvey had two for four and Bill Jones came through with a mammoth home run to centre and also a single.

Herrick with a double and single and McIlveen with two singles were the only Soldiers to get two hits.

Juveniles opened with a three-run assault in the first. Anderson singled to right and was forced by Garvey but Crowe walked and Leether singled to right to score Garvey. Jones rolled to McKerrigan and Crowe registered, McKerrigan's error on Detlor's roller let Leether come home. Greatrix forced Detlor to end the inning.

Jones, first up in the third crashed a long home run over Doug. Mortimer's head to make the score 4 to 0. Detlor flied to Herrick. Greatrix walked and Fleming relieved Kilfoyle. After Carpenter had fanned Smith also drew a pass but Anderson rolled to Fleming.

Soldiers got their first run in the fourth. After Saro had flied out Fleming walked, went to second on a wild pitch and after Kilfoyle had fanned ran home on McKerrigan's double to left. Herrick fouled to Detlor.

Get Pair In Fifth.

The Juveniles came back with a pair in the fifth when Fleming lost control. Greatrix strolled and on three successive wild pitches went around to score. Then Carpenter and Smith walked. Carpenter was out at the plate on an attempted double steal. Anderson was tossed out by Fleming but Garvey drew a pass and Crowe singled to right to score Smith. Leether lined to McIlveen in left. Soldiers closed up the gap by scoring three in the seventh to make the score 6 to 4. With one out McIlveen beat out a tap to short. Mortimer was passed. Sero singled to left and McIlveen scored. Fleming hit to short and on Anderson's bad throw to first both Mortimer and Sero registered. Kilfoyle flied to Greatrix and McKerrigan rolled out to Leether.

The youngsters added another run in the first of the eighth. Leether tripled to right to open the inning and scored when Bill Jones singled on the ground into right. Detlor fanned. Greatrix scratched a single on a slow roller that hit second base but Jones was called out leaving his base too soon and Carpenter fanned Then came the sad frame for the Juveniles. Crowe started it by fielding Herrick's bunt and then hitting the runner with his throw to first .Barnes and Anderson walked to fill the bases and Leether went into pitch, Crowe moving to third .McIlveen sliced a single into left scoring Herrick and Barnes. Mortimer walked, again filling the bases. Sero's fly to Carpenter in centre sent Anderson in with the tieing run. Fleming's pop single back of second scored McIlveen, Kilfoyle forced Fleming at centre, Mortimer scoring the fifth run of the inning and McKerrigan ened the agoney by rolling to Leether.

Juveniles failed to score in the ninth.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Brintons showed great improvement in their Monday night game with Westclox, coming from behind to defeat last year's champs. Now the question the patrons of the Girls' Softball League are asking is whether the Carpet-makers can come back and take Mike O'Brien's league-leading C.G.E. girls into camp. The two outfits clash at the Ashburnham Bowl tonight and it looks like a lively tussle all the way. Leila Hughes is billed to go to the mound for Brintons and her fast ball may bother the Electricians considerably. Manager O'Brien has both Marilyn McCarthy and Norma Strickland ready for pitching duty and a good guess is that the former Westclox ace who has not pitched a game so far this season will be asked to take over mound duties tonight. Both camps are confident of the outcome and both announce they will have full teams out there battling. The good showing of Brintons Monday night is likely to bring the fans back in droves. The game starts at 7 o'lock

The biggest crowd of the softball season is expected at Riverside Park Friday night when Plazas and Royals, two of the strongest clubs in the loop will meet in a regular league game, the entire proceeds of which will be donated to the bat and ball fund of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association to supply softball equipment for Canada's armed forces. Softball is the most popular sport in all the camps and vast supplies of bats and balls are required to keep the soldiers, sailors and airmen busy. The local City League is anxious to do its part for this worthy cause and so one of the best games of the season has been set aside as a benefit game for the bat and ball fund. There is keen rivalry between Royals and Plazas and Friday night's game should be a hummer, with both clubs trotting out their strongest lineups. Tom Parsons will likely do the throwing for Plazas while Manager Parnell will undoubtedly delegate to Bill Fraser the task of curbing the powerful hockey squad. A special attraction is the offering of a Kenwood blanket and a Brinton rug as draw prizes which means that a couple of lucky fans are going to see a good ball game and get a valuable prize in addition. The game is called for 7 o'clock sharp.

Once again the Juveniles tasted defeat again last night after nearly pulling off a win over Soldiers. The Military team, fresh from an upset win over Plazas the night before looked for the greater part of the game as if they were themselves due to play the role of the victims in another surprise. They were behind the eight-ball most of the journey and the manner in which Bob Crowe's pitching was handcuffing them made it look certain that the youngsters were going to land in the win column at last. The kids were in front 6 to 1 until the seventh and were still in front 7 to 4 when Soldiers went to bat in the last of the eighth. Crowe tired badly and lost control and that gave the Military Centre team the break. Leether went in cold as relief pitcher and before the side could be retired five runs were in and the Soldiers were in front 9 to 7. It was another tough loss for the Juveniles who were beaten out in the last inning Monday night, dropping the decision by one run.

Make Baseball History

The Detroit Tigers seem to have more success stopping the New York Yanks than they have playing some of the less potent clubs in the loop. Yesterday the Bengals not only defeated the men of McCarthy, making it two wins out of the last three games but they shut out the Yanks for the first time this season. Dizzy Trout who had only won three games as against six defeats was the hero, holding the losers to five scattered hits. Marvin Breuer was the losing pitcher, dropping a 1 to 0 decision and the winning run was scored with two out in the last of the ninth when Ned Harris singled with the bases full to win the argument. The Yanks' loss did not benefit the runners-up, Boston Red Sox as they picked yesterday as a good time to end their nine game winning streak, losing 6 to 3 to St. Louis Browns with the veteran Elden Auker getting the win. Butland was the losing pitcher. George McQuinn and Mike Chartak hit homers for the Brownies and Bobby Doerr got his eleventh of the season for the Red Sox.

* * * * * *

Phil Marchildon picked up his seventh win of the season for the A's, the Penetang native son holding Chicago to five hits as the Athletics trounced the White Sox 6 to 3 with Humphries drawing the loss. In the National lop, Kirby Higbe of the Brooklyn Dodgers picked up his sixth win of the year and would have had a shutout if he had failed to throw a home run ball to Russell, Cub rookie. The final count, with Bill Lee pitching for the Cubs was 5 to 1 and Higbe's effort was a four-hitter. Meanwhile the Cincinnati Reds were helping themselves to two wins at the expense of Boston Braves whose losing streak is still in full bloom. The Reds took the first game 4 to 2 with Paul Derringer doing the firing and grabbed the nightcap 4 to 3 with rookie Ray Starr adding another to his long string of wins at the expense of Bill Tobin. They had to go eleven innings to get that one but finally did the trick. To keep up the parade of wins for leading teams St. Louis Cards shut out the Giants 3 to 0 with Mort Cooper holding Mel Ott's gang to five scattered hits.

Williams' Early Career

Peterborough ball fans will find this article on the early career of Pitcher Jack Williams interesting. It appears in Bill Walshe's column in the Kingston Whig-Standard: "Capt. James Sutherland wrote from Sydney, N.S., to add further information to a recent article in this column on Chief Williams, who started his sensational pitching career with Belleville in the old Central League twenty years ago. Williams was an outstanding pitcher before Belleville brought him from Verona, according to the Sutherland letter, which is as follows: Jack Williams, his brother and his father, Mike Williams, enlisted for overseas in the 146th Battalion, commanded by Lt.-Col. Charles A. Low. They were recruits to our Sportsman's Platoon. When the battalion proceeded to Valcartier the several battalions there organized a baseball league. The 146th Battalion had the Williams brothers as a battery. Bike Young, well known to Kingston sports of a generation ago, was the shortstop and Captain Jack McCartney, the contractor, was a member of the team. Billy McFedridge was manager. Others on the team were mostly Kingstonians, including Joker Hughes and Kelly. Due to Jack Williams' wonderful pitching the 146th Battalion won the championship of Valcartier and the pennant, defeating an Irish Battalion in the final and collecting $1,000. Bike Young took charge of the pennant and brought it overseas with us. Jack Williams' brother, the catcher, was killed in action overseas but Jack and his father came back safely to Canada."

MAGNET OF THE RACE TRACKS DRAWS BUMPER HARVEST OF GOLD

Betting Public Have More Cash; Ten to Ace, Star

By Scott Young,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

TORONTO, June 18—(CP) — Ontario's first 22 days of racing this season have produced one great thoroughbred and one outstanding fact. Ten To Ace is the equine star and the fact is this: no matter what the situation in the war and taxes departments, the racing public has more money than usual to play the horses.

The Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations, which controls racing in Ontario, has released no betting or attendance figures for the Spring meetings; at Toronto's Woodbine, Thorncliffe and Dufferin Parks. But it was reported that Woodbine had its greatest meeting since the Spring meet of 1935, the previous high. Thorncliffe is a hard track to reach with rationing cutting into both public and private transportation, but people got there in record numbers. The Long Branch Jockey Club's Meeeting at Dufferin Park was similarly successful. The Metropolitan Racing Association's go at Dufferin has started well.

Scattered unofficial reports of Mutuel takes have furthered the proposition that the public wants racing, wartime or peacetime. One day at Thorncliffe the take was reported at $268,000 with a record daily double pool of $15,000. The attendance on Woodbine's opening day—King's Plate Day— was estimated at a maximum of 21,000, minimum of 18,000. That's slightly above the modern plate-day average, and this year it was cold and rainy—a day for ducks and fish (no innuendo here), not people.

Real Tests to Come.

Ten to Ace won six of his seven races as a two-year-old, and was no surprise as tenlength winner in the $8,000-added King's Plate. He won his second start of the season— the Prince of Wales Plate, with a $2,500 purse. Liver trouble developed, was corrected, and the Ace is in Winnipeg training for the $5,000-added Canadian Derby. He may be the greatest Canadian-bred in history, but his real tests won't come until later this season when he moves into higher handicap company.

Best individual prices of the Ontario season came at Woodbine. Shadburn rolled home a surprise winner in the seventh on Woodbine's opening day to pay $74.50 for $2.00. Five days later Verdella and Spudroon combined for $378.65 for $2.00 daily double. Ensign Mary paid $50.35 straight the same day and early in the Dufferin meeting Miss Wooler returned her backers $66.90 for $2.00 straight bets.

Rex Leavitt, Charlie Smith, and Apprentice Dave Prater have been among the most successful riders, Smith, who rode ten to Ace in the Plate, had six winners to lead the riders at Woodbine. Prater won the last race of the last day at Thorncliffe to snatch riding honors there with six. Leavitt had nine in the Long Branch meeting at Dufferin. He brought home four in front on opening day.

Ten to Ace was the only thoroughbred to win two major handicaps. J. Frowde Seagram's Silvos won the $3,000-added Bryan and O'Hara Memorial at Thorncliffe, the Sansone Stable's Frobisher took the $3,000-added Long Branch Handicap, and Charles Hemstead's Passa Grille won the $5,000-added Orpen Memorial.

There has been considerable activity among horsemen in organizing regular donations to war charities. About 100 members of the Thoroughbred Breeders' Association authorized 5 per cent deductions from winnings to this end and jockeys' agents decided to donate a similar percentage of their earnings.

Leaf Pitchers On, Take Jerseys For Twin Bill

By The Associated Press

Max Macon of Montreal Royals may be just the man to solve Manager Leo Durocher's Brooklyn pitching problems—if any.

Durocher has been searching quietly for another lefthander to go with the veteran Larry French, and since Montreal's International League club is a Brooklyn farm, Macon's record might make him a likely prospect to land with the Flatbush flock.

Macon turned in his fifth win of the campaign yesterday as he outpitched Red Barrett of Syracuse Chiefs in gaining a 3-1 verdict. Max issued two walks and only six hits as his mates made the most of seven singles off Barrett to score in the first, fourth and seventh frames.

Buffalo Bisons and Andy (High) Sierra, won two games from Baltimore Orioles, 11-4 and 9-8. Sierra was coasting along with an 11-0 lead in the seven-inning opener when he let up, allowing Hank Edwards and George Staller to sock two-run homers in the sixth and seventh respectively. The Bisons jumped off to a six-run lead in the first inning, highlighted by four-baggers by Johnny Welaj and Mike Rocco.

Sierra also received credit for the nightcap when, after he had pitched two-thirds of the ninth, the Bisons scored once in their half to break an 8-8 tie.

The game was marked by four home runs with Sherry Robertson and Staller connecting for the Orioles and Welaj and Dutch Meyer for the Bisons.

Leafs Hold Tie

Toronto Maple Leafs remained in a fourth-place tie with Buffalo by taking both ends of a twin bill from Jersey City Giants, 2-1 and 4-0. Both Joe Sullivan and Nick Strincevich of the Leafs turned in four-hitters, with Strincevich hurling the shutout, his fourth of the season. In the second game Toronto stole six bases, three of them in a two-run eighth inning.

The league leading Newark Bears outslugged Rochester Red Wings for an 8-5 victory. The starting pitchers were driven to cover in the second when both teams scored four times.

France Starts 3rd Slave Year Hungry, Defiant

By ROY P. PORTER
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, June 18.— (AP). — France began her third year of servitude under German military masters yesterday.

Late at night just two years ago, his trembling voice barely rising above the crackling of a Bordeaux thunderstorm, Marshal Petain told his country: 'I made contact with the adversary last night, asking him as a soldier to seek with me the means to stop the fight."

Thus did the commander in chief of all French armed forces—the man who 20 years earlier at Verdun had said "they shall not pass"—translate 42 weeks of wearying warfare into German military domination.

Then—France was defeated. Today—she is defiant.

Then—France was hungry. Today—Because Germany has taken carloads of her foodstuffs, she is hungrier, to the point where her babies are dying, her children sick and her parents aging prematurely.

During those dark days which lead up to June 17, 1940, already aged Marshal Petain saw a once-proud army whipped unmercifully by the superior might of a modern, motorized German machine.

The Scenes He Saw.

He saw roads leading southward to insecure safety bombed and machine-gunned by German and Italian planes. He saw nearly 200,000 of his civilian countrymen bleeding and dying beside those clogged roads. He saw nearly 2,000,000 of France's soldiers sent to German prison camps, most of whom are still there.

During these years of almost ceaseless labor, he has seen France rising slowly and with difficulty, licking her wounds, binding her sores. Three governments, all slanted toward collaboration with Germany, have held the reins in Vichy and Pierre Laval, most pro-Nazi of all French political figures, is again in the saddle.

Petain has been called both patriot and traitor. The most authoritative American source, the United States ambassador, William O. Leahy, spoke on his return recently of the "high personal regard" in which he holds the Marshal.

"Except for the agreement entered into between France and Japan in Indo-China," Leahy said "no positive action as yet taken by the Marshal's government since the armistice has been of material assistance to the Axis powers."

But the greatest thing in France to-day is the indomitable will of 90 per cent. of her people to fight off their German oppressors —and to help those nations which are fighting the same battle.

An American recently returned from German-occupied France told me the parting message his French friends gave him:

"We will welcome you on your return, in uniform and with a gun on your shoulder Only don't forget to bring a gun for us, too. We want to help."

1 Hurt As Plane Burns

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., June 18.—(CP). — One airman suffered leg burns and two others escaped injury yesterday when a Hudson bomber from the ferry command training station at North Bay, Ont., ground-looped while landing at the R.C.A.F. airdrome erhe.

The large machine skidded on a runway and caught fire after turning over. The heavy gas load exploded and the machine was destroyed by fire.

Names of the fliers were not released.

Cards Warm Up For Dodgers, Lace Giants 3-0

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer.

St. Louis Cardinals, riding the crest of a seven-game winning streak, move into Brooklyn to-day for a five-game series with the Dodgers that may throw the National League pennant struggle into a battle royal.

Through quirks of the weather, these two fierce rivals have been able to meet only four times thus far and of these games the Redbirds have won three—proving to the satisfaction of St. Louis, at least, that the Dodgers 4½-game lead is a false bulwark.

The Cardinals warmed up for today's important tussle (a twilight affair) by whitewashing New York Giants 3-0 on the five-hit hurling of big Mort Cooper, who pitched no-hit ball till the seventh inning.

The Dodgers showed no qualms at the approach of their challengers, torning back Chicago Cubs 5-1 with a show of ease. Brooklyn was held to seven hits by Bill Lee, but Arky Vaughan, returning to action after an illness, tripled for two runs, and Dolph Camilli hit his 10th home run of the year for two more.

At Detroit Paul (Dizzy) Trout, who had been beaten five times in a row hurled a five-hit masterpiece to hand New York Yankees their first shutout of the season as the Tigers won 1-0. Marv Breuer of the Yanks allowed just six safeties, but three of these were singles in the last of the ninth for the game's only run.

Marchildon Comes Back.

Phil Marchildon, the strong righthander of the Philadelphia Athletics, also ended a five-game losing streak by pitching five-hit ball to beat the Chicago White Sox 4-3.

Elden Auker, who throws underhand, stopped a nine-game winning streak for Boston Red Sox and a seven-game losing streak for St. Louis Browns by hurling a six-hit 6-3 victory. George McQuinn drove in half St. Louis' runs with a homer and a single.

At Washington in a night game Cleveland Indians used three pitchers—Bagby, Milnar and Ferrick—to turn back the Senators 5-4, with Ken Keltner knocking home the tying and winning runs with a seventh-inning single.

Cincinnati Reds captured both ends of a double-header at Boston 4-2 and 4-3, the latter game going 11 innings. The Reds were held to six hits by three Boston hurlers in the opener but bunched them effectively while Big Paul Derringer kept the seven he allowed well spaced.

The nightcap was a duel between Ray Starr and Jim Tobin.

Pittsburg Pirates bunched their hits for two three-run innings to down the Phils 6-1 in a night game.

Want Prohibition

PHILADELPHIA, June 18 (AP)— A resolution asking President Roosevelt to impose National prohibition by executive order during the war was adopted yesterday by the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Philadelphia. War-time ban on manufacture and sale of alcholic beverages is needed, the resolution said, to safeguard the morals of service men.

Heavy Demands On Sports Service League

TORONTO, June 18—The next few months will see a tremendous call on the Sports Service League for sports equipment to be sent to camps all over Ontario. Therefore it was the expressed hope of an executive meeting last night that the various sport leaders will sponsor events in aid of the S.S.L.

The continual call on this wartime organization is indicated by the expenditure in the month of May, a total of $2,776.02, for sports equipment sent to troops in training.

The meeting last night agreed to supply all sports requirements for the Reserve units at Niagara Camps. This will be pooled and handled by the Salvation Army.

A large quantity of sports equipment was sent to the Sea Naval Cadets at Georgian Bay for summer use. The high school cadets at Bolton were also sent equipment.

Hong Kong is now also on the S.S.L. list and a shipment is going forward with the first Red Cross ship.

In reciprocation for sports equipment received, the Norwegian soccer team which recently returned from Chicago after playing a 3-all tie with the touring Scandinavians, will play a game at Ulster stadium, Saturday night at 7 o'clock in aid of the S.S.L. The Norwegians will play the R.C.A.F. team of Hamilton.

School Costs Pursue County Council

Mounting costs of education are reflected by a slight increase in the county tax rate this year, Warden Norman Lean affirmed in his address to the County Council on Wednesday afternoon.

"We had hoped that our mill rate would be down this year, and it would have, had it not been for the increased cost of education," Warden Lean said. "Reviewing our educational costs over a period of years, you will note each year they are steadily increasing and each time the School Act is changed, it always means an increased cost to the county taxpayer."

Reeve Gifford suggested that, if possible, the estimates be submitted in time to permit the members to discuss them.

Miss J. A. Batten, clerk and treasurer, reported that the budget had been recently reviewed by the finance committee, and items were pared to rock bottom. The members saw that the costs of education were increasing by leaps and bounds, and you have to meet your obligations."

Some computations would require as much time, Miss Batten explained, that it would be impossible to bring in complete estimates as Mr. Gifford proposed.

The council went into committee on education with Reeve Mather in the chair. Miss Batten said the education account this year was nearly $50,000.

"Doubled in ten years," Reeve Gifford commented.

High School costs were all a little higher than last year.

Miss Batten said, and Peterboro Collegiate Institute's bill to the County was proportionally increased because so many students had taken up war work of various kinds, shifting a larger part of the cost to County students.

The increase in education costs, Reeve Mather said, is close to one mill in this year's rate.

The council's financing in recent years left only small amounts either as surplus or deficit, $3,000 or less either way. Some years ago the corresponding margins were often up in the $20,000 brackets, for instance deficits of $22,000 and $24,000.

"We don't have anything like that to-day," Miss Batten said, "in spite of what the Examiner said in an editorial several months ago."

It was said that costs were highest at Peterborough Collegiate and Campbellford High Schools, but other high schools in the district were quite moderate.

"As long as we sit here and take these increases" said Mr. Gifford, "it will continue to be handed out to us. We ought to put up a real kick about it. I think the education committee ought to prepare a short brief and take it right to Premier Hepburn. There are probably things going on in the department that he does not know about."

Said Reeve Mather: "The Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, A. J. B. Gray, told me that the increased costs of education to this county were much greater than throughout the Province generally."

A statement given to the committee showed that the cost per county pupil at the Collegiate Institute last year was $110 in the vocational department and $108 in the academic as compared with $83.28 vocational and $82.61 academic in 1940.

Reeve Mather said he agreed wtih the Gifford protest idea, but he thought it would be more effective if the strength and support of one of the rural municipal associations could be mustered behind it.

"Monaghan is right behind you in trying to get the Government to assume all the costs," Reeve M. H. Johnston said.

Mr. Mather gave the committee a summary of salient affairs of the rural section of the Ontario Educational Association convention last April. Twenty-six counties are members of that group.

Warden Lean's address included the following comments:—

It is almost five months since you did me the honor of electing me Warden, and during that period I can assure you that the welfare of the County has been uppermost in my thoughts, and the goal of my legislative ambition.

This year I am pleased to hear that two thousand young trees have been planted in the County's forest reservation. This Council may never see the real benefit derived from these efforts, but future Councils will we hope.

Gentlemen, we are living in strenuous times, when every man, woman and child in this Dominion is called upon to give to the very utmost of their time, ability, service and self-denial to the cause of democracy and freedom which is being so splendidly defended by the allied countries at this very moment, and which we know shall ultimately be established immovably in the world. May that day come soon. May each one of us do his part, however small, courageously, loyally and faithfully towards that end.

In conclusion allow me to thank you for the encouragement and support you have given me since my election and to ask for your continued goodwill and loyal service."

Largest A.E.F. Convoy Reaches Ireland Without Loss

Troops of the fourth and greatest American expeditionary force to arrive in Northern Ireland since the outbreak of this war are shown playing Chinese checkers on arrival at their destination, without loss of a man or ship. The convoy brought a large amount of heavy equipment, 28-ton tanks, etc., in addition to the troops. The photo was cabled from London.

"Union government? Why create one? We have one right now, and it is more united than ever. The Conservative Opposition, the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation Party, the Social Credit Party or the New Democracy and the Government itself said so to the Canadian people during the plebiscite campaign."

Mr. Lacombe, the sole member of his party in the House, was one of four speakers in the week-old debate on the Bill to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act.

J. Sasseville Roy (Ind. Gaspe) opposed the conscription for overseas measure while Joseph Bradette (Lib. Cochrane) said he would support Prime Minister Mackenzie King in his policy.

Before debate opened, Mr. Thorson tabled an Order-in-Council providing for the calling of single men and childless widowers up to and including the age of 35 for compulsory military service, extending the application of the Mobilization Act beyond the present 30-year age limit.

The Gasoline Cut.

Munitions Minister Howe announced that the gasoline ration coupon values would be cut from five to four gallons in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia, effective at midnight to-night, and said a lower ration category for those using their cars only for pleasure driving will be introduced.

The more stringent rationing measure is to permit refineries to change their runs to fuel oil required for heating equipment in the coming winter.

Speaker James A. Glen ruled out of order a C.C.F. amendment to the Government Bill amending the Mobilization Act. The C.C.F. amendment termed the measure "inadequate and inequitable."

Mr. Thorson said he hoped conscription for overseas would never be necessary and if it became necessary it would only be a second-best method of fulfilling the armed forces program. Canada's manpower resources were limited and the Government might have to give consideration to the calling of married men to the forces.

When the Government bill amending the Mobilization Act had been approved, the Government would be free to take whatever action it deemed necessary, subject to its responsibility to parliament.

Total war effort demanded consideration of three essential objectives— production of munitions and equipment, production of food and the raising and maintaining of strong armed forces, for offence and defence. It would be folly to wait for an attack on Canada if the enemy could be kept from Canadian shores.

Cling To Volunteer Plan.

Mr. Thorson said the Government had not abandoned the voluntary system of enlistment and would not do so as long as that method remained edequate.

The only place where conscription for overseas could have value was in the army. Canada could boast of the largest volunteer armed force in the world, something of which all Canadians could be proud.

Voluntary enlistments in the first three months of the First Great War totalled 417,371 while during the same period of the present war they totalled 505,574 with the figures for air and navy not completed.

Gas Cut To Ease

furnaces would create heavy demands on steel and provoke serious transportation problems in supplying coal. The only way to provide more fuel oil was to change refinery runs from gasoline to fuel oil, thus reducing the amount of gasoline available.

While this was being done, it was no guarantee that enough fuel oil would be provided to meet normal domestic heating requirements.

The new "A-A" category for motorists embraces persons with more than one automobile in the existing "A" or non-essential category and drivers who use their cars "entirely for pleasure purposes." Mr. Howe gave no indication of the number of units "A-A" licence holders will receive or when the new category will go into effect.

Quarterly restrictions under which "A" category coupons must be used in a specified three-month period are removed effective at midnight tonight.

R.C.A.F. Refuses To Take Men Called For Compulsory Training

News releases from Ottawa indicating that single men between the ages of 30 and 35 would be called up for compulsory military training under the National Resources Mobilization Act, has started a lot of young men asking questions.

The questions are prompted by the fact that many men who until this month thought the war was something distant and unimportant now realize it will definitely affect their normal routine of living very soon. While the men are only being called up for home defence for the duration, nevertheless many of them have the courage and spirit of adventure that prompts them to want to get into the fight with both fists if they are to be in it at all.

The Navy, the Air Force and the Army all need men, the Army perhaps more than any other branch, but as some of the new draft will undoubtedly feel that they have certain ability and qualifications that will fit them for training with the Air Force, they are seeking information about this branch.

The R.C.A.F. promulgated a statement in May to the effect that after May 20, no person called up for compulsory training will be accepted by the Air Force. That means that any man who thinks he might be called as a trainee, must apply and be accepted by the Air Force before he gets his call, or he won't be accepted at all. The attitude of the Navy Department on the question is not known just now.

What Is Required.

Should a young man want to join the flying legions, the following information should be of value to him: The Air Force wants men over 18 and under 31 to train as pilots, and men to train as observers who are over 18 and under 33. The recruits must have junior matriculation or its equivalent.

The Air Force also needs men to train as wireless operators (air gunners). These recruits must be over 18 and under 33 and must have completed two years high school or its equivalent.

On the other hand, the men in the active force age group, that is 18½ years and under 45, have a wide range of choice should they take the army, and if they want a unit that has all the glamor of the fighting forces, they can choose the tank corps, or any branch of the armored division. There is the ordnance branch, signals, service corps, artillery, anti-tank units, machine gun regiments, and a dozen others, all of which have special appeal for the man with the right qualifications and training. Regardless of what branch a man enters, he must take six months' basic training, which is common to all sections of the army. That is the reason men are accepted at 18½ because after six months of training they will be 19 years of age, and ready for service in any part of the world.

Far-Away Ports Seem Near.

In this war as never before, far-away ports, and lands, which beckoned to eager youngsters studying geography and history a few years ago, now seem closer than ever to the young man enlisting, for he does not know what part of the world may become his temporary abode when he is called to serve the Empire. Needless to say, the soldiers of this war will see a great deal more of the world, than did their fathers who fought in World War 1.

Any young man seeking information about any branch of the army should apply to the Peterborough Armories, where the information will be gladly given without obligation. At the present time, an average of seven men enlist every day in Peterborough at the Armories, and during the month of May, 43 young Peterborough boys joined the Canadian Navy supplying three per cent. of the all navy recruits for the whole of Ontario.

No person has any desire to force any one to enlist. It is a decision the individual must make, as he and he alone knows his circumstances and the state of his own mind. Nevertheless, recruiting officers have a way of looking at a man, when he walks into a recruiting office to enlist, after he has been called up as a trainee.

JOINS AIR FORCE.

Jimmy Duffus, well-known orchestra leader, has been accepted by the Royal Canadian Air Force, and reports for duty on July 14. His wife lives at 498 Mark Street, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Duffus. At the present time he is employed at the Western Clock Company.

A LITTLE DISPUTE.

Jack Sharkey, former world heavyweight champ, was on the air Wednesday night, the boxing bouts locally have been postponed until June 27, and Joe Louis is still bowling over all-comers. All this boxing news, however, faded into the background at a local factory this week, when two girls declared war. It was a honey of a battle while it lasted, even including a little hair pulling. The whole thing started over a 25-cent piece. Peace was restored in the wash room by one of the female supervisors.

ALMOST A STRANGER

Found: one moon; June, too; presently crescent in a sky so long clouded that only glimpses of the last moon were seen.

FALSE ALARM

Two boys were caught Wednesday who are believed to be the ones responsible for turning in the false alarm at the Fire Department at 4:30 yesterday from Box 5, opposite the Canada Packers plant.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

A fifteen-year-old Montreal boy who pleaded guilty in juvenile court here this morning to the theft of two tie pins was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

GNR. S. G. FOWLER

The name of a member of the 4th Anti-Tank Battery appears in the latest Canadian casualty list. It is that of Gunner Sidney George Fowler, who is officially reported as seriously ill overseas. Gunner Fowler's next-of-kin is a sister, Mrs. Ivy Leader, Grays, Sussex, Eng. Fowler enlisted here with the 4th Anti-Tank unit in June, 1940. Previous to that he had been employed on a farm near Peterborough.

Mrs. William H. Ashby, who is convalescing from a recent serious illness, has a beautiful rose garden at the rear of her home at 588 Water street. One rose bush in particular makes a striking picture of floral beauty with more than 150 blooms at the present time. It is a Grus-an-Teplitz, which translated means Greeting to Teplitz. The rose is a deep red, but fades to a shell pink, under the sun's rays.

SECRET SESSION

County council in committee on education closed the doors to the press this morning. No questions were asked about the secrecy. At any rate there was no news for the ratepayers in this morning's session.

WHY?

A new issue of summer weight trousers at Morrow Park military camp caused quite a number of the men extra expense. It is said that some of the trousers were too narrow, and instead of being tossed back at the inspectors and manufacturer they were handed out to men who finally had to go up town and buy khaki trousers. One shop is said to have sold two hundred and fifty.

LOW WATERING RECORD

Dick Ford has done an exceptionally fine grooming job of the lawns of St. John's Church this season. Nature has helped with a consistent watering job. "I have had the taps on about two hours altogether this season," Mr. Ford said today, "and I have an idea that must be a record."

OBSTRUCTED TRAFFIC

Pleading guilty to obstructing traffic on Chambers street by leaving a transport truck standing across the roadway, Harvey Monihan was fined $2 and $1 costs when he entered a written plea of guilty to the charge in police court this morning. Robert McKee paid a similar fine for failing to stop before entering a through street.

GETS THREE DAYS

Oscar Dugan who pleaded not guilty a week ago to a charge of vagrancy changed his plea to guilty in police court this morning and was sentenced to three days in jail. Inspector Reid said that there had been some suspicious circumstances in connection with a mug but that these had been cleared up.

CHARGES WITHDRAWN

Two assault charges against Martin Gahagan were dismissed in police court this morning. Gahagan had been charged with assaulting Pte. McFadden and the latter's wife but when the cases were called this morning Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., said that the complainants wished to withdraw the charges. The Crown Attorney said that he had no objection to that course. Restitution had been made in regard to a pair of spectacles that had been broken, he said.

CARRIER BOY IS SAD

An Examiner carrier boy lost a two-dollar bill on Saturday and his parents had to make up the difference to pay the boy's bill for newspapers. If the finder of this bill is kind enough to realize what the loss means to this boy, and will return it. He is asked to telephone to A. B. Burrows, Parkhill Road, or to the Examiner office.

TAKE DOWN THE BARS

Visitors to the city, and young people smitten with the love bug, are wondering why the motor car entrances to Jackson Park are barred. The park is beautiful at the present time, but only pedestrians can enjoy it, and many people visiting the city, have limited time in which to see the park.

LOVE'S LABOR LOST

What is so discouraging to workers as lack of appreciation say those in question. Two boys had been working for a good part of the morning painting the verandah and were just taking time out for a breather when two of their cronies came along. The first thing they asked was "When are you going to start painting?" and after a bitter look was exchanged between the painters, they made a most suitable reply.

SWEET REPOSE

Rest is where you find it, and it just goes to show that if a person is tired enough, he can sleep anywhere. Thursday morning a car was parked on the shady side of George street in front of the Customs House, and the driver, a young man, was sleeping peacefully, completely ignoring the onrush of traffic and honking of horns.

Sent To Trial On 2 Counts

C. G. Graham, proprietor of the Empress Hotel, was bailed for trial in police court this morning on two charges of having conspired to defraud the Department of Munitions and Supply by issuing receipts for room rent for larger sums than were paid for the rooms.

Bailment was by consent on the evidence of one witness, Corp. Karl Lockwood of the R.C.M.P.

Corp. Lockwood said that he had called on the accused in investigating the matter and had shown Mr. Graham what purported to be a receipt issued to one Chas. Purdy. Witness said that the accused had identified the signature on the receipt as his and admitted he had issued it to Purdy whom he said had been a resident at the Empress Hotel for some time.

The receipt was for $21 and was marked seven days at $3.00 a day.

Corp. Lockwood said that he had shown Graham a list of names and that he was questioned individually concerning each of them. He had said that he knew them and that the men had been at the hotel.

"I asked him" said the witness "what rate Purdy had paid and he replied '$2.50 a day'"

"I then asked him why he had issued a receipt for $3.00 a day when Purdy had only been paying $2.50" said the R.C.M.P. witness, "and he replied that it was a common practice in the hotel business to give receipts for larger amounts than had been paid. He said I would be surprised if I knew some of the men who had asked for receipts for more than they had paid."

The witness said that the accused had said that Purdy had told him he was entitled to receive that much from his employer. Accused had said Corp. Lockwood stated, that Purdy was employed in some capacity at the C.G.E.

T. J. Carley, K.C., who appeared in behalf of the accused only briefly examined the witness. Corp. Lockwood said that he had had two and possibly three conversations with the accused and the statements he had given were a resume of those interviews.

Evidence in the second charge was almost identical and at its conclusion Graham was bailed for trial at the General Sessions at $500.

Farmers Claim Haying Is Off Schedule

Farmers are getting on with their work again, after marking too much time while the rains kept them off the land.

Good weather for the week up to Monday enabled Hastings farmers to plant corn, potatoes and turnips and set out tomatoes. Some farmers began haying, and others have their crop cured and in the barn. Pastures are good and the milk flow is heavy.

Fall wheat in Northumberland is in the head. "A few fields of hay have been cut, and on most farms this crop will be heavy."

"Exceptionally heavy" is the Prince Edward hay, but the weather has been anything but good for curing. Victoria merely remarks that delayed seeding operations have been resumed.

"There has been a call for buckwheat seed, millet, sudan grass and corn" in Peterborough. Some oats are still being sown on land that was unfit for seeding up to date. Haying should have commenced a week ago, but only a comparatively small acreage has been cut yet.

Rain In West

Rain continued in western Ontario. Fall wheat is generally a heavy crop, but the agricultural representatives are apprehensive about damage. Stalks are too tender, and already some fields have lodged.

Haying has been somewhat delayed, but operations are moving out of low gear this week. Farmers are concerned about getting cultivation finished before haying begins.

On the other hand, Prescott-Russell report: "Due to very warm weather, crops are making excellent growth, but a good rain would be welcomed, especially on dry high land. Farmers have been taking off the first cut of alfalfa."

Away up in Temiskaming they say the prospects for spring grains have seldom been more promising. Crops are doing well in Kenora, and Nipissing says all crops are looking good.

In Frontenac the ground that was not seeded to grain is being worked and will be sown to buckwheat, millet and other late crops.

Chinese Girls To Tag Next Saturday

Chinese girls in native costumes will be tagging for a most worthy cause on Saturday, the Chinese War Relief Fund. In the past this group has had great success and their record is, that they have beaten the best record of any other group of taggers by 33 per cent.

The money that is turned in to the fund here is forwarded to China's first lady, Madam Chiang Kai-Shek, who is responsible for the distribution of the money where she feels it is most urgently needed.

Every penny counts in the saving of human suffering. Twenty dollars will keep a Chinese refugee alive for one year, $5 will disinfect 500 Chinese wounds, $1 will provide treatment for 1,000 burns, or will buy ether for 15 operations, or still further will provide immunization for 10 persons from typhoid or Bubonic Plague.

For over four years China has been putting up a wonderful fight against the Japanese, and if it is to continue money must be supplied. The Chinese people, as long as they continue to put up such a magnificent battle, are saving the people of this country from a concentrated Japanese attack, and the least that Canadian citizens can do is to get behind this drive.

Dr. A. J. Madill Is New President Baptist Association

A new moderator, Dr. A. J. Madill, of the Normal School staff, was named at the afternoon session of the Peterborough Association of Baptist churches, Wednesday, for the year 1942-1943.

His assistants are: vice-moderator, Fred F. Darnell, Colborne; secretary treasurer, Rev. Dr. M. C. MacLean, Gilmour Memorial church; Local Home Mission Board, Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, Peterborough, J. Blackburn, Belleville, and W. P. Tickell, Port Hope; Religious Education, Miss Phyllis Moore, Peterborough, Ken Gillespie, Peterborough, and Robert Tapscott, Eddystone. The Ordination Council is made up of the Rev. Dr. M. C. MacLean, Gilmour, Dr. N. S. McKechnie, Port Hope, and Charles Tweedle. H. O. Eastman, Belleville, is serving on the Evangelism Committee, the Rev. C. C. Boyter on the War Services Committee, and William Tapscott of Eddystone on the Historical Committee.

Community Spirit

A most interesting general discussion took place after a short concise address by Dr. N. S. McKechnie of Port Hope, who spoke on the subject "Can the Interest and Usefulness of Our Association be Increased." He said it was interesting to consider the name—Peterborough Association of Baptist Churches, because it suggested the possibility of churches gathering voluntarily for some purpose, not as an executive body. It is an old institution which antedates the Convention, and its purpose is to be associated spontaneously to discuss problem, and to develop a closely knit community spirit.

"The convention has in part taken over some of the duties of the Associations, such as telling of the progress of the Home and Foreign missions. The great bulk of the people are not able to get to the convention and so do not receive direct benefit from it. But the Association is arranged so that a large number of people ought to be able to get inspiration from a large gathering. Until this present meeting there has been a decrease in the past few years and this is something of a record today. If there is a falling off in attendance, it means a lack of mutual companionship and comparison. If something good is accomplished in one church, it is an inspiration to all."

Dr. McKechnie made several suggestions for possible improvement. He recommended pushing reports more to the fore than has been the custom of late years. He then advised that there should be as little separation as possible, and that no one section predominate. Sectional work is important he said, but in the Association it is the church as a whole that is important and all the work, whether Women's or that of the Young People, should be kept as a unit. A section of the church should not loom larger than the church itself, he warned. He closed his discussion with the suggestion that there should be a closer drawing together of the Association members between meetings.

Advance In Bolivia

The Rev. A. Haddow, B.A., B.Th., addressed the 56th annual meeting of the Mission Circles and Bands. He spoke on "Women's Work for Women in Bolivia." He made a comparison of the inhabitants as they were 400 years ago and the way they are now, and told of a few of the hard won changes of the last twenty years. In 1920 the people, in spite of the terrible small pox epidemics, would not countenance the "New" vaccination. In 1940, they were obliged to lock the doors of the Clinic to keep back the crowds who came for typhus injections. There is a tremendous field for women to do women's work in Bolivia, Mr. Haddow said.

Miss Alfrida Hall followed Mr. Haddow with a brief talk on Home Missions.

Missionary Work Officers

The new officers for the Missionary work for the year were appointed. Honorary directors are Miss M. A. Nicholls, Peterborough, and Mrs. R. C. Weston, Campbellford; president, Mrs. Dr. N. S. McKechnie, Port Hope; 1st vice, Mrs. G. Telford, Gilmour church, 2nd vice, Mrs. A. B. Mann, Gilmour church; secretary, Mrs. (Rev.) C. C. Boyter, Peterborough; convener of nominations, Mrs. (Rev.) W. Walker, Lakefield; Director of Circles, Miss Clara Hinman, Cobourg, and Director of Bands, Mrs. (Rev.) Herb Bryant, Campbellford.

Youth Means Hope

Two guest speakers gave addresses at the evening meeting. Rev. Dr. F. L. Orchard and Flt.-Lt. Stanley N. Inman, R.C.A.F. Trenton Dr. Orchard told the story of the restoration of the temple in Jerusalem and explained that there was no way of distinguishing the cheers and the tears of the people over its erection. However a sure line of demarcation is that of age, he said. The young people did not know the early temple and they saw only a heap of ruins on which something splendid had been erected.

The older people had memories and saw only the original He said there were two characteristics of age, old age brings a period of memories and youth is an age of hope. Young men look forward and see visions of glories yet to be unveiled. Old age lives more and more in the past. Each of these groups needs the other as a counter-balance, he continued. Society needs the impact of both, expectant and visionary youth and experience of the past, because the present rests on the past.

"On the one hand we need youth to save us from excessive gloom, and on the other, age to save us from too much optimism. But we have some to the day when we need buoyant, shouting youth because we must bolster our morale.

"It isn't enough to be bouyant in heart and to have dreams, but we must prepare for the visions, and get ready to face what awaits on the morrow. Train yourself and learn facts and remember the good you can do. We need a world with a Good Samaritan spirit predominating."

Matched With His Hour.

"Matched With His Hour" was the famous line written by Rupert Brook and on which Flt.Lt. Inman based his talk. He said that for every generation God always had a message and humans were the instruments for giving it out, and they are "matched with His Hour."

Using the text "Young Man, stand upon thy feet and I will speak to thee," he presented a challenge to young people saying that there were three things necessary, expectation, preparation and dedication. This, he said, should be the watchword. People should live in expectation of the great things God can do. The things He does are mightest and unseen.

"When we couldn't match the enemy in equipment, we prayed, but now we forget because we belong to the United Nations and because we are producing vast quantities of arms.

"Preparation and obedience follow expectation. That is where we fail. Young people have wonderful vision, but lack the courage and obedience to stand poised for action. When the great time comes and we are 'matched with His hour,' obedience makes that great hour possible. We are going to have to pay more spiritually in obedience tha never before or else God will match us with His hour and we will prove ineffective," he said.

Dedication came next. He said that because of the danger there was a tendency to let morals slip, and standards should be kept the same or higher than before. Only in the darkest and most trying hour is the power of the Church revealed and the great day of opportuntiy of the Church is approaching. At present the great need is not for more of the Holy Spirit, but that it have more of us, he concluded.

Young Motorist Given Stiff Penalty

Pleading guilty to a charge of reckless driving, Jack Eano, 21, was fined $25 and $2.50 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning.

Magistrate Langley suspended the driving license of the accused for a period of three months.

The officer who investigated the accident is on holidays so that no evidence was available but a statement of the circumstances was given by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

He said that Eano had been driving south on Water street and that just south of the Goose Pond his car had left the road on the east side, struck a pole and broke it off and Eano and two passengers in his automobile had been hurt. The car, the property of Eano's mother, had been badly wrecked, the Crown Attorney said.

J. H. Beaumont who pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving following an accident in which his car collided with another automobile on Queen street was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Examiner "Want Ad" For Help On Farm Brings 25 Men Applying For Job To Farmer

Where just about everything else had failed, an Examiner "want ad" turned the trick the other day for a farmer in quest of a hired man. It brought him twenty-five applications. That's the whole story, and amplification can't make it any more emphatic.

Frank Paterson, agricultural representative, has been doing a lot of worrying of late about getting some help for farmers, trying to anticipate a rush of haying labor especially on farms that were short of men. He had talked to G. A. Gillespie about taking on a temporary city job of rounding up some volunteers who would go out for an afternoon or so to help with the crop.

And then along came a farmer who decided to help himself. In fact he was willing to spend a little money in the effort of getting "a hired man," whatever they charge down in the front office (see rates on classified page.) Instead of moaning about things he thought of the potency of the Examiner's Classified Ad Pages; and the results amazed him. This man believed in capsular publicity, operating in its own field, and his faith was rewarded.

Getting farm help seemed to be next to an impossibility, but the Examiner sent twenty-five men applying for that one farm job.

"I'd just as soon there hadn't been so many," this man said. "I picked an upstanding lad of sixteen, and he started off all right. I feel pretty sure he is just the man I needed."

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, June 19.

Intriguing and unpredictable conditions generally are noted in this day's planetary setup. While there is definite promise of active, expansive productive and lucrative operations, there may be sudden, disintegrating and frustrating adventures, descending with force and futility.

Those whose birthday it is should be prepared for a year of very definite conflicts and contradictions, with much progress and expansion toward desired hopes and wishes of a material character, with increase of finances. Be wary with friendships and safeguard the health.

A child born on this day while enjoying some splendid strokes of good fortune may also be the victim of over-confidence.

Hotelman Sent On For Trial On Fraud Charge

"I was afraid something would come of this matter," was a statement that Corporal Karl Lockwood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police swore in police court Wednesday afternoon had been made to him by L. J. McCarthy, manager of the Queen's Hotel when he interviewed McCarthy.

The evidence of the officer was given at the preliminary hearing of a charge against McCarthy of having conspired with A. M. Spanier to defraud the Department of Munitions and Supply through the issuing of receipts for room rent larger than the amount really paid by Spanier.

Corp. Lockwood said that when he called to question the accused in regard to the transaction McCarthy said, "I have been expecting this investigation. I was afraid something would come out fo this matter. The deed has been committed and whatever consequences may come, I will have to suffer."

When the afternoon session of the court opened Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., announced that he was exercising his authority and proposed to send all the remaining cases on to a higher court. There are nice points of law and evidence that might better be considered there," the Magistrate said.

Bailed For Trial

By consent McCarthy was bailed for trial at the General Sessions on three charges of conspiracy on the evidence of one witness, Corp. Lockwood, in each case. Bail was fixed at $500.

Corp. Lockwood testified that McCarthy, when shown receipts had admitted that he had issued them. In the Spanier case witness said that he asked McCarthy what rate Spanier had been paying for his room and accused had answered $2.75 a day.

"I asked him," said Corp. Lockwood "why he had issued receipts for $3.00 a day when the rate was only $2.75 a day and he replied that Spanier had asked him for receipts at $3.00 a day. He said that Spanier had told him that he was entitled to $3.00 and he wanted the receipts in order to collect that amount from the company for which he was working."

"Was anything said by him as to where Spanier was working," asked Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry and witness replied that the accused had said that he knew Spanier was doing something at the C.G.E.

J. F. Strickland, K.C., who appeared for McCarthy was brief in his cross-examination. He asked Corp. Lockwood if what he had given was a resume of two interviews he had with the accused and the officer replied in the affirmative.

"Did he give you every co-operation in your investigation?"

"He did."

"And did he give you the impression that he was truthful in his statements."

"Yes."

Charges Dismissed

Two similar charges against C. H. Wilton, employee of the Grand Hotel were dismissed when the Crown offered no evidence.

When the first of the Wilton charges had been read and the accused had pleaded not guilty, Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., asked that the case be withdrawn.

"I think it should be dismissed," said T. J. Carley, K.C., who appeared for Wilton.

"Very well, then," replied the Crown Attorney, "I will offer no evidence."

A similar course was followed in the second case and both charges against Wilton were, therefore, dismissed.

Good Neighbors Contribute $181 For War Victims

Reminiscent in more ways than one of the parable of the Good Samaratan, a group of ladies in the south-end of the city, headed by Mrs. P. Kitchen and Mrs. W. Townsley, who originated this particular effort to raise funds to help the victims of air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, have in today's list added a further $14 to the already splendid record they have achieved on behalf of this very worthy objective, to bring the total that they have raised and turned in since the beginning of the year up to $181.

Starting in with the holding of small euchres on Thursday afternoons in the homes of members of the groups, and by means of holding a few draws of various articles made and donated for that purpose, they surely have shown what is possible even in a small way to do a real lot of good for others, which in a true sense is playing the part of good neighbor even although these stricken people requiring their help are thousands of miles away.

This particular donation is the result of a party held at the home of Mrs. Gillies, 50 Aylmer Street, which the secretary of the fund visited while it was in progress, and found the accommodation of the hostess taxed to the limit with 28 members of the group in attendance. Part of the proceeds was raised from a small draw among themselves for a bag of flour which had been donated together with the sale of a snapshot picture of the group taken previously at 10 cents a copy. Right now they are planning further work on behalf of the fund, and on their past record should elicit every encouragement.

Coincident with this donation comes the second personal donation of $5 from J. F. Pilley of 39 Ware Street, who lives almost just across the same street as Mrs. Kitchen and Mrs. Townsley, so the bulk of credit for the day's receipts may be said to have originated from this one street of our city.

The penny box in Payne's Drug Store keeps up its good work for the fund, this time $1.60 coming to the fund from this source.

Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E.

This Friday, a garden party is being held on the lovely grounds at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Kerr, 586 Rubidge Street, sponsored by the members of Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., from which this fund will receive a share in company with the local Auxiliary for the men in the R.C.A.F. Tables are available for the playing of bridge, although this may be played in one's own residence if desired, and returns made to the central place when going there for the service of refreshments and a draw will be held for a lamp, a cushion and other articles to help swell the proceeds. All are cordially invited to attend and enjoy an afternoon among such lovely surroundings and help along the worthy objects for which they work.

Previously acknowledged	$42,413.09
Mrs. P. Kitchen and Mrs. Townsley group (7th donation)	14.00
Box at Payne's Drug Store	1.60
Mr J. F. Pilley, 39 Ware Street (2nd donation)	5.00

C.G.E. Worker Pleads Guilty

R. Richards who told the court that his home was in Timmins but that he was employed at the Canadian General Electric Company here, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to obtaining $5 by false pretences from W. Gordon Powell by means of a cheque upon a bank in which he had no funds.

"I plead guilty and I would like to make restitution," Richards said.

"This is not a division court, a court to make restitution," Magistrate Langley declared. "This is a court in which offences are punished."

At the request of the Crown the accused was remanded for a week for sentence. In the meantime the police will look into his record.

Mother Locates Son On Tracks

OSHAWA, June 18.—Believed to have been struck and killed by a train, the bodies of two small boys were found on the C.N.R. railway bridge over the Oshawa Creek at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

They are Murray Marshall, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Marshall, and Bobby Cornelius, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Cornelius. Both lived on Bloor Street West, Oshawa. They were found by Mrs. Cornelius, who went in search of the youngsters when they wandered away from their homes.

C.N.R. officials are having all the locomotives that passed over the bridge during the afternoon examined.

Neither of the bodies was mutilated beyond minor abrasions. Death was caused by internal injuries, it is believed.

Mrs. Cornelius was accompanied by a neighbor, Mrs. Peter Holowaty, when she discovered the bodies.

Crown Attorney Allan S. Annis and Coroner Dr. R. E. McMullen will confer this morning on whether there will be an inquest.

Warsaw Children Set Proud Record

WARSAW, June 18 — (ENS). — A large crowd attended the musical festival in the Town Hall on Friday evening put on by the pupils of the Warsaw Public School. Music has been taught in the school for some years by Mrs. George Kilborn, of Apsley. During the program Mr. Hampton gave a resume of some of the work done by the school in the last year. Since October the children have sold $371 in War Savings Stamps, made $115 by concerts, $29 collecting salvage organized a Junior Red Cross, purchased flags for the school, gave $20 to the Milk for Britain Fund, and knit nine refugee dresses. All this was carried on together with regular school work, with 280 lessons taught by Normal School students, and 30 music lessons during the year.

Many a proud parent's heart was filled with pride on Saturday afternoon when those same pupils were heard on the air over CHEX.

Edinburgh Guns Routed Huns As She Settled

MONTREAL, June 18 (CP) Lieutenant Stirling Ferguson of Montreal told yesterday how German destroyers, lured by an apparently easy prey, concentrated their fire on the British cruiser Edinburgh and allowed the convoy she was escorting to get through safely to a Russian port.

Ferguson, son of Alex. Ferguson, manager of the Montreal Harbor, was a gunnery specialist aboard the Edinburgh.

Under attack almost continually during her trip through the Barents Sea, the Edinburgh though cripple, withstood everything the German attackers could deliver, said Ferguson. When finally abandoned, she was sunk by British torpedoes.

"She was just like a sponge, she had so many torpedoes in her and although she settled until the lower deck was awash, she still floated," Ferguson continued.

He said the first attack on the cruiser, believed to have been made by a submarine, destroyed the steering equipment. Although she could still make way swiftly, the cruiser was out of control and was towed under attack for another day and a half before being abandoned.

"I was just coming off watch and had gone to my cabin to take off my sheepskin coat when the torpedo struck. It blew the panel clean out of the door and onto the deck. Parts of it were hanging around my neck, but I don't recall being struck by any of it."

Ferguson and his chum, Lieutenant J. D. Brewer of Toronto, were among the last to leave the sinking vessel. When they boarded the escort vessels which rescued them, the cruiser was so low in the water that the officers just stepped from their own deck to that of the smaller vessel. "And then," he added, "we had the first sleep any of us had had in about twenty-four hours."

After the first torpedo struck the convoy was engaged by three Nazi destroyers. Apparently believing that the guns of the crippled Edinburgh was out of action, one of the Nazi destroyers swept in to put the finishing touches. But when the Edinburgh's guns opened up, the destroyer wheeled and fled at top speed.

Ferguson said that one of the German destroyers blew up, another was "stopped and on fire when we last saw it and the third had just disappeared." In the heat of battle, it was impossible to tell which of the escort vessels had accounted for the enemy craft.

After the second attack, all the crew except those essential to keeping the Edinburgh in fighting orders were taken aboard escort ships. "Brewer and I had to stay behind with the other officers of the anti-aircraft, and turrets and guns were kept firing until the last."

Submarine Crash-Dives To Give Gobs Some Drill

One of the most spectacular photographs of a submarine diving is this one showing a "tin fish" plunging into the deep amid a smother of foam in a crash dive. This dive was made off New London, Connecticut, as more men received intensive training for undersea work. At the beginning of the crash dive, a signal shrieks, warning the crew, bells ring, indicating that the Diesel engines are stopped, ballast tanks are flooded, and the electric motors are thrown into gear as the sub goes down.

Officer Tells Of Sinking Of U.S.S. Lexington

By ROBERT S. PRESCOTT
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif., June 18.—(AP).—Sinking of the U.S.S. Lexington, gutted by fires below decks and rocked by explosion after explosion of burning ammunition and gasoline, was described vividly by Rear Admiral Frederick C. Shermen, commander of the big aircraft carrier.

Sherman said the end of the Lexington, fatally crippled by Japanese planes in the battle of the Coral Sea May 8 and finally sent under by torpedoes from an American destroyer, nevertheless came as a stirring part of a great sea victory.

"It was the first time in history where there has been an air-sea battle against aircraft carriers." Sheman declared in an interview. "Yet with inferior forces and fewer planes, we sank two Japanese carriers and severely damaged another before the Lexington succumbed.

"It was such a decisive victory that the entire Japanese expedition was forced to withdraw from the vital southwestern Pacific area."

For his part of the action, Sherman was promoted from Captain to Rear Admiral.

Sherman said the great long-range air battle actually started near Misima Island May 7, when U. S. navy torpedo and dive-bombing planes blasted a Japanese carrier to destruction in a terrific five-minute attack.

"We discovered then the devastating power of an aircraft carrier's attack group—it was almost unbelievable," Sherman said.

"In a later aerial fight that day four of our fighters surprised nine Japanese Zero fighters—three of the Japs got away. We lost one plane.

100 Top Rankers In Opener Of Hale America

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, June 18 (AP)—Golf's biggest wartime show got under way at the Ridgemoor club today as more than 100 of the nation's top-ranking linksmen teed off in the opening round of the 72-hole Hale America tournament, total proceeds of which will go to service charities.

For four days the stars will scrap it out, until on Sunday evening one will draw down the winning prize of $1,100.

To all intents and purposes, it really is the National Open championship. Practically all the big players are on hand and playing the regular open rout of 72 holes. The winner, though, will not go down in the golf records as an open champion.

All will go the full distance. The tournament directors, dreaming of a total gate of more than $100,000, did not want any of the gallery attractions eliminated at the end of 36 holes, as is customary in open championships.

The nature of the Ridgemoor course, too, promises to make it a spectacular tournament and to draw the crowds. The players themselves are predicting openly the winner will need to snoot a quartet of 69's, and the most popular guess is that he will have to shoot a 72-hole total of not over 275.

Barron, Lawson Little and Dick Metz formed the first threesome to tee off today at 9.10 a.m. EDT.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

The members of the lawn bowling club and their friends have done it again, and by their united efforts the neat sum of $37.75 will be handed over to the Milk for Britain Fund. This is just one of the war movements sponsored by the ladies' games committee and all are to be congratulated. Anther gesture that showed all were behind this effort was the handing back to the fund all the money won by the successful rinks and we believe that there will still be a few more dollars coming in to-day. All in all it was a good evening any way you look at it, with about eighty bowlers taking part.

If the attendance at the men's open tournament held at Bowmanville yesterday afternoon and evening is anything to go by, then the open tournaments for this season at least, are in for a real trimming. Only 10 rinks were entred. Two from Peterborough, one from Port Hope, one from Cobourg, three from Oshawa and three from Bowmanville. It looks as if the traffic conditions might be responsible and we see by this morning's paper that gas restrictions are tightening.

The cup was won by our good friend H Rosevear, Port Hope, with a rink from our own club taking second prize for two wins. The rink was:

W. Jeffries, T. Doughty, H. Freeman, G. Gimblett, skip. Second for two wins. Each received a blanket.

The program for to-morrow night calls for men's rinks at 7.30 o'clock. The fee and everything else the same as any other Friday evening.

Eight Killed In Train Wreck

The observation car of the famous "Silver Meteor" is shown here a mass of crumpled wreckage after being rammed by a fast freight train in Kittrell, North Carolina. The New York to Florida streamliner had stopped at this tiny town for special orders when the accident occurred, killing eight persons.

George Street Church Holds Annual Congregational Picnic

Men were noticeably absent at Nicholls Oval on Wednesday afternoon and evening as George St. United Church congregation staged its annual picnic, under summer skies that smiled to complete a perfect program.

Leo Copp, general chairman of the picnic this year chose a competent committee and the events moved along in a smooth, well ordered style that reflected careful planning. It was one of the finest outings in the history of the congregation, with not even an accident to mar the festivites.

The carnival mood was enhanced by the sweet and lively band music supplied by the Salvation Army Junior Band, which played during the supper hour, and in the evenin gas the older people sat around and watched the youngsters compete in deck tennis, and softball games. Both young and old gave the men in the refreshment booth plenty of work.

Supper was served at a long row of picnic tables. Rev. H. L. Roberts and Mrs. Roberts were on hand with a cordial greeting for guests and members of the congregation alike. There were just as many children as in other years, but young men and middle-aged men were few in number, reflecting the demands of war both in the fighting field and in industry.

Following are the key members of the picnic committee: races, Quirt McKinney; deck tennis, Ivan Drain; horseshoes, Thomas Mark; softball, Ken McKee; prizes, Mrs. W. K. McGee, Mrs. Allan Brown, and Mrs. S. Ward; refreshment booth, W. C. McBride, Lloyd Gilders; playground supervision, Mrs. L. W. Copp, Miss Beryl Hart, Miss Georgie Hardill; community supper, Mrs. W. Harris, Mrs. W. P. Hetherington, Mrs. J. Tinney, Mrs. F. E. Latimer, and Mrs. W. K. McGee; transportation, Gordon Hudson; supplies, R. W. Lyon, W. Frise; reception committee, A. Stewart.

FOREST, Ont., June 18—(CP).—The revival of summer racing at this town struck a responsive note when the third stop in the Western Ontario circuit held forth here yesterday. The track was in splendid condition this being evidenced by the various fast miles paced, particularly the second heat of the fast free-for-all event when Babe Grattan, the Campbell standard-bearer, won in 2.08½, which is within a second of the track record established by Bill Patch years ago.

There were six starters in the free-for-all race and it was a tough grind from the first trip to the final heat. Donna Direct, the Neville-owned mare, upset the dope in the first heat when she came through the home lane like a runaway norse to nose out Miller Brook the Saint owned stallion.

Another startling upset came along in the second heat when Babe Grattan came along after standing a gas-house drive through the stretch to nip Donna Direct and Miller Brook after getting away slowly closed a lot of ground to land the show spot over Miss Cold Oash. The time of the heat was 2:08½, the fastest of the afternoon.

The three-year-old pacers strutted their stuff for the first time this year, and when the smoke of battle had cleared it was Beulah Dale F., the filly Len Fraser has been racing this year, again returned the winner to keep her record clean by winning her every start. Six youngsters went to the post, and when Red Lee won the first scramble in 2:14¼ from the Fraser filly he showed a lot of class, as this was his first start of the season. The Fraser filly won the second heat in 2:14, just about by the same margin as she lost the first skirmish, Red Lee being the contender. The latter is owned by O. Norton of London and was driven by Barney Hughes. Beulah Dale F. was the best in the final, and second place went to Helen Lee owned by C. E. Bayle, Windsor, and driven by Simpson.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer.

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP)—Has your softball team played a "Magazine Game" yet?...The idea comes from Louisville's Bonny Castle Club and it sounds like a swell way to make a big little contribution to the armed forces...The club merely established an admission price for its Saturday night doubleheader of "one or more" copies of a current issue of a good magazine...First nights receipts were 2,149 pieces of reading matter which went to the air base unit at Bowman Field...

Service Dept.

After playing in Baltimore's navy relief game against Bob Feller and Co. the other night, Shortstop Jack Conway of the Orioles decided to enlist in the Navy himself...Othel Greene, former Des Moines, Ia., golden gloves lightweight, claims to be the first A.E.F. member to fight professionaly on the other side. He stopped Aircraftsman Frank Gilluley in three rounds at Belfast, Ireland...Reports from the Marines' recruiting offices show that a good many athletes prefer green uniforms to khaki or whites. The Mississippi U. football team has contributed five members while the new officers' candidates class at Quantico includes Peanut Hull, Florida lineman, and Gus Tunnell, Southern Methodist end.

Sportpourri

The West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills is recruiting debutantes as usherèttes for the pro tournament starting Saturday instead of vacationing college boys who used to do the job...Coast guardsmen are warned not to tangle with that new recruit, Clark Himkle, the old Green Bay Packers' fullback.

TORONTO, June 18.—(CP)—Life is so futile: In Winnipeg, a newspaper story rhapsodized a senior softball pitcher who tossed a no-hitter, walked none and struck out 10...But the story neglected to mention the hero's name..Joe (Winnipeg Free Press) Ryan commented: "A case of making the hall of fame incognito."

Padock Patter

Weekday program at Blue Bonnets track near Montreal will call for 20-minute intervals between races..That's good news to the writers and fans who campaign season in and season out for shorter intervals...Track official say the extra time (30-45 minutes on some tracks) is needed for punters to decide upon which nag will carry their faith and two bucks...Most race bettors don't figure that out until they get into line anyway and the average fan can stick a pin into a program just as efficiently in 15 minutes as in 30...

Perry Retiring 'Just Can't Play Any More'

MEXICO CITY, June 18.—(AP)—Fred Perry, world's professional tennis champion and former top-flight amateur player, announced today his retirement from the sport "because I just can't play any more."

The slender Englishman, ranked as No. 1 tennis player of the world when he was winning amateur championships, said he is stepping out because of an arm injury suffered in a fall at Madison Square Garden, New York, last winter. At the time, the injury forced him to default to Bobby Riggs, 1941 amateur champion, in the first match of their tour.

Perry, who has been in Mexico about a month after taking extensive treatments in the hope of nursing the arm back to its old strength, said he tried to play last week "and I'm no good at all."

"I can hit a forehand all right but in championship tennis if you aren't any good in backhand or service, that's just too much of a handicap to give the other fellow."

Are You On Salad Shift?

By MARY MOORE.

If you belong to that small group of geniuses who never makes the same kind of salads, you don't need these few words.

Gelatine is our medium for cooking to-day and more delightful salads than these offered you never tasted in or out of a mould. The plain aspic we have developed (which recipe you will find below) contains no sugar and I do not hesitate to say that vegetable salads are better without it. Make your jelly base for vegetable salads.

1. You can't miss the thousands of words that are being written on conserving the vitamins in fresh vegetables by not cutting or chopping them until immediately before serving. Consequently, a good way to avoid the necessity of this last minute preparation is to prepare your vegetables and immediate submerge them in a cool aspic.

2. Gelatine, itself, is an easily digested protein food— an important feature in these days of nerve-wearing rush.

3. Gelatine salads can be made one or two days ahead of the time needed or double quantities can be made and used for two or three meals.

4. Salad moulds make food look more attractive, and go further.

Quick Clear Aspic.

Four and one-half tablespoons gelatine, 1qt. water, 4 bouillon cubes 1½ tablespoons minced carrots, 1½ tablespoons minced celery, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 bay leaves, 3 cloves, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne. Soak gelatine 5 minutes in ½ cup of the water. Dissolve bouillon cubes in rest of water, add seasonings, cover simmer 30 minutes. Taste to see if more salt is needed. Dissolve gelatine in this. Strain through double cheesecloth or jelly bag. Let cool.

Piquante Salmon Mld.

One tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1½ teaspoons mustard, dash cayenne, 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten, ¾ cup milk, 1½ tablespoons melted butter, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup flaked salmon, lettuce. Soften gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Combine seasonings, egg yolks and milk in top of double boiler and cook over hot water 5 to 8 minutes or until thickened, stirring constantly. Add butter, lemon juice and gelatine, stirring until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from fire and fold in salmon. Turn into fish mold; chill until firm. Unmold on bed of crisp lettuce and serve with cucumber cream dressing.

Cucumber Cream Dressing.

Two tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup diced cucumber, 1 cup heavy cream, whipped. Add vinegar and sugar to cucumbers, fold into cream.

Quick Clear Aspic No. 2

Two cups water, 1 teaspoon salt, speck black pepper, ¼ cup white vinegar, 1 bouillon cube, 1 medium sized onion, cut fine, 1¾ tablespoons gelatine, 2 tablespoons cold water. Add the seasonings and vinegar and thinly sliced onion to the water. Cover and cook 10 minutes, strain and to the 2 cups of liquid that remain (add water to make up to this amount if this has boiled away), add the bouillon and gelatine that has already been soaked in the 2 tablespoons of cold water. Stir this mixture long enough to dissolve the gelatine. It is then ready for moulding the vegetables.

Jelly Cheese Ring.

Eight ounces cream cheese, ½ cup Canadian Cheddar cheese or domestic Roquefort. Mash this well and gradually stir into 8 ozs. 18 per cent. cream (table cream). Soak 1½ tablespoons gelatine in 3 tablespoons cold water and dissolve in 3 tablespoons boiling water. Add ½ pint whipping cream, whipped stiff, to the cheese mixture, then fold the gelatine into this when the cream mixtures are blended. Add ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika. Mould in a ring mould which has been well oiled with cooking oil. When well chilled and ready to serve, turn out on round plate and fill centre with well-drained grapefruit sections, canned pineapple cubes, shredded new cabbage, chopped watercress moistened with a little French dressing.

These clear aspics may be used for many salads. Strips of green pepper, pimientos or peas are a nice combination. Arrange strips of pimiento to form a circle in the bottom of individual moulds. Place a hard-cooked or devilled egg right over the pimiento and fill to depth of ½-inch with cold prepared aspic. Let chill. Fill to top of mould when first layer of aspic is chilled. Let chill and when ready, turn out n bed of sliced cucumber on lettuce leaves. Garnish with carrot strips.

Other vegetable combinations that are nice in the clear aspics are cooked asparagus tips, tomato wedges, peas, finely shredded green cabbage, sliced radishes.

If you are serving aspic jelly, they do not all necessarily have to be served on lettuce. There are other greens that are equally pretty. For instance, pimiento, cress, shredded leaf lettuce, finely shredded cabbage, the delicate leaves from celery. Hot corn fritters makes a nice accompaniment for a salad main course.

Beet Jelly Moulds.

Two tablespoons plain granulated gelatine, 2 cups boiling water, ½ cup vinegar from pickled beets, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ tablespoon lemon juice, 1½ cup shredded raw beets or if you wish use minced pickled beets, 1 tablespoon minced green pepper, 1 cup finel, shredded cabbage, celery or cucumber, french cream cheese dressing, lettuce or cress. Soak the gelatine 5 minutes in water to cover. Dissolve in the boiling water. Add vinegar, sugar, salt and lemon juice and, when beginning to slightly thicken, stir in beets and vegetables. Transfer to individual moulds first rinsed with cold water. Chill until firm, about 4 hours. Unmould on nests of lettuce or cress and garnish with dressing.

FOR A BRIGHT NIGHT

By ALICE ALDEN

WHEN THERE is a full dress affair such as an important charity ball, the chances are that the nicest frocks are more than likely to be white. A white evening gown is a good choice just now, since later, with the aid of a dye, it can assume quite a different guise. Brenda Marshall wears a most attractive dress of white silk Jersey skilfully draped and softly styled. The long bodice has a draped band giving a bow effect. The full skirt is shirred at the waistline. A heavy silver necklace and bracelet accented with a large blue plastic flower suggest something different for costume jewelry.

This Week's Wartime Recipe

"In sending you this idea," Mrs. Gunther of York writes, "I am not at all sure that it can be classed as a wartime recipe. I do know that it was a friend in need to me last week when my husband was scheduled to have his dinner with a business friend from out of town at the golf club, but instead decided to come home so they 'could see our latest movies.' Junior and I were going to eat our dinner in the breakfast nook, going to as little trouble as possible. I had made up a pound can of salmon into salmon a la king thinking that what was left would be used for the following day's lunch when in walked friend husband and friend.

I managed one of those teeth-showing smiles, and as soon as it was revealed to me why they were there: "A bite of dinner then our own private movie show." I said dinner would be ready in a few minutes—they just had time to wash up and listen to the news.

I didn't think toast was very glamorous under a creamed mixture, so I thought of waffles, and on spying a half empty can of tomatoes decided to make tomato waffles. I kept them as crisp as I could in the warming oven, and when ready, put four whole ones on my largest platter, served the salmon a la king on them, garnished with cress and parsley and tomato wedges, with a few strawberries sliced on the moulded blanc mange I managed to make it look like a planned meal. Here's my tomato waffle recipe:

Tomato Waffles

Two cups pastry flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon soda, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, dash cayenne, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1⅛ cups chopped tomato pulp, fresh or canned, or heavy strained tomato pulp, 1-3 cup melted fat or oil, 2 eggs. Sift and measure the dry ingredients. Stir in the tomato pulp, melted fat or oil, and lightly beaten eggs. The egg yolks and whites may be beaten separately and the whites added last if desired. Bake when waffle iron registers "bake." Due to variations in tomato pulp density it may be necessary to slightly increase or decrease this ingredient to obtain the right waffle consistency.

Thanks Mrs. Gunther for this brilliant idea, it is new to me and the tomato flavor is delicious with salmon. Send us any more of such original ideas you may give birth to.

If any other readers can match it for originality or economy we want their recipes. Give Readers.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 18 — (ENS) —An arch of evergreens and spirea together with potted ferns and bouquets of iris and peonies formed the pretty setting for the wedding of Miss Reta Mae Aldworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Aldworth, Waterloo, to Norman G. Hazell son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hazell of Campbellford on Saturday. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents and Rev. David I. Forsyth of the United Church officiated. Mr. Alfred Duering, organist played the "Bridal Chorus" while the bride entered on the arm of her father and during the signing of the register he rendered "Because" and for the recessional Mendelsshon's "Wedding March."

The bride presented a dainty picture in her graceful gown of petal white sheer fashioned with full skirt and moulded bodice of Chantilly lace with long tight-fighting sleeves and demure Peter Pan collar. The front of the bodice was buttoned down to a lace peplum and her finger tip veil cascaded from a halo of lily of the valley. She carried white sweet peas and bouvardia tied with white net. Miss Alice S. Koeppeld was maid of honor and she wore a powder blue silk jersey gown with long shirred torso bodice and an accordion pleated skirt with headdress of matching flowers. She carried a bouquet of pink butterfly roses tied with blue net. Mr. Rae W. Aldworth, Park Street, Waterloo, a brother of the bride, assisted the groom.

A reception at Forest Hill Gardens followed the ceremony and about twenty-five guests attended. Receiving with the bride and groom were the mother of the bride in a printed silk frock in tones of navy and white over which was worn a matching jacket accented with self-piped pockets; and the mother of the groom wearing a navy blue triple sheer redingote frock with beige accessories. Both were corsages of pink roses.

For her wedding trip to Toronto, Belleville and other points, the bride donned a softly tailored frock of island turquoise crepe under a matching rabbit hair jacket accepted with brown accessories. A corsage of Talisman roses ornamented her costume. They will reside on Brantford. Out of town guests were from Montreal, Campbellford and Lucan and included Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hazell and Mr. and Mrs. Kendrick Hazell of Campbellford.

Year's Work Summarized By S. D. and G. Auxiliary

At the annual meeting of the S.D. and G. Highlanders Women's Auxiliary, held in the Officers' Mess at the Armouries on Wednesday afternoon, interesting reports of the year's activities were given by various members of the executive.

Mrs. E. Haley, recording secretary, presented a detailed outline of the general work, mentioning that funds had been raised by participation with I.O.D.E. chapters in a fall tag day, talent money, collection at a hockey game and proceeds fo a very successful bingo at the Legion Hall in March, for which Mrs. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne and Mrs. John Post secured most of the prizes.

From the tag day money ($280) supplemented by treasury funds, four hundred Christmas boxes were packed and shipped through Red Cross facilities early in November. At the same time, cigarettes were sent through the Buckshee Fund to the O.C. of the regiment for distribution. A donation of $25 from the Y's Men's Club provided for these.

Talent money helped the Welfare Committee under the convenership of Mrs. R. T. F. Brain, to supply cod liver oil and milk in needy cases. A small amount of clothing was also distributed.

The hockey game collection of $33.60 was assigned for the purchase of cigarettes. A large amount of wool was bought and stored with the proceeds of the bingo.

Mrs. H. G. Mason, social convener, reported that tea and cookies for which a ten cent charge was made to cover costs, were served at all meetings. In December a Christmas tea provided by the executive followed the showing of movies of the regiment by Mr. F. L. Roy. Christmas stockings made and filled by members were distributed Christmas Eve to several homes by Mrs. Hicks-Lyne, Mrs. Gemmell and Mrs. G. Falkner.

Reinforcement officers and men and others from the training centre were entertained at a dance at the Y.W.C.A. during February. Mrs. Hicks-Lyne gave her home for a party in May, when the executive again supplied lunch. Also in May the auxiliary was well represented at a social evening held at the Y.W.C.A. by all the service auxiliary.

In February Mr. R. L. Dobbin kindly showed his own movies of various regiment activities and at different times talks of interest were given by officers of the regiment home from overseas. These include Capt. Ernie Whelpton, Major James Turnbull and Capt. Robert Allen. Sgt. Claire Mason of the C.W.A.C. home on leave, also gave an address on phases of her work.

At the final meeting Mrs. Clare Collins presented many facts about salvage and asked for assistance of the members. Mrs. J. F. Collis was appointed supervisor of salvage workers for the auxiliary.

The treasurer, Miss Margaret Hamilton, gave a complete report and announced a bank balance of $161.56.

Mrs. K. Kingston, knitting convener, stated that wool to the value of $120 had been purchased since January and the main project for fall would be the completion of sufficient knitted articles for 1942 Christmas boxes. She reported 105 finished articles in storage and expressed thanks for the able assistance of Mrs. G. H. Moore in her work. During the summer Mrs. H. G. Mason, Mrs. L. D. Foster, Mrs. H. Willis and Mrs. Moore have agreed to keep wool on hand for easier distribution.

Mrs. M. E. Clarke, in charge of sewing, looked after the making of handkerchiefs for Christmas boxes. Two quilts have been completed and sold, another will be ready for an autumn raffle. Mrs. J. A. H. Campbell and Mrs. Collis have helped greatly in this work.

Mrs. Gemmell, visiting committee convener stated that 140 calls had been made on families of the regiment, but owing to many changes, a complete revision of lists would be necessary.

The executive for 1942 is as follows: President, Mrs. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne; first vice president, Mrs. James Turnbull; second vice president, Mrs. H. G. Mason; recording secretary, Mrs. Eric Haley; treasurer, Miss Margaret Hamilton; corresponding secretary, Mrs. L. D. Foster; representative to Local Council, Mrs. J. F. Collis; social convener, Mrs. Mason; knitting, Mrs. K. Kingston; visiting, Mrs. J. M. Gemmell; sewing, Mrs. M. E. Clarke; telephone, Mrs. Graeme Falkner; publicity, Mrs. Turnbull.

Trinity W. M. S. Enjoys Talk By Dr. Avison

The June meeting of the Trinity Women's Missionary Society was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Ladies' Parlor of the church with the president, Mrs. H. T. Rehill, in the chair. The meeting was opened with the singing of "What a Friend we have in Jesus." Followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. A timely article on Christian Stewardship was given by Mrs. G. N. Moncrief.

Mrs. E. Whiteley's report from the War Services Committee was read by the president. It is asked that members try not to desert the War Services entirely during the coming summer vacation.

It was recommended that we share the expenses of the delegate to the Leaders' Summer School, with the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary.

The devotional period was opened by Mrs. Stanley giving a concise and interesting talk along with the bible reading, which was followed by prayer led by Mrs. A. Legon.

Dr. Avison was the speaker for the afternoon and although he said he had given the same talk six times previously every one in his audience was spellbound with the magical word pictures that he placed before us, some humorous, and everyday incidents, some cruel and pagan. He told of the changes that had been forced upon the people of Korea under Japanese domination. He left these words for us to think about, "Unless we accept for ourselves Japan's ideal that we have a life to give, instead of a life to live," we may find ourselves occupying a place like that of Korea or Manchouko. He added, "Where your treasure is there will your heart be also" and if our treasure is truly "love of freedom" there, and there only will our hearts be.

Entire Family On Active Service

Miss Sadie Anderson, of Peterborough, who reported at the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) recently, is by no means the only member of her family in war service.

Miss Anderson came originally from Dalmuir, Scotland, and she has a brother in the British Navy, and another in the British Army. Her father is a St. John Ambulance worker in Lochore, Scotland, and two sisters are nursing aides at Murray Royall Hospital, Perth.

When she hears from her relatives the letters contain little news about the war or their work. Before enlisting as a medical stenographer, Miss Anderson was active in the Girl Guides and had helped the Red Cross by folding bandages.

W.F.B.C. Holds Tea And Display Work

Mrs. H. Howell and Mrs. W. S. Hake received the guests at a charming tea and display of work held by the members of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church on Wednesday afternoon. Tea was poured in the ladies' parlors by Mrs. T. Groombridge and Mrs. J. Bell, at a table gracefully laid and centred with a great bouquet of peonies in a silver vase. Mrs. J. Vollans was responsible for the tea-table and Mrs. G. Packenham and Mrs. J. Banks served the guests.

The display of work, which included 420 articles, among which were ten large quilts, and seven ditty bags containing 15 articles each, is to be sent overseas through the facilities of the Red Shield. Most of the articles were made by members and their friends and there were several complete layettes, pretty children's clothes, afghans, socks, handkerchiefs, sweaters. The things were displayed by Miss H. Ward, Mrs. H. Bassett, Mrs. G. Groombridge, and Miss A. Jenkinson.

Junior Welfare League Elects New Officers

The Junior Welfare League completed its season's activities with the annual business meeting and luncheon at the Peterborough Golf Club Monday, June 15, with the president, Mrs. D. A. MacTavish, in the chair.

The past year has been one of increased activity and considerable time and funds of the club have been directed to war work and charities, in addition to their usual welfare work of the city.

Twenty-two meetings have been held during the year, with an average attendance of fourteen members. During their season, two of the members, Miss Lahring Parsons and Miss Claire Mason, have left to join the armed forces.

The work of the various committees was reviewed and the reports submitted.

The sewing committee under the convenership of Mrs. Ralph Honey, completed a number of layettes which were distributed for city welfare, and to the Red Cross. They directed the work done at the meetings which included articles for the Red Cross and Nicholls Hospital.

Mrs. Keith Lech reported that the knitting committee had completed numbers of seamens' socks, sockees, sweaters and mitts, and in addition many articles to complete the layettes.

The committee for the Well Babies' Clinic under Mrs. Waddell and Mrs. Eastwood arranged for volunteers to work in conjunction with the public health authorities twice weekly for the entire year.

Mrs. Clare Collins convened the shelter committee. They have given assistance at the Shelter and at present are giving of their time and funds to decorate and equip an adequate play barn. This should be opened and ready for use in about ten days' time.

Mrs. Dewart and Mrs. Perks have been responsible for investigating the needs of poor families brought to the attention of the club by various city organizations.

A large portion of the funds has been directed to war work—the British War Victims Fund, the Red Cross, Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund, and sending cigarettes and chocolate to Peterborough boys in service overseas.

A certain percentage has been allocated to the welfare work in the city. Large quantities of milk have been distributed, donations given to local charities, and a Dunlopillo mattress for use in Nicholls Hospital.

The members are planning to repeat the successful thrift shop held last October.

Evelyn McPhee Weds Lloyd Lang

OMEMEE, June 18—(ENS). — A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Omemee parsonage on Tuesday evening when Sarah Evelyn McPhee, daughter of Mrs. Rea and the late David Rea was united in marriage to Wilbert Lloyd Lang of Bethany, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Lang. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. R. M. Patterson. The bride was attended by Mrs. Hilliard Heasman, while Mr. Hilliard Heasman of Bethany acted as groomsman. The bride wore a dress of white lace with matching accessories. The bridesmaid wore a grey crepe dress with blue felt hat.

On their return they will reside on the groom's farm near Bethany.

Sugar Ration Books Ready For Distribution Soon

Canadians are to have sugar ration coupons. O. J. Stanley explained the working of the sugar rationing system and the system for distribution of ration books to a meeting in the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening.

On Tuesday, June 23, the post offices will receive ration-book application cards and sheets of instructions as to how to fill them out One application card and one instruction sheet will be delivered to each household in the city, to be filled out by the head of the household. The names of all members of that household who bear the name of the householder will be filled in on the same card. For instance, if Mr. Jones is the householder, then the names of Mr. Jones and all his family will be put on the one card But, if there is anyone of a different name living permanently at that address, such as Mr. Jones' maid, mother-in-law, or boarder, they must fill out a separate card and will receive separate ration books. If you need more than one application card in your household you should apply to the Post Office for extra ones. The canvassers who collect the completed applications will also carry extra cards.

On the evening of June 25 men canvassers (volunteers) will call at each house in the city to collect the application cards. Instructions will be issued via radio newspaper to householders on that evening to remain in their homes, or, if they must go out, to see that someone is home when the canvassers call. The card must be signed by someone 21 years of age or older.

The cards will be turned over to the C.W.V.S. at the collegiate where the Board of Education has agreed to provide ten rooms where clerks provided through the C.W.V.S. will file the application cards and fill out temporary ration books which will be good for ten weeks, after which permanent books will be issued. Mrs. J. G. Wharry will be in charge of the work and she would be glad if anyone wishing to volunteer their services would telephone the C.W.V.S. headquarters at 9377, or call in at the office in the Bank of Toronto building on Hunter street.

In answer to several questions the following information of interest to housewives was unearthed. In regard to canning and preserving, a housewife is to be allowed one half pound of sugar per pound of fruit for canning and three quarters of a pound of sugar per pound of fruit for making jams, jellies and marmalades. She is requested to buy her sugar at one store only and when buying sugar for canning she will be required to bill out an application form.

Visitors staying at home other than their own will be expected to bring their own ration books or sugar. Visitors from the United States will be supplied at the border with ration books. Soldiers on leave will have ration books which they will have to give up on returning to camp.

You may save your sugar ration coupons if you wish but are warned that no one must buy or have on hand more than two weeks' supply of sugar at once. You may not spend your coupons in advance. That is to say, you cannot spent September's coupons in July, though you may spend July's in September.

A Pimple Covered Face Kills Many a Romance

The lives of many young people are made miserable by the breaking out of pimples, and you probably know of cases where a promising romance has been spoiled by those red, white, festering and pus filled sores on the face.

The trouble is not so much physical pain, but the mental suffering caused by the embarrassing disfigurement which very often makes the sufferer ashamed to go out in company.

The quickest way to get rid of pimples is to improve the general health by a thorough cleansing of the blood.

HUNTER UNDER SUSPICION. CHAPTER VIII.

When Hunter Dent came to himself he was lying on a cot. The rough wool blanket was not woven in any of the local perfume or cosmetic plants. The walls were bleak and narrow. There was a steady pour of rain outside. Hunter ached in various parts of his body. The chief local pain was in his head. He groped at it tentatively, trying hard to remember. He seemed to be crudely but competently bandaged. He tried to sit up. He did not like the color of the night about him. It wasn't exactly rural darkness, and it was not the bright lights of Middleton's social life.

It came to Hunter slowly that he was in jail. He sat up. He got to unsteady legs and crossed the floor. He was in a cell, all right. He was in jail. He remembered more and more, how he had opened the safe to make sure about the money; how he had been set on by rascals lurking in his office. It must have been Neal Frazier, and the rest of them, after knocking him out, had brought him to town and lodged him here.

A brown negro evidently the night clerk of this public hostelry, came at his wild howls. "I is Shady" the colored man stated, not without deference. 'You is Mr. Hunter Dent, isn't you?"

"Unlock this door and let me out of here."

"I couldnt do dat, Mr. Dent. She'if Anderson he say if you comes to and is hurting to look after you, but alongside of dat I is to keep you locked up. If you hurting nowhurs, Mr. Dent?"

No use venting his wrath on the jailor, who was merely doing his duty. "Nowhurs," he growled. Hunter went back, lay down tried hard to relax. He grew quiet after a while and fell asleep. It was broad day and still raining when he waked. He felt refreshed. But gloom quickly settled back on him. He had breakfast, and Sheriff Anderson then took him to his office.

"Frazier, and the other boys, fetched you in late last night, Dent."

"Sweet of 'em," Dent grumbled. "What am I charged with?"

"Robbery, murder, resisting arrest, and a few things like that. What have you to say for yourself?"

"I decline to talk Sheriff. I want a lawyer."

"I reckon that's your constitutional right. But let's get down to this matter. I'm frankly puzzled. Those boys out there at Ballard's have a pretty good case against you. I've been talking to Strick Ballard, and he will be here to see you in a few minutes. It seems as if you made certain threats against him. You and Mr. Ballard had a row about some seed corn, and maybe a fine walking horse—is that right?"

"I stand on my constitutional right not to answer questions until I have had a chance to consult my lawyer."

"Who is your lawyer?"

"Tracy Hannings. Will you call him for me?"

Anderson looked up the number and dialed it. "Hunter Dent is here with me, Hannings. This is Sheriff Anderson. He asks you to come over as quick as you can. Okay. Thanks." He hung up, turned back to Hunter.

"Now, look here, Dent. You might as well come clean. We've gone over this whole business. You're mixed in that stick-up. Either you took part in it or you were an accessory before the fact or you are shielding the ones who did the trick. I'm your friend. I could treat you as a rascal and give you the third degree, and make you come clean. Maybe I'll do that yet, but only after I have given you every chance in the world.

"You listen carefully now while I reconstruct this whole business. There's a pretty wild bunch of youngsters that gather out at Ballard's country home. That redhead of Ballard's; the boy Temple, the banker's son; the twins; the girls that sing over the radio; Mrs. Ballard's brother, and several others. Good deal of gambling goes on, too, eh?"

"I don't keep up with them," Hunter said.

"Sure you do. You know it, so do I; so do plenty of others. Drinking, gaming, dancing. Wild yes; but nothing so terrible, at that. War does things to young people. You can't raise 'em up to shoot each other and kick too much when they are willing to lose their shirts at strip poker. But getting back. You don't run with them, no; but now and then you watch, maybe, and pick up things. Now, it's my theory that the leak of money movement was through young Hank Temple. He works in his dad's bank. He would know, perhaps made up the shipment, put it in a bag, give it to the messenger. You heard him say something indiscreet. All right, you got a partner, perhaps two, and went after the thing. You and Ballard did have a row, didn't you?"

"I'm still not talking," Hunter said.

"Well, what started out to be a lark—to put it mildly—got down to something deadly earnest. You had to do some shooting. You had to make your get-away in your car. We know the car was parked not far from the scene. Let me show you." He produced two bromide enlargements. "This is a print of the tread of the car in the road at the back of the estate. Here is the picture of the tread of your car. See? The same eh? You did admit you are the only one with a key to that iron gate; that the car was yours. Miss Ballard heard you, so did the constable out there. It is known that you were not in the place where you sleep nights that night. We have that on authority that can't be impeached. So you were absent, you have a grouch, you probably have the money. Come on now and tell me the truth, and let's work this out so it will be as easy on you as we can make it. I'm your friend, Dent."

"You told me that before."

"All right, where is the money?"

"I wish I knew. How is Junior Ballard?"

"Barely alive."

A car drew up in front of the jail. Strickland Ballard came in. He looked at the two men. "Hello, Anderson."

"Howdy, Mr. Ballard."

"Hello, Dent."

Hunter barely nodded. Ballard asked, "Could I talk to the young man privately, Sheriff?"

"Come back to his cell." Anderson led the way, locked the two up.

Ballard began to bluster.

"We have your number, Dent! Everything leads to one conclusion. You shrewdly staged a trick to discredit my folks. You may not have intended going as far as you did. It seems incredible you would stoop to robbery and murder. The chain of evidence is rapidly forging around you. I am working with the authorities in every way possible. Much as I should regret seeing you go to prison or the chair, I nevertheless must put aside all personal feelings in the interest of justice and human rights. I shudder at how I trusted my son and daughter to your care as if you were an older brother. I must say I am glad we discovered your true character before you had time to get thoroughly ingratiated into—well—er—putting it bluntly, married into the family."

Ballard became more years than his 50; he shrank into a haunted, haggard man whose conscience tormented him that he had not been a wiser and better father. He slowly shook his head. "It will be two or three days before the crisis. Until then we can only watch and pray."

"You'd better have been doing your watching and praying earlier," Hunter said. When the harried man turned to look at him, sensing Hunter's deeper meaning, Hunter said, "If you came here in the hope, or on the stray chance, that you would maybe shield your son in some way—well, all I have to say is that you'd better start shuddering at my true character, for maybe when I get through telling all I know and a lot you don't know, justice and human rights that you announce your reverence for will really get a serving!"

Anderson came down the hall. "Telephone call for Mr. Ballard. Call for Dent, too."

DOROTHY DIX

Woman Is Warned Against Deserting Her Husband and Children

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married for thirteen years and have children, but I am so unhappy that my doctor says that unless I get into a more cheerful frame of mind he can do nothing for me. The reason for my unhappiness is that I am in love with another man. Not long ago my childhood sweetheart came to see me after nineteen years and since then life has been miserable for both of us.

We still love each other and he wants me to go away with him and take one of the children, leaving the others with their father; but I can't bear to separate the children and break up their home. I don't know what to do because my health, as well as my happiness, is at stake. What do you think I should do?—WORRIED WIFE.

ANSWER: I don't think that anybody can find happiness in wrongdoing. They can find excitement, the thrill of adventure, perhaps a momentary pleasure in breaking the laws of God and man, but never the quiet peace and contentment of happiness. And this is especially true of women.

Look at the wild women you know. Look at the girls who have thrown their caps over the windmill. Notice that they never smile. They laugh loud and shrilly, but there is no mirth in it. Their laughter is the crackling of thorns under a pot. They are always restless and dissatisfied, always in pursuit of a joy they never find, and almost invariably they come to the time when they have to bolster up their flagging spirits with drink and are gay only when they are drunk enough to have forgotten.

So I think you will not find the remedy for your unhappiness in running off with your lover and leaving your children and your husband and your home and your decent place in society, behind you. What has brought on the nervous condition you are in now is the conflict between your conscience and your desires, and it will be worse—it will tear you to pieces if you do the thing you know to be wrong.

Would Live In Torment

There never will be a day nor an hour when you will be at peace with yourself. There will never be a night when you will not lie awake wondering how the helpless little children you deserted are getting along, with no mother to watch over them, no mother to care for and protect them. Your dreams will be haunted by the cry for M-o-t-h-e-r!

Can't you look your case honestly in the face and see that you are a neurotic woman who is building up a romance out of your own morbid imaginings that have very little foundations in fact? Can't you see that you are imagining that you are a lot more in love with this old sweetheart than you really are? He left you several years before you married your husband, so he never could have been very ardently in love with you. And now he comes back and for his own amusement he is trying to break up your home, take you from your husband, make you his mistress, and wreck the lives of your little children.

If there is any more caddish thing that a man can do than that, I don't know what it is. And if there is anything sillier that a woman can do than to throw away all the decencies of life for such a man, I don't know what that is, either.

Get a grip on yourself. Tell this man to go away and leave you in peace. Do your duty to your husband and your children and you will find hapiness and health.

Another Philandering Husband

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Eight years ago my husband smashed the little patch of Heaven I was living in by telling me that he was in love with an 18-year-old girl, who was his mistress, and that he wanted a divorce so he could marry her. After months of pleading with him to try to make him see the folly of breaking up our home and ruining the lives of our two baby sons I finally gave him the divorce he wished.

The girl soon got him so much in debt that alimony stopped coming in and I was forced to go to work to support my children. Now I have become a fairly successful business woman and have saved enough to send my boys through college. My ex-husband's wife has walked out on him to go to another man and he has come to me a broken man, begging for another chance to make up for the years of torture he has caused me.

I have nothing but repulsion for him, but he is working on my boys and showering them with presents until they are pleading with me to let their daddy live with them so they may have a father as other boys have. I have never told my children how their father treated me. Must I shatter their illusions about their father in order to hold their love and respect? Or am I a selfish woman to deny them a home with their father?

ANXIOUS MOTHER.

ANSWER: I don't think that you are called upon to martyrize yourself for the balance of your life by taking back a man who has treated you the way your husband did. You have worked your way to peace and independence, and you would forfeit all of that if you had to live in daily contact with a man you could never look at without its opening all the old wounds.

But it is a question that you must settle for yourself. At any rate, I think you should tell the boys all about their father and not let them blame you for his sins. I do not see that such a father would be an unlifting influence in his sons' lives.

Loves Him, But Not His Car

DEAR MISS DIX: I am in love with a young man who is everything I have ever wanted in a husband. He has kindness, patience, meekness, politeness, generosity, and a fairly good position. The one objection to him is that he insists on driving the most awful-looking car. He cannot afford a new one, but I do not care whether he has one or not. I am just ashamed to be seen with him in this car, and the fear of my boss or business associates seeing it places a queer but high barrier between us. The car is really terrible and people laugh at it. What shall I do?—READER.

ANSWER: Well, I don't think you will have to worry about that much longer as what with the rubber shortage and the gas rationing the car proposition will be eliminated.

But you misjudge people's attitude toward your young man and his car. No one whose opinion is worth regarding has anything but profound respect for a young man who rides around in the battered old car he can afford, instead of splurging in one that makes everyone wonder how he is paying for it.

"IT'S POTATO PASTIE DAY TODAY, GIRLS!" says Martha Logan
MARTHA LOGAN: Today's recipe's an exciting new way to use left-over meat and potatoes.
BETTY: I've the potatoes here, Miss Logan.
MARTHA LOGAN: Mash them and season well, Betty, while Jane sifts the flour. Now we work in the shortening.
JANE: It really is a pleasure to work with Jewel, it creams so easily!
BETTY: Yes, and it blends so well with other ingredients!
MARTHA LOGAN: Right! That is a 'specially valuable quality in wartime, isn't it? Ready with the dough?
JANE: Yes—and here's the seasoned chopped veal.
MARTHA LOGAN: Now fold over the pasties and pop them in the oven. These mouth-watering little pies are as nutritious as they are delicious... typical of the recipes you'll find in our Jewel Cook Book!
Clip out and try this wartime Jewel recipe for POTATO PASTIES
½ pound (about 1½ cups) seasoned mashed potatoes, 1¾ cups sifted pastry flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup Jewel shortening, cold water, chopped left-over meat, seasoned and moistened with chili sauce or catsup. Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Work in Jewel, then add seasoned potatoes. Mix with cold water to make stiff dough. Roll ¼ inch thick and cut in large ovals or rounds. Place a spoonful of meat mixture on half of each oval and fold over paste (edge moistened) to enclose. Bake in hot oven, 425°, until browned. Serve hot. Minced ham, corned beef, etc., particularly delicious in these pasties.

Army Week Plans Are Progressing

CAMPBELLFORD, June 18 (ENS) —Lacking any definite information with regard to the participation of the armed forces in this town's Army Week celebration the Committee, which met for their second meeting on Tuesday evening, adjourned with plans little changed from the preliminary details. The most concrete report came from Lieut. N. Alex. MacColl who told the committee he had been in contact with the O.C. of the Midland Regiment and also wth the O.C. of "B" Company of the 2nd Battalion, and had been given the assurance of their active participation in the program which was being arranged for July 5th. This it was thought would probably take the form of a drum head service and parade, with members of the Ministerial Association participating in the program. Mayor F. F. Long, who presided for the meeting, suggested that a sub committee should be selected to arrange details of the program during the week on such days as were selected by the entire committee. The meeting adjourned with a strong appeal being made to all of those on the committee to make a special effort to be present at the next meeting, set for June 22nd.

Exciting Card Fortunes Keep Your Friends Agog

Thrills in the Surprise Cards!

By telling card fortunes you have grand fun and all you need to impress friends is some card meanings and a mysterious look in your eye!

Try the "Birthday Fortune" method. Is your fortune-seeker born on August 15? First she shuffles the deck, cuts it and removes her name card, a red Queen if she's blue-eyed. Then you lay aside the 8th card for the 8th month and, after she shuffles again, the 15th card.

The fateful surprise cards are next, the top three after another shuffle. The Five of Diamonds means big news, the Two of Hearts a proposal, the Four of Diamonds a raise.

Or in other cards in the "Birthday Fortune" you may find an Ace of Hearts, a new house; a Nine of Clubs, a pleasure trip. But may there be none of such sad fellows as the Two of Clubs, a disappointment.

How to tell a complete "Birthday Fortune" is explained in our 32-page booklet. Gives meaning of every card in the deck; also has a horoscope for each month and shows how to read exciting fortunes with tea-leaves, dominoes, dice, the "crystal."

For your copy of Fun With Fortune Telling send 15 cents in coins or stamps to The Peterborough Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and the Name of Booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T ASK SURE THINGS

IF YOU are unwilling to gamble on probabilities, and confine yourself to sure things, you should not play games of any kind, let alone bridge. Any game is a problem of attempting those moves which you consider most likely to succeed. If you do it soundly and skillfully, you make out all right in the long run. If you do it unsoundly—being either too timid or too venturesome—you will be doomed to ultimate failure.

North: ♠ Q 9 8 5 ♥ A 10 9 3 ♦ K 10 ♣ Q 9 2

West: ♠ 3 2 ♥ 5 ♦ 9 7 6 5 4 ♣ J 10 8 5

East: ♠ J ♥ K 8 7 6 4 ♦ Q J 8 3 ♣ K 7 3

South: ♠ A K 10 7 6 4 ♥ Q J 2 ♦ A 2 ♣ A 6

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♦	Pass

North's jump to 3-Spades was perhaps a slight overbid, but he preferred it to a weak 2-Spades, or any other call which would give the opponents any facts about his type of hand. South was ready for 7-Spades if North's response to the Blackwood convention had shown two kings, and 7-No Trumps if it had shown three of them.

Following the lead of the club J, North putting on the Q on the chance that West led from a king, the K forced the A. Develop the play any way you want, and you will see that the contract is now impossible of fulfillment unless West has the heart K. Since he has not, the contract is bound to be beaten. As soon as that card wins, the setting club is scored.

But that does not prove the bidding too venturesome. If the East and West hands are traded, a grand slam can be made. Or if the K of either hearts or clubs happened to be held by West, the contract would be made. Would you take a chance on bidding a slam which could be made under any of all of those circumstances? If not, you are not a sound bidder.

South: ♠ 9 3 ♥ Q 4 ♦ K Q 7 5 3 ♣ A J 9 6

What principle regarding the leading of trumps applies to this deal after South opens the diamond K against East's 4-Spades?

Cheese Output On Up-grade In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, June 18. — (ENS) — The increased milk flow caused by greater production is already having its effect on some cheese factories in this district which are being taxed to the limit. According to a report from the Burnley plant in Haldimand Township, the daily quota of milk has gone so high that it has become necessary to install a third vat and a larger boiler to generate the necessary steam supply. Federal Grader James L. Irwin visited the factory one day last week and signified approval of the change of boilers which is necessary now under Federal steel priorities regulations.

There were 1,652 cases of cheese offered for grading at Campbellford last week and this represented 19 lots a scompared to 23 lots and a total of 1,510 boxes a year ago Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray told the Examiner on Tuesday that the milk flow during the current week appeared to be remaining stationary and leads makers to believe that the maximum had been reached approximately two weeks earlier than usual.

Mr. T. J. Hicks, Chief Grader of Dairy Products is visiting the different grading centres throughout Central Ontario this week.

Taking Over Clubs

Melbourne, June 18 (AP)

ARMY Minister Francis Forde today hinted that exclusive clubs in Australian cities will be taken over by army authorities because the rapid expansion of the fighting forces has made it impossible to erect buildings as required.

Mr. Forde said the government intends to take over hotels, clubs, golf houses and similar buildings rather than schools and charitable institutions. No club would be expected, however fashionable and exclusive, if needed.

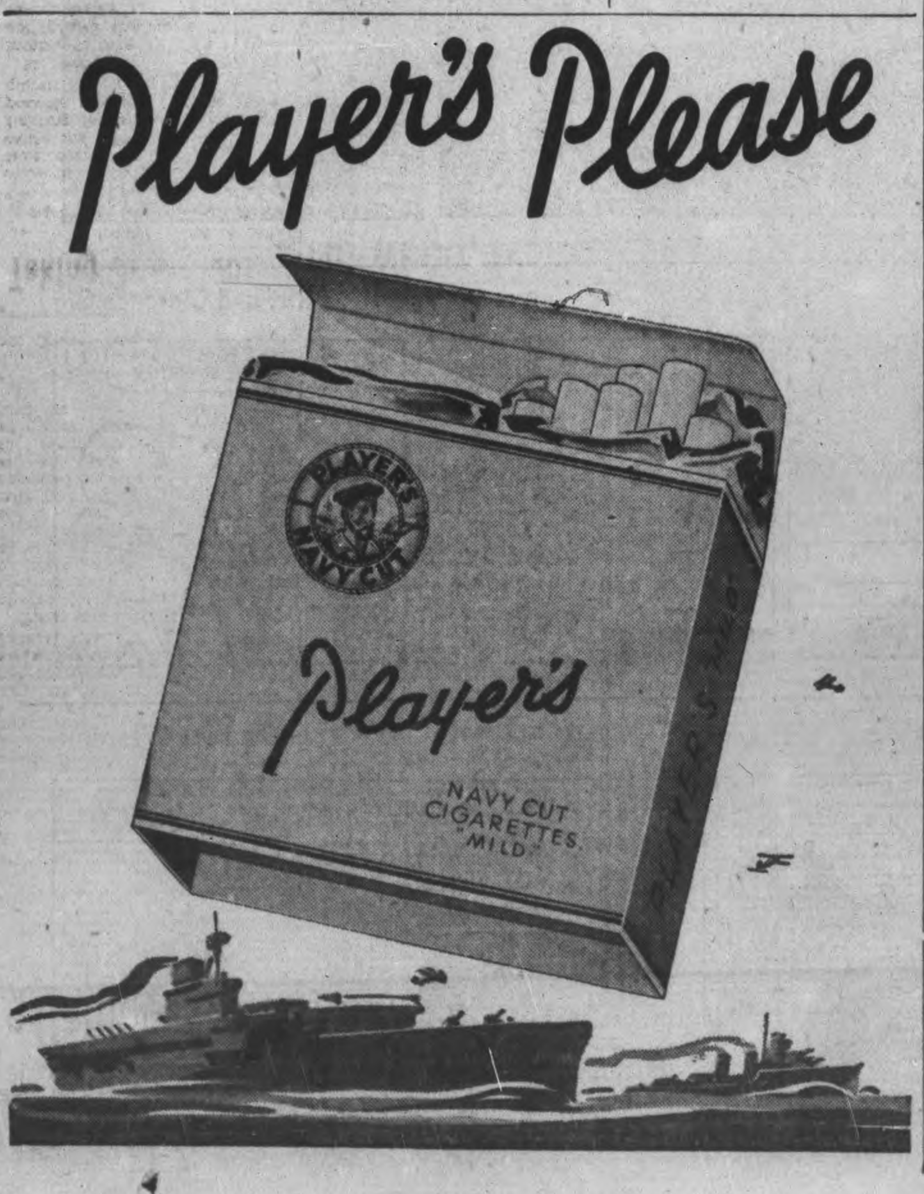
Tourists Down 90 P.C.

WINNIPEG, June 18. — (CP) — Manitoba Travel and Publicity Bureau announced today that United States automobiles entering the province so far in June equal about one-tenth the number a year ago. Last year daily clearings ranged about 70 to 80; now they are reduced to six or seven cars a day.



Chandos School Gathers Pile Of Tires

Children of School Section No. 6, Chandos, surprised Leo W. Copp, Public School Inspector, on his visit Tuesday by presenting him with a collection of twenty-two old tires which they had brought to the school and piled up on the lawn generally for the good of the cause.

Realizing that the pupils of that outpost school had gone to considerable work on their part to get the tires to the school grounds, Mr. Copp probably felt that it was up to him to afford the children the satisfaction of seeing the old rubber on its way to a reclaiming destination. So, he and the youngsters loaded the twenty-two tires into his car, and he assured them that ths contribution would be promptly delivered.

That is only part of the story. Councillor John Reynolds of Chandos, volunteered for a rubber salvaging campaign of his own, and all that is needed is somebody to do the rest, arrange to make a round-up call one of these days and gather up the children's collection.

Mr. Reynolds said it might be surprising to find that although homes are scattered in Chandos, they could probably comb up quite a pile of tires that should be used in the present emergency of transportation It may turn out that the enterprise of the pupils of S.S. No. 6 may stimulate other schools throughout the county, and, as a children's effort, to gather up every old tire that can be found. Possibly they have started something, and with just a little encouragement here and there the young folks even before vacation time could do a fine job that needs doing.

One little school collected twenty-two tires without much difficulty, and here are many rural schools in the county. There are also county and township trucks, or probably are, that could be requisitioned for a day or two if some of the elders, in the villages, if the farmers are too busy right now with gathering the hay crop, would pitch in and finish the effort that one Chandos school has pointed with a voluntary collection that delighted Mr. Copp as an evidence of the desire of children to have a hand in something that is well worth while doing.

No Rubber Future

SALT LAKE CITY, June 18—(AP). — Brazil has no future as a rubber-producing centre, present war needs and future development notwithstanding, in the opinion of Dr. A. A. Bitancourt, director of the Biological Institute of Sao Paulo, Brazil. Dr. Bitancourt delegate to the Pacific Division meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, said in an interview that development of synthetic rubber in the United States will outstrip anything Brazil could hope to do in the way of natural rubber production.

Was Nervous, Rundown and Full of Aches and Pains After a Serious Illness. Appetite Was Poor, Stomach Upset and She Couldn't Sleep.

MISS OLIVE SPRING

All around us are grateful men and women who have used Syntona and found it to be just what they needed to put new energy in their rundown systems and to relieve common ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Syntona produces these results by cleansing the system of irritating waste matter and by aiding in the proper assimilation of food to build strong, healthy nerves and sound bodies. Here, for example, is the interesting experience of Mrs Olive Spring, 14 Keith street, Hamilton, as verified only recently:

"Last summer I had a serious illness, and it left me very nervous and rundown. I suffered with dizzy, bilious spells, backache, headaches, and there were pains all through my arms and shoulders. Sometimes these pains were so bad I couldn't even sit up or do light work like knitting. At night, gas crowded into my chest so badly I couldn't seem to regain my strength, and I just dreaded the thought of all the work that had to be done.

"It was then that Syntona was recommended to me, and I must say I began to feel better before I had finished the first bottle. It relieved me of that stomach gas, dizzy spells and headaches, so my nerves were better and I could sleep. Then, as I continued with the medicine, the pains gradually went away and my energy returned. For several months now, I have been able to do all the work for my family and I feel more happy and healthy in every way."

Let this grand herbal tonic help you as it has hundreds of other local men and women. Syntona is pleasant to take and contains no harmful drugs or depressors.

Berlin Reports Differ
Claim Sevastopol
Down To Last Lines

By Henry C. Cassidy,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

MOSCOW, June 19. —(AP) — Waning of Germany's offensive power was implied by Maj.-Gen. Nikolaj Zhuravlev, military observer of the Moscow news, today and the Soviet information bureau said Nazi shock troops again had lost heavily during the fierce but futile attacks upon Sevastopol.

Coincident with the opening of the third week of the Axis drive against Sevastopol, Crimean naval base besieged since last November 7, it was announced that drenching thunderstorms had slowed fighting in an associated operation on the Kharkov front, 400 miles to the north.

A communique said Russian units in a Kharkov front area had killed more than 1,000 Germans and destroyed nine tanks in repulsing attacks over a three-day period. The dates were not announced.

(Russian officials ignored a claim by the German High Command that its forces had stormed Sevastopol's northern fortifications and were within two miles of the harbor entrance).

"The heroic defenders of Sevastopol courageously and staunchly beat off numerous German attacks," the information bureau reported of yesterday's engagements.

Canada's Sugar Cut To Aid U.S.

OTTAWA, June 19—(CP)—Information gathered from official sources indicated today that Canaada used about 500.000 tons of sugar itely on a sugar supply which represents approximately one-naif normal peace-time consumption

From July 1 sugar will be rationed by coupon to one-half pound per person per week. It now is rationed at the same amount on an "honor" basis.

Until peacetime conditions Canada use dabout 500,000 tons of sugar annually for household and industrial purposes. Rational allowances now in effect cut this to 260,000 tons.

Destroyer Takes 6 Bombers Down With Her As Dozen Sink 3 Of Spanish Fishing Fleet

LONDON, June 19. —(CP) — A wild sea and air melee 100 miles off the French Atlantic coast on Wednesday which resulted in the destruction of four Spanish fishing trawlers, the 1,120-ton British destroyer Wild Swan and half of an attacking force of 12 German dive bombers was disclosed to-day by the British Admiralty.

Chronologically, this was what happened, the Admiralty communique said:—

1. Dozen Junkers-88's roared in on the 23-year-old destroyer on Wednesday evening and "also turned their attention to a Spanish trawler fleet which was fishing in the vicinity."

2. Three of the little Spanish vessels were sunk and a fourth was damaged.

3. The Wild Swan shot down four of the 12 Junkers, and two others, which probably were winged by the destroyer's guns, collided and crashed into the sea.

4. The Wild Swan herself damaged, collided accidently with the damaged Spanish trawler, sending the fishing boat under.

5. The Wild Swan subsequently sank.

Eleven members of the trawler crew and the bulk of the Wild Swan's complement were saved.

Fraser On Committee of 15 To Probe Awarding Honors And Decorations

OTTAWA, June 19—(CP).—State Secretary McLarty gave notice on the House of Commons order paper today of a resolution for setting up of a Commons committee to consider the question of the awarding to Canadians of "honors and decorations which do not involve titles."

On May 14, 1919, the House of Commons adopted the report of a special committee which recommended against the granting of titles, honors and decorations.

Mr. McLarty's notice said opinion had been expressed that the applications of the principles in this report during the present war has led to "discrimination between the members of the Canadian armed forces, and other of His Majesty's armed forces, between different ranks in the Canadian armed forces; and between Canadians actively participating in the present war, and others of His Majesty's subjects."

Clear the Air.

It was learned the main purpose of the proposal is to clarify the position with respect to honors for members of the armed forces and remove certain anomalies.

For instance, non-commissioned officers and men in the Canadian Army may now receive the British Empire Medal but there is no corresponding decoration for commissioned officers. Members of the Royal Canadian Air Force may receive the Air Force Cross and the Air Force Medal for gallant action not in the face of the enemy, such as saving life in case of accidents, but there is no award for meritorious service available to Air Force officers.

Mr. McLarty's proposed resolution suggests that the committee consist of the following members: Ernest Bertrand (Lib. Montreal-Laurier), Hon. H. A. Bruce (Con. Toronto-Parkdale), G. K. Fraser (Con. Peterborough West), Dr. F. W. Gershaw (Lib. Medicine Hat), Roy T. Graham (Lib. Swift Current), B. M. Hill (Lib. Charlotte), J. J.

New Jap Planes Hit Pt. Moresby

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, June 19—(AP)—Attacking for a third time in the past three days, Japanese heavy bombers—this time 18 strong with a formidable fighter escort—struck today at Port Moresby's harbor installations. It was the 62nd raid on the Allied base in New Guinea.

The Allied fighters based there were reported to have been outnumbered by the enemy but the defenders delivered strong opposition. One Allied pilot attacked three Zero fighters, broke up one with his cannonfire and saw another go diving with smoke pouring from the motor.

During the brief combat two enemy planes were hit by cannon and machine-gun fire.

Allied fighters pursued the Japanese more than 100 miles after the raid. Seven Zeros waiting for the return of the attack formation joined the Japanese after the attack on their way home.

An Air Force spokesman said the Japanese are using two new type planes—a lightened Zero fighter and a cannon-bearing medium bomber He described their aiming as poor

Ritchie Units Slash Right Flank

Tobruk Defenders
In Strong Stands
No Immediate Danger

CAIRO, Egypt., June 19 (AP)—Lashing back after withdrawing to strong new positions along the Egyptian frontier, Britain's desert fighters were harrassing the right flank of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis armies today in an effort to reduce pressure on Tobruk.

That stronghold apparently was virtually cut off from overland communications by the British withdrawal and the Germans were reported moving up great 210 millimetre (8.26 inch) guns—the largest mobile weapons ever used in the desert—to bring it under siege.

In an attempt to impede these operations, a British communique disclosed, swift mechanized units of Lt. Gen. Neil Ritchie's 8th Army swept out from the new border line and knifed in behind Rommel's forces in a swift surprise attack from the south.

The communique indicated that the Tobruk defenders were holding strong positions and the post appeared in no immediate danger.

Re-establishment of the forces followed withdrawals, announced yesterday, from the desert towns of El Adem and Sidi Rezegh, south and southeast of Tobruk, the Mediterranean port which British forces have held almost 17 months through offensive and counter-offensive.

"Our mobile forces, operating from the south, are confining enemy columns to the coastal belt," a communique said.

"Our troops in the Tobruk area yesterday destroyed three enemy tanks and damaged four others," the communique said, indicating that Field Marshall Erwin Rommel's Axis spearheads already were striking in force at the port's outer lines.

The thunder of heavy gunfire already rumbled ominously along the Perimeter of Tobruk's outer fortifications as its defenders made ready for an attempt to duplicate the famous stand they made last year, when the yheld out for eight months against encircling German-Italian forces.

At intervals the big guns of the port itself added their sullen voiced to the mounting tumult, sending shells screaming across the high escarpement at hidden Axis armored columns manoeuvring over the sand

10 Years For 2 Reds In Bombing Von Papen Stirs Moscow—May Split Friendly Relations

MOSCOW, June 19. —(AP) — The Russian press denounced today as "shocking" the sentencing to 10 years prison of two Soviet citizens charged with complicity in a miscarried bomb plot against the German ambassador to Turkey,, Franz Von Papen.

A Tass dispatch displayed prominently in official newspapers said that Pavlov and Kornilov had been convicted "without proof."

A forerunner of further Soviet reaction was given in a dispatch saying that " a number of Turkish journalists and public figures among those interested in friendly Soviet-Turkish relations expressed to the Tass correspondent their apprehension over the unjust and baseless sentence."

"The Ankara trial will cause serious discontent in Soviet public opinion," Tass added.

Tension was so high at one time during the trial that the Turkish Aktay, returned to his capital. He resumed his post, however, late in May after having remained in Turkey for six weeks on Russian assurance regarding the trial.

Board To Buy In All Export Beef To Relieve Situation In Canada

OTTAWA, June 19—(CP).—The Wartime Prices and Trade Board is prepared to purchase all cattle which would normally be exported to relieve the present beef shortage in Canada, Donald Gordon, Wartime Prices and Trade Board chairman, said in a statement today.

Despite this action the supply could not be expected to catch up to the demand before mid-July, Mr. Gordon said he gave full assurance that there was no danger of any food shortage in Canad and a wide variety of foods remain available to give Canadians a well balanced diet.

An order now is being prepared to define maximum prices of individual cuts sold to retail butchers, he announced.

The Board's action in purchasing what would normally be export beef would be taken through the recently formed Wartime Food Corporation Ltd., Mr. Gordon said in his 1,000 word statement.

"Detailed plans for the operation of this corporation are practically completed and it will undoubtedly be operating in the market by July 1 when the next quarterly export quota for shipments to the United States becomes available."

"While the temporary short supply of beef cannot be corrected immediately the board is taken action to deal effectively with beef price problems," he said. "Shortages of supply and the eagerness of retailers themselves to obtain meat for sale make it difficult for the board to assure that normal spreads between different qualities of beef are maintained."

Retailers were asserting that despite the recent order defining maximum wholesale prices by zones there was a tendency for all qualities of beef in each price class to be sold at or near the maximum.

In addition to preparing an order defining the maximum price for individual cuts sold to local butchers efforts are being made to define grades and qualities and to establish price differentials between them, Mr.

Serious Situation In Desert Seen Likely To Postpone European Assault Till 1943

Rerouting Of American Tanks To Gen. Ritchie Predicted To Forestall Hitler Stab At Iran; 3 Ace Military Experts Accompany Churchill

By ROBERT BUNNELLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONON, June 19—(AP).—One of the main purposes of Prime Minister Churchill's current visit to the United States is believed in some quarters to enlistment of additional United States help in holding the Middle East against expected German thrusts from Libya toward Egypt and from the Russian Ukraine into the Caucasus.

The extreme gravity of the Libyan - Egyptian situation was viewed today by competent sources as likely to postpone until 1943 any really big United Nations land offensive in Western Europe, although commando raids may be increased.

The hit-and-run raids would meet the clamor for a second European front now—something which the man-in-the-street hopes will result from Mr. Churchill's newest United States visit.

Military planners know that Egypt must be held if the Allies are to bar Hitler from the Middle Eastern Oil fields and they know is the main bastion against Nazi union with the Japanese somewhere east of Suez for a sharing of the riches of the Indies and cutting of Allied supply lines to Southern Russia.

The presence of United States army bombers and other war equipment in this theatre proves President Roosevelt's regard for the importance of Egypt and the Suez Canal, just as the successes of the Axis Libyan commander, Field Marshal Rommel, prove that the present forces in the Middle East still are not enough for safety.

Open Threat To Iraq.

From a purely military standpoint Rommel's success means:

1. British headquarters may have to divert some troops and thus leave the country adjacent to Iraq open to Nazi air-borne invasion—just at a time when there are increasing reports of German glider exercises in the region of Crete.

2. The Germas probably will start heavy bombing raids on Alexandria, naval base in the Eastern Mediterranean.

3. If the Axis can draw away British air and naval strength the Axis might try to invade Malta to save the Italian-German supply route from Italy to Africa.

4 Rommel can be expected to open a big land offensive toward Egypt, Alexandria and Suez when and if he can remove the Tobruk thorn from the Axis Libyan flank.

To forestall all these and to secure the Southern supply route to Russia, informed sources said that Mr. Churchill would like to have more American tanks, planes and ships in the Mediterranean even if it means—as it probably does mean; because distribution of Allied personnel and material is limited by shipping space— a delay in invasion of Europe.

The first reacton to news of Mr. Churchill's arrival had been that definite plans for the opening of a second front in Europe in 1942 were in the making.

Bombers Shock Bucharest

Witness Says Yanks Missed Main Ploesti Oil

ISTANBUL, Jnue 18 — (Delayed) —(AP).—A Bucharest resident who saw United States bombers over the Rumanian capital said to-day it was reported in Bucharest that they had raided Constanta, Rumania's chief Black Sea port, as well as the oil centre of Ploesti.

The raids were made last week. Four of the planes later landed in Turkey. The witness, who left Bucharest a few days ago said the planes arrived over Bucharest shortly after an alert was sounded at 4:30 a.m. on Friday. He said he did not know their number, but believed there were only a few.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire greeted them, and pursuit planes took to the air. No bombs fell in Bucharest, but it was reported both Constanta and Ploesti had been hit, he said. Information in Bucharest, he said, was that bombs dropped at Ploesti, an important refinery town north of Bucharest, did little damage except to a siphon plant and that the refineries escaped damage.

Rumanians were astounded by the appearance of American planes over Bucharest, he added and many ran for shelter. Excitement was especially high among Germans living at the Athene Palace Hotel.

China, Syria Churchill, F.D.R. Problem

Experts See Rommel's Drive Essential If Hitler To Push South For Iran's Oil

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Prime Minister Churchill's arrival for another conference with President Roosevelt is an inspiring indication of Allied alertness and co-ordination of effort at this crucial moment when decisive military actions are on the fire.

It's natural that speculation over the opening of a second front should mushroom up overnight, in view of the pressure from Moscow and the recent Allied agreement no "the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942." Without doubt this burning question will figure in the Roosevelt-Churchill talks, but that can't be the sole subject for consideration, since there are numerous other vital problems which warrant this unexpected but not very surprising meeting.

For instance China's position is probably more serious than it has been since the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese conflict, and Chungking is urging immediate Allied aid.

The threat of a Jap attack on Russia is ever present, its materialization likely depending on a successful development of Hitler's offensive in Eastern Europe, for the wily Nipponese will hesitate to attack a winning Soviet. High Chinese sources today said they thought the Japanese figured on striking Siberia in July.

The foremost questions, however, revolve about that great summer offensive which Hitler is trying to bring into being, for outcome of the war most likely hinges on that. Into this picture, of course, fits the matter of that second front whether it is desirable or feasible at this time.

Hitler's preliminary efforts to get his big drive into full swing have not been successful in the face of a really magnificent Russian resistance and counter-attack. However, nobody is naive enough to believe the Nazi chief has shown his full power, or anything like it. He still holds in reserve a vast army of fresh troops and mountainous material, including great air strength. All that is going to be brought into action soon, and then hell will begin to pop.

If Hitler should find himself stymied on the Russian front he probably will try to fight his way through Turkey into the Middle East, or by-pass Turkey and attack through Syria. I was chatting yesterday with Maj.-Gen. H. S. Sewell, the British military expert, and he believes Hitler may be getting set to undertake a Turkish-Syrian operation.

Should such an offensive materialize it would immediately challenge all the British and American resources in the Middle East—and they are considerable. The United

Madeline Webb Gets Life

Lover And Aide Go To Chair For Refugee Murder

NEW YORK, June 19. —(AP) — Madeline Webb, 28-year-old Stillwater, Okla., model to-day was sentenced to life imprisonment for her part in the murder of Mrs. Susan Flora Reich, wealthy Polish refugee.

She displayed no emotion as the judge imposed the sentence for the Hotel Sutton murder last March 4. Her poise was in striking contrast to her emotional outbursts during her recent trial.

She walked from the court room haughtily.

Her lover, Eli Shonbrun, and John D. Cullen convicted with her, were sentenced by Judge Jonah J. Goldstein to die in the electric chair during the week of July 17.

Miss Webb had been convicted of first degree murder with a recommendation of mercy, but no such recommendation was made for Cullen and Shonbrun, making imposition of the death penalty mandatory.

The judge allowed three minutes to elapse between the sentencing of Miss Webb and the entrance of Shonbrun and Cullen.

Neither lover saw the other immediately before or directly after the sentences were handed down.

CHURCHILL AND ROOSEVELT MEET TO DISCUSS A SECOND FRONT

British Premier's Crossing Electrifies Continent World Eyes On Washington

Churchill Brings His Chief Of Staff Brooke And Two Other Military Experts, Shipping Likely To Be Among Major Topics

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 19—(AP).—Winston Churchill, Britain's Wartime Prime Minister, and President Roosevelt put their heads together at a secret rendezvous today over win-the-war strategy, and an abundance of factors added to a conviction of either side of the Atlantic they were weighing plans for opening a second front in Europe.

It was Early who announced last night that Mr. Churchill had come to the United States a second time within seven months, bringing with him some of his top-flight military advisers, for conferences on "the war, the conduct of the war, and the winning of the war."

The spectacular trip of Mr. Churchill and his party to the United States converted it for the time being into headquarters for a major segment of the military high command of the United Nations. The entire world looked toward Washington, as a result, for portentous decisions which might start the war off on a new and fateful tangent.

No Word For Few Days.

But the President's usual Friday press conference was cancelled, and Early said no statements are expected either from the Prime Minister or Mr. Roosevelt during the rest of the week.

There was not the slightest tendency here to minimize the significance of the Churchill-Roosevelt deliberations, coming as they did so soon after Russia's Foreign Commissar, V. M. Molotov, had made secret visits to London and Washington.

As soon as Molotov was safely back in Moscow, announcements were forthcoming of an Anglo-Russian 20-year mutual assistance pact and of an understanding among Great Britain, Russia and the United States on "the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942."

Molotov's trip was widely regarded as an interral part of recently-developing Allied strategy designed to keep the common enemy worrying over signposts pointing in the general direction of another fighting front.

Among the signposts were these: A second front could be counted on to siphon off some of the Nazi strength now concentrated on offensives which have set British forces back in Libya and hammered with terrific force at the lough Russian armies in the Crimea and on the Kharkov sector.

Britain in recent weeks has stepped up air raids on continental objectives to a tremendous degree and promised to send 1,000 planes a night over Nazi-held war production centres of Western Europe.

The United States sent he ranking generals to Britain in recent weeks for war councils with their British counterparts, and Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States Army, declared that "the time for action is near."

Thousands of Yanks Ready.

The United States army in Northern Ireland has been reinforced repeatedly by some of the largest troop convoys ever sent overseas.

War Secretary Henry Stimson said yesterday that at least temporarily the threat of a Japanese attack on the west coast of North America is "much less" as a result of the punishment inflicted on the Japanese fleet, primarily in the engagements off Midway Island. With such a threat diminished, the United States would be in better position to join in a second front operation.

Mr. Churchill brought along Sir Alan Francis Brooke, chief of the Imperial general staff who believes in military innovations and who is regarded by many persons as Britain's outstanding authority on mechanization. While inspecting American troops in Northern Ireland last month he told them their opportunity to fight "will come soon."

Another in the party is Major-Gen. Sir Hastings L. Ismay, Deputy Military Secretary to the War Cabinet and Chief of Staff to Mr. Churchill in the Prime Minister's capacity as Defence Minister.

A third military expert in the mission is Brig.-Gen. G. M. Stewart, Director of Plans for the War Office.

Conjectures about a second front immediately suggested the shipping situation would figure prominently in the conversations. Linked with that problem was the question of overall naval strategy and the distribution of the combat units of the Fleet between overseas convoy duty and protection of shipping along the coasts.

Shipping Brighter in West.

Shipping drew some of the attention of the Pacific War Council when it met at the White House on Wednesday and Walter Nash, New Zealand Minister to the United States, said afterward the situation is improving and some "real good news" might develop.

Several Senators advised caution in approach to the problem of a second front although comment on Mr. Churchill's visit generally assumed a tone of approval.

Senator Charles McNary (Rep.-Ore.) remarked that a second front might hasten a decision on the war "but we must be certain we are capable of doing the job without too great a sacrifice of men and equipment."

Senator Joseph Ball (Rep.-Minn.) said he hoped a second front could be established soon, if and when military factors justify it, but he contended "it would be a fatal mistake to permit military strategy to be dictated by public pressure."

As fas as the men's scheduled games of Thursday night are concerned there seems to be nothing outstanding to report. All games were played and most of the winning rinks were well up at the finish.

Roy Hutchinson's rink still leads the group with five straight wins,—J. Sedgewick, C. Giroux, T. Ryan, F. Dearborn are all bang up seconds.

We notice, looking over the reports, that F. E. Kerr, the principal of the little old school house on the hill over in East City, helped himself to his first win. L. Loftus, pinch-hitter for our president, had a close call from Percy Moore. C. Giroux's hired help, and we use the word hired because we know, seem to be going along nicely—and then we must not skip this one—believe it or not, Yours Truly actually came through with a win last night, from now on watch us go. These were a couple of post-dated games played but we were so busy that we could not get details.

In the ladies' section their schedule is now thrown wide open. It's a free for all now, and anything may and no doubt will happen.

With the defeat of Mrs. T. Doughty and Mrs. J. Kingsbury, the two rinks that were leading, it moves everybody right back in the competition. And now that Mrs. J. Baird's rink has finally got going we will watch the results very closely.

Mrs. J. Coursey lost a real game to Miss L. Allen. It had to go into overtime though.

Mrs. F. Staunton and Mrs. H. Graham must have had a good game also. The score read 9-8.

Notices are out, this morning, for the annual Globe doubles competition—ladies and gents, more later.

The men's tournament tonight will be at 7.30 o'clock. Phone your name in early.

man high command claimed today that German infantry attacking Sevastopol from the north had pierced "the last defence lines of the enemy and reached Sewernaja Bight, opposite the town of Sevastopol."

"The entire northern part of the fortress with the exception of one coastal fort in the south-western sector has thus fallen into German hands after 12 days of heavy fighting," the high command's communique said.

"Capture of this last fort is imminent.

"Desperate counter-attacks of the Russians collapsed.

"In the southern sector of the fortifications front the Rumanian troops succeeded in driving the enemy out of important positions after violent combats."

The war bulletin said that from June 7 to 17 the number of prisoners taken in the assault on the big Crimean naval base increased to 7,585. Capture of 20 tanks, 68 guns, and an anti-tank battery was reported.

The Germans claimed the capture of 1,288 Russian pillboxes in heavy hand-to-hand fighting and said 46,236 mines had been removed from the path of Sevastopol.

On the front west of Moscow the high command reported for the third successive day that Russian units behind the German lines were being mopped up.

"On the Arctic Coast," it added, "harbor installations of Murmansk and Jokonga were attacked with bombs of heavy calibre and one merchantman of 6,000 tons was sunk. Another large freighter was damaged."

there is no immediate likelihood of supplies being increased to a point where the ration can be raised.

Canadian sugar beets supply just less than 20 per cent of the country's sugar requirements under normal conditions and the remainder of the supply come from the British West Indies. The United States is in a less fortunate position and it is partially to aid the United States through a pooling of resources that Canadian sugar production has been so sharply cut.

From Cuba, Philippines.

The United States obtains most of her sugar from Cuba and the Philippines With the Philippines supply cut off by war in the Pacific intensive effort is being made to increase the normal requirements of the country.

Canada is making an effort to step up her domestic sugar production but indications are that no large increase can be anticipated Sugar beet acreage in Canada last year was 60,700 acres, considerably below the 82,200 acres of 1940.

Ontario leads the provinces with about half the total acreage. but Premier Hepburn said this week that with bad weather conditions and labor shortage it was expected to obtain only 32 per cent of an original estimate of 56.000 tons.

In Manitoba and Alberta, the other two major sugar-beet producing provinces, more than 3,000 Japanese have been moved from British Columbia to combat the labor shortage.

Canada's peacetime sugar consumption is divided roughly: Household 350,000 tons and industrial 150,000 tons. Industrial users now are cut to 70 per cent. of their normal consumption which means they will have to get along on about 105,000 tons.

This meeting is a special session called by the chairman of the Public School Board at the request of the Citizens' Committee.

It is the intention of the Citizens' Committee to request the Town Council to hold a special meeting, and hear a formal request from the Citizens' Committee, that the Council ask for the resignation of the three members of the High School Board appointed by the Council.

The petition asking ratepayers and citizens to sign their names, urging the removal of the school board members is still being circulated, and up to Thurday night 1312 names had been set down on the petition forms. This petition is directed to the Counties Council, the Town Council and the Public School Board, urging them in the face of recent developments, to have their respective appointees resign office. The entire clamor for removal of the Board is based on the belief of the citizens that an injustice has been done, in asking F. L. Brackenbury, High School pr[illegible]l, at Port Hope to resign.

Colored Gas In Tank Brings $20 Fine

In the first case of its kind tried here, Russell Young, 19, of Anstruther township, was convicted in police court this morning of a charge under the war time regulations in regard to gasoline, that he used gasoline, other than grade gasoline obtained under a proper coupon, in a motor vehicle.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., fined the accused $20 and $1.75 costs or a month in jail.

A second charge against Young of stealing a quantity of gasoline from the Johnston Construction Company was dismissed when Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., announced that he did not propose to call any evidence.

Young was defended by W. C. Grant and Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., prosecuted.

Provincial Constable Price Morris was the only Crown witness. He testified that under the regulations graded gasoline for use in ordinary motor vehicles was colored red and brown and that gasoline used in other machines was colored purple. He produced samples of the various kinds and they were entered as exhibits, giving the bench the appearance of a drugstore window.

Constable Morris swore that in making an investigation he had found a certain car at Apsley and that its tank contained purple gas, a sample of which he produced.

Brother Involved

The next day, witness said, he had interviewed Young and the accused had first said that the car in question was his. Later he had said that the car belonged to his brother and that he (Russell Young) had borrowed it on the night before and driven it from his home, nine miles north of Apsley to the latter village where he parked it near his boarding house.

Young's explanation of the purple gas, the officer said, was that it must have been put into his car by someone else.

Mr. Grant called Percy Edwards, service station operator, as a defence witness. Edwards identified a bottle of blue liquid as containing gasoline that he said he had purchased this morning from a south end service station. He also identified the contents of another bottle, purple in color, as a sample of a product that was sold to mix with gasoline to loosen up valves.

Cross-examined by Mr. McElderry, witness said the blue gas had been obtained from a pump at the service station.

"I suggest to you", said the Crown Attorney "that that is some old gasoline that was on hand before these regulations were out into force".

Edwards said he did not know when the gasoline had been put into the pump.

Mr. Grant did not put his client into the witness box and the defence closed with Edwards' evidence.

In his argument defence counsel said that the Crown had failed to show that Young, who had borrowed his brother's car, had any knowledge of the kind of gasoline that was in the tank.

Magistrate Langley registered a conviction but in imposing the penalty said that in this particular instance it was not a case for a heavy fine, because there was some doubt as to whether or not the brother or someone else was responsible for the purple gasoline being in the car. He pointed out that the maximum penalty was a $500 fine and warned that in any case where it was shown that the accused had guilty knowledge of using the wrong kind of gasoline the penalty would be stiff.

Churchill Trip Bluff To Tokyo

TOKYO, (From Japanese broadcasts), June 19—(AP)—Domei issued the following statement today:

"Well-informed quarters described Prime Minister Churchill's surprise arrival in Washington yesterday to confer with President Roosevelt and other high American authorities as a mere political gesture for publicity purposes.

"They asserted that Churchill's visit coming so close on the heels of the recent call of Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov at the American capital is a confession of imminent crisis in the Allied camp.

"Formation of a second front is next to impossible.

"In this connection, well-informed quarters pointed out that transportation of Soviet aid . . . has been literally suspended by the recent bombing of Murmansk by the Luftwaffe."

Yanks Cut Down Ten Japs To One

PEARL HARBOR, June 19—(AP) —American air power exacted a toll of 10 Japanese men and planes for every one lost by the United States in the Coral Sea and Midway Island battles and rapidly is being bulwarked for further blows.

Admiral Chester Nimitz made the cheering disclosures yesterday aboard a fighting ship in an address to the Pacific Fleet during which he urged veterans of the two sea-air fights "to hold the line until our reinforcements are ready to take over."

Announcing that losses to United States carrier air groups have been heavy since the war opened due to initial Japanese air superiority, the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet strongly hinted the picture was changing rapidly.

Whereas the personnel on aircraft carriers had to fight on with little rest or relief in the first stages of the war, Admiral Nimitz saiad: "It will soon be possible to organize additional carrier groups and to rotate them."

Admiral Nimitz pointed out that air power has played the leading role both in the Coral Sea and off Midway "and will continue to do so as the war progresses."

Warn Quebec Rights Threatened

Be Lost, Says Crerar Unless Axis Is Defeated Overseas

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 19.—(CP)—Resources Minister Crerar in the House of Commons yesterday warned French-Canadians that unless the Axis powers are defeated overseas their constitutional rights may be lost.

Continuing debate on the government bill to permit imposition of conscription for overseas service when the government decides such action is necessary, the 66-year-old minister said that if Germany and Japan were successful in Europe and Asia Canada might be forced to unite with the United States in self-preservation.

He asked French-Canadian opponents of conscription for overseas what hope they would have for maintenance of their constitutional rights if this occurred.

Ernest Bertrand (Lib. Montreal-Laurier) a French-Canadian member for a Quebec constituency, supported the government policy.

He said if the government were defeated on the conscription for overseas issue, a union government would be formed immediately with conscription as the first article of its program. He doubted if this aspect of the situation had been fully explained to the Quebec voters.

At question time Finance Minister Ilsley said he hoped to bring down his budget next Tuesday.

GEN. H. H. ARNOLD, chief of the United States Army Air Force, has commended Bell Aircraft Corporation for the part played by Bell Airacobras (P-39) in "the success achieved in repulsing the enemy during the recent fighting off the Aelutian Islands."

The Airacobras, he said, "engaged a squadron of 14 Japanese planes, destroyed four and dispersed the others. They overcame the difficulties of storm, dense clouds and low ceilings and they did not suffer a single loss."

War Finance Committee Unites War Savings And Victory Loan

The National War Finance Committee was formed last January to unite responsibilities formerly discharged by the War Savings and Victory Loan Committees. The Second Victory Loan followed immediately upon the appointment of the committee and was concluded in the month of March.

The attention of the committee is now being directed to the manner in which the purchase of War Saving Stamps and Certificates can be increased. Two problems present themselves, first, the necessity of integrating in each area the War Savings and Victory Loan activities, and second, to obtain an increase in the purchase of War Savings stamps and certificates immediately in line with a National campaign, in Canada, as well as well as the United Sttaes, and later to organize a Victory Loan in the fall.

The first step in this direction is the formation of a permanent War Finance Committee in each area, and an early announcement in regard to Peterborough County and City will be made.

COUNCIL ASKS RESIGNATION OF PORT HOPE BOARD CHAIRMAN

Two Port Hope Representatives On Counties' Council Move Motion Asking For Resignation

COBOURG, Ont., June 19 — (ENS).—Northumberland and Durham Counties Council, by a vote of 21 to 14, yesterday passed a resolution which asked for the resignation of W. J. B. Davison, chairman of Port Hope High School Board.

Mr. Davison is the counties appointee on the Port Hope High School Board. Thus was unfolded the latest move in the situation which arose some months ago when the High School Board dismissed the Principal G. L. Brackenbury, starting a wave of public disapproval which shook the said town of Port Hope as nothing as ever shaken it before. The wording of the resolution yesterday was as follows:

"Moved by Deputy-Reeve J. L. Moncrieth of Port Hope, and seconded by Reeve J. W. Box of Port Hope: That having considered a petition from the citizens of Port Hope requesting this Council to ask for the resignation of its appointee, W. J. B. Davison, and having heard both Mr. Davison and a delegation supporting the petition, this Council request the resignation of the said W. J. B. Davison, but in so doing, this Council casts no reflection upon the said W. J. B. Davison, but believes this step best for the common good."

Inquiry Suggested.

Prior to the passing of the foregoing resolution, Council considered a proposal that the Council recommend to the Department of Education to hold a board of inquiry in the matter, but after some debate it was considered that the costs of such an inquiry might boomerang back on the Council, which, in view of the costly experience of the Wooler school case it did not meet with any relish from the Conucil.

Presents Board's Case.

In accordance with the understanding from the previous day Mr. Davison appeared before the Council to present the Board's case in the matter.

"We members of the Port Hope High School Board," stated Mr. Davison, "are old members of the town. The Board is made up of heavy taxpayers, fair, strong-minded men who have reached a unanimous decision which has not been colored by spite.

"As the Board is constituted, the members are appointed for varying terms which cannot be terminated until it has expired. We are not arbitrary, but the Legislature, for good reasons, made it so. When men of the standing of this Board take this course, it is one made after some two years of consideration. If this Board is not supported by those who appoint it, now, are you not throwing constitutional authority to the discard and perhaps establishing a dangerous precedent? Probably we were wrong that we didn't give this report to the public before, but the Department of Education advised us not to, and in addition we wished to be charitable towards Mr. Brackenbury and not do anything which would prejudice his chances of getting another job," declared Mr. Davison.

"When Mr. Brackenbury told us that he intended to fight it," continued Mr. Davidson, "our understanding was that he meant that he intended to consult a properly constituted board of inquiry but we waited seven weeks and received no statement that a board of inquiry would be held. We therefore came to the conclusion that he had withdrawn his request for a board of inquiry or else we would have been advised. Now let me present you some of the facts in this matter.

"You have been told that the examination results were good and the public have said why did we dismiss Mr. Brackenbury. When Mr. Brackenbury took over his duties eight years ago the school was in bad shape but it is not in top condition yet. To what extent is Mr. Brackenbury responsible? Well the Board undertook systematic improvements and these are taking into consideration in rating a school. Both the Board and the teachers share the credit but the higher grading is due to te Board and teachers, after giving due allowance to the standing in the science subjects of which we do not hesitate to say that Mr. Brackenbury is a good teacher thereof.

"The inspector," continued Mr Davison, "has told us that better leadership could be given the teachers by the principal, for the betterment of the school. For three years we have felt that things have not been going right We have not in our minutes each thing which we felt was wrong but these series of shortcoming combined to convince us that Mr. Brackenbury was not satisfactory and that a change was due. There was an occasion when we decided that the students were being given too much home work and on taking it up with the teachers they did not appear to know what home work each other was giving which appeared to us to indicate a lack of co-ordination. Not many principals in High schools get out before five o'clock in the afternoon but Mr. Brackenbury seemed to be able to get through at 3.30. We checked him up and he corrected that Then also he gave himself too many periods of spares and we had to correct that. These are things that should not have been necessary for us to do. As far as Mr. Brackenbury's habits outside school hours, we do not care what a principal does if he does not discredit the school, and the principal of a High school is more or less in the public eyes. We admonished him once and he apologized and said he would not repeat it. We also felt that Mr Brackenbury did not take enough interest in the school sports. All these things were symptomatic, in our way of thinking, of a gradual deterioration of the efficiency of the principal, which belief was confirmed by subsequent incidents. There was instance where he was to bring some of the students home from a game in Toronto and left them stranded up there. His explanation did not satisfy us. Last Jannary he made a statement to the Mayor that he couldn't get along with the Board.

"The Board offers no apology and has indulged in no spite. We felt that a change was necessary. Our advice from the Department of Education was that our action was constitutional and to proceed with it and not let down," concluded Mr. Davison.

Deputy-Reeve H. Woodley of Clarke Township had a question when Mr. Davison sat down.

"What I can't understand is that in view of your saying at the commencement exercises at the school last fall that the High School was in the best shape in a long time, how it came to deteriorate so badly in the past few months that you had to dismiss the principal how do you explain your statement at the commencement exercises?" was asked by Deputy-Reeve Woodley.

"I would hardly tell them at such a time as the commencement exercise that the principal was no good," replied Mr. Davison.

"If this Mr. Brackenbury is poor, why the petitions from the people and the teachers resigning in protest and all that. Who is right, they or you?" asked Reeve Percy Gooding of Brighton Township.

"I understand that the Department of Education advised five of the teachers go back. As far as a petition being signed, anybody will sign one.

"I venture to say that if you wanted too, you could get a petition signed tomorrow morning to have me hanged. It is no trouble getting a petition."

Mr. Davidson's observation in regard to a "hanging petition" was greeted with applause from the citizen's deputation in the council chamber.

"Were you satisfied with the teaching staff?" asked Deputy Reeve Moncrief.

"Not particularly, but we would have kept them on. Not satisfied, No." replied Mr. Davison.

Reeve Harry Sirett of Cramahe township expressed the opinion that the council had no power to take any action in the High School matter. Deputy-Reeve W. Smith of Murray township declared that the matter rested with the people of Port Hope and the Board not the Counties Council.

"We well know what happened when our Board at Wooler started that bus business. It gave the school a black eye, the counties pupils started decreasing and the school is losing money. Leave this thing alone is my advice," said Mr. Smith.

Mr. J. P. Combes of the Department of municipal affairs was present in the council chamber, in connection with something entirely remote from the High School question. However the council was not going to pass up the golden opportunity of getting some advice from this authority and he was asked what the position of the council was.

"This counties council has its job. It administers the counties business. The Department of Education has given certain authority to the High School Board to maintain the school, give the pupils the necessary material for education. They can fire or hire teachers for reasons which they think justify such action and the Board does not have to divulge its reasons. Only the people can decide, and that is at the end of the year, as to whether a member of a board should remain for another term. However you as a council may ask the Department of Education to intervene and straighten up this matter. Evidently there are personal feelings, but the first consideration should be for the children attending that school. Are you making it harder for the children? Then, if you are, the quicker it is settled for the good of the pupils, the better it will be. If a Board of Reference finds that a teacher is all right, then he must be taken back," stated Mr. Combes.

"Are you sure the Board of Reference decision is final?" asked Mr. Davison.

"Yes," he replied.

Teacher Disagrees.

Miss M. A. Hagerman of the teachers deputation, disagreed.

"There is no truth in the Board of Reference ruling. The Legislative Committee of the Teachers' Federation has learned that the board does not have to abide by the findings of the Board of Reference," she said.

Later Mr. Combes admitted that Miss Hagerman was right.

Miss Hagerman pointed out that the interior decorations didn't enter into a school's rating to the extent Mr. Davison said.

"The little red school house can get an "A" rating and its interior fittings cannot compare with a High School, but the little rural school gets its "A" rating on the fine work done by its teachers," stated Miss Hagerman.

Deputy-Reeve Moncrief in moving the resolution asking for Mr. Davisons resignation, said that he wanted to see the right thing done, and declared that he had nothing personally against Mr. Davison.

"I want to see the right thing done. Many people are interested in getting this thing settled. Our children's welfare must be considered, and I want to do the thing which will be the best way out. If Mr. Davison will resign it might help matters," said Mr. Moncrief, who then proceeded to read the motion.

"Who is going to second?" asked Warden Dodge.

"I'll second it if it will help any," replied Reeve W. J. Box, in signing the motion.

Reeve Charles Calver of Campbellford declared that the Council always supported without question when members nominated the counties representatives on the School Boards each January, and he felt duty bound to support the Reeve and Deputy-Reeve in their present motion to ask Mr. Davison to resign.

"It wouldn't be fair for me to resign. We have contracts signed with new teachers. I don't think my resignation would help things. The rest of the Board are stronger on this thing than I am," stated Mr. Davison.

Reeve T. Reid of Clarke Township expressed the opinion that the Board's reason for dismissing Mr. Brackenbury seemed paltry. He felt that if the Council did not take action it would look as if the Council favored the Board's action.

The proposal that the counties seek a board of inquiry on the matter died an early death when the question of who would be responsible for the costs came up.

The motion of Deputy-Reeve Moncrief was then put, and passed.

School Display Attracts Fine Comment

PORT HOPE, June 19. —(ENS)— The annual display of the Dr. Powers Public school took place on Thursday night with a large crowd of interested parents and friends present.

The walls of all the classrooms had displays of art, writing, maps, posters, cut outs, while on the desks were fine scrap books, social study books and samples of writing.

Miss Long and Miss Black in grades 1 and 2 had combined their efforts in a fine display of clothing for a little girl size 6, which had been made possible by the proceeds of a toy show held by these rooms and at which $17.37 was raised. The clothing consisted of a hat, coat, shoes, rubbers, gloves, purse, skirt and blouse ,middy, underwear, hose, sleepers, towels, soap, tooth paste and bush. As well as equipping a bomb victim child these grades had raised $4.97 for their ditty bag.

Miss Black had a very realistic sand table display of Bren Gun carriers ,airplanes, army trucks, soldiers and camps.

In another corner a nicely knit afghan with a embroidered Port Hope in black letters arranged in the centre was ready to be sent to the British Bomb Victims.

A table displayed the different methods of heating a home, wood, coal, coke, oil, gas and elecrticity. Marshmallow figures and Easter eggs made another attractive display.

In Mr. Dowler's grade IV-V was an outstanding group of poems composed by the children of these classes showing remarkable talent. The social study books in this class were exceptionally neat.

Mrs. Meldrum's room with grades III and IV had a large display of salt and flour work which was most attractive as well a table displaying kniting, an afghan, boottees, and sweaters which will all be donated to British Bomb Victims. The ditty bag in this room was filled by donations of articles and money from the children.

The blackboards in the four rooms had a display of art work and floral borders as well as paper cuts on the windows.

Women's Association To Decorate Church

ROSENEATH, June 19—(ENS).—Mrs. Alfred Braithwaite was hostess to the W.A. of the United Church, when the regular meeting of the society was held in her home on Wednesday afternoon.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. A. Nill. The topic was 'Summer,' and assisting were Mrs. E. Waldie, Mrs. E. H Unstead and Mrs. L. Tucker.

The business session was in charge of Mrs. L. Tucker, vice-president. It was decided to purchase material to make aprons and material for quilt linings.

The quilt committee reported the sale of a warm quilt and prospective orders. On motion it was decided to donate $25 to the church treasury for parsonage decoration. The society is also supplying paint for the church floor.

Mrs. Frank Adams offered her home for the July meeting, and Mrs. Clark Sandercock and Mrs. Harold Hugh volunteered as a program committee.

Mrs. Earl Waldie announced a brief program, including a vocal solo, "Angels of Mercy," a dedication to Red Cross nurses written by Irving Berlin, sung by Miss Gwen Varcoe; a reading, "The Ten Best Ways to Kill an Organization," by Mrs A. Nill; an oral contest conducted by the convener, and a piano solo, "Melody in F," by Mrs. C. Thackeray.

The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Clark Sandercock, served refreshments, and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

No Price Too Dear

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—King George of Greece said last night that "the gigantic effort which the people of America are making for the preservation of freedom clearly indicates that this old word (freedom) is still full of significance because it means a way of life for the preservation of which no price is too dear to pay." He was guest at a dinner given by Mayor La Guardia.

Baptismal Font St. Andrew's To Be Dedicated

On next Sunday the S.S. anniversary will be held in St. Andrew's Church when a new baptismal font will be dedicated to the memory of the late Mrs. J. A. McKone who was for many years a leader in young people's work in the city, and devoted teacher in St. Andrew's Sunday School. A large young people's choir under the leadership of Mrs. J. F. Osborne will render sacred songs at the service. Those having infants to be baptized at this service will please apply to the minister of the church.

Dr. C. M. Scott, who has spent several years in India as a missionary will speak in St. Andrew's church on next Sunday night on the problems of India from the Christian point of view.

Health Service For Canada

The problem of a health service for this Dominion, under government direction, is one which is being discussed widely at present among physicians. There appears to be a strong feeling that something of the kind may come before the end of the war. As we understand it, such a scheme would provide a form of health insurance for people whose incomes were below a fixed sum, perhaps $1,800 or $2,400 a year. There are also those who feel that no "ceiling" should be placed which would exclude anyone from medical service of this kind.

As no governmental plan exists as yet discussion of this matter may result in some ideas which could be usefully incorporated in it. A health insurance plan has been in effect in Britain since 1911 and the system of "panel-doctors," who take care of patients assigned to them by the state, is well known. This "panel" system has many disadvantages, but it is better than nothing; a public health service for Canada might learn much from it, both in the way of what to do and what not to do.

At a recent meeting of the Canadian Medical Association in Alberta, Dr. Fahrni of Winnipeg based his presidential address on this subject. Dr. Fahrni's outlook appears to be a gloomy one. He fears that after this war we shall find ourselves saddled with a bureaucratic government, and he does not think that bureaucrats would enlist the services of competent physicians if they wanted to evolve a public health scheme. For this reason he wants to get some sort of satisfactory plan in operation as soon as possible, in the hope that the bureaucrats might leave it alone. We do not share Mr. Fahrni's fears, but we are interested in the idea of a public health service for Canada.

There are certain things which should be insisted upon in any such plan. It should not, for instance, provide patients and a salary for any doctors who would have difficulty in making a living in private practise. Nor should it load a doctor down with more patients than he can possibly treat adequately, which is the fault of the British panel system. Nor should there be about it any suggestion of charity or state aid, as this is apt to be demoralizing for the patient and even more for the doctor. Nor should it work doctors to the point where they are unable to keep abreast of progress in their art.

For medicine is an art. The difference between a competent physician and an Osler is the degree of the artist which he has in him. That is a fact which the Canadian Medical Association might do well to ponder. We do not want the health of the Dominion confided to a bureaucracy of physicians.

Remember This Tomorrow

We take this opportunity to remind you that tomorrow will be a tag-day for the Chinese War Relief Fund and to urge you to give as generously as you possibly can to this worthy cause. We do not undertake to sponsor tag-days or to discriminate between one charity and another, but there are one or two causes which we consider to be of exceptional importance, and the Chinese Fund is one of them. All monies contributed to this fund are made directly available for China relief; no organization in this country gains financially by these collections. The use of the money in China is controlled by a committee headed by Madam Chiang-Kai-Shek. Already collection for the Chinese Fund have been made on this continent, and the receipts have been, upon the average, one-third more than the usual charitable offering. We think this shows clearly that Canadians and Americans are well aware of the excellent nature of this cause and are anxious to help it.

We are informed that one dollar given to China relief will provide treatment for 1,000 burns, or it will pay for ether for 15 operations, or it will provide immunization from typhoid or Bubonic plague for 10 people. The disinfection of a wound costs one cent, so that a dollar given to this cause might save one hundred lives. The comparatively small sum of $5 will keep a Chinese refugee alive for three months, and $20 will keep one for a year.

The Chinese are our allies, and they are making a magnificent stand against a common enemy. They were in this war against aggression long before we were, and they have known bitter suffering. Let us give them every support we can, not only in munitions and supplies but also in financial aid. The tag-day tomorrow gives a chance to those on the home front.

Please Excuse Us

As everyone knows by this time, Army Week begins on Monday, June 29. As a part of Tuesday's jollification, restaurants, hotels and citizens in their homes are asked to eat army meals, in order that they may see what sort of food the Army consumes. The menu has already been made known, and we have viewed it with alarm; that sort of food may be the very thing for an Army, but it is not what we of the sedentary professions would choose. Breakfast begins with tomato juice and continues with "rolled oats and fresh milk"; we are glad to hear that Army milk is fresh. Soft boiled eggs follow, and wholewheat muffins with loganberry jam. This is washed down with coffee or cocoa.

The Army dines at mid-day on cream of carrot soup, roast pork with dressing, buttered parsnips and mashed potatoes, with apple pie and cheese to top off. Bread and butter and tea or milk are served. In the evening the cream of carrot soup is back again, with cold roast pork and a carrot salad. Blanc mange, plain muffins, doughnuts, fresh apple pie and tea or iced cocoa help to fill up the cracks.

Excuse us, please. We should like to help with Army Week, but our first duty is to keep in the editorial chair, and a day of such meals would put us in bed for a fortnight. We are perfectly satisfied that the Army is being well fed, and when these men, full of buttered parsnips and doughnuts, fall upon the foe, there can be but one outcome. But if we were to short-circuit our metabolism with blanc mange and iced cocoa our part of the war effort, humble as it is, would collapse miserably. An army marches on its stomach, but an editor sits under his, and he has to be careful of it.

Make It Easy, Please

On Tuesday next you will receive with your mail a form which you must fill out in order that your family may be sent the right sort of sugar-ration book. The form is to be filled out by the head of the house, so if there is any argument in your home about who is boss, please settle it beforehand; too many bosses may spoil your syrup. All members of the family bearing the same name are to be included in one application; guests, lodgers and servants must fill out their own forms. The forms will be collected in the evening on the following Thursday by a canvasser who will carry extra forms in case these are needed; please be at home to give him your form. The forms must be signed by someone over twenty-one years old; this may create some difficulty in homes where the head of the house is still in his minority, but we are sorry that we have no advice to offer in such cases, unless it is that time will sweeten your memories, if not your tea.

When the forms are collected they will be taken to the Collegiate, where members of the C.W.V.S. will file them and issue temporary ration books. Possibly this may be the last fling of the C.W.V.S. at public service before Mr. Thorson puts them out of business; in any case, a large group of women who have, in the Minister's opinion, "an overstimulation of the will to serve," will undertake this task and will perform it without charge.

We are asking you to help in the work of sugar rationing by filling out your form clearly and promptly, and by doing your part to see that the canvasser gets it when he calls at your house. The application of rationing, even of one commodity, to a country is a big job, and its success depends on co-operation by individual citizens.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Rain falls on the just and the unjust—particularly the just pressed suit.

If they are going to reduce the amount of elastic in garters they needn't expect them to go as far as they used to.

This year's spinach crop is reported to be only 60% of the normal amount. As far as we are concerned any spinach is too much.

Some people attacked a soldier in North Carolina and took his shoes, his clothes, his purse and his false teeth. The police think that robbers were responible but we wouldn't be surprised if it was merely a local salvage campaign.

Sunday Radio Advertising

Kingston Whig-Standard

THAT bright little paper, the Presbyterian Record, in its June issue enters the lists against advertising over the air on Sundays. The editor in his leading editorial condemns Sunday radio advertising in a wholesale way. We admire his enthusiasm but we are afraid that his arguments are neither very logical nor very consistent. It seems to us that radio advertising on the Sabbath is an easy problem for those who dislike it. They do not need to listen to it. In that way it will not interfere with the peace and calm of the Sabbath Day.

When the editor starts to discuss the elimination of Sunday radio advertising he is dealing with a big question for there are all kinds of advertising just as prominent on Sundays as on any other day. Take billboards for instance. It is almost impossible to go for a quiet walk in any direction in Kingston on a Sunday afternoon without being confronted with big billboards advertising cigarets, soft drinks and all sorts of things. If we are to eliminate radio advertising then should we not go one step further and have all billboards covered on Sundays, and the blinds drawn on all store windows? Advertising has become part of our daily life whether it is newspaper advertising, billboard advertising or radio advertising.

THE editor of The Record is not on very sound ground when he complains about Sunday advertising, because one of the greatest offenders in the matter of advertising on the Sabbath Day is the church itself. It is just as annoying to many people to have a solemn service of worship and praise interrupted with a long list of announcements about this and that as it is to have advertising over the air. The editor of The Record talks about the radio laying "violent hands upon the Sabbath to push trade," but he says nothing about turning the pastors of our churches into Town Criers for five or ten minutes every Sunday morning. It is quite true that most of the announcements have to do with church affairs, but they are no part of a service of worship. Time was when the announcements were tacked up in the lobbies of the churches, which is after all a much more quiet and dignified way of letting the people know what is planned for the coming week. It seems to us that if, as the editor of The Record advocates, we should again emulate the zeal of the Master and throw the money-changers out of the Temple, we might at the same time have to give some thought to the bazaar pushers, the garden party advocates and the others whose announcements referring to the commercial ventures of the church, which seem to be necessary if our churches are to survive, are a feature of most church services.

Furthermore, it is quite possible that the majority of the good Presbyterians of this country set aside the Presbyterian Record for quiet Sabbath Day reading. Would the editor of The Record suggest they should first cut out all the advertising pages for fear that the religious atmosphere which they are trying to create might be interfered with? Or, what are the good Christian Canadians to do in Victoria, B.C., when they come home from church on Sunday morning and find their favorite Sunday newspaper on the doorstep; for Sunday newspapers are a part of the life of the city of Victoria.

THE Lord's Day Alliance, an organization for which we have a great respect, and the Presbyterian Record, opened up a big subject when they asked the CBC to eliminate Sunday advertising over the radio. It is easier talked about than accomplished. The CBC went into the advertising business when the public protested so vigorously against raising the licence fee. The CBC wanted $3.00. Parliament made it $2.50. It costs a lot of money to operate the CBC, and if the radio owners will not put up the money it has to be found in some other way.

Furthermore, we must remember that many of the CBC network programs come from the United States. If in Canada the advertising features have to be eliminated, the programs will stop. This would, for instance, deprive hundreds of thousands of Canadians of such Sunday night favorites as Charlie McCarthy and Jack Benny.

AS The Whig-Standard has pointed out before, many of us like a quiet, restful Sabbath Day. We enjoy doing it. It gives us pleasure. On the other hand, there are many who do not want to go to church, and who prefer to sit at home and listen to the radio. They work hard all the week, and on Sunday the radio or some other form of entertainment is their method of relaxing. Why, then, should we deny them their pleasure, even if it does involve a few spot announcements of an advertising nature Let us be tolerant. Are we not fighting for freedom and democracy?

The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath, we are told by the Great Teacher. Should we then get excited if in this twentieth century some Canadians find joy and entertainment in plucking a few ears of radio corn on the Sabbath Day?

Unconsidered Trifles

In the ironmonger's shop, Tomkins noticed a shilling lying on the floor. Glancing round cautiously to see that no one was looking, he dropped his glove on top of it, stooped casually, and tried to pick them up together, but in vain.

Even at the third attempt he failed to get the shilling. Then the ironmonger appeared.

"Ah, good-morning, sir!" he beamed. "Allow me to introduce to you my special brand of glue. I believe you are already acquainted with its marvellous sticking powers."

It was early morning, very quiet and the soldier on sentry was enjoying a pipe.

He spotted the colonel in the distance and put the pipe in his pocket.

"Didn't I see you smoking?" asked the colonel when he came up. "Let me look at your pipe."

It was cold. The colonel was satisfied.

When he had gone the sentry pulled a still glowing pipe from the other pocket.

"My old dad knew a thing or two when he advised me to have two of everything," he said to himself.

"PEARLS OF GREAT PRICE"

Tough Spot In Libya

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

ALLIED and Axis accounts from the Libyan battlefront agree that Britain has suffered a serious setback.

Berlin claims say Britain's 8th Army has been slashed in two, part of it falling back into Tobruk's defenses and the rest retreating eastward toward Bardia and the Egyptian border.

Cairo advices confirm the apparent separation of the British Army into two forces, one to hold Tobruk and the other to protect a coastal road still connecting that port with Egypt. They picture the retreat from El Adem and Rezegh Junctions, south and southeast of Tobruk, as planned withdrawals to stronger defense positions.

There is no question that the British position has become more difficult. The withdrawal has apparently left the direct interior road to Solum, just beyond the border in Egypt, open for an enemy advance eastward, bypassing Tobruk. It also imposes on British mobile forces the difficult task of keeping open the eighty miles of coastal road from Tobruk to Bardia to Solum unless Tobruk is again to be abandoned to stand siege unsupported except by sea.

So far as the immediate British dispositions can be made out, the new retreat has whittled down the Libyan outpost positions for defense of Egypt to Tobruk and the slender eighty-mile finger-width span along the coast covering the coastal road. It seems too vulnerable a front to warrant hope that a land supply route for Tobruk can long be kept open.

About the only cheer in the situation seems to be the fact that Tobruk has already successfully withstood an eight-month Axis siege and has just been resupplied to some extent by the convoy which reached it from Alexandria. It appears doomed to another grim stand. So long as it does hold out and can be supplied and reinforced at night by sea, it seems improbable that an Axis thrust into Egypt can gain great momentum.

One or two other encouraging factors should be noted. The Axis commander, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, lacks one vital advantage he had when he last placed Tobruk under futile siege. His planes then dominated the air over the battle front. The air odds have been evened if not shifted to favor the British forces since then.

Rommel's forces now have been on the attack constantly for nearly four weeks. They are getting farther from their supply bases with every step eastward and their extending communication lines are increasingly vulnerable to air attack.

Yet, the situation is none too bright for Britain. London's concern is apparent, with indications that Prime Minister Churchilll may soon face another storm of criticism in Parliament.

Whitehall Notebook

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 19 (CP Cable)—Prime Minister Churchill even in the role of grandfather displays a sense of humor. British newspapers ran a picture of his grandson, son of Randolph Churchill, and the little fellow is striding sturdily along, swinging his arms and with his blond curls whipped by the breeze — definitely a Churchill.

They asked the Prime Minister if he thought the boy looked anything like him.

Replied Winston: "If you stick a cigar in the mouth, any baby would look like me."

No, there is no cigar in this picture.

Incidentally Randolph is training with parachute troops in Egypt. He gave up a staff appointment in Cairo and stepped down from major to captain.

More Fun, This Time From the Primate

The Archbishop of Canterbury was at a party and a smug dowager asked: "Do you think it right for young officers to be dancing after midnight?"

"Madam," answered the good Archbishop, "it all depends on whether the Almighty observes double summer time or goes by Greenwich."

Here and There

Those two distinguished gentlemen seen fishing in Hyde Park this week were both members of parliament. George Hicks, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of food, cast the first line at the opening of the season in the Serpentine and Sir Jocelyn Lucas, who got parliament to consent to fishing in the park, cast the second.

And to stray outside London for a word or two: One of the better landscapes is in Windsor Great Park but it is surprising the amount that has been plowed up and sown to vegetables. It is enough to make the mouth of a Canadian abroad water to see fields of yellow corn well advanced.

Back in London: It's a rare thing when meticulous Brendan Bracken, Minister of Information, makes a slip. But he's not infallible and when addressing an American forces luncheon he said the happiest day of his life was May 11, "the day America entered the war." But Mr. Bracken is a popular minister of the Crown and his listeners, including many high American officers, smiled indulgently.

Canada's former Governor General, the Earl of Bessborough, rang the bell when he made a speech accepting the presidency of the Institut Francais, succeeding the late Lord Asquith. But when he quoted the Institut's views on his appointment he did so "with blushes."

The remarks were most complimentary to himself and, forsaking his normally clear and deliberate speech, he rattled through the passage. Then, seemingly relieved, he tossed this particular note of his speech onto the chair beside him.

What's this? Solemn faces along Whitehall? Yes, but not because of the bad news from the war fronts. It's a report that the Board of Trade is going to limit the manufacture of umbrellas. Whitehall without its "gamps!" Lummy!

That will leave only attache cases and homburgs, and even they are hard to get.

Surrealist artists have had a bit of fun at the expense of the government. They did murals in a building used by the post office and were lightly satirical at the expense of a number of departments.

The general theme is cutting through red tape with scissors. The ministry of labor is represented by lilies, which, as someone pointed out, "neither toil nor spin." The ministry of food's corner is a study of pineapple, bananas, eggs, chicken and other rare foods being peptonized into tablets. The war office has old boys in mushroom hats and the admiralty an arch with fossils coming from it.

Two prominent London newspapermen are moving into the political field. They are Tom Driberg, Independent in the forthcoming Maldon by-election, and Frank Owen, prospective Independent in Whitechapel.

Driberg, better known in journalistic circles as "William Hickey," contributes a lively daily column to the Express while Owen is the outspoken editor of the Evening Standard. Called up three months ago, Owen now is a trooper in an armored corps. He is a former Liberal M.P. for Hereford.

Second guessers who spoke parish words when Prime Minister Churchill didn't appear in his own defence during the heated Commons war debate May 20 are eating them now. They weren't satisfied that "pressing urgent business" was keeping the Prime Minister from the House. They didn't know the morning of May 21, when they read reports of their criticism in the newspapers, that at that very moment Mr. Churchill and Vyacheslav Molotov, Russian Foreign Commissar, were holding their first historic meeting.

Steaks May Be Poor

RICH, high-quality beefsteaks are going to disappear from the American table by fall and the present price-ceiling regulations on meat are to blame, Guy Scudder, secretary of the National Livestock Advisory Council, believes.

Mr. Scudder says: "I tried to explain to them that cattle could not be fed on such a basis and that scarcity of good fed cattle would develop by fall, but they failed to grasp, or did not care to consider, the situation. These young economists in charge lack experience, and they are trying to apply book learning, as we may call it, to a very, very large industry, which, in a lot of cases, simply will not fit."

A Bible Message For Today

And the Lord said unto Moses, Depart, and go up hence, thou and the people which thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt, unto the land which I sware unto Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, saying, Unto thy seed will I give it....And Moses took the tabernacle, and pitched it without the camp, afar off from the camp, and called it the Tabernacle of the congregation. ....And it came to pass, as Moses entered into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended, and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and the Lord talked with Moses....

And Moses said unto the Lord, See, thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people: and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me. Yet thou hast said, I know thee by name, and thou hast also found grace in my sight. Now therefore, I pray thee, if I have found grace in thy sight, shew me now thy way, that I may find grace in thy sight: and consider that this nation is thy people.

And he said, My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest.—Ex. xxxiii, 1, 7, 9, 12-14.

I have set the Lord always before me: because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. —Ps. xvi, 8.

SUPERVISED PLAYGROUNDS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I believe the suggestion came before the Council to organize supervised playgrounds during the summer months for the children of the city. Not being in Peterborough at the time, I do not know the arguments used in arriving at the decision dismissing the idea. I should appreciate a summary of the reasons, as I would have expected an overwhelming majority carrying the motion.

Peterborough is a rapidly growing city (an obvious fact upon which I hardly need to comment); an ever-increasing number of children are to be found playing in the streets, relying upon their own resources for amusement. Busy parents are often unable to supervise sufficiently their children's activities; with a possible cutting short of holidays, they are not going to be able to take their children away for a holiday. Now Peterborough has several parks which would make excellent situations for supervised playgrounds; they would keep the children off the streets during the daylight hours and so out of possible mischief; they would relieve harrassed parents, and, in short, I firmly believe would prove a very worthy and ultimately profitable, investment for the city of Peterborough.

Japanese Seamanship

One conclusion may fairly be drawn from the naval fighting to date, and that is that however skilfully the Japanese may handle their armies on land and their dive-bombers and torpedo planes at sea, they do not show equal skill in the handling of their aircraft carriers. That has already been proved beyond doubt, and before the naval-air battle now in progress off the Aleutian Islands comes to an end, the enemy may have additional proof of the superior seamanship of the American Navy.—Montreal Star.

Experiment Is Being Made In Community Education

A new experiment in community education aimed at telling the story of Canada's war effort to people in remote areas has been undertaken jointly by the National Film Board and the Department of Public Information. This venture has extended to Peterborough County, and at the present time a motion picture operator with a projector and five films of 16 millimetre film is touring through the district, showing the films at schools and in all of the smaller communities.

Basically, the idea behind the whole scheme is to reach that section of the population who through lack of opportunity, know little of the nature and extent of Canada's mighty contribution to the war, and therefore are not aware of the many channels through which the individual may serve in adding his or her bit of effort or money to the nation's battle for survival, against totalitarian efficiency.

Canada's War Effort.

The films from start to finish depict in a clever and interesting manner, the job that is being done, and the need for every bit of assistance. Stress is laid on the immeasurable assistance that the women of Canada can give, if they will but realize the need for their active co-operation in war services, price control, and general economy. One film, a Walt Disney creation is intended for juvenile attraction, and it makes use of the lovable characters of this famous cartoonist to suggest that children purchase War Savings Stamps too.

The experience of the operator has been that the nearer the pictures are shown to thickly populated centres, the smaller the audiences are, which would indicate that these films are doing the job of attracting people in sparsely settled and more remote sections, and therefore should be effective in those particular areas. In many outlying school sections and communities there have been many people in the audience who have never heard nor seen a sound movie in their lives. In several places the people of the district have tied the showing of films in with some community social event, such as the presentation to some soldier who is about to leave for active service, or to welcome some new bride to the community, or even to conduct a Red Cross meeting or some similar war time enterprise.

Meeting at Keene.

At the Keene Town Hall last evening there were 28 adults and 15 children in the hall, but these same films had been shown during the day to the pupils at Mather's School and Keene School. So far the films have been shown in 38 schools, and will be shown in about 43 more, most of them in Peterborough County.

The films are entitled "Wartime Ottawa," "Timber Front," "Price Control," "Home Front" and "Canadian Landscapes," the latter being purely a film for its aesthetic value, having no connection with the war effort.

The films are distributed on circuits, each one of which reaches approximately 20 communities. There are afternoon showings for the children and evening ones for the adults. Community participation varies in many sections, from that of an ordinary quiet audience to one where the meeting appoints a chairman and launches into an open forum discussion on the films, particularly the one dealing with price control, and the dangers of inflation if the consumer competes with his neighbor in the purchasing of essential commodities.

On Home Front.

The "Home Front" film shows Red Cross workers at home, blood donor clinics, soldier hostels women giving first-aid, driving trucks. In brief, it shows women answering the challenge of modern warfare which is reaching out to affect the remotest communities. In the film "Wartime Ottawa" are shown some of the 17,000 civil servants working on the administration of Canada's war effort.

SPORTING BLOOD

By HARRY HARRISON KROLL

A VISITOR

CHAPTER IX

AFTER Strickland Ballard had left, Hunter sat on his cot wanting somehow to laugh, though it was much nearer a crying matter. Ballard had come with a vague hope of fastening the crime on Hunter. His real reason was to shield poor Junior. Because Hunter's motive all along had been pretty much the same thing, it might seem as if they could get together. The trouble was that Hunter Dent was not quite prepared to carry a crime of which he was innocent to save another who seemed guilty.

Whatever Ballard's call, it took him hastily away. When Anderson came for Hunter to talk over the telephone, he laughed ironically.

"If I have any more high-and-mighty guests like you, Dent, I aim to install a private phone. There you are."

"Hello," Hunter said.

"This is Tracy Hannings. I can't be with you until 10 o'clock. Will that be time enough?"

"Okay. We'll make it time enough."

"Don't talk, don't say a word, until I've gone over everything with you." He hung up.

Hunter returned to his cell. Anderson obligingly brought the morning paper. Aside from the war news, the most interesting thing to Hunter was the dope on the local mystery. The girl, Sarah Kiker, had been released. The police would be watching her every moment to discover her escort the night of the murder. The long-expected break in the ordnance plant scandal came. The elder Ghibardo had been arrested in the charge of fraud in the contracts for building the great plant, and his case would come up in Federal Court. The First National, and other local financial interests, were allegedly involved. Other financial interests meant Strickland Ballard, who had his finger in every pie that came along. Perhaps it was this involvment that had taken Ballard away so quickly.

Tracy Hannings came at the appointed time. They went over the whole matter, detail by detail.

"Waive preliminary hearing," Hannings advised. "I'll get your case before Judge Elkhart by tomorrow, and arrange to get you out on bond. Who would go your bond—got any friends?"

"The only person whose name might look worth the ink it took to write it is Strickland Ballard's."

Hannings gave a short laugh. "Well, it won't hurt you to stay in jail a few weeks anyhow."

DURING the afternoon Hunter entertained himself looking out his single window. The autumn afternoon spread over the western part of Middleton. The jail overlooked the river, and the old water-front section of town where the stick-up had been staged. It was a mean, dismal, but picturesque mixture of of dirty warehouses, old rickity buildings, poor dwellings in need of light and paint and sanitation. River rats, thieves, gamblers, riffraff of all sorts, inhabited the neighborhood. Down there were plenty who would have esteemed it the opportunity of a lifetime to kill a man and take $17,000 off him. But what on earth was the messenger from the bank doing in that section of town with the bag of money on him, at such a time of night? And even more mysterious was the manner the thugs had found out the messenger was on his way. The killers had to know beforehand a lot of things that somebody was going to be red in the face trying to answer.

"That brings up young Temple. He is the lad whose face is going to be red before all this is over!" Hunter concluded.

Hunter got a pretty good night's sleep that night, and the next morning at 9 o'clock he faced Judge Elkhart and heard his bond fixed at $10,000. Hannings took Hunter back to jail. Hunter didn't feel so good. Nor did his feelings look up as he saw the day pass. Always an active outdoor man, this enforced idleness was killing him. He slept fitfully, dreaming of Junior Ballard's dying, of the lost money; and questions about why the money was moving, and where, tormented his half dreams. After breakfast the next morning Anderson came to his door.

"Visitor," the sheriff announced. He let Bella Ballard in. "Rattle the door when you want to leave, Miss Ballard, he said when he left.

The season of rain and gloom had passed. Red was in autumn colors—browns, dark reds; and with her hair and bright color she was so pretty that it hurt Hunter. He tried to think of her against Tisdale's jealousy, against her father's expressed fear that Hunter might get into the family. He wished he could feel as sanguine. She sat on the other end of the cot.

"They think Junior has a chance now. The doctors won't allow him to speak, to see any of us. But Dr. Ferguson thinks if no complications set in he will get well."

Hunter said warmly, "Well, I'm proud to hear that, Red. I really am."

She looked around and grinned. "I like your apartment, Hunter."

"No wisecracks, please. Or I'll have Anderson lock you up with me."

"I think I would like that."

"Like grief! I'd tear these jail walls down to escape anything like that!"

"Love that would burst through jail walls and jump heavy bond awes me. If you really would like to get out of here, at least temporarily, I bet it could be arranged."

"You BET it could be arranged! No more of that. I've seen the fruits of such wickedness, and I'm fed up on the flavor."

She said with mock sadness, "You don't like the Ballard family trait very much, do you, Hunter—I mean the sporting instinct which is such a marked characteristic of ours."

"No—bluntly, I don't care for it at all."

She got up with a laugh, did a supple skip and swing, and stopped before the window. "Delicious view you have."

"Sez you," Hunter grumbled, running his hands through his hair.

SHE came and looked down at him, and tousled his hair. "So you don't like us?"

"I didn't say that. I don't like this so-called sporting blood you all have. Granting that life is pretty much of a gamble, there are still enough good laws in the universe for anybody to live by."

"Come on," she urged. "It's a good text and the sermon should be uplifting. Your idea is use your brains, work hard, be honest, early to bed and early to rise."

"You can't make me ashamed of the old-fashioned virtues. I guess we can be realistic."

"Please!" she begged. "When folks go realistic they are usually disagreeable."

"Just the same, when Junior gets out of the woods he is still likely to be in a jam. I've been trying pretty hard to shield him. But I can't do it and get my neck in the noose. You and I know Junior's involved in this nasty business. My idea is that young Temple gave the secret of the money movement away. Someone bet Junior he could not intercept the messenger, stage a fake stick-up, and get away with it. Now the messenger is dead, the money's gone, Junior's shot, I'm in jail, your daddy is about to have a nervous break-down, and — well, isn't that enough? Wouldn't you be sold on the old-fashioned platitudes if they would have prevented this, as they would?"

She was smiling when he looked up at her loweringly. She had an insolent and beautiful way of standing, her hand on her hip, just eyeing him.

"I'll lay you a wager, Hunter."

He said crossly, "Go play like you're a squirrel and run up and down a tree and bark."

"I'll wager you your freedom, terribly as you profess to hate us—"

"I never said I hated you."

"—saturated as your evil heart is with a desire for revenge, that in no time at all you will be asking me to marry you, and what's more, I might say yes, and we'd be married!"

"Red, will you please run along? Will you? I'd hate to—"

C. G. E. GIRLS WHIP BRINTONS 12 TO 2, ADD TO LEAGUE LEAD

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Everything is set for tonight's big bat and ball benefit game at Riverside Park with the Royals and Plazas tearing into each other in a league game that promises to be a thriller and the proceeds all going to the O.A.S.A. fund to provide softball equipment for Canada's soldiers, sailors and airmen. The game is called for 7 o'clock sharp and is an attraction in itself, powerful enough to attract the biggest crowd of the current season. There is hot rivalary between the two teams and there will be no quarter asked or given. In the opening game of the season Royals took Plazas into camp by a 5 to 2 score and the hockey squad have been looking for a chance ever since to get their revenge. They figure that they have caught up with Royals at last and tonight is the night. However the former Chesterfields have their own ideas, quite different from the Plaza sizeup of the situation. They claim they are going to hand the hockey gang another trimming. Fireball Bill Fraser will likely get the Royal pitching call and Tom Parsons is an almost certain starter for Plazas. A Kenwood blanket and a Brinton rug will be drawn for as a special attraction. And don't forget every cent taken in goes to supply bats and balls for the armed forces so dig down and make the total worthwhile.

The City Softball Loop, incidentally, looks like one of the best balanced in years and right now it would take a real expert with a lot of luck to try to name winners in any particular game for there has been one upset after another. Only the Juveniles have failed to break into the win column but they have played a tie game with the powerful Royals and have thrown a scare into a couple of other clubs in games that could easily have gone the other way. Right now Luckies who made their debut by taking a bad lacing at the hands of Plazas and haven't lost a game since are at the top of the heap but Royals, Plazas and Soldiers are at their heels, and the next few games may see the standing considerably altered. At present here is the setup:

	Won	Lost	Per.
Luckies	3	1	.750
Royals	2	1	.667
Plazas	3	2	.600
Soldiers	3	3	.500
Juveniles	0	4	.000

Brintons who started their league career this season by dropping a game to Porcelain and then came on to upset Westclox tried hard last night to perform a similar surprise at the expense of C.G.E. but Norma Strickland's effective pitching and the all-around strength of the league leaders was too much for the Carpetmakers and they went down to defeat 12 to 2, one bad inning in which C.G.E. scored six runs helping to make the margin decisive. At that the Brinton girls showed marked improvement over their first effort and they look like a squad that will continue to get better. C.G.E. had Bea McDowell out for the first time this season and the addition of the Millbrook girl gives Mike O'Brien three first string pitchers for his C.G.E. squad. She is a powerful hitter as well and a good utility player, able to play any position in the lineup.

Detroit Stops Yanks

Those Detroit Tigers have apparently solved the problem of stopping the New York Yanks. Yesterday they handed the American League leaders a 3 to 1 defeat and that was the third loss for the Yanks in a four-game series and the worst showing they have made all season. Wednesday Dizzy Trout shut them out with only five hits and yesterday Virgil Trucks, former Buffalo twirler allowed the New Yorkers only four safe blows. One run and nine hits in two games is certainly a new low for the world champions. Incidentally the win was Trucks' fifth as against two losses and his fourth victory in a row. Cleveland Indians took a nice beating at the hands of the Washington Senators, Wynn holding them to seven hits as Washington won 7 to 1. Kennedy was the losing pitcher. Chicago White Sox had almost as easy a win over Philadelphia, defeating the A's 7 to 2 with Ross and Haynes doing the pitching for the winners and Knott, Shirley and Besse working for the Athletics.

There is always fighting on the Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cards front and last night the Flatbush fans were entertained by a fistic battle that involved nearly all the members of both clubs and was climaxed by the exile of Joe Medwick and Frank Crespi. It is not clear in the despatches who won the fight but Brooklyn took the ball game and today their lead in the league race is five and a half games. The Bums had to come from behind to turn the trick for the Cards scored the first two runs. However Max Lanier who started for St. Louis weakened in the sixth and Brooklyn tied the score then and went on to win by scoring three runs in the eighth off John Beazley, who went to Lanier's relief. The veteran Larry French, who is having one of the best seasons of his career, went the full distance for Dodgers to hang up another clean-cut triumph and incidentally he came through with a timely single to drive in two runs in the Bums big inning.

A Milestone For Jack Adams

Jack Adams, Detroit Red Wings manager has been celebrating a birthday this week and the following tribute from Leo McDonnell appearing in the Detroit Times will be interesting to the many Peterborough friends of rotund John: "Jack Adams, who can look back on a successful, if at times somewhat stormy, career in hockey, today proclaimed that he "didn't feel a day over 48." The genial and popular manager of the Red Wings, a post which he has held for something like 14 years, turned 48 yesterday, at which time he was felicitated by friends in an informal get-together house party. Needless to say, there was stick-handling all over the house with pucks flying thick and fast, during which Adams recalled bits of his playing days, which were stretched over 11 brilliant years with Ottawa and Toronto in the East and Vancouver out on the Pacific Coast, in addition to piloting two Detroit Stanley Cup teams and numerous other pleasant events. The Red Wings' failure to win the Stanley Cup for the third time against the Maple Leafs in the late and lamented campaign was not on the agenda. "There's enough sadness in the world without bringing that up."

* * * * * *

"Born in Fort William, Ont., Adams is now a full-fledged citizen of the United States and a resident of Detroit," continues the article. "He is immensely proud of both distinctions. Next to his wife and his adopted country, Adams likes hockey best. He also likes other sports, among them baseball and football to watch and golf to play. He is a member of Oakland Hills and can shoot that tough layout in any given number—from 125 to 250. He likes people. Yes, referees, too. And he likes desserts after dinner. He doesn't know what's going to happen to hockey, but thinks there is a chance of it going through another season at least, despite the war. But, like all good Americans, he thinks winning the war is of more importance than hockey or any other sport."

Sporting Chili Con Carne: If the Detroit Tigers had only the Yanks to play they would be American League champs. The Bengals have beaten the leaders six times in ten starts this season....Incidentally all the other clubs in the loop have only walloped the Yanks ten times this season.... Angie Callura of Hamilton lost the main bout at Fall River, Mass., last night by a decision to Davie Crawford of New York....Fred Perry has announced his retirement from tennis. Well at least he has a lot of triumphs upon which to look back....Toronto Leafs absorbed quite a trimming from Syracuse Chiefs last night, going down 9 to 2, thanks to a lot of long distance hitting by the visitors....The senior series of the Ontario Rugby Football Union will operate again this season and Mick Magee says the Hamilton Wildcats will be the team to beat in Eastern Canada. The Hamilton outfit were powerful last campaign and will be much more of a threat this fall....In five games before last night's the Leafs had scored 24 runs on 33 hits and that is a real example of making blows count the most ....Beckman and Conger were the Leaf hurlers who suffered last night... Monday night it is Juveniles and Royals in the Men's Softball at Riverside.

Brintons Hits Are Kept Well Scattered

Norma Strickland, pitching her first game of the season for C.G.E. on Thursday night, had too much on the ball for Brintons, and as a result Mike O'Brien's team defeated the Carpetmakers 12 to 2 in a Girls' League game at the Bowl, and thus went further out in front in the loop race, while the losers dropped to third spot.

The C.G.E. pitcher kept Brintons' eight hits well scattered and twelve of the losers whiffed. She was given good support in the field and was never in much trouble, especially after the C.G.E. had scored six runs in the third, and it was just a case of coasting home after that.

Brintons tried hard and battled to the end, but after that one bad innings they hadn't much chance. Leila Hughes went the route for the losers, yielding fourteen hits, striking out five and allowing only two walks.

Marilyn McCarthy, playing right field in the later stages, had the feature fielding play for the winners with a running catch of a short fly. Nellie Smith played smart ball at second base for Brintons and Agnes Weir starred with a smart catch of a hard-hit liner from the bat of Phyllis Bigelow in the second. C.G.E. had two on the runways with two out at that stage and the catch saved a lot of trouble.

Elinor Craig with a triple and two singles in four times up, May Wade with three singles in four official trips to the plate, and A. DeCarlo with three for six, led the winners attack while Leila Hughes and Helen English were the only Brinton players to get two hits.

Agnes Weir scored for the Brintons in the first inning, but C.G.E. got two back in their half when A. DeCarlo and M. Wade led off with hits. Phyllis Bigelow and Elinor Craig popped to the infield, but Bea McDowell rolled to A. Weir, who threw low to first and the batter was safe, while both base-runners scored.

C.G.E. had a big inning in the third. Elinor Craig and Bea McDowell opened with singles. D. Williamson and P. McQuaide fanned, but a fielder's choice, a muff of Norma Strickland's fly to centre, and three singles in a row by A. DeCarlo, M. Wade and Phyllis Bigelow were responsible for six runs.

Brintons got their second run in the sixth. N. Smith and Leila Hughes both singled to right. Irene Stewart and D. Smith fanned, but Helen English dropped a hit into right, scoring Nellie Smith. M. Batley flied to right to end the innings.

However, C.G.E. came back with a pair. The trouble started when Marilyn McCarthy's long fly to left was dropped. Hits by I. Perdue and A. DeCarlo chased two runs in.

In the seventh Phyllis Bigelow was safe on an error and scored on Elinor Craig's slashing triple, and then an infield out scored the second counter of the inning.

Same '41 Squads To Carry On

HAMILTON, June 19. — The senior section of the Ontario Rugby Football Union will carry on in 1942. This was assured last evening when delegates from Hamilton Wildcats, Kitchener Panthers and Toronto Oakwoods, gathering in special session at the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club, drafted a schedule.

With President Frank Lennard in the chair, the question of transportation was first discussed, but the prexy, after listening to all sides, suggested that as this was a matter for each club, discussion at to-night's gathering was unnecessary, and advised that one representative from each club get busy on the schedule. This year all league games will be played in October, with Hamilton meeting Kitchener in the opening game on Saturday, Oct. 3. Following is the schedule adopted and approved:

Oct. 3—Hamilton at Kitchener.
Oct. 10—Toronto at Hamilton.
Thanksgiving Day— Hamilton at Toronto.
Oct. 17—Toronto at Kitchener.
Oct. 24—Kitchener at Hamilton.
Oct. 31— Kitchener at Toronto.

On Nov. 7 and 14 the first two teams in the regular schedule will play home-and-home games, points to count, for the championship.

Western University, London, has contacted each club, asking that they play exhibition games in London on their off Saturdays, and while little discussion occurred on this question it is more than likely that all will accept.

Secretary Harold Bailley advised the meeting that there was no basis for the reports now in circulation that the Air Force would have a senior club, adding that he had not received any additional applications for berths in the senior section.

Those present at the meeting were C. C. Lawson, S. R. Manson and A. J. Muir, representing Hamilton; Ed. Huehn, Bob Totzke and Dr. H. G. McDonnell, representing Kitchener, and Doug R. Paul, Ralph J. Adamson and Fred W. Porter from Toronto Oakwoods.

Although the Knights started off on the right foot in the initial innings by scoring five big runs in the first innings they were effectively held in check for the balance of the game by Ray Garvey's effective hurling

The big bat of C. O'Donaghue played an important part in the Cubs' win as he collected two homers and a double from the offering of L. Anthony.

F. Garvey and F. O'Toole also contributed timely hits towards tht Cubs' offensive.

California Race Tracks To See 5 Charity Events

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—(AP)—Horses will run again in California starting Aug. 1, after eight raceless months, but on a small scale compared to the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap and other rich stakes events.

The State Racing Commission has granted John W. Marchbank, operator of Tanforan track, near San Francisco, a license to conduct a 45-day meeting at the once-abandoned Pleasanton County fair track in Alameda County.

Minimum purses will be $500. No mention was made of stakes. Racing will be conducted Wednesday to Saturday through Oct. 10. There will be five charity days, for Army and Navy relief, the U.S.O., Red Cross and California Turf Foundation.

Pleasanton seats 5,000—meeting the Army's crowd limit. The track, seventeen miles from Oakland, is not on any military highway. Marchbank's attorney, Roy Bronson, said Lieutenant-General John L. Dewitt, commander of the Western Defense Command, had no objection to the meeting.

California has been without racing since Tanforan ended its fall meeting Dec. 6.

Santa Anita was primed to open its richest season at year's end, but the Army crowd limit cancelled that after 1,400 of the nation's best runners were stabled on the grounds. Then Santa Anita was converted into a reception centre for Japanese.

Feudin' Breaks As Rowdies Clip Cards 5-2

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Baseball's fiercest feud in many seasons—the two-year-old rhubarb of the rowdy Brooklyn Dodgers and the scrapping St. Louis Cardinals—has broken out again.

St. Louis came steaming into Ebbets Field last night with a seven-game winning streak and visions of shaving down the Dodgers' 4½ game National League lead during their crucial five-game series.

But the Dodgers diverted the Redbirds' attention with a free-for-all at second base in the sixth inning and sneaked off with a 5-2 victory that eventually may prove one of the most vital of the season.

It was two years to the day from the game in which Joe Medwick was beaned by Bob Bowman of the Cardinals and Medwick set off the strife with a high, lunging slide into Shortstop Martin Marion. Second Baseman Frank Crispi knocked Medwick down, and the players of both squads waded into each other.

Unlike some baseball battles, it was furious while it lasted, and several players came out of it with bumps on their heads, skinned faces and other injuries. Dixie Walker of the Dodgers twisted his leg and had to withdraw from the game and both Medwick and Crespi were banished by the umpires.

When it was over Lefty Max Lanier was so unsettled he gave up a walk and two singles to let Brooklyn tie the score and had to be replaced by John Beazley to get the final out in the sixth.

Fifth for French.

The Cards seemed to be still thinking of the skirmish when the Dodgers drove three runs across in the eighth to sew up the game. Dolph Camilli walked and was singled to third by Johnny Rizzo. Billy Herman surprised St. Louis with a perfect bunt down the first base line squeezing home Camilli. Mickey Owen hit a perfect double play ball to Marion, who threw instead to third, forcing Rizzo, and Lefty Larry French doubled two additional runs across. It was French's fifth victory without a defeat.

This was the only contest carded in the senior circuit and only three games were played in the American League.

Detroit Tigers tumbled New York Yankees again 3-1 on the four-hit hurling of Virgil (Fire) Trucks. This gave Detroit the series, three games out of four. The Tigers themselves were held to six hits by Spud Chandler, but made two of them good for a run in the second and strung together four in succession in the third for the margin of victory.

Early Wynn's seven-hit pitching and the lusty hitting of his batterymate, Jake Early, provided Washington Senators a 7-1 verdict over Cleveland Indians. Catcher Early drove in four runs with a double and two singles.

Chicago White Sox exchanged positions with the Philadelphia Athletics again by winning 7-2 on the five-hit hurling of Buck Ross and Joe Haynes, who worked the last inning. Ross allowed just two hits till the eighth.

Syracuse Slugs Leafs For 9-2, Bad 8th Inning

By the Associated Press.

The Robinson clan is making baseball history in the International League this season—Aaron with Newark Bears Eddie with the Baltimore Orioles, and Warren with the Rochester Red Wings.

The deeds of Aaron and Eddie have received more attention than those of Warren, however, because of their slugging ability.

Aaron, Newark catcher, smacked his 11th home run of the season last night and leads the trio in that department. Eddie, who plays first base for the Orioles, is pacing the trio in runs batted in with 33, two of them last night.

The Bears weathered a seven-run Buffalo Bison uprising and defeated the Herd 9-7. Newark jumped off to a four-run lead in the first and assumed a seven-run advantage in the fourth when Robinson and Bud Metheny hit for the circuit. The Bisons came back to score seven times in their half of the fourth with Ed (Shovels) Kobesky slamming a homer with two on.

Frank Kelleher of the Bruins broke the deadlock by hitting a four-master in the seventh and the Bears scored once more to clinch the decision.

Tom Delacruz of Syracuse Chiefs, hurled a 9-2 triumph over the Toronto Maple Leafs. Syracuse scored in the second on Dutch Mele's homer and never was headed. Al Lakeman, Chief catcher, contributed a grand slam in a five-run eighth inning scoring spree. Toronto scored its two runs in the last of the ninth.

The Orioles scored seven runs in the third inning and defeated the Wings 8-5. The Orioles used five hurlers with Ray Flanigan being credited with the win.

63 Of 96 Players In Par Class; Brydson Trails

By Gayle Talbot,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, June 19. —(AP) — The only thing that possibly could create any excitement in the second round of the Hale America Golf tournament to-day would be one of the leaders to shoot a 61 and then be disqualified because he was caught using a putter off the tees.

Sixty-three players of a total entry of 96 either equalled or beat the tar out of Ridgemoor's official par. Seldom has golf seen a shooting match to equal it.

Leading the field at the first turn in the big charity event were Otey Crisman, a pint-size pro from Alabama, and Mike Turnesa, each with a 65.

Otey is in the tournament because he won a coin toss against another Alabaman who tied with him in their district qualifying test. He felt lucky to get here at all, and was practically speechless when they finished counting up his card. He played beautiful, nearly flawless golf.

Mike Turnesa is a brother of Corporal Jim Turnesa, who reached the final of the recent P. G. A. championship at Atlantic City. Mike is understood to be older than Jim and somewhat younger than brother Joe, each of whom shot an opening 71.

There were five at 67—Lawson Little, Harry Cooper, Lloyd Mangrum, Mike Sipula and Al Brosch. Six were deadlocked at 68 — Dick Metz, Herman Barron, Jimmy Demart, Horton Smith, George Schneither and Wilford Wehrle, the amateur star.

The two Canadians in the tournament were outclassed in this startling spectacle of par-shattering. R. T. (Bobby) Gray tied for 79th place with a 75. Gordon Brydson, former hockey player, was even further down the list with a 79 count. Both are from Toronto.

Brandino Whips Cool In Two; Callura Beaten

Brandino made a tremendous hit here last week in his pro debut and was even more impressive last night than in his first appearance.

Callura, fighting in Fall River for the first time, was defeated by Davey Crawford of New York in the 10-round main bout. The decision was unanimous.

Although on the losing end, Callura gave Crawford plenty of trouble throughout, but the New Yorker did the cleaner and harder punching. Angelo kept boring in all the time but was unable to make any consistent headway against Davey, who fought from a crouch much of the time.

The show drew 1,650 fans, the largest boxing gathering at the Casino in several months.

Sport Snapshots Across Canada

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, June 19.— (CP) — Here's a yarn to help horseplayers pass the idle hours between dawn and racetime. Walter (Hamilton Spectator) McMullen is the raconteur with Bugs Hersch, one-time Toronto ballplayer, and Tom Bird, veteran clocker, the principals.

One day Bird marked Hersch's program at Toronto's Woodbine track. The clocker was hot, put the old X on seven winners. Later he ran into Hersch at a nearby social and relaxation centre.

"You must nave had a great day, Bugs," he boomed genially. "I marked all the winners for you." He brimmed with the exquisite joy of a man who has made every handicaper's dream come true.

Mr. Hersch considered only a few seconds. "Yes, you did," he replied. "But you were away out on the seconds and thirds."

Football Note:

One of the men Montreal Bulldogs may count on for the upcoming grid season is Red Storey, who is remembered with a shudder by western gridmen for what he did to Winnipeg for Argos in the 1938 Canadian final.

Incidentally:

The Sunday baseball argument is cropping up again, from Vancouver to Halifax...Timmins fans got their first glimpse of the Sunday game (which actually looks exactly like a weekday game) last Sunday and the experiment drew plaudits from as far away as Montreal..Here's something that may interest other leagues which would like to give it a whirl but are afraid of the law enforced in most provinces that no admissions can be charged...The silver collection at the Timmins game was almost double the gate of any game in the previous season ...Vic (Timmins Press) Copp writes that single Sunday game was one of the biggest things in Porcupine district baseball for years...Niagara Falls citizens will be asked in the next civic election whether they are in favor of Sunday ball.

Gnr. Ted Reeve informs the world from somewhere in Canada (guess where) that Sweeney Schriner has reconsidered his decision to retire from professional hockey and will be back with Toronto Maple Leafs next year...Sweeney has been at his Calgary home since a few days after the season ended...George Irvine of Vancouver had letter luck at Winnipeg with his seven-horse stable than he did around Toronto...He didn't clear expenses here, but first time out in Winnipeg his Palmera T won the $1,400 winner's share of the Speers Handicap...Anita King travelled all the way from Hollywood to watch her favored Son of War run second.

ernment policy on mobilization has fostered dissensions which might cause internal strife and thus destroy the ideal set forth by the Fathers of Confederation.

Revenue Minister Gibson is scheduled to speak to-day in the continuing debate on Bill 80.

Thirteen members participated in the debate Thursday. Six spoke in French—Maxime Raymond (Lib. Beauharnois-Laprairie), Raymond Eudes (Lib. Montreal-Hochelaga) Maurice Gingues (Lib. Sherbrooke), Martial Rheaume (Lib. St. Johns-Iberville-Napierville), Joseph Jean (Lib. Montreal-Mercier), and Azellus Denis (Lib. Montreal-St. Denis);

All 6 Opposel.

All these six opposed the bill.

The other speakers were Mr. Crerar Mr. Bertrand, J. G. Turgeon (Lib. Cariboo), Ross Gray (Lib. Lambton West), Mrs. Dorise Nielsen (Unity North Battleford), Douglas Abbott (Lib. Montreal-St. Ontoine), and Joseph Bradette (Lib. Cochrane).

Mr. Crerar said the present war was not an Imperialitic war and if there had been a South African war again he would not be for it nor did he think there would be any volume of support in Canada.

Canada was supporting not only the British flag but the flags of other freedom-loving nations.

"Never, Mr. Speaker since satan was cast out of heaven have such terrors and dangers been loosed upon the world as now," he said.

If Britain and Europe were dominated by the Nazis and if Asia were dominated by Japan it would be but a short time before Africa came under the power of "the tyrants."

"We can throw our imigination forward a little; in South Africa influences—powerful influences — would be at work to turn those countries to the side of the tyrant."

Liberty and christian civilization would then be preserved for the time being on the North American continent.

"If that happened what would be the position of Canada," he asked. "I ask myself that question because I want to see Canada develop her own national spirit, I do not wish to see her become part of the United States. But inevitably under those conditions forces would be created which would make Canada a part of the United States."

Rights Wouldn't Last Long.

French-Canadian rights could not be preserved very long if Germany triumphed in Europe and Japan in Asia. He expected that before long Canada would have to fight not only on the Atlantic but on the Pacific coast.

He was prepared to go to any lengths to defeat Germany while she was 3,300 miles away.

Mr. Turgeon said he supported the Government bill and such other compulsory steps as might be considered necessary by the Government in light of the world situation. He saw the danger of Japanese atack on Canada from airfields in Siberia which might fall into their hands in the event of a Japanese-Russian war.

Canadian forces should be sent to Siberia to face the Japs, if the Russian Government would consent. If such consent could not be received, the Government should be prepared to send them across the Pacific from Prince Rupert or over the Bering Sea. The only way to save Northwestern Canada was through effective action.

A minister of war should be appointed to facilitate offensive action.

Mr. Gingues said he would vote against the bill with regret. He had no confidence in conscription as a part of the war effort and favored a free and voluntary war effort.

The part played in the war effort by the Roman Catholic Church in Quebec was praised by Mr. Rheaume, who scored extremists of all types.

He added: "Catholics are quite as loyal to Canada as is the head of the Orange Order."

Have To Learn New Language.

Mr. Jean said the bill should be withdrawn as it would do no good and might work irreparable harm. Quebec was making the required sacrifices for the war and thousands in Montreal war industries were forced to learn a language other than their own so as to take orders from foremen.

Mr Renis said that instead of passing a law which was useless, the government should concentrate on production of food and war munitions. It had been proven that conscription for overseas was not necessary.

Mr Raymond said the 'conscription of 1942 is even more odious and revolting than the conscription of 1917."

In the First Great War there was no solemn pledge made to any part of the country not to bring in compulsory military service for overseas, and the Borden government had said conscription was necessary when the voluntary system did not meet requirements.

In 1942, conscription was to be put into effect when the Prime Minister and members of the cabinet said it was not necessary.

rMs. Nielsen said she would support the government bill as a step in the right direction although she did not believe action yet taken by the government had gone sufficiently far in the direction of total war.

She was sorry that Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in his address on the bill last week, had not stressed more strongly his approval of the people's desire for a stronger momentum to the war effort.

Gives Panties To Uncle Sam

Little Carol Anne Schaller has a lot of the stuff of which heroes—and heroines—is made. Because it takes a lot of courage for a young lady to doff her panties and turn them in as a contribution to Uncle Sam's scrap rubber collection. The Godiva-like scene took place at a Woodside service station in Woodside, Long Island.

Board To Buy

Gordon reported.

"This is an extremely complicated task, however, and considerable study is still required to determine the practicability or otherwise of establishing fixed grades and qualities.

"Nevertheless the only effective remedy for present price difficulties would be an increased supply of beef which, of course, depends upon increased cattle marketings. If supply were adequate, price differentials between grades and qualities would rapidly be established under commercial marketing conditions.

"Price problems in the beef field have been further complicated because purchasing agents for the armed forces have been bidding higher than maximum ceiling prices in order to attract supply from a short market. This practice now will cease as the Board, through the Wartime Food Corporation, will be able to ensure supplies to the armed forces at appropriate ceelling prices."

Consumer complaints that the retail beef prices were higher than in the basic price ceiling period, Sept. 15 to Oct. 11, 1914, were based partly on misunderstanding of the price ceiling policy in respect to normal seasonal operations in agricultural products.

Peak prices were usually reached in May and June and this price fluctuation ha dbeen accepted by the board as normal, Mr. Gordon saiad Price could be expected to decline seasonally in July.

"Despite any action which can now be taken beef supplies are not likely to be completely adequate until marketings of cattle again reach a level which will provide a supply of beef necessary to meet Canadian consumption demand," Mr. Gordon said.

Not Enough Till Mid-July

If marketings this year follow a normal course it seems unlikely that beef supplies will be fully adequate before the midde of July, even if all beef cattle which would otherwise be exported are retained for domestic use through the Wartime Food Corporation Ltd.

To correct the situation as quickly as possible, however, the Board, through the Corporation, is prepared to acquire all cattle which would normally go for export and continue to do so until the present domestic shortage is alleviated."

Mr. Gordon said Canada's obligations to the United Kingdom made it impossible to replace beef with pork on the domestic market. Hog marketings were not sufficient to provide 10,000,000 pounds of bacon each week to Britain and at the same time allow normal Canadian consumption.

Poultry, lamb, eggs, veal and fish are all available in sufficient supply to permit of resonable substitutes for beef.

"The fluid milk consumption is more than 10 per cent above the same consumption last year. Home grown fruits and vegetables now are coming on the market and will increase greatly in quantity in the near future. In addition there are of course ample supplies of cereals and cereal products."

in an effort to cut the coastal road leading to the Egyptian border, 80 miles from Tobruk, and thus complete the ring of seel they are forging around the city.

With the main body of the British 8th army already withdrawn to ne wpostions near the frontier, it appeared certain Rommel would try to seize Tobruk and remove that threat to his left flank before trying to push farther eastward.

Observers believe that so much of the German leader's striking power has been spent in the last 26 days of continuous desert fighting that he is in no position to press a general offensive at the present time.

The best he can hope for at the moment is to capture Tobruk with the idea of using it as a base from which to launch an Autumn drive with fresh men and equipment ferried across the Mediterranean these quarters maintain.

Possession of Tobruk, which boasts one of the best harbors on the North African coast, is vital to an Axis attempt to invade Egypt, for without it supplies and reinforcements must be moved overland from Tripoli, 800 miles to the west.

Tobruk has been in British hands since January 22, 1941, when 25.000 Italians surrendered there.

Council Opposes Hatton Project

MAIN STREET TOPICS

20,000 TREES.

Twenty thousand trees were planted this season in the county forest, W. A. Anderson informed the County Council Thursday. Most of them were red pine, set out in two clearings. The rest were w .e pine and white spruce. The work cost $207, and the weather was favorable for planting.

SAVED GAS AND TIRES.

FOR ARMY WEEK

An appeal to .he citizens to cooperate in an active way in the celebration of Army Week beginning June 29 was embodied in a resolution by Alderman Dutton at the meeting of the council last night. Mayor Hamilton was authorized to make public the resolution of the council.

TRUCK GETS SCORCHED.

A transport owned by Beatty Transport Company of this city caught fire as it turned into the Examiner yard at noon Friday. Gasoline from the carburetor dropped down on the hot manifold starting the blaze. A fire extinguisher from Cliff Towle's shop made short work of the blaze, and when the city firemen arrived the excitement was over.

WOULD SAVE SHEEP.

Sidney Fairbairn of the North monaghan told the County Council yesterday he knows a material that will keep dogs from attacking and worrying sheep. Experience in many years since he was a boy had demonstrated the effectiveness of the material. He has not attempted to patient it for the reason that he believes others would obtain the financial benefit. The cost of it is six or seven cents a sheep. Mr. Fairbairn intimated that he would disclose the kind of material to the proper authorities for around $15,000.

Two local young men, charged with being drunk in the village of Lakefield a short time ago, and who entered pleas of guilty through J. F. Strickland, K.C., were fined $10 and $6.25 each in police court this morning. A commercial traveller who entered a written plea of guilty to illegal consumption of beer at Chemong last night was fined $10 and $2.50 costs. The three charges were laid by Provincial Constable Price Morris.

LONG OVERDUE.

Assignment of a police constable to the corner of Simcoe and George Streets Saturday nights to regulate traffic was urged by Alderman Swanston Thursday night. He suggested that Mayor Hamilton discuss his idea with the Police Commission. Motorists were held up for long periods in trying to get out of Simcoe Street. Streams of pedestrians paid no or little attention to the side street traffic. "I'll talk to the Judge," His Worship promised.

WITH A SMILE.

"She is always smiling and always willing to help," was the compliment Reeve M. H. Johnston paid on Thursday afternoon to Miss Evelyn S ott, assistant to F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative. Mr. Johnston said she did a great many things that were helpful to one committee and another, and he wished to pay tribute to her unfailing willingness.

PORCUPINE IS SHOT

The porcupine that has been spending the last few days in town passed off the scene Thursday afternoon when he was shot by Constable Gordon Trennum at the request of Humane Society officials who feared that dogs might get mixed up with Mr. Porky to their sorrow. The animal had been seen in several sections of the north ward during recent nights and Thursday was located at the top of a tall elm tree on Park Hill Road. He was there when the officer fired the fatal shot.

Sugar Rationing Canvass Next Thursday

Sugar rationing affects every person in the city of Peterborough, whether a householder, boarder, or retired, and the following information regarding the setup of the card ration system which goes into effect July 1, should be studied carefully by everyone.

The Sugar Rationing Board has been set up to handle the situation in this city, and a city-wide canvass embracing every individual takes place next Thursday evening between the hours of six in the evening and ten o'clock at night.

Every house will receive a ration card, and a ration card book of instructions from the post office during the week, and these must be filled out and ready when the canvasser calls to pick up the cards next Thursday. These cards apply only to the immediate members of the family such as father, mother and children. All others such as grand parents, boarders, or others not a member of the family will also receive separate cards and these too must be filled out and ready. Should any householder, boarder, or any other person fail to get a card, then they must apply to the Post Office or to the canvasser and fill in the cards and return them the same night. The responsibility of filling out these cards rests with the householder, because should they fail to carry out the instructions they will be unable to get sugar after July 1.

In the event of any miscarriage of the plan as outlined, the householder or individual affected should get in touch with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board office, Hunter street, or with the Sugar Rationing Board office, which is at present operating with the Victory Loan headquarters on George street, opposite the Grand Opera House.

32 Districts

There are 32 districts in the city, each of which is covered by a district captain and a team of ten men, who will do the collecting. The names of all district captains will be published in Saturday's Examiner and these men will have complete information should anyone wish to ask questions. The canvassers will have proper identification cards should the householder wish them to identify themselves.

Information relative to canning and preserving will be given out after next Thursday, when housewives will be told how to go about getting the extra sugar needed for canning, preserving or making marmalade or similar foods. For the time being however this will be withheld, until the cards are cleaned up, to avoid confusion.

The main thing is that all cards must be in the Wartime Prices and Trade Board office by ten o'clock on Thursday night, so householders are asked to be at home when the canvasser calls, or have someone there to look after the cards.

W. C. Hughes, manager of Grafton's, is general chairman of the canvass, and W. E. Foley is local representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

All names and information should be printed on the cards, and not written as the printing is easier to read.

Salvaged Rubber Gives Aid To War Victims

There is a great need for every bit of rubber that can be salvaged to help along the war effort, and this is one thing that children can take a hand in doing, and play a real part in adding their quota to winning the war. The children at Queen Alexandra School, of which J. E. R. Munro is the principal, have demonstrated this, and not only have they helped to gather some of this vital war commodity, but they have utilized it as a means of giving assistance in another direction to help along the war effort by giving the money thus gained to help the victims of air raids over Britain, through the local and district fund which functions for that purpose and so it is that the sum of $3.37 stands in their name in to-day's list for the fund per Jack Franks, one of the scholars attending this school.

Another item of special interest also concerns a school boy attending Confederation School who is only eight years old. Gerald Crouter of 399 Edison Avenue sold tickets for a draw on a puppy at 5 cents each to raise the sum of $4.30 to help the people of Britain. The draw was made by Donna White of McGill Street, and resulted in ticket No. 924 being the winner, giving the prize to Mrs. M. Douglas, 357 McGill Street. Well done, Gerald.

The box from H. McMahon's store at Crawford's Grove added another $2.75 to the day's list.

The girls in the Sun Life Assurance Company office made and donated an afghan, for which they have been selling tickets at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents, and the afghan itself is on display in the window of Coleman Bros.' store at 447 George Street.

Father's Day.

Next Sunday is Father's Day, when many sons and daughters, no matter how old they be will be remembering father in some way or other. To some, however, this will be impossible in the usual way, but the opportunity to do some good in his name still remains, and no better way to pay tribute to his memory can be found than to do some good for others who are in need, and a contribution in memory of him to help the people of Britain will do that very thing.

Heads Business Men

Dennis Fitzgerald, manager of Zeller's Store, who has been re-elected as president of the Peterborough Business Men's Association. Mr. Fitzgerald gave a splendid leadership to the Association l.st year and his re-election was unanimous.

Business Men Elect Denis Fitzgerald

Denis Fitzgerald, manager of Zellers store was re-elected president of the Peterborough Business Men's Association at an executive meeting on Thursday evening, when the officers were named from the elected slate.

Jack Lewis of Kresges was named vice-president and J. J. Doris is secretary-treasurer.

Considerable discussion resulted ove rthe proposal to sell War Savings Stamps in the stores, and the various angles to this project were aired in open forum style. However, the feeling was that there was not sufficent information to warrant a decision on the matter, and it will be discussed at a later date when a complete picutre is available.

It was reported that quite a number of the $2.00 membership fees were outsanding and the executive wishes the delinquent members to turn this money in a ssoon as possible.

It was put in motion and approved that a resolution be sent the City Council asking that no further licenses be granted for dance halls between Charlotte and Brock Streets when the present licenses expire.

"Ditty Bags" Mean Much To Sailors Navy League Asks County To Help

B. S, Cannem of the Navy League appealed to the county council this morning for an increased grant. Government assistance is confined to assumption of deficits on the operation of League hostels.

"Our biggest work this year is helping to take care of the seamen of the Merchant Marine," Mr. Cannem said. "All our allies are represented in that service, including Chinese transferred to the northern Atlantic waters, who have to be outfitted. Our budget for Ontario has been increased from $400,000 to $625,000."

The League opened a hostel for seamen at Halifax last year. It is furnished with 600 beds and provides from 2,500 to 3,000 meals a day.

Mr. Cannem recalled that the Canadian navy had grown from four vessels at the outbreak of the war, with 1,600 personnel, to 400 ships and 41,000 men. The League is planning to distribute 50,000 'ditty bags' among the sailors prior to next Christmas. Each bag costs about $7. This is just one phase of the work the League does for sailors.

Of special interest to all citizens who support the League is a letter quoted by Mr. Cannem received February 9 last by a mother of a sailor. It is quoted as follows:

"We had a Christmas tree, Mom, and the Navy League of Ontario sent us Ditty Bags with socks, peanuts, canned fruit, chocolate bars and so on. These were distributed among us on the day before Christmas and the fellows were just like a bunch of kids opening them because we had left too early to receive any Christmas boxes from home and this was about all some of the boys did get."

The letter concludes: "On February 10 my son went down with his ship Corvette "———," torpedoed on the North Atlantic. There were 57 men lost. These men had all received those Ditty Bags and their last Christmas was made happy because of them."

The appeal to the council was referred to the finance committee.

Runway Auto Crashes Railing

A runaway automobile plunged down Sheridan street hill Thursday night, shot across Hunter street, plowed through the iron railing on the south side of that street and continued down the embankment until it came to rest near the gas tank of the Utilities Commission and escaped with only small damage to the front bumper. The car did not even upset after its descent of the slope.

Edward T. Hotston, 14 Cameron street, had stopped his automobile on the east side of Sheridan street, facing south, to put a note in the letter box of a friends house. His wife and young daughter were in the car. Just as Hotston started back toward the machine it began to move down the hill and Mrs Hotston and girl jumped out. The driver ran into the road and tried to get into the car but was knocked down and the hehicle continued on its way No one was hurt and the damage was slight.

TRUCKS COLLIDE

Norman Field, 211 Rink street, reported to the police today that as he was backing his truck out of a laneway at Downer's Corners this morning, his machine collided with a Hydro truck. The right rear fender of the Hydro machine and the rear door, bumper and taillight of the Field truck were damaged.

Seven Recruits Join Active Service Units

Seven more active service recruits were given transportation warrants from the Peterborough Armouries to Kingston for posting to the various units of their choice in the Canadian Army.

The men are Clifton G. Bell, 41 Hunter street, east; Harold R. McEwen, 610 Chamberlain street; Arnold B. Millar, Lakefield; Dorian J. Courneya, 307 Louis street; Donald M. Caban, 543 Park street; Adelard N. Vinette, 10 Lisburn street; Frank W. Hitchins, 202½ Charlotte street. Vinette is posted to the Canadian Corps of Signals, and Caban is the third brother in this family to enlist for active service. The father is a veteran of World War 1.

Two men were turned down as having too low a medical category for active service. They are John Grant, Y.M.C.A. and Gordon R. Stewart, 176 Charlotte street.

Four Other Areas Recommended To Wartime Housing As Preferential Sites For Homes

Although Wartime Housing Limited decided on June 8 to build 125 temporary houses on the Hatton property, the city council in a special session last night recommended four other areas as preferential sites.

These other locations were: west of High street and north of the C.P.R., "known as the church property, also some times referred to as the 'racetrack property', including part of the Harstone property and part of the property owned by Mrs. James Grady; the property at the southwest corner of Monaghan Road and Lansdowne street, to the south of St. Peter's cemetery; site No. 3, property owned by Bradburn's Limited and Harold Scott on the north side of Braidwood avenue, between Park street and Monaghan Road; and the fourth—property owned by John T. O'Connell, on the south side of Braidwood avenue "to which could be added a number of lots giving in all about 15 acres for housing.

The resolution was moved by Alderman Bradburn and seconded by Alderman Glover. Supporting them were Aldermen Cotton, Curtis, Mark, Sullivan, Sands.

Mayor Hamilton did not call for a negative vote, but those who did not support the resolution were Aldermen Gordon, Dutton and Swanston.

Alderman Bradburn prefaced his motion by recalling that Mayor Hamilton had requested Alderman Glover and Curtis and himself to survey properties that seemed to be suitable, and they were attracted to these four locations as substitutes for the Hatton acres.

Earlier in the conversations relating to sites the Braidwood avenue section was mentioned. This street in the township extends westerly from Park street, and is the third street south of Lansdowne street. Most of the land on both sides of Braidwood is vacant all the way from Park street to Monaghan road, and is readily accessible to the trunk sewer on Park street. When this area was briefly discussed the objection was raised that it was too far from the Canadian General Electric plant, and apparently it did not receive much further official consideration.

Chose Hatton Farm

One new fact was elicited by a question asked by Dr. H. V. Dobson as to whom first proposed the Hatton property for another group of temporary houses. Kent Hamilton, Toronto, representing Wartime Housing Limited, replied: "I selected it myself. I went all over town in every direction. I take sole responsibility for choosing that site."

Alderman Dutton referred to the factor of salvaging the houses after the war as mentioned by Mr. Hamilton in his review of the antecedents of the decision to build at the west end of Charlotte street.

"By whom would these houses be removed, and can we get a specific guarantee that they will be removed?" Alderman Dutton enquired. "We have understood that there is a general undertaking on the part of Wartime Housing to remove these houses six months after the cessation of hostilities."

City Solicitor Huycke said there was clause in the agreement requiring removal of the houses six months after the war ended.

"You can have that clause if you want it," Mr. Hamilton stated. "The usual clause is that these houses will be removed if the council wants it."

Petition Received

Correspondence before the council relating to objections to the choice of the Hatton property included a petition signed by more than one hundred residents of both the city and the township; a recommendation of the four sites set out by Alderman Bradburn in his motion as also proposed by a point committee of the city and township councils, dated June 11. It was signed by Reeve M. H. Johnston, and Bruce Johnston, municipal clerk of North Monaghan, and by Alderman Bradburn and Glover. Their memorandum pointed out that the four alternative locations were "in close proximity to the factories in which the workers houses will be employed, and sewer and water in our opinion can be supplied at a moderate cost and with little difficulty."

There was also a letter from Victor T. Goggin, Toronto, general manager of Wartime Housing, under date of June 8, announcing the company's decision.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., solicitor for the township, commented that it did not seem fair on the part of the company to arrive at their decision prior to last nght's meeting.

Mr. Hamilton replied that the decision was made by the company on June 8, "before the company had any idea that there was to be another meeting. We had no notice of it at the time from either the city or North Monaghan."

Township Not Partner

Alderman Gordon asked Mr. Kerr whether the township would agree to the Hatton location on the strength of a definite undertaking for the removal of the houses after the war.

"North Monaghan is not a partner to this agreement, and can have no say as to what Wartime Housing does," Mr. Kerr answered.

Mr. Hamilton, speaking first on the subject of the chosen site for another 125 temporary houses, reviewed the general factors affecting the company's selection of sites for this purpose, here and elsewhere. It was a problem arising in the various cities throughout Canada in which temporary housing had to be provided for war industries. Accessibility of sewers and water mains, consideration of transportation especially since the restrictions on gasoline and rubber came into effect, churches, schools, shopping centre and social amenities generally, all these were elements coming into the final consideration of properties for housing. Mr. Hamilton said that comparative costs were another influence growing out of the problem of obtaining community services.

Incidentally he said that the Harstone-Grady area would be considered for a probable additional 125 houses if North Monaghan would assume part of the cost of sewers and water services from Romaine street, but it was pointed out later that the township had no authority to involve itself in the "cost of building arterial sewers."

Plan of Streets

Mr. Hamilton presented half a dozen copies of the street plan for the Hatton area. "This will be one of the best layouts we have been able to make. We get away from the gridiron scheme." Streets will be curved or generally of a circular scheme.

Alderman Bradburn asked the question why it would not be possible to group all the next group of housing in one location, thereby saving in the cost of sewers and water mains and roads.

Mr. Hamilton replied that the present plans call for 125 houses on the Hatton area, and probably another 125 on the "race track" property west of High Street if satisfactory sewerage accommodation could be obtained.

"If not," he added, "there might be a more intensive location of houses on the Hatton property. That possibility will be met when we come to it. We can't anticipate in this case."

In regard to the Braidwood avenue section, Mr. Hamilton said: "We don't like that property, but it is still on the preferred list of other sites have to be considered some time."

Loss To Monaghan

"From the stand point of Wartime Housing they are making the very best selection," said Reeve Melville Johnston, "but it is regardless of how they hurt other people's feelings. If we thought we were hampering the war effort in any way by making these objections we would not do it, but we feel we are not, when we are asking that some other suitable site be selected. We feel that Monaghan is being greatly injured."

Reeve Johnston said that the best houses in the township were built on the west side of the city, and that the loss of the Hatton property was halting that movement. "We are losing choice property which we would feel certain would be developed like the other property in that section if it was left for the people who would choose to live there."

Mr. Kerr also summarized the township's contentions, adding that the 125 houses would cost approximately $375,000. "Will you wipe that investment out when the war is over. I don't believe it."

Mr. Hamilton referred to the houses as a "fractional expense of the war". He cited a new muntion industry that cost $12,000,000, built in a country location. It would simply have to be scrapped after the war because its use would then be at an end. Two hundred houses also had to be built for its employees, costing $600,000, and representing a fraction of the total cost of that wartime industry. These houses, he said, would be scrapped eventually.

"Housing is not a peace time function of the government," Mr. Hamilton remarked. "So, the government undertook as a policy that all the wartime houses would be removed. They are not a long term factor. There might be some little period pass after the war before their removal. They are demountable and can be taken from their sites. They might find a market as summer cottages. I assure you that they will not be sold on the sites on which they are now located."

Alderman Gordon remarked that some people had moved out into the rural residential section, and they would have to share in the sacrifices of the war.

Two Aldermen Are Commended For Giving Leadership In Joining Reserve Army Force

"We appreciate the leadership of Aldermen Sands and Swanston in joining the Rangers," Alderman Cotton said at Thursday night's special meeting of the council.

"Do you think we should all do it too," His Worship enquired.

"Probably not if we are getting beyond the age mark," Alderman Cotton said.

The two aldermen are buck privates in the reserve, but it is not true that they are the Abbott and Costello of their company. They won't have any doubt about what they are going to do this Sunday. They are going to spend it at the rifle ranges.

Major McGrath announced the other night the receipt of new ammunition, but the first target work will be done with twenty-two's or something like that, "so that all the men won't be laid up with sore shoulders from the heavier kicking stuff."

Privates Sands and Swanston blushed broadly and deeply in the unexpected mention of their action by Alderman Cotton. And can they blush!

Lad Finds Steer Tied In Bush Ready To Steal

TWEED, June 19.—(ENS)—The vigilance of Donald Thompson, young son of Norman Thompson, Farnsworth Corners, probably prevented a cattle theft on Wednesday night.

The lad was sent out to bring in the cows and when he climbed over a fence to the ranch of Fred Maynes, looking for wild strawberries, he noticed that one young steer was off by itself near a clump of small trees. He walked over and found that the animal was tied up with a strong piece of rope.

Apparently, someone had secured the animal with the idea of returning under cover of darkness and stealing it. The ranch was patrolled nearly all night by the authorities, but the would-be thieves did not put in an appearance.

Farmers On Dog-Hunt

Along with Chief J. C. Hayes, the farmers of Lodgeroom staged a dog-hunt. It seems that the dogs have been bothering cows in the fields and ravaging flocks of sheep, the losses of which, in this township are heavy.

The farmers set out with shotguns and it is understood that one dog was shot. A large grey animal that resembles a wolf has been frequenting a swamp below the property of Harford Tufts, and sheep have been attacked at intervals.

Rangers Hold Route Marches

Individual route marches by the various companies of the 2nd Battalion Prince of Wales Rangers (Reserve) was the order of the day on Thursday, and some of the companies covered quite a distance, in their toughening up program. Many of the Rangers' recruits are supplementing their army training by doing all the walking possible, such as to and from work, and to and from downtown, as they realize the importance of getting into fine physical trim at the earliest moment possible.

Seven more men signed up on Thursday night, and included in the seven is Victor Sedgwick of Manlece Avenue, who served overseas with the 5th C.M.R.'s in World War 1, and whose brother, Sgt. Bob Sedgwick, is serving overseas with the Glengarrians. The other recruits are Howard E. Bell, 504 Romaine Street; Richard Clare Baldwin, 465 Stewart Street; Lewis I. Trull, 595 Division Street; Ron. M. Donoghue, 264 Reid Street; Ken. A. Murray, 253 Park Stret; Bill Caldwell, 621 Water Street.

Interest in the week-end camp is growing and judging from the talk among the boys the officers will soon have to hand-pick the men going to camp from the number seeking a spot there.

$1.50 Day Room But Account Made Out For $3

Completing the preliminary stages of conspiracy charges involving four hotels R. W. Crocker, manager of the Grand Hotel, was Thursday afternoon bailed for trial at the General Sessions of the Peace by Magistrate Langley, K.C., on three counts

The charges against him were identical with those previously heard. They alleged that he had conspired with three different men, employees of Bromleigh Engineering Company and working at the C.G.E., to defraud the Department of Munitions and Supply by issuing receipts for room rent for sums larger than were actually paid and thus enabling them to recover from the Department of Munitions and Supply the amount of the allegedly false receipts.

By consent Crocker was bailed for trial at $500 on the evidence of Corp. Karl Lockwood of the R.C. M.P.

Tells Of Interview.

In the first charge against Crocker, that of conspiring with C. Hawley, Corp. Lockwood said he had interviewed the accused and Crocker had identified a receipt shown him and made out to Chas. Hawley. Witness said that the accused had admitted issuing it and that it bore his signature. He said that he knew Hawley and that he had stayed at the Grand.

"I asked him," said Corp. Lockwood, "for the records showing payments made by Hawley and he told me that they were not available. He said they were not kept very long after guests left."

Witness said that when Crocker had been asked to what priced room Hawley had occupied, accused had said that Hawley had a $1.50 a day room.

"There seemed to be some doubt in his mind," said Corp. Lockwood as to whether Hawley and a man named Woodman had occupied the same room or not."

Witness said that the receipt was for $12 for hotel accommodation and that when Crocker had been asked how the receipt had been made up had replied that it was on the basis of $3.00 a day.

"I asked the accused," said the witness, "why it had been issued for $3.00 a day when Hawley was only paying $1.50 per day and he replied that Hawley had asked him for a receipt at $3.00 a day, saying that he was entitled to recover that amount from the company."

Crocker had said, the witness stated, that he knew Hawley was employed in some capacity at the C.G.E.

In a brief cross-examination by T. J. Carley, K.C., defence counsel, Corp. Lockwood said that he did not remember Crocker saying that Hawley had had his meals at the Grand. "I was not concerned with that," the witness said.

"Why ont?" asked Mr. Carley. "The receipts was for hotel accommodation and not for room rent."

Evidence in the other charges was similar in nature and on all three counts there was bailment for trial.

Promotions Listed In Rangers' Orders

Quite a number of promotions are listed in Part 2 orders of the Prince of Wales Rangers at Camp Niagara, and one of the most interesting is that Lieut. J. L. Smith, who formerly operated Turnbull's Flower Shop, is raised to the rank of captain.

Butter Supply Dropped Twelve Percent

It was disclosed by J. Peter Nadeau of War Time Price Board that the butter situation is in a very critical stage at the present time, due to the disparity between cheese, of which production has increased 44 per cent and butter which has dropped 11 or 12 per cent, and that there is only half as much butter stored away at the present time as there was last year. Mr. Nadeau, who spoke in the Co-Op Hall, said that he foresaw a very tight situation ahead, but that the Board hoped to arrive at a solution shortly.

The speaker said that back in the years from 1930 to 1932 milk control was unknown in Canada, and it was first started in British Columbia, sweeping across Canada rapidly. Each province has its own Milk Control Board, whose basic idea is to establish control of prices for the producers. He said that although the idea originated in British Columbia there is no control board there now.

When the War Time Price Board took over in 1939, it was ruled that the Milk Control Board had to have approval on any project. Until last December prices of the last ten years were studied and followed fairly closely, but then the maximum price regulation was introduced, which was a very radical step.

No Subsidy

The broad government policy is to control the cost of living in Canada, and last year prices rose 15 per cent, an energetic measure was adopted. In Britain he explained that there was very little Board control but a great deal of strict rationing.

In December, 1941, a price subsidy was given to those whose prices had not risen after August 1, 1941. Then a study was begun in December of producer prices throughout Canada and 100 distributing plants, where 54 per cent of the milk was sold as food milk, were investigated. The study ended up with a discontinuance of the subsidy, Mr. Nadeau said. To compensate, certain adjustments in ceilings were made. In the province of Ontario, there have been some twenty to thirty adjustments made.

Deposit on Bottles

"In all work we must apply the government policy and the cabinet decides that policy, and we are studying the distribution of milk, trying to eliminate some of the costs. In a short time there is to be a 5 cent deposit made on milk bottles, because of economy and particularly because of the glass shortage. Milk bottle losses are enormous and it is hoped in this way to teach people to be a bit more careful. There is also the question of the overlapping of distribution, which is very complicated, but we have made a start at the present time in Toronto, which at the moment is working out fairly well.

"Milk sales to dairies drop 25 to 30 per cent in July and August, and the Board is trying to arrange without disorganization an agreement to prevent an exchange of customers in the summer months. Too, farmers are paying too much for the transportation of milk, generally speaking, and we hope to have the full co-operation of the farmers in whatever course is decided."

Supplies Essentials

The Board in general policy, it was explained, has taken the responsibility of supplying essential foods and supplies to Canadian consumers and has removed the normal price increase factor. The prices of milk and dairy products, butter excepted, are very favorable today, and, a most important thing, the farmer is getting a larger share of the consumer dollar.

"For the present, prices of dairy products on a fair basis are going to be governed by other factors such as farm labor, a most important problem at the present time. The prices are also going to be based on the position of the Board which has the responsibility of delivering the products."

Lots of Wheat

A brief talk by R. M. Pearson prefaced Mr. Nadeau's address. He said that the weather was the deciding factor in the matter of crops to an unusual degree this year, and that a definite shortage of coarse grains was indicated. Oats are very bad in the west, although wheat is plentiful, and he advised the men to buy what wheat they wanted in August before Government control became effective.

"Today, whole grains excepted, proteins are cheaper and the big problem is to get barley and oats. We have also been approached about the establishment of a poultry killing plant here in Peterborough, where there is no such plant in operation, and it could be run on a straight co-operative basis. It is a matter which will take considerable thought," he said.

Powerful World Police Force Is Advocated By Agnes MacPhail

COLDSPRINGS, June 18—(ENS) — Miss Agnes Macphail was the special speaker at a general meeting of the Men's Club of the Coldsprings - Camborne - Bethel Grove United Church communities on Tuesday evening in St. Paul's United Church, Coldsprings.

Rev. Mr. Wesley was chairman, and a short program of song and music entertained the large audience before the address of the evening. With Miss Lettice Drope as accompanist and Earle Drope as the leader, community singing was enjoyed, followed by the Bickle boys' quartette, accompanied by Mrs. McLelland, Shirley Drope and Marie Kelly of Harwood accompanying themselves on guitars sang "Moonlight and Roses," after which Rev. Mr. Wesley introduced Miss Macphail.

In her opening remarks Miss Macphail apologized to those present for her failure to appear at the Federation of Agriculture meeting a short time ago in the same church. She had unavoidably made two engagements for the same night and was unable to cancel the first one. Miss Macphail's address was "The New World," and she held the interest of her audience throughout the entire speech. She nearly chose "Democracy on the Home Front," but is speaking on that in Toronto and expects to enlarge on it. She said we are always talking about the New World, and mentioned that the Prime Minister, Mackenzie King, has said that unless we are working for the New World while the war is on, we will look for it in vain at the end of the war." Miss Macphail quoted Ernest Bevin's definition of the New World as "A new day — a place for the common people." Some are ready for it now; other nations are not ready.

Speaking of the League of Nations which she had the opportunity of attending once, Miss Macphail said it was a meeting place for nations, but those present had no sovereign power to act and it was really a league of talkers—only. Another reason why the League of Nations was impotent was a rule that on any given subject there must be unanimous point of view, instead of majority rule. This made any progress extremely difficult if not impossible, as any small nation could by an obstinate stand, oppose a progressive movement even though every other nation was co-operating.

World Police Force.

To enforce law and order, Miss Macphail felt that after the war it would be necessary to have a powerful world police force or Army, Navy and Air Force units. This would be an international police force. Miss Macphail did not think it would be possible for any nation to continue to be armed to the teeth all the time. In fact, it has been proved it is impossible. But the world is now a neighborhood.

Miss Macphail continued to explain the new world in the home and spoke particularly of old-age pensions. In New Zealand the pension may be received at 60 years of age, and amounts to $30.00 per month. In Russia Miss Macphail had an interesting talk with a woman doctor in 1936. She asked the doctor how Russia handled the old-age pension. The information was that a Russian man or woman may apply for the pension at 55 years of age. As all Russians work very hard they naturally look forward to the day when they can retire on pension. Many apply at 55 years, and after holding it for three months, come back and state the wish to continue work. Usually the Russian people retire around 65 years.

There are two things for Canadians to work for in this New World. First, we must never aagin have unemployment; and second, we must never again see farm prices hit the ground. The first boys to enlist and go overseas were the boys who had to ride the rods. It is going to be a difficult problem to handle this employment situation when peace finally comes. One way to help establish the New World is for every individual to do without every possible type of goods now; leave out all extravagances and save money for a spending spree when demobilization comes in. By this method, it wiss assist to switch labor from munitions to peace time employment.

A second idea is an elaborate expansion of public works which would take care of those wishing to work.

In Sweden, the Government plans 5 to 10 years ahead and when unemployment looms as a menace, the public works program is immediately put into effect. In the United States the W. P. A. administration worked wonders for the unemployed, a great deal better system than the one in which Canada demoralized the unemployed by gifts of money but no work.

Still Have Taxation.

Miss Macphail stressed the fact that taxation will still be with us when the war ends and there might be a National Reconstruction tax. She hoped there would not again be heard that question too frequently heard in the past from the treasury benches, "Where will the money come from?" Money is a mechanism and "What is physically possible, can be financially possible."

In the New World Miss Macphail stated that Health would come into prominence and she gave various new schemes that are being worked out whereby medical services will be available for everyone. The trend, she said, in this country is for collective action. Organization amongst the common people is going to be powerful. This will lend to education and creates action. Human values are more important than money values.

Miss Macphail touched on the Federation of Agriculture and co-operatives as a help for the farmer. She also stressed that the rural church must not condone inequalities. Speaking of a priest in Nova Scotia who had wonderful success with co-operatives, he said he was trying to build an economic system in which a Christian could operate. Miss Macphail said there was no easy road to progress. We must accept the discipline of our own ideals and fight every step of the way.

22 Pounds Of Wool Is Required To Clothe Modern Canadian Soldier

"It takes 22 pounds of wool to clothe a soldier and our army is growing larger every day," said R. H. Graham of the livestock branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in an appeal to the county council, Thursday afternoon to assist the Government in its effort to persuade farmers to raise more sheep.

"We've got to take a very serious view of this phase of the war time needs of our country," Mr. Graham said. "In normal times we produce only 15% of the wool we need. We are continuing to receive wool from Australia, but if the Japs succeeded in cutting off that supply we would have to resort to cotton."

Mr. Graham pointed out that the Government was bending its efforts to maintain an adequate stock of wool on hand. A vessel landed at Halifax a week ago with 5,000,000 pounds of wool, a heartening arrival for the present. Canadian farmers had to look to the future, and the Government was appealing to the owners of flocks to enlarge them. The farmer who is not keeping sheep is being urged to start a flock. The Government has an assisted purchase plan and provides for the loan of rams for a two year period.

"The Government is not going into the sheep raising business. It is put putting forth a loaning policy because of the bitter experience we had some years ago.

Mr. Graham urged farmers to buy ewe lambs that would ordinarily go to the butchers. Lists of farmers with available lambs will be kept in the office of F. C. Paterson.

Sheep are now selling at 13½ to 15c a pound; and military wool 30 cents a pound as compared with 60 cents in the last war.

Farmers Producing More.

Mr Graham accompanied Frank C. Patterson, agricultural representative, who discussed some of the larger projects directly connected with the war, cheese for Britain, bacon hog production, pasture improvement, increased poultry supply, and so on.

Farmers had amply demonstrated their ability to produce more farm commodities last year in the greatly increased exports of bacon, cheese and eggs. Mr. Paterson said the county Agricultural War Council had recommened early purchase of western feed grain and the planting of as much fall wheat this year as possible. He said he endorsed both these recommendations as a precaution for future supplies.

Lakefield Girl Honored By Warsaw Folk

LAKEFIELD, June 19.—(ENS).—About a hundred and fifty neighbors and friends gathered in Warsaw town hall on Wednesday evening for a miscellaneous shower and dance in honor of Mr. and Mrs Harold Clifford (nee Phyllis Darling of Lakefield.)

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Clemens of Warsaw, were in charge of the evening's entertainment which consisted of round and square dancing in a party that ran from 9.30 until 2 a.m. with Wright's orchestra of Warsaw providing the music.

As the guests came into the hall they placed gifts for the bride and groom on a long table. The bride's mother, Mrs. Roland Darling, of Lakefield, and the groom's mother, Mrs. John Clifford of Warsaw, assisted the bride in opening the array of gifts, which were very lovely.

Wm. McWilliams Businessman Dies At Age 81

WINNIPEG, June 19—William H. McWilliams, one of Winnipeg's best known grain and lumber merchants, died in his sleep early Sunday morning at his residence, 65 Kennedy street. Although he was 81 years old, Mr. McWilliams' death came as a surprise to his wide circle of friends. Saturday he had been at work as usual in his office, and had appeared in customary health.

Connected with western industry, particularly the grain trade, for 40 years, Mr. McWilliams rose to be one of Winnipeg's leading business men. Always willing to lend a helping hand to any worthy community enterprise, and interested in the welfare of his adopted city, he amassed a large number of friends.

Mr. McWilliams was born in Peterborough, Ont., July 1, 1860, the son of John and Agnes McWilliams After receiving . his education in schools in the east he moved to the United States, beginning his career in the grain business at Minneapolis, joining the Peavey Grain Company.

In 1902 he came to Winnipeg, attaching himself again immediately to the grain trade. His business interests grew steadily, until at the time of his death he was connected with many organizations.

These included the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, Monarch Lumber Company, of which he was vice-president and general manager; president of the Winnipeg Elevator, the Empire Elevator and Thunder Bay Elevator companies; vice-president and general manager of the Canadian Elevator company; vice-president of the Western Grocers, limited, Dominion Malting company and Grain Insurance and Guarantee company; president of the Canadian Consolidated Grain company; Director of the Royal Bank of Canada, National Trust company and Holt and Renfrew company.

Many Charities.

These were but his business associations. He did not allow his name to be included among the list of officers of charitable organizations, but his helping hand and ready purse were at all times open when need arose.

Golf was his chief recreation, and he was a past president of the St. Charles County club. He was also honorary steward of the Manitoba Jockey club, and a member of the Manitoba club.

In 1885 he married Carry H. Hart, of St Cloud, Minn., who died in 1921 Surviving are one son, H. C McWilliams, of Winnipeg; four grandchildren Mrs. J. K Kilgour, of Saskatoon; Mrs. Douglas Bracken, Miss Jocelyn McWilliams and Willam H. McWilliams, all of Winnipeg; and two great-grandchildren, Rosemary Kilgour, of Saskatoon, and John Bracken, of Winnipeg.

Suggests County's Red Cross Grant Be Given To National Fund

T. P. Lancaster of Havelock suggested to the County Council yesterday afternoon to contribute the entire amount of its Red Cross Society grant of $5186 to the national headquarters instead of distributing any part of it to the society's rural branches in Peterborough county.

The council decided in March to levy a half a mill in the tax rate this year for Red Cross purposes. This patriotic tax is estimated to be equivalent to $5,186.

Mr. Lancaster told the council that he came before them merely as a citizen worker of the Red Cross and President of the Havelock branch. He recalled that the five branches had set as their objectives in the recent campaign for funds the following sums: Bridgenorth $500; Havelock-Belmont $1,100; Lakefield $1,500; Norwood $1,200; Otonabee $2,500.

In 1940 every branch had to send half its receipts to the Ontario Division of the Society, but this year, owing to the increased demands and obligation, the local branch could retain only 30 per cent for its own use, and send 70 per cent to the Ontario Division.

Mr. Lancaster reminded the council that they had taken no action toward distributing the $5,186, and it was the intention to allocate later the money to the local groups. Although the county ratepayers as a whole were contributing half a mill for Red Cross purposes this year, some of the local municipalities decided to take part in the national drive for funds. Otonabee collected $1,916.94; Lakefield $1,100; Norwood $900. Havelock did not plan a drive but collections nevertheless amounted to $110 and no appeal was made in the Bridgenorth area.

"Our members of the Havelock branch think they can finance its work, Mr. Lancaster said, "and I came here to-day to suggest that you send the entire amount of your levy to the Ontario Divisional headquarters. It is true that the Red Cross realized their objective of $9,000,000, but they are going to need it all and more. They have earmarked $5,000,000 alone for food parcels to prisoners of war. They have been sending 40,000 parcels every week, but they have undertaken to send parcels that have been going from Great Britain, and that will mean 80,000 parcels a week at a cost of $2.50 a parcel."

Mr. Lancaster referred to the 1,689 prisoners in Hong Kong and the recent accomplishment of arrangements to supply parcels to those men. In view of these fact, and the responsibility resting upon the national headquarters of the Red Cross, "I believe all the branches could finance themselves this year."

Broiler Poultry Quality Up, Price Down

TORONTO, June 19.—(CP)—The dressed poultry market has been fairly steady, the Dominion Bureau of Agriculture reports. The volume of arrivals of chicken and fowl have shown an increase.

Broilers are plentiful and the quality has improved. This kind of poultry moved into consumer channels satisfactorily.

Light weight spring chicken was not moving so well, the trade calling for four pounds and over, some dealers holding off and not buying the lighter kinds.

More fowl were arriving and meeting a daily good local demand. Quotations on broilers and fowl were slightly easier.

Frozen chickens moved freely mostly to outside points, 1,200 lbs. being shipped east, with Montreal enquiring for 6,000 lbs. of grade A milk-fed birds. A few small lots were also shipped to the north country.

There was a slightly better movement of frozen turkeys.

Dealers quoted producers and country shippers:

Spring chickens 25-26 cents lb.

Broilers: Grade A milk-fed 25-26, grade B milk-fed 24-25, grade A 25 grade B 23.

Fowl: Grade A, 5 lbs. and up 22-23, 4 to 5 lbs. 21-22, 3 to 4 lbs. 20, grade B, 5 lbs. and up 20-21, 4 to 5 lbs. 19-20, 3 to 4 lbs. 18.

Old roosters 16-17.

Victory Clothes Smart On Less Yardage

By HAZEL DEAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, June 19.—(CP)—Canadian fashion has a front-line role in the national war effort but neither style nor quality will be sacrificed for wartime yardage restriction, J. A. Klein, administrator of women's and children's clothing for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board said here last night.

Fashion writers at a preview of next season's wartime clothes at which Mr. Klein spoke compared new styles with old and decided that milady's new "victory suit" was equally as chic as last season's models.

Material saved in excessive yardage restrictions would make badly-needed uniforms for Canada's fighting men and women, Mr. Klein said. Consumers would benefit financially under the new rationing regime. Decrease in material would result in lower prices in most cases.

From nightgowns to sport jackets, all models made to conform with wartime rationing look as well, if not better, than pre-war garments. Round-pleated skirts, bloused backs and front fullness still appear in victory dresses. Redingotes—dresses with long coats of the same material—and dresses with matching jackets are on the black list. Flap pockets and long jackets are "out."

Length for daytime frocks is 43 inches—for evening gowns 59 inches but exceptionally tall women will be granted extra material.

Greatest material saving is on the redingote. The new order decrees a clever imitation of the favorite coat dress which saves three yards per garment. Out of every 100 restricted redingotes, manufacturers now can make 200.

Changes have been made in the jacket dress also. Skirts on camisoles and dresses with removable jackets have been replaced by belted skirts and jacket-blouses. Average saving per garment is three yards.

Blouses with full sleeves and excessive tucking give way to the trimmer type shirtwaist. Skirts are still pleated but not so deeply. Pleating often is restricted to front panels of the skirt.

Nightgowns, housecoats and evening clothes have received the severest cut. Saving on 100 victory gowns is 133 1-3 yards. Housecoats with flowing skirts are taboo, but the neatly tailored substitutes are welcome additions to any wardrobe. Evening clothes are restricted to a four-yard sweep.

Wool rationing will be more strict than restrictions on cotton and rayon but "there will be no serious shortage of any materials if the consumer refrains from abnoral buying" Mr. Klein said.

Mr. Klein doesn't think much of the woman who tries to beat restrictions by making her own clothes.

"We can't police the stores to see if women buy extra yardage to do their own dressmaking" he said. "But the over-dressed woman today is as unpatriotically conspicuous as though she wore a Japanese Kimona."

This Is Everybody's War

(By MOLLY BROWN).

Let us take the question of stockings—or no stockings—as the case may be. From the very outset the war has affected the stocking question; women, inspired by a feminine desire to look their best at all times, bought silk stockings as long as the supply lasted. A woman will give up her meals more willingly than she will give up anything that improves her appearance, and therefore, her morale. Stockings were made of silk. Silk is an imported material. It is used in the manufacture of parachutes and is therefore vital war material. Naturally it can no longer be used for the comparatively frivolous purpose of covering milady's shapely nether limbs. What to do? Should she go without? Should she paint her legs with a preparation alleged to look just like stockings? Should she try to make do with some of the materials which substitute for silk?

In winter there is, for most of us, no choice in the matter. We make do with the substitutes in preference to frozen shins. But summer is another matter. No one can deny that the feminine leg, sheathed in silk or rayon, is a more attractive sight than the same leg uncovered. On the other hand, cotton, even the finest lisle, is not particularly beautiful. Nor is it as comfortable as silk. Moreover it is somewhat warm for the hot days which we hope to have some time this summer. It wears about as well, but lacks the elasticity of silk. Rayon also has disadvantages. It looks well enough, almost like silk, but it is even less elastic than cotton and lacks the enduring qualities of silk. Of course, there are Nylon stockings for those lucky enough to find them and able to afford them, but they are out of the question for most of us.

Then there is the cream that looks, or is supposed to look, like stockings. Observation has convinced this reporter that it is difficult to put on and apt to peel off or fade in patches. Besides, it takes too long to apply. And what would be its effect on scratched mosquito bites and similar souvenirs of a week-end in the country?

Going without stockings seems like good wartime economy. It would look perfectly all right if everybody did it. It is being done all the time in England, where stockings cost not only money but clothing coupons. Going without stockings would leave us more money to spend on War Savings Stamps; it would allow us to lie in bed two minutes later in the morning; it allows us to use the time we might have spent in darning for something more directly helpful to the war effort, and it saves a lot of washing. All things considered, it seems like a good idea. What do you think?

Viva Shearer Feted By Friends

Pre-nuptial affairs given to honor Vina Graham Shearer, whose marriage to N. A. (Bill) Inch takes place June 22nd, in St. Matthews Church, Buckhorn.

A community shower was held in the Parish Hall at Buckhorn which was attended by about one hundred and fifty friends of the bride-elect. The seat of honor was under a beautifully decorated arch of pink roses. A miniature bridal party comprised of seven small girls fittingly attired for the occasion entered the hall to the strains of wedding march. Two of the bridal party carried a decorated basket containing numerous lovely gifts which were presented to the bride-elect. Musical numbers by pupils of the school added to the enjoyment of the evening. Refreshments served by the ladies of the community brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

Peterborough friends entertained at a dinner party and dance. A surprise shower was given by friends of the bride-to-be at which many beautiful cups and saucers were received.

Mrs. M. W. Shearer entertained at a trousseau tea at their home in Buckhorn on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Shearer assisted by the bride-elect received the guests which numbered almost one hundred. Peonies and roses made a very lovely setting for the occasion. Mrs. J. Coones of Lakesurst, aunt of the bride-to-be, and Mrs. E. White of Bowmanville poured tea. Tea room assistants were Miss Bernice Carveth of Smith, Mrs. G. Whiteside, Mrs. Erle Welbourn and Mrs. R. Parnall of Peterborough, Mrs. M. A. McWilliams of Bridgenorth, Mrs. B. Hall and Mrs. R. Montgomery of Buckhorn.

Mrs. Eric Shiner and Miss Phyllis Simpson showed the lovely array of quilts, silver, crystal and many other things received by the bride-to-be. Mrs. J. A. Deyell showed the bride-elects trousseau and the wedding gifts were shown by Miss Ruth Parnall, all of Peterborough.

National Health Talk Interests Women's Council

Dr. E. A. Hardy, O.B.E., of the Health League of Canada and of the Toronto Board of Education, was guest speaker at the June meeting of the Local Council of Women. Dr. Hardy spoke on national health and told of the great accomplishments along this line and of the many problems yet to be faced.

Dr. Hardy said that, from the point of view of health at least, the "good" old days were mostly a myth. He told of his own native village, where in his youth, regular typhoid epidemics were taken as a matter of course. Nowadays typhoid fever has become so rare in Canada that many doctors have trouble recognizing a case when it does occur. At one time it was almost impossible to find, in England, a person whose face was not scarred with smallpox, but since vaccination became general, this disease, which once took thousands of lives every year, has now almost disappeared.

Other factors, besides the conquering of individual diseases have improved general health and lengthened the span of human life. The discoveries of Pasteur brought about the general use of antiseptics which saved hundreds of thousands of lives. Personal cleanliness has made great advancement in recent years and this combined with insistence on purity of drinking water has done much to improve national health.

But Dr. Hardy pointed out that these improvements did not come easily. Barriers of prejudice and tradition, of vested interests and of suspicion, made the task a terribly difficult one, and it is not finished yet. There are still diseases which take a terrible toll of our population. Venereal disease alone is one of the greatest causes of death in the Dominion. The speaker pointed out that during the last war Canada lost 60,000 men and women on active service, but that in the period 1932-35, she lost 65,000 babies and 21,000 mothers at birth. The loss of those mothers and babies, caused through ignorance and lack of proper care is a public disgrace. By 1940, however, the rate of deaths at birth for the Dominion had been cut to 4.2%.

The Minister of Pensions and Public Health said in an interview that throughout Canada every day 50,000 workers are idle through illness, preventable illness. This results in a serious loss to the worker, but the financial loss to industry is even greater. Of the men called up and examined for service with the forces, 33% were found physically unfit and had to be rejected. The Toronto Board of Education each year sets aside $100,000 for loss through illness of its teachers and in two years this has been used entirely, with an additional loss of $65,000 by the teachers themselves. Among the children, one million days absence, 80% of which were due to illness, were counted in one year.

Dr. Hardy said that we needed a higher standard of Public Health. In order to achieve this, we must have a re-organization of our Public Health system. This cannot come about until public opinion is aroused to the point where the government realizes that the people want a better public health system; to a point where the Bill to recognize the system will be passed, no matter what party brings it down in the house.

One method by which the matter could be brought before the public was suggested by the speaker, the formation of a speaker's bureau, composed of doctors, dentists and social workers of the community, who could address various organizations on matters of public health.

Mrs. C. M. Scott gave a report of an investigation into the matter of day nurseries, which she conducted, assisted by Mrs. R. Parnall. She said that she had discussed the matter with Miss Rachael Young of the Children's Aid Society and Dr. D. B. Avison, and found that in 11 homes, involving 32 children, mothers went to work, leaving children inadequately supervised. She said that a good day nursery would require one full time paid worker trained in work with children, and the services of voluntary workers, preferably those having some training in dealing with children. The part-time services of a nurse would also be desirable.

Mrs. Wand announced that a film dealing with public health, released by the Health League of Canada, "No Greater Sin," would be of interest to the members and it is hoped that it will be shown at a local theatre soon.

Elsie Board Weds Don Penrose at St. Paul's Church

St. Paul's Presbyterian church was the scene on Thursday of the marriage of Elsie Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Board, to Donald Sheridan Penrose, S.B.A., R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr and Mrs Roy Penrose Rev. J. D. Smart officiated and the church was decorated with peonies and delphiniums. Mr. Martin Chenhall, A.R.C.O., played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in princess gown of suede lace and net with a long train. Her veil of white net was fastened with a coronet of white lace. She carried a bouquet of red, white and blue flowers in crescent shape. She was attended by Miss Kay Tully, who wore printed blue marquisette, with a matching hat of blue tulle and a bouquet of pink Butterfly roses. Mr. Jack Penrose was his brother's best man and the usher were Don Board, R.C.N.V.R., brother of the bride, and Tommy Cooke.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Board received wearing a gown of beige lace and crepe with a matching picture hat, and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore powder blue crepe with matching hat, and a corsage of pink roses.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip to Northern Ontario. For travelling the bride wore a beige silk jersey dress trimmed with British tan, and matching accessories.

The groom's gift to his bride was a fitted travelling bag; to the bridesmaid, a gold bracelet; to the best man, a military money-belt; to the ushers, leather wallets.

SOME OF THE prettiest coats shown this season are of suede dyed in delectable colors, and are ideal for country or suburban wear. Supple suede dyed a deep leaf green is the choice of Nancy Coleman for a full-length coat which she wears often. It is casual in style with a buckled self belt and wide sleeves. The tassel trimmed turban is of cocoa brown with gloves and bag to match. Worn with a matching leaf green tweed skirt and acorn yellow silk crepe blouse, the ensemble totals up to a most attractive color scheme.

Solemn Ceremony For Final Vows

The Chapel of the Sisters Adorers of the Most Precious Blood in Peterborough on Monday was the scene of a very solemn, impressive ceremony, when two of its members, Miss Anna Coughlin, in religion Sister M. St. Catherine of Sienna and Miss Louise McCarroll, in religion, Sister M. St. Francis of Assisi, pronounced their Perpetual Vows.

The altar was beautifully and artistically decorated with lights and flowers, the red roses being symbolic of their devotion to the Most Precious Blood, to which their lives are dedicated in prayer and reparation

Is addressing the Sisters, His Excellency reminded them of the sublimity of their holy vocation as Adorers of the Most Precious Blood and congratulated them on the choice of life they had embraced, whilst fostering the hope that many others would be called to follow in their foosteps and dedicate their lives within the precincts of the holy cloister to prayer and preparation.

Before receiving Holy Communion, in presence of the Sacred Host, the two Sisters pronounced their holy, perpetual vows and immediately after the Mass, His Excellency, approaching the open grille, blessed the Sisters and placed on the head of each a crown of flowers saying: "As you are crowned by our hands on this blessed day of your perpetual profession, so may you merit, by the constant fervor of your religious life, to be one day crowned with glory in heaven, by Christ your Spouse. Amen

SMART BROWN BERET

By ALICE ALDEN

PROVING THAT anything goes as long as it is smart and pretty, we find brown felt hats atop some of the prettiest heads although it's summer. Pretty Peggy Diggins made a recent appearance wearing this charming hat, a softly draped large beret of dark brown felt with a scarf treatment of coin-dotted veiling which ties under the chin. The veiling is pinkish beige with brown dots. The hat was worn with a pink-beige frock trimmed with rows of silk hand-fagoting.

THE ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

Question: Please send me the following recipes:

1. Corn Syrup Frosting.
2. Rosy Baked Rhubarb.
3. Minced Pork and Liver Patties wrapped in side bacon.

I enjoy reading your recipes and helpful hints given each week. Marion Coote.

Answer: We are glad you get help from our little offerings.

Corn Syrup Frosting.

Two cups corn syrup, 2 egg whites 1 teaspoon white wine vinegar, ¼ teaspoon salt. Mix all ingredients in top of double boiler. Cook beating constantly with beater until stiff enough to stay in peaks. You may take your time in spreading this frosting as it remains soft for a while.

Rosy Baked Rhubarb.

Five cups cut up but not peeled rhubarb (preferably young and red) 1 cup corn syrup, ½ cup brown sugar and if you like it very sweet ½ cup white sugar, 1 cup water.

Top stove methods:

Bring to boil the water, syrup and sugar, and drop in prepared rhubarb. Cover immediately, bring to boiling point, stir once, turn off heat and let stand over warm burner to cool. This is sufficient heat to make the rhubarb tender without breaking it up.

Oven method:

Stir together in baking dish all the ingredients, cover and place in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. and let bake until it begins to bubble a little, then either remove from oven to finish or open oven door and let finish in receding heat.

Mix together equal quantities of minced leftover or cooked fresh pork and boiled pork liver (1½ cups of each will serve 5 or 6, 1 egg, 1 cup fine crumbs, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon lemon juice (this last is optional). Mix all these ingredients well and shape mixture into 10 or 12 little cakes. Wrap sides with strip side bacon and fasten with tooth pick. Broil or fry or bake and serve with applesauce.

QUESTION: I am a faithful follower of your columns and find them both interesting and helpful, and was wondering if you could give me the answer to "how treat a new iron frying pan before using." I have two nice size pans which form a Dutch oven and want to use it for top stove roasts, etc. It seems to me mother used to grease iron ware, and heat slowly until very hot and yet I don't know if I'm right or not. Is there any other method? I received these pans at Christmas and they have started to rust so can you please tell me what to do so I can use them.

Have been thinking of sending you some of my recipes but just haven't decided just which would be most suitable or of most use to you, but will sit down with my recipe book one of these time and do so, Thanking you.—Mrs. G. A. M.

ANSWER: Would be very grateful for the recipes your anticipate sending us.

To Season Ironware

Wash and scour utensils very thoroughly, with fine grit cleanser, then thoroughly smear with saltless fat and place over heat turned on very low for 30 minutes. It will smoke some. Then wash very well and dry, and it is ready for regular use.

QUESTION: I have been reading your page for some time. Can you tell me why saccharin tablets are not used more as a substitute for sugar at this time? I know it is used for pickles and our friends who have diabetes use them, and I have used them in lemonade and like them very much. I hope to see some recipes using the tablets in your columns soon. I have been told than in France and in some of the older countries it has been used for many years as a substitute for sugar.—"A Reader."

ANSWER: Evidently you have brought up a very good point.

There are various opinions on the advisability of non-diabetics using saccharin. There is no danger of it having an injurious effect on human health if it were taken in excessive quantities, but the quantity required for sweetening is so small, and since larger amounts give such a sickening tasté, most people would, themselves, restrict the quantity.

During Great War 1 it was widely used especially in Great Britain, without harmful effects. From available statistics there is no harm in people using it as present to replace sugar, in tea or coffee, in fact I have heard of people who are doing so, besides your self.

Write whenever we can be of help to you.

HENPECKED HUSBANDS LIVE LONGER THAN BOSSY MEN
Domineering Wife Is Really an Angel in Disguise

Isn't science wonderful. According to late reports it has discovered that henpecked husbands live longer than those who rule in their households, or who fight with their wives over which one is to wear the pants.

One's first reaction to the news of this important vital statistic is that perhaps it is only that life seems longer to these poor, downtrodden, domestic serfs, but no! Science says that it is a fact that when once men make up their minds to let their wives have their own way and run things and quit arguing with them about it, they pass into a state of calm that prolongs their days.

And there is where the bossy wife comes into the picture as an angel in disguise, and if the disguise is often so impenetrable that her husband fails to recognize what a blessing she is, it only goes to show how little men perceived what is good for them.

Little do they realize that after the marriage ceremony their Marias will take over the whole job of running their lives for them, and that never again will they be called upon to make a decision, or formulate any plan of action, or take the initiative in any matter. They won't even have to think. Their wives will run the whole show and all they will have to do will be to say "yes ma'am" when she-who-must-be-obeyed speaks.

There are plenty of husbands who might just as well have parked their brains on their wedding day because they are never permitted to use them again. It is their wives who tell them of a rainy morning to put on their rubbers and take an umbrella. It is their wives who feed them what they think they should eat.

It is their wives who pick out their friends and amusements. It is their wives who supervise their politics and religion. It is the wives who walk in front and say "sit there" when they enter a house. It is the wives who always speak of their possessions from the children to the cat, as "mine" and who take the entire credit for any success their husbands make in life.

It can easily be seen how enormously this attitude on a wife's part conserves her husband's energies. He doesn't have to exhaust himself trying to decide whether his wife feels like stepping out, or wants to read a new novel. He doesn't have to wear out his brains at a restaurant wondering whether he shall order something that he likes to eat, or something that is good for his stomach. His wife orders spinach for him. He doesn't have to get nervous prostration worrying over family problems. Maria settles everything. So it is no wonder that he can just go on living and living and living.

Of course, it should be noted here that it is only the man who submits philosophically to being henpecked who is such a good insurance risk. The man who rebels against it and who fights for his personal liberty fills an early grave, or figures in the divorce court.

One way or the other he is one of the casualties of marriage, for the wife always wins out. No man has the staying power of a woman who is determined to have her own way and rule the roost. Hence, wise is the man who, finding that he is married to a domineering woman, adopts the policy of non-resistance.

For Saturday, June 20.

Adverse lunar aspects make of this day an uncertain vacillating and tricky state of affairs, with little accomplished because of indecisive unstable, imaginative and erratic mental attitudes or courses of action. Such condition advises against laxity or carelessness in handling all writings, correspondence, documents and affixing signatures to important papers.

Those whose birthday it is may not enjoy a prosperous or happy year, since there are indications of treacheries, fraud, unfruitful litigation, bad investments as well as dangers from travel through agencies or carelessly executed documents or correspondence. The mind may be erratic, unstable, visionary, undecisive and the tongue sharp, witty, but caustic and offensive, thereby challenging reprisals.

A child born on this day while dexterous, versatile and having certain skills may be mentally visionary, indecisive, and imaginative, with keen intuitions.

LATIN ROSES BLOOM UP NORTH

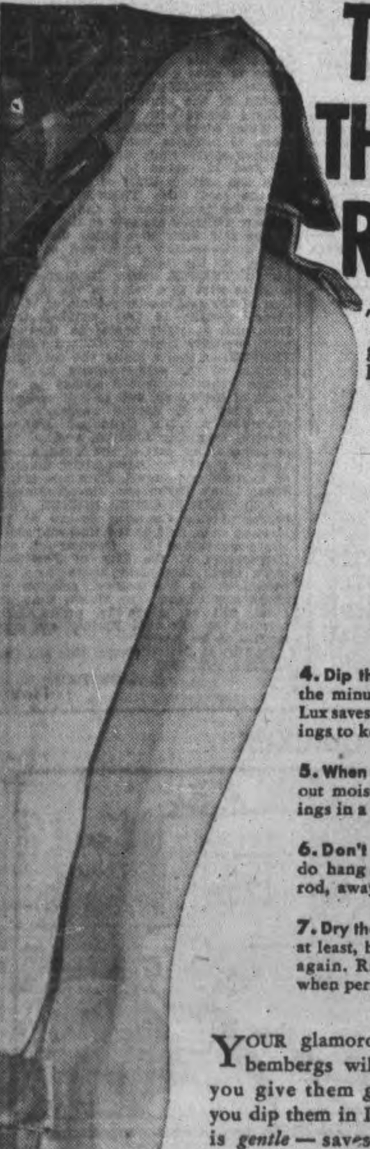
By PRUNELLA WOOD

THERE'S the Aztec rose of Mexico and the acres and acres of blooming rose fields in Cuba. There is also the rose thrust behind the Spanish comb and mantilla of every Latin American dressed in Old Country fashion for fiesta.

One of the great, imaginative fabric houses of America del Norte has summed up all these Latin roses and printed them on a richly concocted rayon fabric to be made into summer frocks. It's a good neighbor gesture, con mucha guste . . . which is to say, they are delighted to do it.

Here we have a photograph of an evening gown made from this fabric; there are daytime models, too, lovely for country afternoons.

The border print of this rose strewn rayon fabric makes the moulded bodice of this dancing frock; the dirndl skirt is made from the body print of the cloth.



TIPS ON THE NEW RAYONS

1. Buy wisely—be sure of your size.

2. Put them on carefully—as you did your sheerest silk ones.

3. Don't rub or twist them. Avoid cake soap rubbing. This weakens threads, encourages runs.

4. Dip them in lukewarm Lux the minute you take them off. Lux saves elasticity, helps stockings to keep their fit.

5. When drying—gently squeeze out moisture, then roll stockings in a turkish towel.

6. Don't use clothespins, but do hang them over a smooth rod, away from heat and sun.

7. Dry thoroughly for a full day at least, before you wear them again. Rayons are strongest when perfectly dry.

YOUR glamorous new rayons and bembergs will wear beautifully if you give them gentle care. Be sure you dip them in LUX every night. Lux is gentle—saves elasticity—whisks away harmful perspiration—cuts down embarrassing, costly runs.

TONIGHT—DIP YOUR STOCKINGS IN—LUX

"The Authority on Authorities"

PICK THE RIGHT TIME

ON SOME deals, the declarer must follow the fundamental procedure of taking out the opponents' trumps first of all. On others, he must go to the other extreme and never take them out at all, using all of his own for cross-ruffing. On still others, he must do certain things first and then take out all of the trumps. Finally comes the hand on which he must do certain things first, then take out some of the trumps, but abandon leading them at a certain stage while he proceeds otherwise. In brief, he must pick the right time for leading them, if he does it at all.

North: ♠ Q 4 2; ♥ 10 9 5 2; ♦ 10 9; ♣ Q 10 4 2

West: ♠ .. J 8 6; ♥ A K J 7 3; ♦ None; ♣ ?7 5 3

East: ♠ A 10 7 5; ♥ 8 6; ♦ A J 8 6 4 2; ♣ K

South: ♠ 9 3; ♥ Q 4; ♦ K Q 7 5 3; ♣ A J 9 6

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♦	Dbl	Pass	2♠
Pass	4♠

South's lead of the diamond K on which dummy put a club, enabled East to make a several-sided plan when he won with the A. Before considering leading trumps, he must tentatively plan a cross-ruff, but first see if the hearts would set up. So he took the K and A of that suit, dropping the Q, and his next move became clear-cut. He took the spade A and K, then discontinued trumps, leaving the Q out to be scored whenever North felt like using an opportunity. The heart J was called, for a discard of the club K, and the heart 3 was ruffed by the spade 7. The diamond 2 was ruffed by the spade 8 and the heart 7, a thirteener, led.

If North ruffed this with his high trump, or if he waited till later, it could make no difference. East already had eight tricks and retained a trump in each hand which could be scored separately for two more tricks—one of them on a club and one on a diamond—to complete the contract.

Public To Get Army Style Food To Eat

KINGSTON, June 19. —Arranged principally for the benefit of housewives all of whom are asked to prepare and serve at least one army meal during Army Week, sample diet sheets as used in military camps, are to be distributed to all communities throughout Military District No. 3 ,it was learned to-day.

To many, it is believed, the diet sheets will be a surprise because of the variety that is achieved despite the fact that thousands of men must be served three meals a day, all prepared with a minimum of equipment and without waste. It is something many skilled cooks could consider impossible.

A casual glance at the sheets reveals that the soldier is assurred of fruit juice almost every morning of the week. This is followed by a cereal such as rolled oats or cracked wheat and that in turn, is followed by a combination of bacon and eggs or perhaps grilled sausages or even occasionally by soft boiled eggs. Each soldier next receives toast or bread with jam and butter and coffee or cocoa.

For dinner every day there is soup, a baked, fried or stewed meat dish with potatoes and a vegetable followed by pie or pudding for dessert. There is a choice of tea or milk for the beverage.

For supper there is soup, more meat, potatoes, vegetables and dessert followed by tea or cocoa, iced in hot weather.

The District Headquarters Committee for Army Week is making a special appeal to hotel and restaurant proprietors to adopt the army meal schedule for at least one day of the week that has been set aside so that people of every community can honor the men of the Army.

Sugar Rationing Coupons In Force July 1

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, June 19. — (CP). — Starting July 1, Mr. and Mrs. John Canuck will need coupons to buy sugar but the ration allowance will remain at one-half pound per head every week, as under the existing "honor" rationing system.

Donald Gordon, chairman of Canada's Wartime Prices and Trade Board, announced in a broadcast speech last night the date on which coupon-rationing of sugar comes into effect and the method by which individuals throughout the Dominion will obtain their coupons.

Sugar thus becomes the first food placed under coupon rationing in Canada in this war. Gasoline has been rationed by coupon since April 1.

Sugar—unlike many other foods—has been rationed in Britain since early in the war and householders there long have been accustomed to giving up coupons to obtain their weekly half-pound.

The first coupon books issued will be valid for a 10-week period, Mr. Gordon said. Subsequently books good for six months will be issued.

Tea and coffee have been on the "honor" rationing system since May 26.

Mr. Gordon reiterated in his broadcast that householders who have two weeks' or more supply of sugar on hand must not use their coupons to buy sugar.

Here's how the sugar coupon-ration system will be put into effect:

Forms Via Mail.

In urban districts, simple application forms for coupons will be distributed June 23 to homes receiving a daily house-to-house delivery. Householders must have these forms filled in by June 25. Between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. that day cards will be collected by voluntary workers They will be gathered at a central point from which coupon ration cards with coupons attached will be issued in time to reach each family by July 1.

In rural districts, the application forms also will be distributed by mail. But in this case the recipients must fill them out and drop them in mail boxes at farm gates or at their nearest post office.

The forms will provide space for the name of each member of a family and in houses occupied by more than one family separate cards must be filled out for each family.

Special provision is made for industrial users, public caterers and institutions. These classes of purchasers will not require coupons. Instead they must fill out voucher form when buying sugar. These three classes also become subject to the same limit now applying to industrial users—70 per cent. of the quantity of sugar used in the corresponding quarter of 1941.

Extra for Preserving

Retailers may not sell sugar to an industrial user, a public caterer or an operator of an institution unless the purchaser submits an application for registration as a user of sugar. The application is forwarded to the board by the retailers and names the retailers as the sole supplier of the purchaser for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1942.

Provision is made for furnishing extra supplies, over the 70 per cent. quota, to industrial users for preserving and canning domestic fruits and vegetables. Sugar Administrator S. R. Noble, on recommendation of Food Administrator J. G. Taggart, may make arrangements for such extra supplies.

The existing provision whereby householders can get an extra sugar allowance for preserving and jam-making remains in effect. One-half pound of sugar is allowed for every pound of fruit weight to be preserved and three-quarters of a pound for each pound of fruit to be made into jams or jellies. Householders wanting this extra allowance must complete a purchase voucher form which retail stores will furnish.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

Air Chief Harris Out To Bomb Nazi Helpless

By DREW MIDDLETON.

LONDON, June 19. — (AP). — Sir Arthur Travers Harris, Chief of the Royal Air Force Bomber Command who organized the thousand-plane raids on Cologne and the Ruhr, is the only Allied military leader to declare publicly that, given the right conditions, he could end the war by autumn.

Watching the big bombers leave on one major raid, he said:

"If I could send 20,000 bombers over Germany to-night, Germany would not be in the war to-morrow; if I could send 1,000 bombers every night it would end the war by autumn."

Air Marshal Harris is carrying out the policy he planned in the lean years between 1933 and 1937 when he was Deputy Director of Plans for the R.A.F.

He is Britain's foremost exponent of the decisive power of the air arm. This war and all future wars will be won by air power, he declares.

Sir Arthur predicts the Germans will "scream for mercy" when the combined British and American Air Forces begin working on them, and then, he adds happily, "the time will come for a final kick in the pants for Japan."

Vigorous Fit at 50.

Sir Arthur's knighthood— Knight Commander of the Bath—was conferred upon him in last week's King's birthday honors.

Profane and energetic, Sir Arthur is vigorous and fit at 50. No old-school-tie boy, he sometimes shocks subordinates from the public schools with his salty speech and brusque manner.

Before the last war he was a tobacco planter in Rhodesia. He joined the first Rhodesian Regiment as a bugler in 1914. A year later he was transferred to the Royal Flying Corps.

Army life left him with a deep-rooted aversion to walking. To-day he will walk only a few steps.

He got permanent commission in the R.A.F. in 1919 after three years of flying and fighting in France.

Berlin Wants Sevastopol By Monday

Need It For Anniversary Of Stroke At Russia, Keep Breaches Filled

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 20—(AP).—Reinforced Nazi troops—perhaps spurred by hopes of a token victory for the first anniversary of the German-Russian war Monday—appeared today to be increasing pressure upon Sevastopol.

Soviet dispatches said fresh soldiers had joined Gen. Erich von Mannstein's assault divisions to replace the thousands who had fallen in the all-out offensive he launched against the Crimean naval base 16 days ago.

Multiple attacks again tested the fortifications. Some Red army gun crews were buried alive under earth thrown up by German shells. Smoke screens covered infantry thrusts.

Nevertheless, a Berlin claim that defences of the besieged Crimean stronghold had been cracked lacked confirmation here.

"Our infantrymen, sailors and artillerymen, repelling attacks of the enemy, are delivering ever new blows against them, the Soviet information bureau said in a communique.

Dispatches to Red fleet, Russian naval publication, reported four German infantry regiments, supported by numerous tanks and 60-plane aerial formations, drove close to a defence strong point, but were thrown back after a 15-hour battle.

Smoke Screen Fails.

Four attempts to break through under cover of smoke screens in another sector also were repulsed, the Russian artillerymen disposing of the Nazi tanks while mortar batteries blasted the infantry.

"In the course of one day only, the heroic defenders of Sevastopol annihilated over a regiment of the enemy infantry and destroyed 20 German tanks," a communique said. "Ten planes were brought down by anti-aircraft fire."

A 48-hour fight on the Kalinin front north-west of Moscow, was said to have led to the death of about 1,500 Germans and damaging of eight tanks.

Russian warships in the Barents Sea sank a 15,000-ton Axis transport and Russian fliers, in addition to other work, destroyed an enemy torpedo boat, the communique said.

More than 700 were reported killed in another two-day fight in the Kalinin region during futile attacks which also cost the invaders three tanks and three field guns.

Hun on Heights at Sevastopol, Port in Danger As Nazis Pound Reds in Cross Barrage

LONDON, June 20.—(CP).— The BBC quoted its Moscow correspondent, Paul Witerton, today as saying the "Germans have reached a high road leading to Sevastopol" and "the danger is very great."

"Throwing in reinforcements regardless of cost, they (the Germans) are now hammering the fortress from both south and east, and from across the mile-wide estuary to the north," the broadcast quoted him as saying. "They admit continued Russian resistance on the northern side of the harbor, and there is no confirmation of a German claim that shock troops have reached the docks."

The Germans dropped several hundred thousand bombs in a single morning, and have wedged a weight of men and metal into a position pointing dangerously at the heart of the city, he added. The correspondent said the Russians estimated the Germans had lost 40,000 killed during the present attack, now in its third week.

Purge To Red Austria, Germany Of All Who Disagree With Nazis

LONDON, June 20—(CP).—A purge of "anti-social elements"—a euphemism for all who disagree with the Nazis—has begun in Vienna and the lower Danube province of Austria, the German news agency D.N.B. reported today, intimating that the campaign would embrace the entire German Reich.

In a radio broadcast, D.N.B. defined the "anti-social" person as anyone who "owing to criminal, anti state or querulous inclinations continually enters into conflict with the penal law, the police and other authorities."

These, it said, represent "an element of unrest of the first order," so that their elimination is "very important, particularly in wartime."

Those arrested will be sent either to "welfare institutes," to forced labor, or to Gestapo "education camps," the broadcast said.

It indicates that the purge included persons deemed of unsound mind or immoral but that it also was taking in all persons deemed by the Nazis to be "incapable of living in the community" for any reason.

Must All Think Alike.

The broadcast said:

"The leadership of the National Socialist (Nazi) German Workers' party for racial policy has welcomed and approved these steps...

"Throughout the entire Reich there must be a uniform conception of who is capable of living in the community.

"To ensure this uniform attitude, clarification of the term recently arrived at in the Gau Niederdonau (Lower Danube Province) has been made compulsory. It conforms with directives issued by the Reich's Ministry of Interior concerning definition of hereditary diseases.

"According to this leaflet individuals incapable of living in a community are all those who owing to their mental attitude are incapable of satisfying the minimum requirements of the national community regarding their personal, social and national bearing....

"The annuity-hunter, loath to do any kind of work, and the insurance sponger, or whoever tries to burden the community with his up-

7,000-Mile Bombers Said Ready To Upset Allies

WASHINGTON June 20—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt were believed today to be mapping counter-blows to a desperate Axis summer offensive in Europe, Asia and Africa. The White House continued the strict official silence imposed when the strategy conferences were announced on Thursday night.

Official encouragement to speculate on invasion of the European Continent, the grave turn of the war in Africa and the rising fury of conflict on the Eastern front indicates to many in Washington that decisions are being made in the knowledge that Berlin and Tokyo already are sending new forces toward a battle whose zero hour is drawing near.

Observers pointed out that diplomatic sources in London knew of German troop movements for the Russian War several months before it started and that Britain had tried to stem the German drive through the Balkans with troop convoys which had to be planned weeks in advance.

Any large-scale change in German dispositions now, it is said, can hardly be concealed from air reconnaissance or the eyes of the tens of millions of defeated peoples in countries through which troop trains might have to pass. Most of the European governments in London have been able to keep in touch with sources in their homeland and would get such information.

See Suez One of First Nazi Goals

London reports that Prime Minister Churchill is seeking quick United States help in stablizing the Mediterranean front are taken to indicate that Britain believes a tremendous German drive against Suez is impending, if not already under way. As for the Pacific, word from China that the Japanese are preparing a blow against Siberia is being taken with increasing seriousness.

Observers assessing the world military situation saw American production power slowly tipping the scale in any long-range view of the war. They believed the Axis, therefore, would try for a quick victory.

In southeastern Europe there would be an all-out drive toward the Caucasus oil lands. It might be coupled with a push toward Suez from the north either by way of Crete and Syria or through neutral Turkey. Any successful drive through Turkey also would flank Russian

Berlin Reports Big Soviet Push On Smolensk Moscow Keeps Nazis Guessing, Says Nothing

MOSCOW, June 20 (AP)—Keeping the enemy guessing as to their real intentions the Russians remained silent today on a German report that the Red army had launched a huge new offensive against Smolensk. (A BBC broadcast from London said the Russians had recaptured a large town on the Kalinin front in the sector north of Smolensk.)

The German report, as heard here, said Russian infantry in the central sector west of Moscow was attacking in waves with tank and infantry support, but there was no confirmation from any Soviet quarter.

It was recalled here, however, that when the Germans began their early May offensive on the Kerch Peninsula in the Crimea, the Russians began their own offensive against Kharkov May 12 but said nothing about it officially for several days.

R.A.F. Blast Osnabruk Rail Junction In Greatest Raid Of Past 2 Weeks

LONDON,, June 20—(CP).—The R.A.F. blasted the docks of Emden, German naval base, and the rail junction of Osnabruck last night in the heaviest air smash at Germany in two weeks, it was announced today.

An Air Ministry communique reported that a "strong force"—usually indicating an armada of 250 to 300 planes—was used in the operations, the first after a two-night lull forced by bad weather.

Emden, which the Air Ministry said Wednesday had suffered 'major damage,' has been hammered in 7 R.A.F. raids. It was the 39th raid reported on Osnabruck, which had been free from Britain's bombs since last August 12.

Osnabruck is an iron and steel and communications centre in northwest Germany.

The communique said nine British planes are missing from the night's missions which also included the bombing of enemy airfields in the Netherlands.

Windows Broken In Norwood Area

NORWOOD, June 20—(ENS)— A devastating hail and wind storm struck this village and extended as far east as Campbellford on Friday afternoon. Almost all the gardens are ruined, and most houses reported windows cracked, and in some many were broken. About 50 panes were broken in the Public and High Schools, and many large trees were blown down throughout the village. The streets were littered with leaves that had been chopped from the trees by the hail. Many of the hail stones were as large as walnuts, and most were as big as good sized marbles. The writer has often seen this written before, but seeing is believing, and today convinced me that such do fall.

Perhaps the family to suffer most by the storm in this district was that of Fred Buck, about a mile south of the village. Every window in the house was broken, and the rain flooded inside as well as out. The hail and rain caused most damage inside the home where pictures and glassware was broken and quilts which were used to try and protect the open windows were torn to shreds. Much crop damage is also reported from the farmers in the district, and telephone and hydro service interrupted for some hours.

Bottle-Fed Cat

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., June 20—(AP)— John Wayne Morris is an unusual name for a cat. But he's an unusual cat. When he sees his owner get his milk bottle, nipple attached, he rushes for a living room chair, turns over on his back and waits impatiently for Mrs. Hutton to give him the bottle. No dog's life, Huh?

Bullet Lodges In Man's Hip

BANCROFT, June 20—(ENS). — An accidental rifle discharge, Friday evening, in the course of a bear hunt, resulted in Arthur Shields, of Scott's Settlement, north of Bancroft, being taken to the Belleville General Hospital, with a bullet lodged in his hip. His condition is announced as serious.

The forty-five-year-old man along with a neighbor, George Simpson, was at McGarry, 13 miles north of Bancroft, hunting for a bear that was reported prowling in that vicinity. The two men were crawling through a brush fence, Shields in the lead, when Simpson's 32:40 calibre rifle accidentally went off, the bullet lodging in Arthur Shields' hip.

The injured man was brought to the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. S. S. Lumb. He was later taken to the Belleville General Hospital.

Rommel Re-equips, Bolsters Troops For Gigantic Assault To Seize Tobruk

See Armored Forces Tying British Divisions At Salum, Other Border Points While Nazis Mass For Assault On Nile

CAIRO, June 20—(AP).—Light mobile forces of Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie's 8th Army screened hurried dispositions for the defence of Egypt today and two major Axis columns were reported to have veered back westward after they were engaged about 25 miles from Bardia.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's main forces were reported re-equipped and reorganized for what most informed sources believed would be a gigantic assault on Tobruk, siege-threatened Libyan port 70 miles west of Bardia.

A possibility Rommel would choose to by-pass Tobruk was not ruled out, but military observers said reduction of its fortifications—which British forces have held since ousting its Italian garrison in the 1940-41 winter offensive—would enable the African corps leader to plan its use as a main base in an autumn drive toward the Nile.

Tobruk's garrison is cut off from overland supplies.

While Rommel is instituting siege preliminaries, consisting largely of artillery and aerial bombardments, his armored forces may be able to tie up the British desert divisions at Salum and other points along the frontier. The two columns newly reported engaged may have been simply on reconnaissance-in-force assignments, feeling out the new British alignments.

"The enemy did not press his advance," a communique said, "both enemy columns turning back to the westward after having approached to within about 25 miles of Bardia."

Black Day for Ritchie.

The black day for the 8th Army was a week ago to-day when a strong force of British tanks fell into ambush before 88 millimetre German guns. This changed the course of the Libyan campaign, it was disclosed to-day.

The British tank force was attacking the German 90th Light Armored Division, which in turn was assaulting the British 5th Northumbrian Infantry Division. A radioed message told British Headquarters of the latter's difficulties.

This may have been a genuine appeal for aid or a decoy sent by the Germans to lure the British command into a trap.

The 15th German Armored Division, made up of heavy tanks, closed in on the British tanks at short range and the 90th withdrew.

Because of inferior armor, the British tank crews sped from the battlefield to avoid the German heavies, pursuing the Nazi light division.

Far along the Capuzzo road Rommel had constructed an ambush of 88's, cleverly camouflaged. British tanks, already sandwiched between the guns of light and heavy German divisions, were caught at close range.

Their losses are believed here to have been unusually high. Britons said Rommel did not have fresh tank forces for his later thrusts which were to drive garrisons from a series of desert strong points; he had no need fo them.

Ilsley Expected To Hit Incomes, Ale, Amusement

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 20.—(CP).—Finance Minister Isley intends to bring down his budget next Tuesday and word has gone out that he will hold the taxing portion open until a few hours before he delivers his speech in the House of Commons.

The general feeling is that the Minister will insist on increasing the national revenue to help pay for the war. The most likely place he will turn to get money are considered to be the various taxes on incomes and profits.

Mr. Ilsley will give no intimation of what he intends to do, but domestic developments since the war began limit the field from which he can draw further revenue.

There is considerable conjecture that:

1. Individual and corporation income taxes may be increased, particularly in the higher brackets.
2. Increased revenue may be sought from the national defence tax, now five per cent. for married persons and seven per cent. for single persons;
3. Excess profits may go higher;
4. There may be heavier taxes on liquor, soft drinks, transportation and amusements.

Wants To Keep Living Steady.

The problem confronting the Minister is how to increase the taxation without increasing the cost of living. It is generally agreed that the most powerful factor in the fight against inflation is keeping wages at the present levels and this, it is contended, would not be possible if the budget increased living costs.

With this in view the Minister is not expected to find much additional revenue from the tariff for any increase would increase the cost of living. The same argument would

London, June 20 (CP)

THE news service of the Polish Government in London declared today that a new wave of mass executions have started in Poland and that more and more women are falling before Nazi execution squads.

Of 15 persons said to have been hanged recently in Poznan, the agency said 12 were women. Among other executions, it said, 40 persons, including 22 women, were removed from Warsaw prison, taken to Modlin fortress and shot.

Tobruk Still a Thorn in Rommel's Side

Ritchie Saves Most Of His Troops Despite Armored Losses—Astride Road To Egypt

Written For The Canadian Press
By Maj.-Gen. Sir Charles Gwynn

LONDON, June 20—(CP Cable)—By a firm and quick decision, Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie has extricated those portions of his army which were in difficult and dangerous situations in Libya. It is plain that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has inflicted a disconcerting reverse, but it is equally evident that he has failed so far to achieve his original air and has paid heavily for the gains he has made.

Gen. Ritchie has experienced his most serious loss among his armored strength, a loss which influences immediate operations but conceivably can be made good.

Events leading to the present situation appear to be, briefly, as follows: Rommel, while standing on the defensive in the gap in the minefields, concentrated on the attack of the practically isolated Free French force at Bir Hacheim. Unable to relieve the post or to maintain its supplies without dangerously dispersing his forces, Gen. Ritchie ordered and successfully accomplished the withdrawal of the gallant garrison which for 17 days had resisted all attacks and inflicted heavy losses—a feat of immense psychological value.

Back To His First Plan

Though disappointed in his hopes of annihilating the Free French force, Rommel acquired a liberty of manoeuvre which he promptly exploited. He reverted to his initial plan, which sought to cut off Ritchie's Ain El Gazala force from its supply base at Tobruk as a step toward its decisive defeat.

Striking east he attempted to capture El Adem while his advance patrols struck at the road leading to Tobruk from the east. Foiled for a time by the defence of El Adam and the action of mobile troops, he wheeled northward toward the coast between Tobruk and Gazala, attacking Ritchie's defensive boxes at Knightsbridge and Acroma. It was a risky move while Ritchie's armoured force was free to move on behind him, but it met with success owing to one of those incidents whic arrive unexpectedly to affect the whole course of mobile operations.

Seeking to seize their opportunity, Ritchie's armoured forces concentrated for attack but ran into a strong concentration of well concealed heavy anti-tank guns. Rommel may have placed them as a trap or merely as protection. Apparently owing to a dust storm the normal advance patrols had failed to give warning. As they came under intense fire at close range, heavy losses were suffered by the British tanks, which evidently were moving in close formation.

In a few minutes the balance of armoured strength was weighted

Business As Usual For Army

Activities Army Week All In Line of Training

OTTAWA, June 20 (CP)—It will be business as usual with the Canadian Army during "Army Week."

Orders have gone out from National Defence Headquarters that training and other activities of the men in khaki are to go ahead as usual from June 29 to July 5.

While civilians pay honor to the army and come to look at it, the army will be going through its regular daily paces. The public will see the routine life and work of the troops, not special shows put on for their benefit.

Army training, in the opinion of headquarters, is too urgent a matter to be interrupted and at all events it is felt the public would prefer the army in its workaday dress.

Also because of the gasoline and tire shortage, it is felt no extra travelling and running of army vehicles should be encouraged for the sake of army week.

So when a body of troops moves from a camp to a city to put on an army week demonstration they will be doing their regular bit of training.

HOUSE OF COMMONS DEBATES JAPANESE ISSUE ON WEST COAST

Problem Of Japs Worrying B.C.'s Members

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 20 (CP)—House of Commons debate on the government bill to permit conscription for overseas service enters its ninth day Monday, with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and six of his ministers having expressed support for the measure.

Revenue Minister Gibson, the sixth minister to speak, said yesterday Canada should be proud of her volunteer army overseas, and that the Dominion should be kept a volunteer force if it is possible.

Debate yesterday was delayed for an hour while British Columbia members voiced anxiety over the Japanese situation in that province. T. J. O'Neil (Lib. Kamloops) obtained adjournment of the debate to discuss this problem.

Labor Minister Mitchell praised the British Columbia Security Commission which has been in charge of moving Japanese from the coastal protected area and said humane treatment for the Japanese being moved must be provided.

The Overseas Conscription Bill yesterday was assured support from a Conservative member, John R. MacNicol (Con. Toronto-Davenport).

Factory Workers To Buy New Inhalator

PORT HOPE, June 20.—(ENS)—The dance held by the employees of the Nicholson File Co., on Friday night, June 19, proved a huge success. The dance proper took place at the town hall. The overflow crowd danced to a Cobourg Orchestra at the Port Hope pavilion.

This dance sponsored by the Nicholson File employees backed by all the factories of the town and given the loyal support of all citizens was arranged when the employees of the file factory realized the great need for equipment for drowning accidents after a recent drowning fatality which occurred just outside their factory two weeks ago and no equipment was available.

On advice of the doctor of the town and the firemen it is planned to buy a respirator, inhalator and aspirator, from the proceeds of this dance at a cost of $575, to be donated to the town of Port Hope and to be left in charge of the fire department. The committee feel confident that almost all this amount is raised through the efforts of the committee in charge of this dance.

apply to the eight per cent. sales tax, the 10 per cent. war exchange tax on all goods imported from other than Empire countries and the tax on sugar.

The special manufacturers' taxes on automobiles and a long list of other items might be increased but the sales of all these have been greatly curtailed and increases would not bring in much additional revenue, it is contended.

The excise duties on liquors, beers cigars, cigarettes may be further increased. The Ontario Government sought to increase liquor prices some years ago and there was such a drop in sales that the profits fell off instead of being increased. As a result prices were put back to the old levels. However money is more plentiful in the country now than it was then and Mr. Ilsley may decide the traffic can stand an additional tax.

The soft drink tax may be increased but the curtailment in the amount of this commodity which manufacturers are permitted to produce may discourage the minister from increasing the tax. The same would apply to the gasoline tax.

More On Travel.

The transportation tax on all transportation tickets of more than 50 cents may be a fruitful source of more revenue with the heavy railway, bus and air traffic. However, much of the increased traffic is the result of war work so considerable of the increased returns from jacking up the tax would come out of Government departments.

Well informed sources here do not think Mr. Ilsley will further increase the succession duties. They have been in effect only a year and the field is divided with the Provinces. These sources figure he will try the present scale out for another year at the present levels.

United Counties Financial Set Up Lauded By Department Officials

COBOURG, June 20.—(ENS). —Solid financial condition of Northumberland and Durham counties was lauded by J. B. McCombes of the Department of Municipal Affairs during the course of an address to the close of the June session of counties council on Thursday. Council wound up its June session on Thursday night.

Mr. Combes gave comparison figures for 1934 and 1941. In 1934 with the counties' population at 53,653, the levy was 360,000. In 1941 with the population at 50,822 the levy was at $23,7000. In 1934 the debenture debt was $767,507 with a per capita tax of $14. In 1941 the debenture debt was $385,000 with a per capita tax of $7.

"That is a good showing," Mr Combes said. "Except for a few counties it is the trend of the counties throughout the province of paying as you go. While the provincial debt has increased, that of the municipalities has decreased."

Mr Combes referred to the fact that instead of issuing debentures periodically every twenty years to cover accrued indebtedness, the municipalities had very wisely adopted a policy of paying as it went along. Mr. Combes discussed to some length changes in assessing which the Department as under consideration. The proposed plan would consist of a county appointed assessor, whom the Department would instruct in a new system of assessing which had been the outgrowth of a world-wide survey of assessing methods made over a long period of years. The county assessor in turn would be assisted by other assessors. If the proposed measures went into effect there would be no need for equalizing the assessment from time to time.

"I think it is a poor time for experimenting," was the opinion voiced by Reeve T. Reid of Clarke township.

"It is not an experiment. It is a carefully worked out plan," replied Mr. Combes.

"It looks as if we are giving up something to the hands of a few and like most ideas the government gets along these lines it is going to cost us money. Can a new man appointed by the counties council do a better job than the fellows who have been doing it and wo know the townships from one end to the other. Why this thing will cost thousands of dollars," declared Deputy-Reeve W. Smith of Murray township.

Efficient Assessment.

"How do you know it will cost you more money? You pay a man under the present system $75 or a $150 and is it just a case of your assessor getting his daughter to copy last year's assessment. If it does cost more, you will have an efficient assessment," replied Mr. Combes.

Prior to the discussion on the Assessment Act opening up, Reeve W. R. Pickell of Darlington township and Reeve W. Barnard of South Monaghan township proposed a resolution which suggested that the Dept. of Municipal Affairs form an amendment in the Assessment Act which would provide for more uniformity and equity in the form of taxation. This resolution carried.

As a result of a recommendation from the Board of Management, Mrs. Rena Thompson was appointed by by-law to the post of superintendent of the Counties Home She is already matron. By combining the two jobs, council saves $500 a year, this sum to be diverted to acquiring a good man to run the farm serving the institution.

The report of the reforestation committee recommended purchase of two lots of land, one at $75 and the other at $100 for reforestation purposes.

Tobruk Still

in Rommel's favor, the more so because the battle ground remained in his possession, prohibiting the recovery of our damaged vehicles. As a consequence Ritchie promptly decided to withdraw from Ain El Gazala and Knightsbridge, postions which were threatened with encirclement. This was accomplished successfully despite heavy fighting in which the Acroma garrison and the armoured forces gave immense assistance to the withdrawing troops.

Tobruk Still a Thorn.

In spite of the reverse Ritchie has again disappointed Rommel's hopes. Tobruk is as strongly held as ever.

Passage of convoys through the Mediterranean may have a marked influence on the situation. Malta again has been replenished and is as big a menace as ever to Rommel's communications.

The navy has again accomplished a great feat with the aid of shore-based aircraft and apparently, despite the usual extravagant Italian claims, losses were confined to transports and presumably some damage to the escort ships The Italian navy, on the other hand, again suffered heavily.

Caucasian Main Drive Held Up.

On the Russian front, Sevastopol continues to offer magnificent resistance to desperate German attempts to effect its capture, with the Black Sea fleet apparently still able to maintain communications and throw in supplies and reinforcements.

Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock has again attempted to remove the Russian salient south of Kharkov and heavy fighting resulted. The bridgehead across the Donets which the Germans claim to have established is reported to be more than a temporary footing gained by parachute troops. It is increasingly evident that the German main offensive toward the Caucasus is held up by the resistance of Sevastopol and by Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's menacing positions.

The attacks on them are preliminary operations and until sections of the air force taking part there are released to start to the main operation looks improbable. When it does, the preliminary encounters should have deprived it of some of its sting.

There has been further confirmation of the increased power of defence against armored attack and Moscow has forecast that deep armored penetrations will not be attempted in this year's operations.

Japan's Naval Reserve

In the Far East the heavy losses of Japanese ships in their Aleutian island enterprise reduce still further the danger of attacks on Australia and India. The enterprise has left Japan with another line of sea communications to maintain and has diminished the fleet. Air raids and counter-raids continue in the Australian zone with the result in favor of the Allies but without decisive consequences.

The situation in China is obscure. Japanese advances apparently aim at surrounding Chinese forces in Chekiang but the Chinese are fighting stubbornly and counter-attacking both inside and outside the ring.

Glancing Back 25 Years: Announcement of the appointment of Sir Arthur Currie as commander of the Canadian Corps on the western front was made June 19, 1917. The great citizen-soldier succeeded Sir Julian Byng when the brilliant British officer was promoted to the command of the 3rd army. Sir Arthur's appointment was a marked recognition of Canadian military genius and for the first time the command of a corps passed from a British officer to a native-born Canadian.

Nazis Boast Egypt Next Goal

Reverses In Libya Stirs British Storm Of Criticism

LONDON, June 20.—(C).—German broadcasts boasted to-day that Hitler's desert army was ready to sweep into Egypt as bitter British disillusionment turned into demands that the House of Commons air what went wrong in Libya.

Whether German reports that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was ready for a second phase of his offensive were true or mere propaganda. British reverses in Libya have made the threat to Egypt and the Suez an ominous reality.

Assured a week ago that success was within grasp, Britons were totally unprepared for the sudden reversal in the Libyan fighting and for the explanation of military observers that again there was "too little" against overwhelming enemy might.

The Daily Mail, joining a chorus of newspaper criticism, demanded an airing in Parliament.

"The enemy knows why and how he won the battle," it declared. "We have a right to know how we lost it."

In broad terms, the unconsoling analysis of British military critics was that the British 8th Army lacked what it needed to stem Rommel's thrust—foresight to gauge the enemy's strength correctly, adequate armored equipment and the skill to use what it had to best advantage.

Specifically, they said the lessons of the Libyan campaign were that the British forces needed more 28-ton tanks and that even superior air strength over desert battlefields cannot be made a dominant factor.

"Go ye into the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation." —Mark 16:15.

Restoration of St. Peter

REV. E. R. JAMES

Jesus saith to Simon Peter: Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou Me?—St. John 21:15.

The man who had lain on Jesus' breast knew the mind of the Christ better than the other Apostles. With deep spiritual insight he adds this inspiring story. Every thoughtful Christian will recognize its personal appeal.

The sun had risen on Lake Galilee. A voice from the shore hailed the boatmen with the natural question: "Children, have yet any meat?" A tired voice replied: "No." "Cast the net on the right side of the ship and ye shall find" is the brief command. They obeyed and caught a multitude of fishes. Immediately St. John, the beloved disciple, recognizes the Master through the sign and exclaimed: "It is the Lord. Some blessing comes to you. Do you at once recognize its Author to be the Lord?

Characteristically St. Peter plunges into the water to go to the Lord. The rest follow dragging the nets full of fishes. Do you carelessly pas over the words: "When they had dined." They have psychological meaning. The disciples are tired, weary, hungry men. The needs of the body have to be satisfied. The Master knows what is in man. Then comes the searching question: "Lovest thou Me?" St. Peter had openly denied the Lord. Now openly and in the presence of the Apostles he is restored to his place.

The Bible places great stress upon the meaning of names. Jacob becomes Israel, a Prince with God. Simon means the man who can hear, who can listen. He is a good listener. Have you practiced the art of listening? Words stick in Simon's mind. In the High Priest's Palace St. Peter had openly denied the Lord thrice. Our Lord simply turned and looked at Peter. "Peter remembered the word which the Lord had spoken to him." It was enough. "Peter went out and wept bitterly."

"Son of Jonas" is the son of John and more easily remembered. John means "The gift of God." How appropriated that the child of Zacharias and Elizabeth should be called John—"The gift of God."

Greek is remarkable for its shades of meaning, delighting the Greek mind. In this passage two Greek words are translated by the same word "love." Our Lord asks: "Lovest thou Me?" in the sense of love in its deepest and most spiritual quality. St. Peter knowing his own frailty does not dare to use the same word. He uses the lower word for friendship and fellowship: "Lord, Thou knowest that I am thy friend," as Archbishop Temple translates. Then follows the restoration to the Apostleship: "Feed My lambs."

Again Our Lord repeats the same question and St. Peter replies with the lower word in his deep humility.

Again Our Lord repeats the same question and St. Peter replies with the lower word in his deep humility.

For the third Our Lord repeats the question. He descended to Simon's level using the same word: "Lovest thou Me as a friend?" Simon was hurt to the quick not only because the Lord asked him for the third time but because the Lord had come down to his own level. There is intense emotion in the words: "Peter was grieved." Deep pain in his heart at the thought of the Lord ever doubting Peter's use of the lower word "friend." Can you hear the note of pain: "Lord, Thou knowest all things" is the appeal to the Lord's divine knowledge as Son of God. There is also a clear reference to the three years of fellowship and discipleship. "Thou knowest that I love Thee."

There is no doubt that the Apostles were drawn to the Lord through His personal attractions. "As Jesus passed from thence He saw a man named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom. He saith unto Him; "Follow Me." "This same Jesus," risen and ascended Lord, asks you and me this searching, personal question: "Lovest thou Me?" As you follow Him gradually He will reveal Himself to you. In this life you will see nothing of His perfect beauty. It will grip and facinate you.

SEEK YE MY FACE; MY HEART SAID UNTO THEE: THY FACE, LORD, I WILL SEEK.

Jesus Christ Committed A Task to the Disciples

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 21 is Matthew 28:16-20; Mark 16:14-20; Luke 24:49-53, the Golden Text being Mark 16:15, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to the whole creation.")

ACCORDING to St. Mark's account of the resurrection of Jesus, He first appeared to Mary Magdalene, then to the two we heard of last week, who walked ith Him on the road to Emmaus. All these told the others of the Risen Lord, but they would not believe. The Lord was on earth for 40 days before His ascension.

Later He appeared to the 11 as they sat at meat (this was still on Easter Day), and upbraided them for their unbelief and hardness of heart, "because they believed not them which had seen Him after He was risen."

St. Matthew tells us next that the 11 apostle swent to a mountain in Galilee where Jesus had "appointed them." We do not know when He gave His command, but He met them there, and "when they say Him, they worshipped Him: but some doubted."

Jesus said to them on this occasion, "All power is given unto Me in heaven and in earth."

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost:

"I Am With You Alway"

"Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever, I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

St, Luke's account of the same happening tells us that Jesus at this time told His apostles to tarry in the city of Jeruslem until "ye be endued with power from on high," in other words, until the Holy Ghost came upon them.

And St. Luke says, "He led them out as far as to Bethany, and he lifted up His hands, and blessed them."

"And it came to pass, while He blessed them, He was parted from them, and carried up into Heaven.

"And they worshipped Him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy:

"And were continually in the temple, praising and blessing God." Matthew, you see, says nothing of the ascension.

St. Marks account of the talk with the apostles and subsequent ascension is different from that of the the two, as he tells first of Jesus' upbraiding of the 11 as they sat at table, and then telling them to go "into the world, and preach the gospel to every creature."

"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.

"And these signs shall follow them that believe; In My name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; They shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay their hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

After He had so spoken, says St. Mark, "He was received up into heaven and sat on the right hand of God.

"And they went forth, and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word wtih signs following."

Thus the first Christian missionaries were sent out to preach the gospel "to all men"—not tot the Jews alone, not to the Gentiles only—but to ALL. Most missionaries no longer have the power that Mark tells us Jesus bestowed on His apostles, but they go as earnestly as ever did these first preachers to bring the gospel to the people who live in the farthest corners of the earth. And they believe and trust that to-day, as in those early times when Jesus left them and ascended into heaven, that their Lord is with them always.

New Life Is Breaking In Great Britain

The following is a broadcast in the BBC's short wave overseas service by the Rev. R. R. Williams: "I want to tell you about a remarkable example of new life breaking out among a crowd of young people in East London. This led them to a number of unusual experiments in Youth Service—service, that is, by Youth and for Youth.

"Their part of London had had a bad time in the blitz of last winter, but as soon as it was over the youth groups of a number of churches there were setting to work with eyes on the future.

"The first unusual thing about their effort was its very broad basis. All churches, Anglican, Free and Roman Catholic took part in it. They got together, planned together, and worked together. They decided to make contact with a big County Technical College which happened to be situated there. The Principal gave them an opportunity to talk to the students about their plans, and allowed them to hold their first big conference for students and local youth leaders in the college.

"The Conference announced as its subjects "A Christian New Order" and discussed the five points on national reconstruction agreed upon by British Church leaders in the famous "Times" letter. The Conference sessions, over a whole weekend, had an average attendance of over 500, and this at the end of six months intensive bombing.

"Since then these young people have kept together, meeting one week in their own church-fellowships, and the next in one central group held at the College. During these last months they have been working at the second of the "Five Points"—discussing how educational opportunity may be shared more equitably among all races and classes.

"But they have not only been talking. They have been acting. The various groups are working hard to open up new club-facilities all over the area, co-operating fully in this with the new Government plan for the Service of Youth. They believe that the Christian Churches must play their part in the many-sided activities being planned for British Youth; well as physical effort. They encourage young people not only to belong to Youth Fellowships, but to feel a responsibility in local affairs, especially to work with, and for, the Youth of their district.

"Already the movement has spread to five other big boroughs. They call themselves "The Christian New Order Society." These people have got something big to give to the real—not the sham New-Order."

Task Committed to the Disciples — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matt. 28:16-20; Mark 16:14-20; Luke 24:49-53.

St. Matthew reports that after the resurrection of Jesus, the disciples were commanded to go to Galilee, into a mountain, and Jesus came unto them there.

St. Luke tells us that before Jesus sent the disciples forth to preach and baptize, He "upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart."

"All power is given unto Me in heaven and in the earth," Jesus told His disciples, and told them to go forth and teach the nations.

Jesus went with His disciples as far as Bethany, where He "lifted up His hands and blessed them," and was parted from them. (GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 16:15)

Shall We Revenge?

Since the destruction of the Czech town of Lidice, and the murder and dispersal of its inhabitants by the Germans, there have been repeated calls for revenge in the press. There has been some hair-splitting, of course; some papers speak of "reprisals," and some counsel that counter-action against the Germans and their towns should not be undertaken in a revengeful spirit. But in the end the discussions boil down to an insistence that this vicious German hooliganism be stopped, and some form of revenge seems to be the only thing that will stop it.

We do not like the idea of revenge, and we do not suppose that our contempories like it either. History shows that revenge never works with complete success; revenge merely begets more revenge, and the committer of the first boastly act always remains the victor. But war must be fought in acts and not in theories, and when once we take up the sword we must be prepared to abjure at least a part of our philosophy until we sheathe it again. Lidice, the destruction of 60,000 Jews in Vilna, and the slaughter of scores of innocent men and women in Europe convince us that we must take action to stop further atrocities. And that action must be revengeful, even though that goes against the grain.

But there is revenge and revenge. Britain's threat that she would use gas against Germany if that country used gas against Russia has apparently proved effective. Can we not threaten that repetitions of the Lidice horror will bring vengeance upon German cities? Then, if the warning is unheeded, we should have to resort to indiscriminate bombing. The prospect is a horrible one, but there are worse things, and we believe continued German terrorism to be one of these.

Death of a Statesman

The death this week of Sir Charles Fitzpatrick severs one more tie with a great age of Canadian politics; Sir Charles had been in retirement for almost twenty years and to the younger generation of Canadians he had become a legend in his own lifetime. For this was the man who, fifty-seven years ago, acted as counsel for Louis Riel, the rebel, living in a tent with the other lawyers in the case in the tiny settlement which was the Regina of those days. He was a member of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's "Cabinet of All the Talents." He became Chief Justice of Canada, and a member of the Imperial Privy Council. He was instrumental in persuading Pope Leo XIII. to appoint a Papal Delegation to Canada. He became a Grand Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. And, after his last task—that of serving as Lieutenant-Governor of his own Province of Quebec—Sir Charles spent the long twilight of his life in happy and honored retirement.

Charles Fitzpatrick was born in 1853 in the city of Quebec, the son of John Fitzpatrick, a well known Irish citizen. He was educated at St. Anne's College, Quebec Seminary, and Laval University. He was called to the Quebec Bar in 1876, and soon made a name for himself as a criminal lawyer; he possessed the inestimable advantage of being eloquent both in French and English. His first great success was in his defence of Riel; Fitzpatrick took the case to London for a hearing before the Privy Council, and although Riel was eventually hanged his trial was the basis upon which Honore Mercier defeated the Conservative Government of J. J. Ross in Quebec, and Fitzpatrick helped him to do it.

Later, as Solicitor-General and as Minister of Justice, Sir Charles was an intimate and trusted associate of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He was one of those to whom Sir Wilfrid entrusted the delicate task of disassociating Canadian Liberalism—the Gladstonian variety — from Continental liberalism, which was synonymous with atheism and bomb-throwing to the devout of Quebec. The establishment of the Papal Delegation did much to further this end.

Honors crowded upon Sir Charles in his later years, and he wore them with grace and humility. His death takes from our immediate knowledge one more man who was a great fighter and a great builder in the early years of our Confederation.

The Forgotten Man

Tomorrow, if we do not forget, we shall celebrate Father's Day. There has been a little publicity on the subject, and some advertisers have hinted that they have things to sell which Father might like, but their tone is not hopeful; they know that they are fighting a losing battle. "Fathers should be neither seen nor heard; that is the only proper basis for family life," said Oscar Wilde, almost fifty years ago, and the world has shown itself eager to follow his teaching. Mother's Day—well, we all know about Mother's Day; the American Beauties, the chocolates, and the dozens of champagne come into the house by the truckload. But on Father's Day a tie or a new pair of garters may find their way to some homes but not to many. Father is the Forgotten Man.

There was a time, perhaps, when this was excusable. When Father was the only breadwinner in the home it was foolish to give him things, as he had to pay for them himself in the end. Anyway Father got his fun by being the boss of the house; when he slept his children crept about like mice, and when he was out of sorts his mate prepared little dainties to coax him back into good humor. Every day was Father's Day then. But how the wretch has fallen from his former dignity! Who heeds him now? Not his trowsered daughter. Not his armament-making son. Certainly not his wife, that spiritual daughter of Emmeline Pankhurst. Father may think himself lucky tomorrow if the family remember Father's Day in time to let him off washing up the supper dishes.

The Decline of Swearing

An editorial in the current issue of Saturday Night deplores the oaths and blasphemies which are to be found in the pages of so many modern novels. The writer complains that the "native dignity" of our language makes swearing dull because there are so few swear-words in English, and he says, "when a young heroine with an inheritance of culture and with the training of a concert pianist uses steadily the vocabulary of a bargee we stop believing in her." Well, that depends very much on who we are. Our own experience has been that culture tends to extend the vocabulary in all directions and that association with that difficult instrument, the pianoforte, tends to call up and exercise its most lurid extremes. Still, we are glad that Saturday Night has been able to preserve its belief in the purifying influence of art for the fifty-five years of its existence.

Our own feeling is that a decline in swearing (and we may say that we have not noticed any perceptible decline as yet), is a matter for concern, and possibly even for action on the part of the churches. Men swear by what they believe in. The man who strikes his thumb with a hammer and calls upon his God to witness his anguish and punish the offending instrument is surely a better man than the atheist who accepts his misfortune in sour and soul-cankering silence. God knows us all to be poor sinners, and our passionate outcries may be more pleasing to Him than a bitter and silent denial of His existence. And he who damns his enemy's soul to hell may thereby show his human imperfection, but at least he has a rudimentary faith in a Divine Justice. We do not take to Saturday Night's suggestion that it is just as effective to call an enemy "an erudite, pea-green harlequin" as it is to call him a more violent name. When we are strongly moved we speak in terms of our strong belief, and we admire men of strong feelings and strong beliefs more than we do the pea-green harlequins who want to make Nice Nellies of us all.

NOTE AND COMMENT

What we really want is a desert tank with a camel's capacity to go for weeks without fluid.

Don't forget that pork products are being conserved for shipment to Britain. A form of aid called "Hams across the sea."

Gasoline rations have been cut from five gallons to four, and may soon be reduced still further. That's not rationing; that's weaning.

We have received a copy of the "Rainbow Bridge Edition" of the Niagara Falls Evening Review. It is a handsome publication with a fine rotogravure section filled with pictures of Niagara and the towns nearby. We congratulate our contemporary on an ambitious effort, beautifully carried out, and we hope that this special edition will attract all the attention it deserves.

The Baby Who Posed As Adolf Hitler

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IT MAY be that some readers of this column remember a picture which was published in many papers on this continent in 1933, which was labelled as an authentic photograph of Adolf Hitler as a baby. In actual fact the picture looked more like Mussolini. It showed a stout child, lying on its stomach, glowering frightfully at the camera; the mouth and nose are drawn up in a hideous snarl; the hands are fringed with what appear to be toes; the hair falls over the brow in the familiar stringy lock. The picture bore no resemblance to Hitler as he appears today, but it had a decided criminal look. It was accepted without question as an authentic presentment of the infant Fuehrer.

When the picture first appeared the German consul called it a fabrication. No one paid much attention to him except the news agency which circulated the Baby Hitler, and it investigated the matter and found that the picture had come from Austria, and had made its way to London, and was circulated through reputable news channels. Nothing further was heard in the matter until May, 1938, when a Mrs. Harriet M. Downs, of Lakewood, Ohio, saw the picture (she must have been reading a very old newspaper) and recognized it as a snapshot of John May Warren, her son by a former marriage. She produced the original, which showed the baby in the same pose, but without the same sinister appearance; obviously little John Warren had been snapped when he was facing directly into the sun, and he was squinting horribly. He also wore a frilled baby cap. For the purposes of the 'Hitler' picture the cap had been painted out and the characteristic hair had been painted in, and the baby's squint had been distorted into a fearful scowl. How the picture ever got to Austria, and who passed it off on a number of reputable news agencies as a picture of Hitler has never come to light.

NEWSPAPERS and news distributing agencies make every effort to verify the information which they give to the public; their reputation for veracity is their chief stock-in-trade. There are fields of journalism in which veracity takes second place to sensationalism, but the papers which deal in sensation do not appeal to an intelligent or influential section of the public. Of course, the task of verifying news is an extremely difficult one; the correspondent who takes too long in doing it may soon discover that his story has ceased to be news and has become history. But, upon the whole, modern journalists are scrupulous in this respect.

The field of the foreign correspondent offers tempting opportunities for falsification and hoaxing. These men depend for their news upon "well-informed sources" which are not revealed. That is why a correspondent must be a man of character as well as a good reporter, and that is possibly why British and American correspondents lead the world in accuracy. The agents of European newspapers, many of whom are used to a more or less corrupt press, are sometimes apt to rely upon 'sources' which exist nowhere but in their own fertile imaginations. Crooked correspondents among the agents of the British and American press are rare, though they have existed.

THERE is, for instance, the case of Hesketh Pearson, a brilliant but over-imaginative British writer, who once published a book called "Whispering Gallery," containing many intimate glimpses of diplomatic life in Europe, and among others a most startling report of a conversation between King Edward VII and Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany, in which the English King led the German Emperor to reveal his scheme of world conquest. The book came out anonymously, both in Britain and in the States, and caused a great stir. Indeed, the storm was so great that Pearson was forced to confess authorship, and had a bad time with some of the important people who had been introduced into his work of fiction posing as fact.

Another fake which has had a long life is a document which proves that a British subject may become an American citizen for a cost of fifty-three cents and in the time of nine days, three hours and six minutes. This is supposed to be information obtained by Sir William Wiseman, former head of the British Intelligence Service, in 1919, for Lloyd George. Actually it was written as a joke by Dr. William Maloney, a prominent nerve specialist. Nevertheless this piece of nonsense was taken very seriously by William B. Shearer, who was at the Geneva disarmament conferences as 'observer' for a number of American munitions manufacturers, and as late as October, 1939, it was made a subject of debate in Congress by Representative Jacob Thorkelson of Montana. But Congressmen who were acquainted with the chestnut laughed the incensed representative to scorn.

THE FACT of the matter is that we hardly know what not to believe nowadays, when improbabilities are continually becoming commonplaces. Doubtless when this war is over we shall discover a fine collection of hoaxes, misunderstandings and wrong guesses which have been accepted by us, and by the enemy, as truth. Who knows, some ambitious newsman may even give us another false Armistice. That honor in the last war fell by Roy Howard, and he set the whole of America by the ears with his news for several hours.

Unconsidered Trifles

The Hollywood magnate told an assistant that in his opinion a certain writer was the only man for a film they had under consideration. The assistant was tactfully doubtful.

"Don't you think he's a little too caustic?" he suggested.

"Do I care how much he costs?" demanded the producer, "Get him!"

A clergyman noticed a woman named Mrs. Parker, whom he much disliked, coming up his front steps. Taking refuge in his study, he left his wife to entertain the caller.

Half an hour later he emerged from his retreat, listened carefully on the landing, and hearing nothing below, called down to his wife: "Has that horrible old bore gone?"

The woman was still in the drawing room, but the minister's wife proved equal to the occasion.

"Yes, dear," she called back, "she went long ago! Mrs. Parker is here now."

"THE MOON IS DOWN"

Capital Closeups

By JOHN DAUPHINEE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 20 (CP)—Odds and ends from Parliament Hill:—

When lawyers get together—Paul Martin (Lib. Essex East) asked J. G. Diefenbaker (Con. Lake Centre) a question and Vincent Dupuis (Lib. Chambly-Rouville) interjected "Yes or no".... "The honorable gentleman," said Mr. Diefenbaker, "is too good a lawyer to think that such an answer would be adequate." .... The Lake Centre member said "Yes" but it took 58 words to do it....All three members have K.C. after their names.

W. A. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) usually comes to his seat laden with papers and publications....He listens to the debate and reads at the same time .... The other day, flipping through the week-end issue of a newspaper, he came to the colored comics..Something caught his fancy and he and his desk-mate, Dr. T. F. Donnelly (Lib. Wood Mountain), shared the joke like a couple of schoolboys.

Naughty, naughty — New Democracy Leader Blackmore: "I have never refused a question from anyone in the House. If honorable members will not permit me the same privileges then I say—shame on them."

Definitely the littlest page in the government employ is Marcel Landry, 12 years old, four feet two inches tall, and about as light as a feather. ....He's a favorite of the Senators and gets many a pat on the head from older members of the Upper House.

More of the same:—

R. M. Warren (Lib. Renfrew North) drew attention of the House to the first Great War records of eight cabinet ministers....Defence Minister Ralston won the D.S.O. and Bar, was mentioned in dispatches and was seriously wounded ....Air Minister Power was mentioned in dispatches and twice wounded....Pensions Minister Mackenzie was mentioned in dispatches....Revenue Minister Gibson won the M.C., the Belgian Order of Leopold and the highest French army award, and was twice wounded....Labor Minister Mitchell served in the Royal Navy....Postmaster General Mulock served in Siberia and other places....Navy Minister Macdonald and War Services Minister Thorson were in the overseas army.

George Cruickshank (Lib. Fraser Valley) who provides more than a few chuckles for the House thought up a novel reason for objecting to the reading of a speech....He commented he travelled on the train with L. W. Brockington, K.C., one of Canada's foremost public speakers, and a "prominent cabinet minister"...."They could have written an excellent speech for me," he said, "so I object to the honorable member reading his."

Something new has been added—C. L. Empringham of the Hansard staff appeared on the House floor in uniform....He's in the reserve army and orders were issued for reserve men to wear khaki Thursday....Old-timers couldn't remember seeing a uniformed note-taker before.

Raymond Eudes (Lib. Montreal-Hochelaga) is a man with two countries....His father was a citizen of St. Pierre-Miquelon and that gave Raymond French citizenship—so much so that early in the war he was called for service in the French army....But he was born in Canada and sits in the House as a Canadian....He ignored the French call.

The most innocent-looking questions on the House order paper sometimes bring out the most massive replies....One of them, asked by Rev. A. M. Nicholson (C.C.F. Mackenzie), resulted in tabling of 94 blueprints, three feet by two, of plans for staff houses built by Wartime Housing Limited....Documents room has had thicker ones but the staff doesn't remember any which took up more space in the files.

J. M. Dechene (Lib. Athabaska) said he figures his Alberta riding presents a "truer cross-section of the people of Canada" than any other, on grounds it contains a wider variety of nationalities and has thousands of French Canadians.

The Weekend Hitler Likes

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

CONTRASTED with adverse war developments in the Mediterranean and Western Atlantic theatres as the first anniversary of Hitler's attack on Russia rolls around, the Pacific front shows heartening improvement, except in China.

Whatever the purpose of Japanese naval forays in the North Pacific, Nipponese losses constitute a definite dent in enemy striking power. A 10-to-1 ratio as compared to American casualties is not an exaggerated estimate.

It is probably much greater in fact, with nearly three score enemy combat and cargo craft sunk or put out of action in the Coral Sea, Midway and Aleutians operations. Japan can show only a precarious footing in the Western Aleutians on the profit side of the grim ledger.

The strategic value of that Japanese toehold is too negligible in comparison to its cost to figure importantly in the renewed Roosevelt-Churchill conferences. It was something of more consequence in the war picture that brought the Prime Minister to the United States. There has been much speculation that he and Mr. Roosevelt would discuss second-front operations in Europe to aid Russia, or new moves to bolster the shaken defenses of Egypt.

There is another possibility. This week-end, embracing the night of June 21-22, is not only the German-Russian war anniversary. It is the official opening of summer, of the summer in which Hitler has pledged himself to knock Russia out of the war.

Germany's claims that it has scored "decisive" successes in the Sevastopol area and has routed a "collapsed" British army in Libya have some basis, even if utterly exaggerated.

Hitler obviously is setting the propaganda stage at home for some purpose, presumably for an announcement that his 1943 victory drive is now rolling. This week-end must be fraught with special significance to him and to his opponents.

It is not illogical that Mr. Churchill deemed it prudent to bridge the time and distance gap between the British and American nerve centres of United Nations' war effort in anticipation of week-end developments that would call for instant Allied decisions. The choice of ways and means to meet a supreme Nazi effort may be forced upon the conferees within days or hours at most.

Every moment saved in making that choice promptly effective, once Hitler's purposes are clear, would be of vital value. He has up to now always benefitted from his one-man command in crises. His Allied opponents were compelled to take long-distance council with each other and endure hampering delays in action.

With Roosevelt and Churchill at elbow touch with each other, that delay has been largely eliminatde. Their joint word is final so far as American and British armed forces are concerned, when it comes to action.

Even should this June week-end see no fresh breaking of the storm of Nazi attack, the Roosevelt-Churchill personal contacts must be helpful in the prosecution of the war.

Race Superiority Ridiculous

Dr. Perry S. Dobson, Principal of Alma College, St. Thomas, recently did some very plain talking on the subject of internationalism and the need for a better understanding among all nations both while the war is being fought and after victory has been achieved. "For one thing we must get over our damnable sense of race superiority," said the educator. "There isn't any such thing as race superiority. We are all brothers under the skin. Too many of us, I fear, have gone around the world spouting about our race superiority. It has a tendency to make us look foolish. We may have national character, and qualities, but race superiority is ridiculous." There are words which cannot be repeated too often. Now more than ever before the peoples of the world must develop an international outlook. — Timmins Daily Press.

A Bible Message For Today

And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters....And God called the firmament Heaven. And the evening and the morning were the second day.

And God said, Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so....

And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth: and it was so. And the evening and the morning were the third day....

And God made two great lights: the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night: he made the stars also....And the evening and the morning were the fourth day.

And God said, let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and fowl that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven....And the evening and the morning were the fifth day....

And God said, Let us make many in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth....

And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day.—Gen. 1, 6, 8, 9, 11, 13, 16, 19, 20, 23, 26, 31.

Planning State Socialism

Everyone will agree that we should try to make the world a better place for all after this terrible war is over, but it will be a surprise to many Canadians, who love their freedom, to learn that a group of scholarly men are planning for Canada after the war something akin to Fascism, Nazilsm, or Communism. Most of us are under the impression that this war is being waged to maintain the democratic way of life. Perhaps we should make certain that that is what we are really fighting for, and suggest to the Government that we bend all our energies to winning the war and leave State Socialism and other isms, favored by some of the intelligentsia, until after the war is won. — Kingston Whig-Standard.

Was It Limburger?

Harold Denny, New York Times' correspondent, in writing of his confinement in a Gestapo prison in Germany, tells of a guard bringing him a portion of "the foulest smelling, foulest tasting cheese I ever encountered." That must have been a bit of old limburger from Old Heidelberg. —Hamilton Spectator.

Practiced Proverb

There is a proverb among the French: "The way to treat a Prussian is to trample on his toes, and then kick him until he apologises." Over the ancient Roman city of Cologne, an armada undreamed of in all Cologne's two thousand years' existence put the French proverb into practice. —Montreal Gazette.

43 Local Boys Joined Navy In Past Month

Peterborough's contribution in recruits to the Royal Canadian Navy, has reached a point where it is attracting provincial wide attention, and the showing made during the month of May was particularly outstanding.

Some time ago, it was reported that close to 200 men from the city and surrounding district were serving with the Royal Navy and there were sufficient of all ranks to completely man a destroyer. Since the start of the war there has been a steady funnelling of young men to the recruiting office in Kingston, and in May alone, 43 Peterborough youths were accepted.

This total of 43 in one month means that Peterborough city supplied three per cent. of all the naval recruits from Ontario during the month, and recruiting so far in June indicates that almost as many more will be accepted.

Included in the list are two brothers, William Walter Jordan and John Edward Jordan, both sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Jordan, 256 O'Carroll Ave. William worked at the C.G.E., and John at the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company. There are two Italians in the group, Joseph Berardi, 480 Parnell street, and Anthony Bianco, 284 Parkhill Road. Jimmy White of 291 Burnham street, paid for a major operation out of his own pocket in order that he might meet the medical category requirements and is on strength now as a supply officer. Bob Huffman, 629 Charlotte street, is a brother of Charles Huffman, well-known contractor, and up to the time of enlistment was working with his brother. The others in the list are as follows:

Fred A. Delong, 219 Caddy street; Arthur Hully, 133 Stewart street; Howard Johnston, 315 McDonnel street; Oscar B. James, 175 Bethune; Louis J. Jackson, 163 Murray; Francis Kennedy, 485 Sherbrooke; William G. Moore, 312 Frederick; Roy W. Parnell, 176 Rubidge street; Clinton R. Rusaw, 284 Lansdowne; Edward H. Jockeys Discuss Insurance Idea

TORONTO, June 20 — Jockeys riding on Ontario tracks met last night at Dufferin race track and discussed a plan of accident insurance for jockeys. The riders performing in the Province will pay $2 from every winning mount into a fund to defray the cost of carrying the insurance. A number of horsemen have agreed to give financial support to the cause and the riders placed themselves on record as willing to accept any co-operation from the different race track operators. A committee of three, composed of Pat Remillard, Johnny Convey and Robert Watson, was appointed to discuss plans of the insurance next Tuesday night. W. E. MacDonald is assisting the riders in formulating their plans.

Pennsylvania U. Gets Netcher Ace Schoolboy

By Herb Kamm, Associated Press Sports Writer.

ASHBURY PARK, N. J., June 20 —(AP)— Jack Netcher got his sheepskin at Ashbury Park High School last week, and it was a big moment in the lives of a lot of New Jersey coaches.

The diploma accomplished something their football, basketball and baseball teams had been trying to do for the past four years with little success—stop the Niagara Falls, Ont., native in scholastic sports. And if he isn't taken into the army, He'll soon be turned loose to start the business all over again, this time in the ivy league.

After much bidding and counter-bidding, the University of Pennsylvania has acquired the talents of Netcher, the most publicized athlete to come out of a New Jersey High School in some years.

Outstanding schoolboy athletes are a dime a dozen, but every coach who has seen Netcher in action in either or all of his favorite sports has praised him highly. Coaches, writers and just plain experts, participating in the annual Newark Athlete Club pool last January, voted him hands down New Jersey's best all-round High School atlete.

It seems the husky youngster has been in the habit of doing the unusual since he was a shaver in Niagara Falls. There's the story his father tells about the first time he went fishing.

"I had just bought a fresh-water outfit for him," the elder Netcher relates. "He went down to the beach with it and pulled in the biggest striped bass caught here all that season."

Started in Hockey.

Before his High School days, Jacks' favorite game was ice hockey. In canada, his father had managed several amateur and professional hockey teams. When Jack entered Asbury Park High, he had been exposed only slightly to football, basketball and baseball. But he caught on quickly.

During the last three years of his High School career, he was on All-State nominee in all three of those sports.

Football brought him most acclaim. Despite a mediocre 1939 season for Asbury Park, his name appeared on most All-State rosters. In 1940 and 1941, he led Asbury Park through undefeated campaigns and was a unanimous selection. Those two seasons saw him score more than 150 points and average better than eight yards when he carried the ball from his fullback spot.

Red Sox Victors Over Wambats

Red Sox were victorious over Wambats Thursday night at the St. Peter's School diamond by a score of 12 to 6 to cop their second win and the senior championship of their school league. Along with the championship will go a large circular crest of the school colours.

The winners took the first game of their three series, tied a second, and tucked away the one last night. Both teams were held scoreless for two innings and the Wambats scored one in the third. The Sox followed with two, started to pull away and werenever caught up with. In the seventh the losers put up a come back enough to at least tie the game, but they fell short counting up, only four runs.

Each team contributed its share of good hitting and fine fielding. Some of those who stood out were Lucano, Wade, Sheehy and Conroy for the Wambats and Ferren, Caccavella and Pearson for the Red Sox.

Managers Jack Wade of the losers and Jim Monaghan of the winners should be congratulated for the work during the season.

The teams:

Wambats—McCarney rf, McIssac lf, Conroy p, Donnelly 2b, Wade c, B. Sheehy 3b, Lucano ss, Basciano cf, Sullivan 1b.

Church League Playoffs Tied Up

There will have to be another game to decide the championship of the juvenile section of the Church Softball League. St. James', last year's champs, won the first game in the playoffs a week ago but All Saints' came back Friday night and took the second game and now the series is all tied up.

The Friday night tussle was a free-hitting affair that saw All Saints' come from behind to win out by scoring eleven runs in the seventh and eighth innings. The final count was 20 to 16 for All Saints'. St. James' were ahead 13 to 9 at the end of the fifth but weakened on end.

All Saints': Chambers, 2b; Ellis, rf; Detlor, ss; Jones, p; Carpenter, cf; Outram, c; Menzies, lf; Hill, 1b; Edgar, 3b; Burns, rf.

This Phaeton Once Cost $300

"Very comfortable, thank you," said this group of Campbellford girls who were caught by the photographer as they tried out a 65-year-old phaeton which Charlie Davidson got on a deal recently. It had been carefully covered and stored away in George Ingram's barn down at Menie for the past twenty-five years. His father bought it for a reputed $300 from Lamb's Carriage Works at Menie. Now a local dairy has acquired it and the new owners plan to cut it down for a milk wagon.

HEALTH CHATS

By D. B. AVISON, M.D., D.P.H., Medical Officer of Health

In our last chat I labored the fact that the public as a whole is not interested in health per se. Of course there are many people interested in health else we would not have even the facilities that we have. That the public is definitely interested in sickness needs no argument. There is something in pain or physical infirmities that tugs at our heart strings, and therefore at our purses, that health cannot compete with at all. Our heads reason that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," but we are nevertheless still governed by our hearts and not our heads.

Infant Mortality.

By the term "infant mortality" we mean all deaths occurring between birth and the first birthday. You will understand that if a child breathes at all it is recorded as a "living birth" and its death recorded as an "infant death." This is true even of prematures.

Public Health workers feel that if a substantial reduction could be made in the number of still-births and in the number of infant deaths then we would be well on the way to increasing our population. Peterborough statistics for 1941 show that there were 885 live births and 37 still-births or a potential of 922 babies. These do not include early miscarriages and abortions so that the potential number of babies was actually greater. Let us accept, however, the above figures as correct for the total possible and we will see that we lost 37 by still-birth alone. Of the 885 live births 30 died before they reached the first year and a breakdown of these 30 shows that 27 never reached the first month, 26 of them living less than a week. Of the 26, 14 died of prematurity. Now I think we can safely assume that of the 3 still-births at least half or 19 were prematures so that of our 922 potential babies we lost 33 by prematurity alone. It is evident, therefore that the causes of these premature births need more study if we are to make a substantial reduction in our losses.

At the recent convention of the Canadian Public Association held in Toronto I was much interested in a paper by Dr. Paul Parrot on the subject of infant mortality. Dr. Parrot had made a new approach to this subject by studying the relation of infant deaths to the social status of the parents and his report showed clearly that deaths were directly related to this factor, being highest in the farmer and laborer classes, next in the clerical class, and least in the professional classes. In other words, it was directly linked to the economic conditions of the parents. This being true then our efforts must be devoted more to this angle and less to disease as a cause of death in infants. As a matter of fact, of the 30 infant deaths recorded in Peterborough in 1941, only 20 per cent could be ascribed to some form of disease, while 47 per cent were due to prematurity. In addition, as has been pointed out, a large number of the still-births must have been prematures, and to this might be added miscarriages and abortions.

Here, then, quite evidently is our main problem — why do we have such a terrific loss of potential citizens through miscarriage, abortion and premature birth? Put our finger on the causes for these and then apply our God-given common sense assisted by necessary financial help, and we will have more babies and less heartbreak.

Turgeon Would Hit Japs First

OTTAWA, June 20.—(CP)—J. G. Turgeon (Lib. Cariboo) said in the House of Commons yesterday that Japanese occupation of some Aleutian Islands constituted a serious threat to Canada.

Speaking in the conscription debate, he said: "The Japanese are virtually upon the coast of Canada.

"We in this House and people in Montreal, Toronto, may continue to be protagonists of a dispute and may continue to argue.

"But my word of warning is this, that we from British Columbia, Alberta and the Yukon are not going to sit down and wait while that question is argued and permit the Japanese devils to raid, rape and slaughter and torture us. And that is the condition which this country is facing today."

He said this was the serious season with the Arctic Ocean open to navigation from June to September by ships equipped with ice-breaking apparatus.

"There may be nothing whatever in the combination of facts that just about when that Northern Sea is opening Japan has taken possession of some of the Aleutian Islands...

"I am of the opinion that before long we are going to find Japan attacking Russia and that this is the cause of this first move into the Aleutian Islands."

If the Japanese gained control of the airfields in Siberia as well as Aleutian bases there was every likelihood of an attack upon British Columbia.

The only hope of staving off an attack upon Western Canada by the Japanese was "for us to take offensive action against Japan."

This should be done with the consent of Russia to use Siberian airports if action was taken before Japan attacked Siberia, or directly if Russia would not consent to using Siberian bases, he said.

Knights Whip League Leaders 8 to 6

Knights of Columbus pulled an upset win in the Catholic Softball League Friday night when they defeated the league-leading St. Peter's 8 to 6. It was the second win of the season for the Knights and they played good ball to take a fall out of the Saints.

The Knights opened up with a four-run attack in the first inning. St. Peter's came back with five in the fourth but the ultimate winners grabbed off two in their half to go ahead again and set the pace from there in.

Honey Tompkins appeared in a new role, pitching the game for the losers and allowing only four hits, although he walked five. Anthony who pitched for the Knights allower 11 safe blows but did not give a base on balls.

Condon and Perdue were the pick of their team in the batting department, geting a single and a double apiece. Conroy singled twice and Rochetta and Tompkins doubled once. The four hits chalked up by the winners were written by Anthony getting a double, Masterson a single and Galvin a triple and single.

Rochetta at third did a great job, tossing out men right and left and covering a lot of infield ground, and Condon held him up at the first sack. Moore and Reilly turned in fine cards defensively for their team. Masterson's homer and Tompkins' dive with a half somersault to snare a pop fly were features.

German Ambush Lost Libya Tilt

LONDON, June 20.—(CP)—Possession of Tobruk is "not essential to successful defence of the Egyptian border, a military commentator said today, but all indications are that Lt. Gen. Neil Ritchie intends to hold the besieged seaport fortress despite the difficulties of supplying it.

German 210-millimetre guns already are pounding at Tobruk's outer perimeter of defences, the commentator said, but "enemy air activity has died down" as a result of highly-effective bombings of German landing fields at Ain El Gazala and in Crete.

There have been further attacks by Baltimore bombers and new "tank-buster" planes on air fields and on German armored formations massing for an assault on Tobruk, the commentator stated. Cover also has been supplied for forces taking up positions along the Egyptian border.

It was suggested that sustained Axis attacks on the British island of Malta probably had enabled the Nazis to move at least one fresh armored division to North Africa.

It was said to be increasingly obvious that the way was cleared for the Axis assault on Tobruk when a considerable British armored force was ambushed by German 88-millimetre anti-tank guns June 14. This action was viewed as a decisive one in the present campaign.

you don't need OIL to enjoy AUTOMATIC HEATING

MADE IN CANADA

Hundreds of homeowners who have tried other systems are now changing over to Fairbanks-Morse Automatic Coal Heating.

Apart from the comfort and simplicity of this clean, economical heating, there are special reasons why its installation at the present time is advisable.

When it replaces an existing oil burner it, of course, releases much needed oil for war purposes. Then, again, it burns cheaper grade Canadian coal, thus conserving foreign exchange. And finally, when fitted to a coal burning furnace, it reduces the amount of coal you formerly used thereby freeing additional supplies for industrial use and saving transportation space for vital war freight.

A Fairbanks-Morse Automatic Coal Burner can be fitted to your present furnace in a few hours, and there are no expensive extras to buy! Immediate delivery is available. Get full details right away.

Boyhood Ambition Is Realized In Owning New York Giants

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 20—"If you had a million dollars," said the teacher, "what would you buy?"

Little Horace Charles Stoneham knew the answer to that one.

"I'd buy," he wrote, "the New York Giants!"

The above took place in a New Jersey school room many years ago. Horace Stoneham was a boy in that class. He was writing an essay.

Horace Stoneham didn't buy the New York Giants. His Wall Street father did, in 1919.

And, when Charles A. Stoneham died and the club was reorganized, young Horace realized his dream—he became president of the $3,000,000 Giants.

Youngest Magnate

That was in 1936, when young Stoneham was but 32 years old. He is the youngest of the major league magnates.

The present New York Giants' president was born in New Jersey. He went to Pawling school and later attended Fordham university.

As a schoolboy, Stoneham played baseball and the other sports. He was a second baseman on the team, but never became a star. He also participated in hockey and football.

Popular With All

He learned the ropes of big league finance in his father's office. The senior Stoneham had announced when he bought the team he would will it to his son.

Popular with all club officials and players alike, young Stoneham was elected president of the Giants, Jan. 15, 1936, following the death of his father.

HORACE STONEHAM

He is an avid baseball fan. He attends all the games and likes to see his club score plenty of runs right off.

Stoneham was married in 1925 to Valleda Pyke, a well-known dancer in New York.

Benefit Game Raises $37 For Armed Forces

Plazas spotted the Royals five runs in last night's City Softball League game at Riverside Park, kept fighting back until they tied the score in the fifth and then went on a scoring rampage in the eighth to salt the ball game away 10 to 7 and climb into second place in the loop race. It was a benefit for the O.A.S.A. Bat and Ball fund to supply softball equipment for Canada's armed forces and $37.00 was realized from the largest crowd to see a League fixture since the games were transferred to Riverside Park.

When they jumped on Tom Parsons in the second inning to slam out six hits and score five runs the Royals looked to have a commanding lead, especially as Bill Fraser was fogging them through in great style on the rubber for the former Chesterfields. But Parsons, although frequently in trouble, blanked them for the next six innings and in the meanwhile the Plazas picked up a run in their half of the second, got three more in the third and finally tied the score in the fifth. Then in the eighth they opened a five hit assault on Fraser that blew the battle wide open, Plazas scoring five runs to go in front 10 to 5. Royals staged a miniature rally in the first of the ninth but it fell three runs short of tieing up the argument.

Royals outhit the winners 13 to 8 but outside of the second frame when they bunched six blows they could not produce a hit when runners were waiting to score. Errors player a big part in the affair; in fact on an earned run basis the Plazas would have won only by 5 to 4.

Bun Kingdon with a double and a single and Joe Blewett with a triple and single were the only Plazas to get more than one hit. Russ Scriver led the Royal attack with a single, double and triple and Hawks had a triple and single and Fraser two singles.

The Feature Play

Jim Ellis had the feature fielding play when he dashed over toward the right field stand in the seventh to grab Giardino's foul fly on the run with his gloved hand. There were four double plays in the first three and a half innings, each club having a pair of twin killings. Arnold Smith pulled one unassisted for Royals and their other double play came when Ned Vitarelli was doubled up after Kingdon had struck out. Plazas first one came when W. Starr tossed Holmes out at first and Ellis fired to Eddie Starr in time to nip Scriver at the plate. The other orjginated when Art Heal took Parnell's grounder, tagged Fraser on the line and then threw out the batter.

Royals' big inning came in the second. Prdye started it with a single to left. Giardino fouled to Ellis but Scriver beat out a bunt and D. Holmes doubled to left to score Pryde. Fraser singled to left, Scriver registering. Parnell popped to Vitarelli for the second out but Hawks tripled to right centre, scoring Holmes and Fraser went home himself when Eddie Starr fumbled Smith's bunt. Mowry singled to left but Pryde, up for the second time, flied to Kingdon.

Plazas got one back in their half. Joe Blewett opened the inning with a long triple to centre. W. Starr popped to Fraser. Parnell fumbled Ellis's roller and Blewett crossed the plate but E. Starr fouled to first and Parsons struck out.

Cut Down Margin

The ultimate winners cut down the deficit in the third. Vitarelli walked and Heal was safe when Hawks fumbled his bunt. Kingdon struck out and Mowry dropped the third one but the batter was of course automatically out and Vitarelli was trapped between second and third on the play. Wade walked, and advanced on a passed ball. Giardino dropped Blewett's high fly back of second and Heal and Wade scored. W. Starr doubled to right, Blewett going home. Ellis flied to Scriver.

The game was tied up in the fifth. With one out Kingdon doubled to centre, advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored while Fraser was throwing out Julian Wade on a tap to the box. Parsons flied to centre to end the inning.

Plazas won out in the eighth. Blewett opened with a hard-hit single to centre but was forced at second by W. Starr and the latter in turn was forced by Ellis, making two hands down. Fraser however passed Eddie Starr and set the stage for his down downfall. Tom Parsons promptly singled to centre to score Ellis. Vitarelli doubled to centre, scoring Starr and Parsons. Heal doubled to right to score Vitarelli. Kingdon shot a single into centre to send Heal home with the fifth run of the inning. Wade reached second on D. Holmes' muff but Blewett up for the second time popped to Parnell.

Mowry singled to right to start Royals' ninth and advanced on a wild pitch. Pryde rolled to Vitarelli and reached second when the shortstop made a low throw to first, Mowry going to third. A wild pitch scored Mowry. Akers batted for Giardino and scratched a hit on a high bounder over the box, Pryde dashing for home. Scriver was out on a bunt, Holmes popped to Vitarelli and Fraser ended the game with a roller to Heal.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Two City Softball League teams, both of which need a win in the worst way will clash at Riverside Park Monday night when Royals and Juveniles will meet in what should be another lively battle. Last time out the youngsters surprised Royals by playing a tie game with them and they hope to do even better than that Monday night by taking a fall out of the former Chesterfield squad. The Royals have bitten the dust in their last two starts, losing to Luckies and Plazas and they will be out to stop that slump by taking the youngsters for a ride. The Juveniles have made every game close and have shown a steady improvement in all departments. They will likely have Bob Crowe tossing them in Monday night while Akers is the likely choice for Manager Parnell's team. Every game in the City loop for the last couple of weeks has been a real battle and Monday's argument belongs in the same category.

* * * * * *

There were unusual features about last night's clash between Plazas and Royals, finally won by the hockey squad 10 to 7, after they had overcome a five-run deficit. Up to the eighth inning the Plazas had only been able to nick the service of Bill Fraser on the mound for Royals for three hits and yet had scored as many runs as the ultimate losers had managed to register with eleven safe blows. And then the Plazas suddenly opened a vicious assault on the Royals' pitcher and when the smoke had cleared away they had chased five runs over and had the game in the bag. All the harm was done after two men were out, four hits in a row by Tom Parsons, Ned Vitarelli, Art Heal and Bun Kingdon causing a scoring barrage that killed Royals' chances for a victory. The losers did make a stand in the ninth and get back two runs but the rally was not prolonged enough to save the day.

From Belleville comes a suggestion that we hereby pass on to the powers-that-be in girls' softball here. Ken Colling mentions it in his sport column, remarking that Chuck Barnett, skipper of the Zeller girls' softball team of that city has proposed that a series of girls' games between Peterborough, Cobourg and Belleville be arranged, with all the receipts going in to the Kinsmen cigarette fund. The Belleville scribe points out that there are Kinsmen clubs in all three communities. The chief drawback in the way of the suggested series would seem to be the transportation problem. If that could be solved the proposed games would undoubtedly be welcome in all three centres. Certainly a few games with outside teams would be warmly received by Peterborough fans and would help to put new life into girls' softball here. Anyway there is the proposal and it is now transferred to the local executive. Take it away, Gladys.

When the chips are down those Brooklyn Dodgers, at least so far as their own league is concerned, are tough. If you have any doubt about that ask the St. Louis Cards. When the two rivals opened a five game series Thursday, the Dodgers had a lead of only four and a half games. After the second game of the series played yesterday afternoon the margin had jumped to six and a half. It was a close battle but when the final returns were in Brooklyn had won by 4 to 3 and the veteran Whit Wyatt had hung up his seventh win of the year. He has had only one loss. Ernie White and Gumbert pitched good ball for St. Louis, with the former taking the loss. Lou Novikoff, the mad Russian, is evidently not going to let Jimmy Foxx grab off the long distance hitting honors among the Cubs. Yesterday Novikoff came through with a homer, triple and three singles as the Cubs beat the New York Giants 7 to 4, despite Johnny Mize's eighth homer of the season.

There was a peculiar game at Boston when the Braves were beaten by the Pittsburg Pirates 7 to 6 in eleven innings. The two clubs were tied at four runs each when the second extra frame started but Bob Elliott hit a homer for the Pirates in the first half of the inning, with two teammates on the cushions to put the Corsairs three runs in front and then in the second half Fernandez homered for the Braves with one on, to make the final count 7 to 6. Dietz got credit for the win and the loss went to Sain, the last of a posse of Boston pitchers who tried to turn the trick. Elbie Flecher and Al Lopez came through with homers for the Pirates to help in the downfall of the Braves to whom by this time defeat must be regarded as a permanent habit.

In answer to an inquiry as to the number of Canadian-born players in the big leagues this season the correct total, so far as is shown by the roster of the sixteen clubs in the American and National League in the baseball year book is eight. Ontario by the way has supplied six out of the eight and a seventh began his baseball career in this province. And strangely enough only one of the octette of Canadians in the big show is in the National League. Seven of them are in the American circuit. Here is the list: Pitcher Earl Cook, who started the season with Detroit Tigers, birth place Lemonville, Ont.; Outfielder George Selkirk with the New York Yankees, Huntsville, Ont.; Pitcher Dick Fowler and Pitcher Phil Marchildon with the Philadelphia Athletics, the former born in Toronto, the latter in Penetang, Ont. Pitcher Oscar Judd, Boston Red Sox, London, Ont.; Outfielder Jeff Heath, Cleveland Indians, Fort William, Ont.; Pitcher Joe Kraukauskas, Cleveland Indians, born in Montreal, Que., and the one National Leaguer, Pitcher Aldon Wilkie, Pittsburg Pirates, Zealandia, Sask. This is the biggest crop of Canadian-born players to make the grade in the big show in any one season.

What is happening to the New York Yanks? The world champs were beaten 5 to 4 by Cleveland yesterday, their fourth loss in five starts and as a result of that defeat and the victory of the Boston Red Sox over Chicago the world champs lead has been cut to seven and a half games. It is still plenty of course, but a few more weeks like the present one and the margin will have disappeared. The Yanks are not hitting at all. They only had four blows off Mel Harder yesterday and Joe DiMaggio who can't seem to shake out of his season-long slump fanned three times. Lefty Gomez was the losing pitcher and the hitting of Oris Hackett, Cleveland rookie outfielder was a feature. Meanwhile with Charlie Wagner pitching airtight ball against the luckless Edgar Smith, the Boston Red Sox defeated Chicago White Sox 1 to 0. The only counter was a freak homer by Dom DiMaggio when the ball rolled into the Boston bull pen.

Everybody's hat should be off today to Paul Waner, 39-year-old Boston Brave outfielder who yesterday banged out his 3,000th hit in big league company and joined the little band of baseball's great who have achieved that mark. Just how difficult it is for a player to remain in the big show long enough to hammer that many hits is shown by the fact that up to yesterday only six other batters in the long history of baseball had turned the trick. They were Ty Cobb, with 4,191 hits, a mark that is not in much danger of being equalled, Tris Speaker, 3,515, Honus Wagner, 3,430, Eddie Collins, 3,313 Napoleon Lajoie 3,242, and Cap Anson, 3,081. It is worthy of note that all of the six played 20 years or more in the big time while Waner has climbed to the 3,000th mark in 17 years in the majors.

Paul Waner Gets His 3,000th Hit

Paul Waner, veteran outfielder of the Boston Braves, stands at the batting cage, during practice at Fenway Park, waiting his turn at the plate. As of the morning of June 17, he was credited with 2,998 hits for his major league baseball career which began with Pittsburg Pirates in 1926. Two more base hits put him in the little circle of big time ball players who have hit safely 3,000 times. He accomplished this feat on Friday.

Paul Waner Joins Cobb, Speaker Slugs His 3,000th Hit Yesterday

BOSTON, Jnue 20 — (AP). — A laconic little guy with a big bat banged out a base hit yesterday that boosted him into a select circle occupied by just six other players in major league baseball history.

Thirty-nine-year-old Paul Glee Waner, veteran Boston Brave outfielder, singled in the fifth inning, off Truett Sewell, Pittsburg right-hander, for his 3,000th hit—a figure attained only by Ty Cobb, 4,191 hits; Tris Speaker, 3,515; Honus Wagner 3,430; Eddie Collins, 3,313; Napoleon Lajoie, 3,242; and Adrian (Cap) Anson, 3,081; all of whom played twenty or more seasons.

Ironically, Waner reached the coveted goal against the team with which he spent 15 of his 17 National League seasons. Big Poison Paul—senior of the Waner brothers—joined Pittsburg from San Francisco in 1926.

And before he was handed his unconditional release two winters ago, he had paced the Pirates to a pennant (1927), led the National League in hitting three times, set a league record with eight seasons of more than 200 hits — and had given opposing pitchers more headaches than a carload of homerun hitters.

Two days ago Waner—whose lifetime batting average is .355 and his current mark .260 — got hit No. 2,999 against Cincinnati. He reached base the next time, too, but gesticulating to the official scorer, Waner indicated he wanted no hit on a ball that glanced off Shortstop Eddie Joost's glove. There was nothing tainted about yesterday's big hit.

"Nope, guess there won't be 3,000 more," he said afterwards. "But there should be plenty more where that one to-day came from."

Army Ring Show Sees Louis Slipped A Mouse

YAPANK, N. Y., June 20 —(AP)—Giving the laugh to any lingering doubts about the United States army's ability to run it's own fight shows, a Brooklyn cop has proved that soldier outfit can do just as good a job of promotion as the next fellow.

Maj. Francis Quigley wasn't just an ordinary cop in civilian life. He headed the homicide squad in Flatbush, an dthis is no soft touch.

Last night out here at Camp Upton, he put on a card of seven all-service-men bouts, headed by a three-rounder featuring Joe Louis, and the whole thing went off as smoothly as a Mike Jacobs production in Madison Square Garden.

Although this camp is 75 miles out on Long Island, 7,000 fans crowded the Upton Stadium, including 4,500 civilians from outside this base. The entire proceeds of more than $7,000 went to the army emergency relief.

The fights themselves ,except for a light-hitting 3 round exhibition between the welterweight contenders Young Kid McCoy of Detroit and Jackie Wilson of California, both of whom are privates here, were snappy punch-tossing affairs. Louis, making his farewell exhibition before leaving for Fort Riley, Kansas, had a small "mouse" raised under his right eye by sparmate George Nicholson's left jabs in the first round of their get-together. In the second and third heats, George realized this was a mistake, because it made Joe angry and he started playing for keeps.

Two heavyweight veterans, Natie Mann of the New Haven coast guard, and Eddie Mader of New York and Camp Upton, put on a free-swinging three-rounder, with Mann getting the decision.

Louis wasn't to have appeared on the card, because the army had ordered him to leave yesterday evening for Fort Riley but at the last minute this order was countermanded. And last night it was learned the countermanding order came directly from President Roosevelt.

'UNLUCKY EDGAR' DROPS 11th FOR CHICAGO AS DIMAG CIRCUITS

Pill Gets Stuck Under Bench A's Win 1 to 0

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The unluckiest man in baseball, by all odds, is Lefty Edgar Smith of the Chicago White Sox.

After he had lost 10 games in a row without winning, the fat, good-natured southpaw thought his tide had turned Sunday when he beat Washington Senators. He figured he had hit bottom in the game he lost 2-0 to Philadelphia Athletics although allowing only two hits.

But Smitty learned the awful truth last night. He found that there are even tougher breaks because Boston Red Sox beat him 1-0 on an inside-the-park home run when the ball got stuck under the bench of the bull pen at Comiskey Park.

Smith waged a magnificent hurling duel with Broadway Charley Wagner of the Red Sox, spacing seven hits to Wagner's six, and the only difference between the two was a drive by Dominic DiMaggio which rolled out of sight under the bench and couldn't be found till DiMaggio was crossing the plate.

Smith had been beaten twice before, 1-0, twice 2-1, once 4-3 and once, of course 2-0. Altogether he has lost six of his 11 games by one run.

This dramatic mischance took some of the attention away from the New York Yankee's fourth loss in five games; Paul Waner getting his 3,000th hit; the Brooklyn Dodgers downing St. Louis Cardinals again; and other sprightly baseball developments.

Harder Stops Yanks.

The Yanks were whipped 5-4 at Cleveland as the veteran Mel Harder pitched four-hit ball, blanking all the Yanks except Phil Rizzuto and Bill Dickey. Rizzuto's blow was a two-run homer. The Indians were held to five hits by Lefty Gomez and John Murphy, but two of these hits were a homer and a triple by Oris Hockett.

John Niggeling pitched a four-hit shutout as St. Louis Browns belted Philadelphia Athletics 4-2 with a 12-hit attack and Hal White hurled six-hit ball as Detroit trimmed Washington Senators 5-1.

The Dodgers boosted their National League lead to 6½ games by stopping St. Louis for the second straight time 4-3. Whitlow Wyatt, annexing his seventh triumph against one defeat, allowed only five hits till the ninth when the Cards rallied for two runs on three hits.

Brooklyn took command of the game early when John Rizzo rifled a two-run homer off Lefty Ernie White in the second inning. In the third Pete Reiser singled and went all the way to third on a two-base wild throw by Centrefielder Harry Walker. White proceeded to strike out the next three batters, but with the count 1-1 on the third, Reiser stole home for the second time this season. Arky Vaughan singled the other run home in the seventh.

Waner's entry into a select group of six all-time stars who have made 3,000 hits—Cobb, Speaker, Wagner, Collins, Lajoie and Anson, all of them now in baseball's hall of fame—proved just an incident in a thrilling 11-inning struggle which the Pittsburg Pirates captured from Boston Braves, 7-6.

Cincinnati subdued the Phils 6-4 on a three-run homer by Gee Walker and New York Giants beat Chicago Cubs 6-5 after losing the first game of a doubleheader 7-4. The two games produced 49 hits, including five home runs.

The Winning Form Of A Champ As Demonstrated By Greg Rice

This excellent magic eye sequence caught Grey Rice as he put on steam when coming into the last lap when he was winning the two-mile event at the sports carnival for the Army Emergency Fund and the Navy Relief Society at the Polo Grounds in New York. It shows in sharp detail the form of a champion. Greg's time for the event was 9: 15.2. He is entered in the national A.A.U. championships at the Triboro Stadium, June 19 and 20, when the experts expect records to fall.

Leafs Get Three In Ninth Chiefs Win 4-3

By the Associated Press.

The battle being waged by Newark Bears, Jersey City Giants, and the Montreal Royals in the International League is being matched these days by the comeback of Baltimore Orioles early-season surprise team of the circuit.

After their initial success the Orioles slipped to the Second Division. In recent weeks, Manager Tommy Thomas crew has begun to show signs of regaining its early season form and currently is in the fifth place, a few percentage points behind Buffalo Bisons.

The Orioles defeated Rochester Red Wings 5-3 yesterday for their second straight victory over the last-place Wings. Ed Robinson, Baltimore first baseman, provided the margin of victory when he homered in the seventh off Al Jurikich, George Fallon, Rochester second sacker, enjoyed a great afternoon on the field, handling 13 chances without an error and participating in three of his team's four twin killings.

Buffalo Bisons split a twin bill with the Bears, winning the opener, 10-9, and dropping the nightcap 9-6. Both games were marked by home runs, five in the first and four in the second.

Leafs Rally Too Late.

Toronto Maple Leafs scored three runs in the ninth inning but they weren't enough to defeat Syracuse Chiefs, who won 4-3. The Chiefs counted four times in the first two rounds, with Bobby Adams sparking the attacks with doubles in each frame.

Toronto's last ditch rally was highlighted by Joe Mack's home run with one on. Bill Brandt, Leaf moundsman, was seeking his 10th victory of the season. Instead he suffered his fourth setback.

The Giants advanced to within half a game of the second-place Montreal Royals as they defeated the Royals 5-3 in the series opener at Montreal.

Although allowing nine hits Rube Fischer, giant hurler was effective in the pinches and struck out 10 batters. Trailing 3-2 going into the fifth, the Jerseys put together four singles and an error to score three times, which was enough to win the game.

Suffolk Purses Boosted $200

BOSTON, June 20 (AP) — The Massachusetts Racing Commission yesterday ordered Suffolk Downs Race Track to offer a $1,200 minimum purse, instead of $1,000, ending a dispute between the management and horsemen.

The commission told the conflicting groups that they must submit to the commission within the next week a "written statement . . . That will explain your intended action in the future should a disagreement arise between you that cannot be satisfactorily settled."

The commission also ruled that the eight races which were lost last Tuesday, when there was no card as a result of the dispute, must be run during the remaining days of the meet.

"No discrimination," the commission ordered, "is to be shown against any member of the various horsemen's committees because of participation in the several discussions."

Hogan Shoots 62 As Ridgemoor Proves Too Easy

By Gayle Talbot,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

CHICAGO, June 20 —(AP) — United States Golf Association officials having seen one contestant round Ridgemoor in 62 and a dozen others turn in equally silly scores are congratulating themselves for not recognizing the Hale America Benefit Tournament as the National Open.

The last two days have been exciting in a way, and the birdies and eagles undoubtedly will continue through tomorrow, but the players themselves have been the first to insist it isn't related even faintly to championship golf.

Ridgemoor has proved par too easy for the top stars. Even Mike Turnesa, most phenominal member of the golfing family at present, thought it funny when he scored a second round 66— six under par— to go with his 65 of the previous day.

"It's a little tough on Ben Hogan," he laughed. "He shoots a par 72 and then a 62 and I'm still leading him three strokes."

Hogan's 62 yesterday made Ridgemoor look like a pitch-and-putt layout. Ben, himself, conceded it wasn't his greatest golf it was just a question of having 11 one-putt greens, he said.

"As a matter of fact, that 62 was all a mistake," Hogan chuckled. "I thought they were going to halve the field after 36 holes and I was giving it everything for fear I wouldn't even qualify for the last two rounds. Now I find everybody is going to play the full 72 holes."

The two Canadian entrants — Gordon Brydson and Bobby Gray, both of Toronto—were far behind the leaders. Brydson same through with a sub-par 35-35-70 yesterday but his opening round of 79 gave him a 36—hole total of 149.

Gray posted a first-round 75 and came up with 73 yesterday for a 148-total.

As the third 18-hole round today started, Mike Turnesa had three big strokes on Hogan and stood a good chance of hauling down first prize of $1,100.

Harness Racing Hit In U.S. Fairs Off For War

NEW YORK, June 20 (AP)—Request by the Government that State and County Fairs be suspended until the war is over has hit at the very foundation of light harness horse racing. Will Gahagan, secre- of the United States Trotting Association, said yesterday there are approximately 400 County Fairs alone at which trotters and pacers race. He estimated that some 5,000 of the 6,000 active trotters and pacers race at these fairs.

There are circuits, such as the Grand Circuit and Ohio's Short Ship, and independent tracks, such as New York's Roosevelt, Saratoga and Buffalo Raceways, that are not entirely connected with fairs, but not enough of them to furnish competition for anywhere near all of the horses.

The Grand Circuit already has been hit by the war since the army has taken over the State Fair Grounds at Springfield, Il., Indianapolis and Syracuse, N.Y. The Wisconsin State Fair at Milwaukee is the only State Agricultural exhibit that will race on the circuit this season.

Officials declined to comment to what effect the request will have on the sport, pending action by the various fair organizations, but they admitted the situation was none too bright.

Request for suspension of the fairs came from Joseph B. Eastman, Defense Transportation Director, as a means of conserving tires and gasoline.

Bengaline Summer Suit

By ALICE ALDEN

A SUIT of thin black bengaline is a swell dress-up gesture right through the spring and summer. This graceful little suit, worn by Alexis Smith, has a nice note of smart simplicity about it. The jacket has sleeves of rather an odd length, meant to be worn with long gloves. A crisp white ruffle fills in the neckline which rolls down to the one-button closing at the waist. A shiny straw hat completes the outfit.

Roy Rome's Pupils Give Fine Violin Recital

Violin pupils of Roy Rome, F.N.C.M., gave an interesting recital in the recreation room of the Y.W.C.A. on Friday evening, assisted by pianists and a vocalists.

Mr. Rome's pupils play carefully, with conscientious technique that speaks of careful training and good grounding. They seemed, however, a little lacking in confidence on the platform. However, although the level of the performance was high throughout and several of the younger pupils showed much promise, two pupils were outstanding and worthy of special mention. The first was Louise Leslie, a young lady of exceptional talent, and artistic appreciation; the second Phil Leahy whose exceptionally skilful technique on his second number "Country Dance" brought him an encore. Two violin duets by June Wellwood and Mr. Rome, lent a pleasant note of variety to the program.

The assisting artists Eleanor Carroll and Joan Austin also helped to lend variety to the program. Miss Wylma Lockie sang two vocal numbers that were much appreciated. Throughout the recital Miss Marguerite Rome provided expert accompaniments.

Piano Pupils Of Mrs. C. Renaud Heard In Recital

The recital of Mrs. Chas. Renauds piano pupils Friday evening was very well attended, the proceeds going to Group C of the W.M.S. All the pupils, from the small juniors to the seniors, displayed the same evidence of good training, a lovely touch with excellent rhythm. Each pupil showed individuality in interpreting.

Worthy of special mention are Mabel Hopkins and Lenore Skitch, who really have to be heard to be appreciated.

Miss Jean Sarginson with her brilliant soprano voice, and Miss Marion Beggs with her rich contralto voice, delighted the audience as assisting artists.

With Peterborough Red Cross Branch

The activities of the Canadian Red Cross are indeed varied and very comprehensive. No request from home or abroad meets with a deaf ear, but consideration is given to it, and as far as possible help is extended.

But the Red Cross does not wait for appeals. It anticipates them. That these services are much appreciated the following tributes, one by a Canadian and one by an Englishman, will testify. A famous Canadian airman, recently returned to his home city on leave after six years' service with the R.A.F. paid this tribute to the women of Canada and their work with the Red Cross: "The people of Canada can well be proud of their war efforts. Take the Canadian Red Cross, for instance. During the heavy air raids on London the Red Cross played a tremendous part in aiding the wounded, the homeless and the hungry. The service men's comforts such as knitted things, are much appreciated by the soldiers, sailors and airmen. The prisoner of war packages bring good cheer to those who have been captured. All told, I don't know how we'd get along without the Red Cross. I wish to thank them, especially the women workers who put so much time and effort on sewing and knitting."

"Each Canadian wife or mother with a husband or son in the Canadian forces in Britain has more reason to thank the Canadian Red Cross Society than she realizes."

Dedicate Baptismal Font In Memory of Mrs. McKone

The congregation and Sunday School of St. Andrew's United church are preparing to pay tribute on Sunday to the memory of one of its most beloved teachers, the late Mrs. J. A. McKone.

A great teacher, and a leader in all Sunday School activities, Mrs. McKone was for many years leader of the Girls' Council of the teenage groups of the city, president of the Girls' Work Board, and presbyterial secretary for the C.G.I.T. at the Bay of Quinte conference. She started the first C.G.I.T. group in the city and worked tirelessly and unceasingly on behalf of teenage girls, not only in her own church but throughout the city. Many grown people in Peterborough will remember the beautiful children's services planned by her for special occasions.

The last service planned by Mrs. McKone was the one three years ago last May which marked the 25th anniversary of the founding of the C.G.I.T. This service, attended by all the C.G.I.T. groups in the city was exceptionally beautiful and the result of an unusual amount of untiring work on the part of Mrs. McKone. In addition to this service, she attended a C.G.I.T. mother and daughter banquet in Keene, and helped to organize a similar service in Lindsay.

Her already failing health was broken by this excess of work and she never recovered from the breakdown which followed, but remained an invalid until her death last November.

In order to set up a lasting memorial to their beloved leader, the girls of St. Andrew's church have bought a baptismal font, which is to be dedicated on Sunday, at the Sunday School anniversary service. Songs that Mrs. McKone loved, and used in her services will be sung by the children. All C.G.I.T. girls, past and present, are invited to attend and ex-members are expected from scattered points of the province.

An interesting part of the ceremony will be the baptism of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Winfield. Mrs. Winfield was formerly Arleigh McKone, daughter of Mrs. McKone.

BAD PLACE

The broken curb in front of the ladies' rest room on Charlotte street at the bus stop ought to be fixed before someone is badly hurt. Friday at noon at lady slipped on it and had a nasty fall although she was not injured the next time it might be a different story.

CONFETTI COMPLEX

The young lady tagging for China War Relief in front of Payne's Grill this morning must have been a little bewildered by the parade of brides into a nearby studio. Four groups crowded past her, in the gay mood of wedding parties, she had to duck a few times to dodge the barrages of confetti.

MUDCATS SCARCE.

People who have been ..ying to get a mess of mudcats whi' boat fishing complain the mudcats seem very scarce. The fact if that mudcats are quite plentiful but it is difficult to get them now, as the wild rice and weeds have grown to quite a height, making it difficult for the bait to reach to bottom where the catfish are located.

OUT OF SEASON.

The boys and girls who go into rhapsodies over frog's leg dinners had better not grab a club and a flashlight and start haunting the shores of the lakes during the months of June and July During that period it is illegal to kill frogs. in other words there is a closed season on frogs until A .gust 1, with a fine for those found violati.., the regulation. Many of the Indians get around this by keeping quite a stock of frogs' legs in cold storage.

MARGIN OF RAIN

Will Dawson of Otonabee brought in the mildly surprising information this morning that Friday afternoon's downpour of rain did not reach southerly to Coldsprings. "We drew in hay all day except for several little light showers that didn't amount to anything," he said. "One of them was just after dinner. But we didn't see anything of the storm the city got."

CONDITION UNCHANGED

Before the county council went into session this morning Warden Norman Lean telephoned to ascertain the condition of Col. R. E. Birdsall of Asphodel, one of the best known residents of Peterborough county and a former member of council who has been seriously ill. It was learned that no change in his condition was in evidence this morning.

ON OVERSEAS AIR.

Miss Corrine DeLaire will be one of those Canadians who will be listening with special inte..tness to the soldiers' broadcast from the Old Country this evening. Her nephew, L.A.C. Billy Collins, of the R.C.A.F. is one of the Canadians chosen for the greetings home over CBL this evening at 6 o'cloc'. Two sons of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Collins, an old Ashburnham family, are with the Canadian forces overseas.

NOT HIT BY CAR

Only two cases, both of intoxication, were on the list at police court this morning and the usual $10 fines were imposed. One of the men was arrested Friday night when a telephone message to the police department said that a man who had apparently been hit by a car was stretched out in the road near Parkhill Road and George street. It was discovered that what he had been hit by was something out of a bottle.

OMEMEE GIRL HURT

Blandina Carroll, Omemee, suffered cuts on her head, bruises on her arms and body and shock, when she was knocked down by an automobile while crossing George Street in front of Grafton's Thursday afternoon. The girl came out from between two parked cars and started to cross from the east side of George street to the west when an automobile driven south by Thos. J. Gall, Keene, came along. The driver said he did not see the pedestrian until she was in front of his car and it was too late to avoid striking her. Her injuries are not considered serious.

Council Votes Salary Increase

An increase of $20 a month in the joint salary of Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt, superintendent and matron respectively of the County Home at Lakefield was recommended by the finance committee of the county council Friday afternoon. Their combined salary will be $90 a month if the council adopts the committee report.

In proposing the increase Reeve C. S. Tanner said the officials of the home were doing exceptionally good work with only one assistant instead of three previously. Deputy-reeve A. W. Archibald seconded the motion.

Reeve Ferguson, Norwood, said the House of Refuge seemed an unnecessary luxury since old age pensions and mothers' allowances had been provided by the government. In his opinion, he added, it would be well "to get rid of" the institution.

Reeve Tanner said only seven or eight of the thirty inmates were receiving old age pensions, most of which is paid to the credit of the Home. Mr. Ferguson said he had no doubt Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt were performing their duties well, but that was what they undertook to do. He said he was reluctant to add any more cost of the Home to the ratepayers of the county. Mr. Tanner pointed out that the number of inmates was considerably larger than the average over a period of years.

The committee's grant of $25 to the district Women's Institute did not seem fair to Reeve Ferguson.

"They have a lot of branches throughout the county, probably five to one of the Red Cross, and they are working all the time making comforts for soldiers."

On Warden Lean's motion, seconded by Reeve Johnston, the committee recommended a grant of $200 to the Red Cross Hospital at Apsley.

Six Girls Leave To Spend Summer On Farm

Six girls of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, brimming over with enthusiasm, set off Friday at noon, on a new adventure, that of fruit farming at Camp Winona, near Hamilton. Here they hope not only to do their bit to help the country's war effort but also to have a most enjoyable summer. The girls signed up some months ago with the Ontario Farm Service Force.

Joan Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brown, 47 Benson street, has just finished her third year at Collegiate and she said she was sure that she would have a lot of fun picking fruit, even though she had never done anything in that line of work before, and could hardly wait to hop aboard the bus to get started on her "summer vacation."

Two school pals accompanied Joan, Betty Blewett and Viva Clarke, both of whom have just finished their third year high school. Betty Blewett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Blewett, 717 Elcome Crescent, and Viva Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Clarke, 140 Antrim street, were both very keen about the idea of their summer's work.

"I was brought up on a farm until three years ago, when I moved into town," pretty Regina Killen, daughter of Mr. John Killen 513 Reid street, and a fifth former, said. Her biggest thrill seemed to be that she was not the only girl going from this city, and before leaving all the girls were introduced to each other and were making plans as to just what they were going to do.

Healthful

Two other pals made up the sextet, Dorothy Anderson, daughter of Mrs. Zetta Anderson, 324 Rubidge street and Eleanor Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gray, 568 Bolivar street. These girls, both of form 10, Commercial, were anxious to go not only because of their desire to help liquidate Hitler but because they considered that a summer in the open air would be a good thing for their health.

Camp Winona, like other Farm Service Camps, is established by the Ontario government. These camps are operated and supervised by the National Council of Young Women's Christian Associations in co-operation with the Dominion-Provincial Interdepartmental Committee on Farm Labor. Each camp has its own staff of camp directors and a Y.W.C.A. supervisor from the National headquarters who calls at the camp regularly to see that the standards are maintained and to give any advice that my be needed. There is a labor secretary employed to arrange for the farms where the girls will work and she is responsible for the treatment of the girls while working.

The work may include picking, packing and shipping fruit; pruning, thinning, spraying and tying up vines. The girls must work 9 to 10 hours a day, with overtime in emergencies. Sunday work may be done according to the weather and conditions. As for wages, the minimum rate per hour varies according to the district and crop and it is arranged between the government and the local growers at a general meeting.

All the girls from Peterborough go to Camp Winona and it is thought that there were at least fifty girls enrolled from here who planned to go, thus setting a pretty fair record. The six girls were so thrilled about leaving that they had very little time to spend in saying good-byes to the folks who were remaining at home.

Ice Cream Container Struck By Lightning

Children and adults who attended the annual picnic of Queen Alexandra School got a bad scare Friday afternoon during the brief but severe electrical storm in the early part of the afternoon when a bolt of lightning crashed down near the refreshment tent, damaged an automobile parked nearby and burned a hole in the top of an ice cream container. A tire on the automobile was destroyed.

Fortunately no one was close to the booth at the time. The attendants and many children who were in the vicinity of the tent had left only a short time before to seek shelter from the rain in the house in the park and no one was injured by the bolt.

Northern Townships Each Granted $150

Grants of $150 each to the five northern municipalities were passed by the county council Friday. Reeve Isaac Anderson of Belmont-Methuen appealed for a restoration of these subsidies to the townships in the north, and eventually Reeve Ferguson of Norwood yielded to the request and others of the south followed him in assent.

The municipalities receiving this aid are: Galway-Cavendish; Chandos; Burleigh-Anstruther; Harvey; Belmont-Methuen.

The council began this week's sessions Wednesday afternoon, and extended it into this morning (Saturday) with the probability they would manage to wind up by noon.

Now Overseas

Lt.-Col. V. R. Fell, second in command, Grey and Simcoe Foresters, and a veteran of World War 1, has arrived safely overseas. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fell, former residents of Peterborough and Bailieboro, and his family now lives at Burke's Falls.

Muskie Season Opens June 27

Hon. D. J. Taylor, Deputy-Minister of Game and Fisheries, has announced that the maskinonge season will open this year on June 27, instead of July 1, while the open season for bass remains unchanged as at July 1.

This change of dates automatically does away with the section of the Act which states that fishing for pickerel from a boat with artificial bait is illegal after June 27. Fishermen will be able to troll and cast for pickerel and maskinonge.

Many people throughout this part of the province had been hoping the Department would set the date ahead four days to allow an extra week-end of fishing, and because of many other conditions, Canadians and Americans engaged in war industries have to take their holidays whenever they can, and many of them are being forced by conditions to take at the latter part of June. Another angle is that the tourist industry is being hit, and the extra week-end of fishing will mean a lot to them. It will mean too that many Americans can get up to Canada earlier than they had planned previously.

The Department claims that the water has not warmed up and therefore spawning of bass is not advanced beyond that of any normal year. During April the weather was warm, so warm that the pickerel run was over a week before the season opened on May 16. Maskinonge spawning too was also finished at a very early date. The bass, however, require sunshine and warm water to bring another generation of fish into being, and the rainy weather and cool weather of May and early June has slowed up the natural propagation. Fishermen in general will appreciate the fact that Department officials in opening the maskinonge season, and throwing the pickerel fishing open, have made a gesture that will help a great many people, and while it may appear unreasonable and illogical for them not to open the bass season at the same time, nevertheless they are acting on reliable reports. Sportsmen and resort owners must cooperate in seeing that any bass caught by fishermen who are after pickerel and maskinonge must be handled carefully and returned to the water.

Springville Boy Is Struck By Car

Edwin Dunn, nine-year-old son of Henry Dunn, Springville, sustained a compound fracture of the left leg when he was struck and knocked down by an automobile while crossing Highway 28 at Springville on Friday evening.

Louis Loftus, Peterborough, was driving his automobile down the hill at Springville. Young Dunn who had been talking with two companions, Howard and Stewart Shaw on the west side of the highway, left them and started to cross to the east side to his home just as the car came along. One of the Shaws shouted a warning to the boy but apparent he did not hear as he walked in front of the automobile and was struck.

The boy was brought into St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment.

It Got Away

London, June 20 (CP)

THE BBC today reported that a German U-boat, cruising in the Bay of Biscay, was intercepted and badly battered by an R.A.F. Sunderland flying boat.

The Sunderland's bombs threw the U-boat to the surface. Then, as all its bombs were gone, the Sunderland spent two hours raking the U-boat's deck and conning tower with gunfire.

The Germans fired back until they were able to submerge.

CGE Employees Honor Memory Of J.G.M. Wilson

This Sunday, June 21, is Father's Day, when tribute is paid to him for all that he stands for in the family circle In the Armature Department of the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., the late J. G. M. Wilson was always looked upon and respected as the father of this group and in to-day's list for the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund there appears a contribution given by them to honor his memory, and through it to give some very practical help to the sufferers from air raids over Britain. When those who are still living can pay tribute to one who has passed on in this manner it demonstrates how he had endeared himself to his associates while living and working amongst them.

Friday's report carried an account of a donation from one of our Public Schools through the collection and sale of salvage, and following hard on this comes a similar one from the boys and girls of St. Peter's Separate School, which amounted to $4.51 an inspiration to others to help along the war effort.

A fine personal donation of $7.00 is listed, coming from one who has on a number of occasions given similar contributions to the fund.

Sewing Cabinet Draw.

A fine sewing cabinet has been made and donated to the fund by Herbert Jackson of R.R. 2, Omemee, and tickets are now on sale for a draw on it at 5 cents each or six for 25 cents, under the sponsorship of Canadian General Electric Company Ltd. employees, and tickets may also be procured at the Examiner Office. The attractiveness and value of the cabinet was enhanced by the gift to the fund of the necessary spools of silk thread to fill the fourteen places for them, through the kindness of Mr. Cunningham, manager of Woolworth's Store.

Garden Party on Monday.

The grounds of the residence of Senator Iva Campbell Fallis will be the scene of a garden party on Monday, June 22 commencing at 4 p.m. when an admission fee of 25 cents will be charged up to 6 p.m. with the service of afternoon tea, after which time admission will be free, with many and varied attractions to make an evening full of pleasure. This is a non-partisan and non-political effort of the Peterborough Women's Conservative Association to raise funds to help along the very worthy objectives of this fund and assisting in a national fund for the sending of mobile kitchen units to Britain. All are cordially invited to attend.

Rambling Reporter

HE DID IT AGAIN.

A well known merchant, William Campbell, is still chuckling over a story the sequel of which he learned Friday afternoon. This story of a tightly-knit gang corporation, has added another lively tale to this raconteur's stock. There exists a strong bond of loyalty between a bunch of boys in the West End and they believe in looking after each other's interests. One of the boys has a position in a business office and he knew that there was a boy wanted therefor relief job work for the summer. He tipped off one of his friends and the same afternoon the friend called up and asked for the boss, who was out. A whispered phone message advised the friend to stick around home for a while. About an hour later the phone rang with instructions to come right down because the boss was in. The boy grabbed his wheel and was down, according to Bill, in three minutes flat, and got the job. That was the end of the story as far as Mr. Campbell was concerned, and he told it to a number of friends. But Friday, another office which was looking for a relief worker had a boy apply, and just as a matter of curiosity the manager asked him how he heard of the job. Incidentally, the manager had heard the other story. "Oh," replied the lad, "a friend down at ——, told me." That is the way jobs are gotten now.—J. S.

SHE WALKED OUT

Jeannie, Harold Scott's famous "minnow pail" Scottie, caused considerable excitement around the Scott office Friday. While her master is at work, Jeannie usually stays in the car, but when Mr. Scott came out near noon, there was no sign of any dog and the car was shut up tightly. After a frantic search around the shop, Harold began to phone back to every place he had called at during the morning, and at the second last place, in desperation, he asked the merchant to go outside the office and look around for a little black dog and if he saw one, to call "Jeannie". If the dog answered the call it would be his. This idea worked. It seems that Jeannie, like other ladies, will only wait on her own so long, and when her master is delayed beyond the time she considers reasonable, she has a habit of jumping out of the car window and setting out for places unknown. When they found her, the dog was patiently waiting for her master to pick her up.—J.S.

Hit-and-Run Driver Strikes Motorist

Jack McGee of Bridgenorth was very fortunate that he was not seriously injured when his car was struck by a hit and run driver on Friday night, while returning from Peterborough.

The accident occurred at Milburn's school and Mr. McGee was struck by a passing car on the left rear wheel which turned his car around and rolled it into the ditch. Mr. McGee's car was damaged extensively but he was able to continue to Bridgenorth.

Constable Price Morris investigated the case.

Local Builder Gets Contract For New School

BAILIEBORO, June 20—(ENS).—Mr. William Lang of Peterborough has been awarded the contract to build a two-room school at a cost of $9,500.00. A meeting of the ratepayers was held in Fletcher's Hall Friday night to obtain the consent of the ratepayers to borrow sufficient money on a debenture, after the trustees have applied to the township council authorizing them to pass a by-law to be submitted to the Provincial Railway Board for a permit to build same school. Very little other business was transacted, due to waiting on the Railway Board's permit. Chairman Harry Campbell reported the buying of the school seats at a cost of 50" 60 ft. blackboards, toilets $500.00. Meeting was dismissed, waiting further word from the Board.

Kiwanis Hears 2 Young Artists

Recitations and singing were the order of the day at the Kiwanis meeting, Friday, as two young artists, Clifford Roydhouse and Arthur Jones gave splendid performances which were enjoyed to the utmost degree.

The songs "Somewhere A Voice Is Calling" and "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen" were splendidly sung by Arthur Jones. Clifford Roydhouse, a war guest from Yorkshire for the past few years made the rafters ring with his amusing pieces, "Albert And The Lion," "Runcorn Ferry," and last but not least, "Gunner Joe." In between the numbers of the guests artists a lively sing-song under Adjutant Norman Buckley added considerable fun to the gathering.

The guests who were present made it a sort of international meeting. They were Clifford Roydhouse, from England, Robert Glass of Euclid, Ohio, and A. C. J. Y. Hill, from Picton, formerly of England, who has been on this side of the water for about nine months.

Mr. Glass, who had attended Kiwanis International, gave a few details about the convention and told members that the one next year is to be held in Denver. There was a larger attendance this year than at the last one, he said, and everyone had a really wonderful time. He interjected a few personal remarks about his early life and that of his father who was born in Omemee. He said that in the past 40 years he had only missed two summers coming back to this district.

It was announced by L. J. Pettit that the speaker next week would be Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas, and her subject would be "Dominion Day."

Helen O'Grady Bride Of John C. Hickson

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning when Miss Helen O'Grady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy O'Grady of Norwood, became the bride of Pte. John C. Hickson of Cornwall, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Hickson of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. R. Wolff while Miss Marion Best presided at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Frederick O'Grady, wore street length dress of aquamarine chiffon with lace inset. She wore an off-the-face turban to match, and white accessories. Her corsage was Irene roses and she carried a white prayer book and rosary—the gift of the groom. Miss Kay O'Grady was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing a salmon pink redingote with white collar and cuffs. Her accessories were in white and her corsage was briarcliffe roses. Mr. Clayton Hickson of Toronto, brother of the groom, was best man.

A reception was held at the Empress Hotel where wedding breakfast was served to the immediate families. The bride's mother received in a navy blue printed crepe dress with corsage of pink carnations, assisted by the groom's mother wearing a black sheer dress and corsage of Bettertime roess.

Following a short trip to Montreal the bridal couple will live in Cornwall where the groom is stationed with the R.C.O.C.

The Red Cross

says A. C. Cummings, writing from the Spectators London (England) News Bureau. In this world-wide war of devastation tragedy and deprivation, the Red Cross stands out as a mighty organization for healing, help, comfort, kindliness, and goodwill towards every fighting man who wears the King's uniform. The Canadian Red Cross Society, in short, is a credit to Canadian organization, generosity and foresight. In no activity more than that of assisting prisoners of war is the work of the Red Cross more appreciated. The reason why the Canadian Red Cross Society becomes so important to the captured airman soldier or sailor is because it represents his relief from boredom, his contact with home and the outer world, and the source of his supply of better food than that which the camp provides."

Forty thousand food parcels per week are being shipped by the Canadian Red Cross Society, and they are asked to double that figure this year.

The million dollars which the Canadian Red Cross spends annually on its peace time activities (never forgotten even in time of war) goes in part for outpost hospitals, which provide medical and public health services in isolated communities. Newest phase of the Red Cross program on the "home front" is the community doctor services, which is helping to promote the health of people in such communities where the regular practitioner has enlisted, or is serving in some capacity. Dr. Wilfred T. Cumming, attending the four municipalities in Algoma district, and Dr. Frank R. Donnelly, working in the Lion's Head district, are the first community doctors. Appointment of a third doctor for Rosseau has been authorized.

Mention must also be made of the work done and being done for the Russians.

Eight hundred thousand dollars has been collected in Canada, besides the amount paid for medical supplies sent by the Red Cross. This money is to be spent in Canada at the request of Russia for purchasing supplies, etc., they find themselves in need of, and of which they will notify the Red Cross from time to time. Their pressing need just now in 500,000 sheets 250,000 pillow covers, and garden tools. Already the workers are busy.

To come nearer home, a very pleasing incident occurred just recently in connection with money sent by the Red Cross to Kinmount at the time of the fire, to aid the sufferers. One-half the amount was returned with the message that as there was now no actual want, they were sending it back that some other more needy cases might be helped.

Such is the unselfish spirit of our people everywhere.

For the lucky girl who's getting married this month, people all over the world have been working hard to assure her future happiness. They have been making clothes that will enchance her beauty. They have manufactured furniture and appliances that will increase her comfort and her health. They have devised ways of giving her added beauty. They have grown flowers for her and printed cards and made all the useful things that are so necessary in married life. And all these things have come to Peterborough that she might buy them easily. On these pages merchants featuring merchandise of interest to the bride tell their stories. Read the advertisements on this page, then act on their helpful suggestion.

SPORTING BLOOD

By HARRY HARRISON KROLL

OUT ON BAIL

CHAPTER X

"IT'S on the barrelhead," she laughed. She rattled the door for Anderson to let her out.

An hour later Sheriff Anderson was back. "Get your knitting. They've got the hot-seat ready and are fixing to burn the seat of your pants out. Come along."

Hunter Dent gawped at Sheriff Anderson. "What do you mean, Sheriff—burn out the seat of my pants? What is all this, anyway?"

Anderson, grinning, unlocked the cell door. "Come along. You'll know all in good time."

Hunter followed the officer a block along the side street to the court house. In a few moments they were with Judge Elkins.

"Young man," Judge Elkins said, "you are free. Go your way."

"What—what do you mean?" Hunter gasped. "I mean, how did this happen?"

"Your bond has been posted, and until your case comes up for trial you may come and go as you please."

"But—who went on my bond, Judge Elkins?" Hunter still was dazed.

"Your bondsman wishes to remain anonymous. You are dismissed."

"Well, what do you know!" Hunter said wonderingly as he went out into the free, open sunshine. He stared all about, at the sky, the trees, the busy little city. "Looks good to me!" he muttered.

While in jail looking through his cell window at the slum section where the stick-up had been staged, an idea or two had hovered in Hunter's mind. He had thought a great deal about the questions: Why the money moving at such a time of night, where was it going, how did Junior know beforehand the route of the messenger. What was it all about, anyway? A hypothesis was growing in his mind. Maybe it was far-fetched. But he was up to his eyes in the mess, and it was up to him to do all he could to get out of it.

From the newspaper Hunter had the place where the girl, Sally Kiker, lived. He was remembering something about Sally, too. When he had first read the name it was oddly familiar to him. Then he remembered. Sally Kiker was Sam Doolittle's girl. Sam was the son of Squire Doolittle, the constable and owner of the little store out Hunter's way. Hunter and Doolittle were good friends; and it was more than likely that Sam Doolittle was the escort Sally had so far shielded. It was a lead worth following.

HUNTER made his way there. Once past the bad corner the street became somewhat better and Hunter knocked at the door of a small but neat house of recent FHA vintage. Sally herself came to the door. She was a buxom girl, with a milkmaid freshness; she was the authentic thing, instead of the synthetic type that Red Ballard had been.

"Good morning. This is Hunter Dent, from the Ballard Estates. You are Miss Kiker? May I come in a few moments. I wanted to talk with you about the bank-messenger matter." He added quickly, seeing the swift hostile change that came upon her. "I happen to have been put in jail charged with that murder, Miss Kiker. I'm out on bond now. I had no more to do with that unfortunate matter than you did. I have to find out all I can about it, because my case will come up at the winter session of criminal court, and—well, you can see how it is with me." He smiled his best smile. "I know Sam Doolittle," he added. "I know his father very well."

"Well, Mr. Dent!" she smiled. "Will you come in?"

She had read about him in the paper, as he had about her. They talked of the Doolittles, father and son. "If you'll call Mr. Doolittle and ask about me I am sure you will feel free to help me. What I wanted was for you to tell me exactly what you saw the other night; better still, go with me and let us go over the ground together."

"As soon as I can change my dress," she said.

He heard her telephoning Doolittle's store. When she reappeared she was cordial. Hunter found her one of those people you seem always to have known. They walked up the street to the corner. Crossing to the east side, they stopped at a dark doorway which led into the stairs mounting to the top of the unpainted frame vacant store here.

"If I tell you who was with me you won't give me away?" she asked.

"I've already guessed it was Sam. Go ahead—I don't know, so you're safe."

"Well, the other night we were coming from the picture show uptown. This is a pretty bad part of town—you know that. We heard somebody coming along. Sam pulled me in the door here. He has a milk route and he knows what a wicked spot it is. We saw a young fellow come past. He was walking fast. He carried something under his arm. His hat was pulled down over his face, so we couldn't tell anything about him much. He had dark clothes and maybe a colored shirt. He looked clean. Sam thought he had his hand in his coat pocket as if on a gun. You know how they keep them ready. I couldn't tell, myself.

"Just as we were about to come out and start off again, here came someone running like everything. We jerked back in here. This time I saw a good-looking young man all dressed up. Had on a silk hat and tails, and I saw the pistol in his hand. He was yelling at the one ahead to halt and stick 'em up—you know how they do those things. Then it just happened so fast you couldn't make heads nor tails of it. Shooting and yelling and when I looked out, like this—from right here," and she stood so she peered around the edge of the door facing, at an angle across the street, "I saw two other men. They seemed to come from around the corner of the pressing shop there, or maybe they could have been hiding in that stairway yonder."

"You know, though, there were two?" Hunter said.

"I'm sure," she said.

"What did they look like?"

"W-well, the street light here is so sorry I couldn't tell, very well. Besides, they were under the awning there, and you couldn't see much."

"Would you say they were just about of a size, and kind of sleek like, and maybe a little under average height?"

She nodded, adding, "And dressed in dark, too. They looked almost dirty. But they were not. They were fixing the street, there—putting down fresh tar and gravel. There was a long plank on barrels across the street, and these kerosene flares. Well, the shooting started and I was so scared I didn't know which way was straight up. All I seem to remember was the dressed-up young man running out of sight that way," she pointed down the street, toward the river road. "He must have had a car down there somewhere. I heard it when it went off with a big roar. And that's all I can remember. Sam and I ran. We saw the man lying in the street, where he had been shot and killed. I lost my purse in the door here, or they'd never have known I was about. Well, that's the way of it."

"What of the two men who came around the corner?"

"We never saw them any more. Not a sign. I think the shooting scared them away."

HUNTER took her home, and went back uptown. He took a taxi to the hospital and was allowed to visit Junior a moment. The boy grinned at him wanly. He was still too weak to talk. As he went out on the street, Red came up in her car. She was the very person Hunter wanted to see, though he just then thought of it. He got in with her.

"Did you go my bail, Red?" he demanded.

"If you must know, and I suppose you must, it was Hank Temple's father, at the bank."

"Red, I've been over that ground down there, and I have a theory. Junior was in that crazy stick-up, all right. He was the young man in tails who started it on a bet. But the parties who changed the joke into a tragedy were not fooling. They saw a chance to pick up seventeen thousand bucks. And those two were on the inside, too. They are your friends. That is, part of the crowd that makes up your sporting circle of pals. They wanted seventeen grand bad enough to kill somebody to get it. Only they didn't get the money."

"No, Hunter," Red said. "But I know who did, and who has it now!"

London Clears Raid Damage To Start Rebuilding

When London residents read of 1,000-plane raids by the R.A.F. on German cities with resulting devastation they can look at scenes like the ABOVE with a certain grim satisfaction. For this is part of the Heart of Empire, still scarred by the all-out Luftwaffe raids which blasted and burned London but could not conquer Britain's fighting spirit. The picture was made from Ludgate Hill looking west toward St. Bride's, Fleet Street, and Reuters, and shows how the work of demolishing, clearing and rebuilding has already started.

STAY-AT-HOME HUSBANDS SHOULD NOT BE MURDERED

Most Women Content Themselves By Crying Over Forlorn State

A young woman who murdered her husband because she asked him to take her stepping and he refused and told her to go to bed, has been acquitted by a jury of her peers, twelve women, all of whom probably had felt like slaying their own husbands under similar provocation, but had lacked the nerve to do it.

Let us hope and pray that this case will not set a precedent for justifiable homicide and make a husband, wanting to stay at home at night and rest his feet when his wife wants to go dancing, one of the crimes that entitle her to shoot him on sight. Heaven knows it has seemed bad enough for the poor tired business man to be divorced by his wife because he didn't feel frolicsome after toiling for eight or ten hours to provide her with beauty treatments and fine clothes, but for her to commit mayhem upon him for that reason is really carrying the matter a little too far.

Most women stop short of that and content themselves with shedding a few buckets of tears over their forlorn lots and telling their friends about how mean and selfish their husbands are, and how little they appreciate all they do for them, telephoning in the grocery order every day and spending the morning looking for bargains that have been marked down from $60 to $59.98.

This emotional outlet conduces to the safety of husbands and makes marriage a less dangerous occupation than it would otherwise be for them, but it does not remove wives' ancient grievance about having husbands who are not willing to play around with them of evenings.

Cause For Many Fights

Probably there is no other thing, unless it be the bills, over which husbands and wives have so many fights as they do over the amusement question, for each looks at it from a different and purely personal point of view.

The woman who is tied down with little children and has nothing more exciting to listen to all day than the baby's da-da and the eternal cry for m-o-t-h-e-r wants her husband to entertain her with brilliant and scintillating conversation when he is at home, and tell funny stories that will set the dinner table in a roar. And when he retires, with his pipe and the evening paper, and passes into silence as soon as he has gorged himself, she feels like ramming the pipe down his throat and choking him to death on the war news.

The housewife who cooks and scrubs and patches and mends and has nothing to occupy her mind, except to think how bored she is, wants to do something of an evening that will give her a change, if it is no more than to go window shopping, or to play bridge with the Joneses, or eat a hamburger that she didn't cook herself, and she thinks her husband an old meanie for not going gadding with her.

Wants To Appear In Public

And the woman, who thinks herself a good-looker and has an expensive new evening gown, wants to flaunt in public where she will see and be seen. She practically married to get a permanent date who would take her out and give her a good time, and when she finds that she almost has to chloroform him to get him into his evening clothes and that on all festive occasions he sits around looking like an early Christian martyr, she bemoans herself as another victim of marriage.

The husband, on his part, who is mentally and physically worn to a frazzle with his day's work, who has talked and been talked to until he hates the sound of the human voice, who desires nothing on earth so much as just spending the evening slumped on the living-room couch, can't for the life of him see why his wife wants to gad the streets, or go to see a silly movie, or visit the Joneses and listen to Jones tell how the war should be won and Mrs. Jones discourse about the baby's teeth.

There you are. And there is no use in telling the wife to compromise by taking her fun in the afternoons, for half of a woman's pleasure is in parading her husband in public, no matter how gloomy he looks. So there is nothing to be done about it. But really the poor man shouldn't be killed for balking. That is too severe a punishment, thought I have heard men say they would rather be shot than go to the Smiths' party.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, June 21

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows exceptional activity in all affairs in the realm of heart and home. Social, domestic, artistic, affectional and sentimental matters eclipse all other interests. It is probable this excitement may concern engagements, courtship or marriages. Spiritual affairs all thrive. In all affiliations be careful not to offend superiors, elders or employers.

Those whose birthday it is may have a particularly gay and happy as well as prosperous year in domestic, social, artistic, or emotional affairs, which will overshadow all other interests and aspirations. These should flourish and give unending happiness, if there is determination not to offend employers or superiors.

A child born on this day should have outstanding artistic skill with fine creative talents and versatility. It may have a happy domestic life but not be on agreeable terms with employers or superiors.

For Monday, June 22

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of surprising although solid events combining to give security and dependability to affairs generally and the fortunes. Strange or unforseen developments may give quick and peculiar stimulus to static or crystalized conditions. New ventures as well as public projects are under fine impetus, but all are subject to unwise outlay.

Those whose birthday it is may not be surprised if sudden and strange impetus should give dynamic movement to stagnant and crystallized affairs, long static. New ventures as well as all sorts of public affiliations are under fortunate stimulus, but be careful not to overdo in outlay of funds and personal extravagance. Beware treachery and fraud. Elders assist in stabilizing the fortunes and furthering ambitions.

Trying To Help

London, June 20 (CP)

THE BBC reported three young French sailors arrived in London today, after jumping overboard from a convoy of Vichy ships going through the Straits of Gibraltar.

They were picked up by British patrol boats and will soon be in the Free French Navy. The sailors said one of the Vichy ships tried to leave the convoy and make a dash for Gibraltar but was headed back by an escort vessel.

One of the sailors told how at the French port of La Rochelle he saw a French tanker back out of the harbor and ram and sink a German torpedo boat. The tanker crew maintained it was an accident, but the Germans arrested the engineer. He was never seen again.

Less Sunday Ads

Ottawa, June 20 (CP)

POSSIBILITY of a reduction in Sunday radio advertising through co-operation of privately-owned stations was suggested by Gladstone Murray, Canadian Radio Corporation general manager, to the House of Commons radio committee today.

Mr. Murray said the CBC is anxious to reduce Sunday advertising and is enlisting the support of privately owned stations which have already indicated a readiness to co-operate.

The Main Move

London, June 20 (CP)

RUSSIAN desires for establishment of a second front in Europe were emphasized anew today by Ivan Maisky, Soviet Ambassador to Britain.

Writing in the Soviet War News Weekly, Maisky declared the Red army is "stronger than ever before and is preparing for the defeat of Hitlerite Germany in 1942," but he added:

"The best means of speeding the day of victory is the creation of a second front, about which an understanding was reached by the government of the U.S.S.R., Great Britain and the United States during Vyacheslav Molotov's visits to London and Washington."

This Week In Radio

Of particular interest to fathers, mothers and wives of men overseas is the announcement by the C.B.C. of a new "Troop Time Broadcast" to be heard Sunday afternoons at 5.03. This half-hour program will be devoted to messages home from Canadians on active service overseas—men of the Army, Navy and Air Force. The messages have been recorded by the C. B. C. overseas unit and the recordings sent to this country. As each parcel contained a list of the people to whom the messages are directed, post-cards will be sent out with notification of time and date, to ensure that all greetings reach their proper destination. Owing to the great volume of messages which will be handled in this new Troop Time, it will not be possible to arrange any rebroadcasts, so please put your card in a safe place and be on time for the first program.

William Temple, Archbishop of Canterbury, will be heard over CFRB on Sunday at 4.00 p.m. in his first secular address since his recent enthronement.

Stephen Vincent Benet, brilliant American poet, is writing a complete new series entitled "Dear Adolf," which will be based on a series of six letters written to Hitler and which will be heard on Sundays at 5 p.m., WEAF.

With Charles Laughton, Groucho Marx and Gloria Warren, in support, Lionel Barrymore as narrator, the Rudy Vallee program will provide the third Victory Parade over CBL, at 7.00.

"Time Out for Laughs," starring Lou Holtz, is a new WABC program of mirth and music, having its debut Sunday at 7.15 p.m.

The speaker on the "Guest of Honor" program heard Sunday at 9.00, will be T. A. Warren, who flew from Britain to attend the 1942 convention of Rotary International of which he is first vice-president. The address will be broadcast from Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, where the Rotarians are holding their first session.

Tommy Riggs, the versatile young man who made a screen, radio and stage career out of a trick voice and an imaginary little girl named Betty Lou, has been selected as the summer replacement for George Burns and Gracie Allen. Riggs and Betty Lou will join the Burns and Allen show for two guest performances, June 23 and 30, and then take over the complete half-hour Tuesday, July 7, WEAF, at 7.30 p.m.

The Fibber McGee and Molly final broadcast of the season before embarking on their summer vacation will be on Tuesday, June 23, over CBL, at 9.30 p.m. Meredith Willson, whose versatility makes him one of the most interesting figures in music, will present his orchestra in a program entitled "America Sings," in place of the Fibber and Molly program.

Dellie Ellis, 'teen-aged starlet, will have the job of filling Bob Hope's shoes for the summer, when she makes her bow in the title role of "A Date With Judy," heard Tuesdays, WEAF, at 10.00 p.m.

There's an unusual treat for listeners to the "Kate Smith Hour," which will broadcast a preview of the star-spangled Irving Berlin service show, This is the Army. The show with its all-soldier cast and special Berlin musical score, will have its Broadway premiere July 4.

Smart Costume Jewelry You Can Make Yourself

Clip From Pearl Buttons

Amazing what smart costume jewelry you can make yourself! This lovely Grapes of Pearl clip costs little, is easily put together—and how smart it looks on party dresses and day clothes, too.

You need only an ordinary brass hinge, annealed wire and 13 pearl ball buttons—6 of them about ⅜ inch in diameter and 7 of a larger size.

First double a 14-inch length of wire, slip a small button down to the fold, and twist wires 3 times. Now add to each wire a small button, loop the wire back through each eyelet and secure the cluster of 3 by twisting the wires 3 times.

In much the same way you add the other 3 small buttons, then the 7 large ones.

To fasten the pearls to the hinge, insert wires through holes, twist tightly at the back.

Other jewelry you make as easily—sometimes using things on your pantry shelf. From macaroni—a sea shell necklace; from chick peas—a "gold" bracelet.

Complete directions for these and other smart pieces of costume jewelry are given in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to make bracelets, belts, necklaces, boutonnieres from inexpensive materials for all kinds of costumes.

For your copy of Costume Jewelry You Can Easily Make. Send 15 cents in coins or stamps to The Peterborough Examiner Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of Booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOWING GREAT LENGTH

MORE AND more fine players are refraining from using an informative double when they have appreciable length in two suits, but show one of the two suits at once. If the hand is strong enough, they do it with a jump of one more than necessary to overcall the opponent's bid. By thus showing an unbalanced hand to their partners, they encourage suit showing in response, instead of No Trumps when possible stoppers of the hostile suit are held.

North: ♠ Q 7 5 ♥ Q 8 7 ♦ 8 5 4 ♣ J 5 4 2

West: ♠ A K J 8 4 2 ♥ A 9 3 2 ♦ None ♣ A 9 3

East: ♠ 9 6 ♥ K J 5 4 ♦ Q 9 2 ♣ K 10 7 6

South: ♠ 10 3 ♥ 10 6 ♦ A K J 10 7 6 3 ♣ Q 8

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

	South	West	North	East
1.	1♦	Dbl	Pass	1 NT
	Pass	3♠	Pass	3 NT
2.	1♦	2♠	Pass	3♥
	Pass	4♥

Notice what a tough job East had to select the right bid after his partner doubled at Table 1. He feared that 2-Hearts would be too weak, that his hand was not strong enough for 3-Hearts, and that 1-No Trump would show just about his degree of strength, including a likely diamond stopper. West was afraid to bid only 2-Spades after that, so probably did the best thing with 3-Spades. East now could not show hearts at four, but had to bid 3-No Trumps, which could not be made. After the diamond K, South switched to the heart 10. East ran eight tricks, then had to lose one to North, whereupon diamonds defeated him.

When West showed his strong, but unbalanced, hand with 2-Spades, East shied away from No Trumps to proclaim his hearts. West naturally took that to game. As the cards are located, a grand slam got made, which might have been bid if West had cue-bid the diamonds after East showed hearts, and then had Blackwooded to find what kings East held in the other suits. By that method, 6-Hearts would have been conservative bidding after the original sound start with West's 2-Spades instead of a double.

Your Week-End Lesson

Why is a major suit game contract usually preferable to one at No Trumps when you and your partner possess a fit of four trumps in one hand opposite four in the other, with each of you having a side doubleton in different suits?

Nazi Libya Claims

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts), June 19. —(AP) — The German High Command claimed to-day that German and Italian troops have completed the encirclement of Tobruk and forced the main British defences back upon the Egyptian border.

The capture of 1,000 British troops in mopping-up operations against scattered outposts and nests of resistence in the Libyan desert battle area was reported.

Large quantities of war material abandoned in the British withdrawal were reported taken over.

Troop Train Ditched

VICHY, June 20. — (AP) — Another troop train has been wrecked by saboteurs in occupied France and attempts at sabotage have been made against two other trains, it was revealed to-day.

The new efforts at sabotage became knon when rewards to French railway men for preventing damage to trains were announced.

A man and woman were arrested in Paris yesterday, charged with smashing the window of a German employment bureau, another announcement said. A third demonstrator escaped.

Where Japs Seeking Stepping-Stones To North America

Japan's first attempt to seize strategic outposts in the Western Hemisphere has been centred on remote parts of the Aleutian Islands which stretch as a bridge from Alaska toward Siberia. Contested landings have been made on the tiny islands of Fiska and Attu and U.S. and Canadian air forces are reported attacking. TOP photo shows the village of Attu on Attu Island, a small collection of structures with the Russian orthodox church, LEFT, the main building. BELOW is Unalaska, on which the Dutch Harbor naval and air base is situated, as seen from an American patrol vessel.

Problem Of Japs

Victor Quelch (N.D. Acadia) said earlier in the week his group would not oppose the bill simply because the government had failed to make desired provision for added financial assistance for men in the forces.

One Liberal member, Ross Gray (Lib. Lambton West) went on record during the week as demanding imposition immediately of all-out conscription. Seventeen French Canadian members have expressed criticism of the measure on anti-conscriptionist grounds.

Navy Minister Macdonald speaks Monday.

Opposes Mixing Units.

Col. Gibson, first speaker in the Conscription debate on Friday said he does not favor mixing men called for compulsory service with volunteers now overseas unless such action becomes essential.

As long as a volunteer force could be maintained in the field it would be more effective than one partly or wholly comprised of conscripts. Conscription should be resorted to only if the necessary reinforcements could not be obtained by the voluntary method but the Government should have the authority to impose such conscription immediately it became necessary.

Ross Macdonald, (Lib. Brantford City) supporting the bill, said men called for compulsory military training should receive the same training as volunteers so every soldier would be able to go anywhere, when required, in the defence of Canada and to assist the successful prosecution of the war.

Canada had a definite place in Hitler's plans for world conquest and Canadians should be prepared to fight Naziism wherever it was found.

Placing a territorial limitation upon men called for military service was "unrealistic." Canada was being defended on distant fronts and the Government should have the power to send men anywhere.

"It is foolish and I often think cowardly to say that our job is essentially to supply tanks and that it is the job of someone else to supply men to operate them," said Mr. Macdonald. "We must be better than coatholder....We cannot hide behind our munitions plants....We must remember that tanks are of no use unless we have men to operate them."

The United Nations would be forced to take the offensive and open up a second front. Those who would send no more troops out of Canada were a defensive, defeatist, short-sighted attitude."

Col. Gibson said he is not an anti-conscriptionist but that he does not think conscription is necessarily the best method of producing an effective fighting force.

Not Necessarily Satisfactory

Conscription would not automatically mean an increased war effort or more satisfactory results, particularly in Canada where a considerable section of the population was known to be opposed to it.

In winning the war the "best services of the best" would be required. If possible, their strength should not be diluted by the inclusion in their ranks of others who had been forced to serve.

Mr. MacNichol said members of the cabinet speaking on the bill had spent "a good deal of time trying to persuade our compatriots of Quebec that this bill does not really mean anything, that it does not mean conscription, that it does not mean that the country is going to have a cumpulsory all-out effort in any event."

In eight of the provinces the manpower plebiscite vote last April 27 was for all-out compulsory service. He was proud of what Canada had done but believed it could do more. If Canada had enlisted in its armed forces as many men as New Zealand, in proportion to population, it would have 1,656,000 under arms.

Trouble With Japanese

Mr. O'Neill, opening the lebate on the Japanese problem, said he had received complaints that the Japanese work camps in northern British Columbia are not properly guarded, with one gun in a tent where there were several camp guards. The gun had 12 rounds of ammunition, "so that even if you got a Jap with each round of that ammunition still there would be plenty left to outnumber the guards in the camps."

Japanese in the camps were becoming more arrogant every day and they could not be forced to work. He had been told Japanese were on strike in the North Thompson River area.

"How long would you and I last if we were in Japan and carried on like that?" Mr. O'Neill asked.

"How much longer are we going to pussyfoot with these yellow devils in the West?"

Hon. Grote Stirling (Con. Yale) said the truculence of some Japanese had aroused concern. Japanese had drifted into the fruit-growing area from the protected area and people of the district were afraid Japanese would gain control of large areas of land and frighten away white owners as had been done in areas where Doukhobors had moved in.

Tom Reid (New Westminster) said there should have been drastic action in moving Japanese from the coast and the military should have been in charge.

There were only three ways of entering British Columbia, by two railways and a highway. Japanese labor camps near the railway lines were without guards at night and there should be sufficient guards at the camps to give protection against sabotage.

armies holding the Baku-Batum area.

A Swoop on Iceland.

From Western Europe the Germans would unleash an intensified air-sea campaign against British and United States shipping. This might involve raids on Britain, a sea foray against Iceland by the battleship Tirpitz and the new aircraft carriers Graf Zeppelin and Deutschland, and possibly diversion air raids on Washington and New York.

The Germans are believed to have about 150 Heinkel 177's which could be used in such raids and British fliers have reported seeing mile-long runways in Norway from which they could take off. With 1,000 pounds of bombs, the Heinkel 177 is said to have a range of 7,000 miles—enough or land-based attacks on the New York-Washington area.

For the next few weeks the weather will be favorable for naval and air attacks against Vladivostok and the Kamchatka Peninsula. From late June through early August is the time also, when Japan's 1,000,000-strong army in Manchukuo traditionally grows restive.

A "feeler" attack against Russians on the Amur River front preceded the start of the China War in July, 1937. It also was in the July-August season that the Japanese staged the Changku-Feng and Nomonhan limited warfare with the Russians in 1938 and 1939.

Nazis Boast

"Quite simply and bluntly," the Evening News said, "the reason is that from the beginning we have under-estimated the strength, cunning, resources, and recuperative power of the enemy.

"We did not believe he could have better tanks than ours, but he did.

"We did not imagine he could have a deadlier anti-tank gun.

"The volume of our transport was fantastic, but we did not calculate that Rommel's would be even more fantastic....It is a bitter lesson."

Even now, it appeared, the Germans may be striking swiftly for the Egyptian frontier without stopping for an assault on Tobruk the Libyan seaport 80 miles from the border whose isolated defenders have strengthened their position with new barbed wire, minefields, and reinforced pillboxes.

While front-line reports indicated the Italians may be digging in for a siege on a line west of Tobruk, the German column which took Gambut was reported pushing eastward along the coast and keeping pace with another force further inland.

British forces, meanwhile, have strengthened their positions behind the Egyptian frontier and thrust out mechanized patrols from the south to harass the flanks of the German columns.

Milk Producers Dissatisfied On Gordon Stand

OTTAWA, June 20.—(CP).—Spokesmen for the Ontario Whole Milk Producers League last night termed "unsatisfactory" an interview which they had with Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, on the question of increased prices for milk producers.

"We did not consider the results of our hearing were satisfactory," said one delegate. "He (Mr. Gordon) practically told us that if we are to get an increase we will have to go back to the old Provincial Milk Control Board."

The delegation, comprising the executive of the Ontario Whole Milk Producers League, was headed by J. A. Hughes of London, president of the League.

Other delegates were R. F. Lick, Oshawa, secretary of the league: Garfield Rowse, Owen Sound; W. H. Wilmot, secretary of the Toronto Milk Producers Association; Colin Rogers, Kingston; A. D. Wilson, Chatham; V. S. Milburn, Peterborough. borough, secretary of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, and Walter Haskins secretary of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Principal request of the committee was a 40-cents-per-hundredweight increases in the price of milk to producers. An average net return worked out at about $2.00 per hundredweight.

Nothing To Replace Subsidy.

There had been nothing to take the place of the 30-cent Federal subsidy when it was withdrawn on May 1 the committee said following their meeting with Mr. Gordon.

It was not possible to say how long farmers would continue to produce milk under the circumstances. About 10,000 producers in Ontario were effected by the situation, it was estimated.

"It is a big question what will happen to the milk supply before long," one delegate said.

Following the meeting Mr. Gordon said all sides of the problem raised had been discussed and that both parties knew where the other stood.

Later the delegation met Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Postmaster General Mulock to discuss the same question, but they declined to comment on their meetings with these officials.

Committee members, however, said Mr. Gordon's answers to their representations had been vague and they therefore considered them unsatisfactory.

Last Fall farmers had hired extra help on the strength of the Government subsidy, it was said, with the exception of getting the bonus again this summer. Now they would have to let their help go and carry on in a small way.

The committee could not anticipate what attitude the farmers would take as a result of what had occurred at the meeting with the prices board head.

The consumer, however, soon would see the result of producers having to operate on a reduced scale as a result of having to let their extra hands go.

The committee said Mr. Gordon repeated his statement that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board would concur in an order of the Ontario Milk Control Board if that body found it feasible to provide for a higher price to producers in "consequeneces of measures to reduce the cost of distribution."

Nazis 'Discover' Heydrich Killers, Slay Them As Ultimatum Expires

LONDON, June 20—(CP). — Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo wrote a typical Gestapo ending to the assassination of Germany's notorious "hangman," Reinhard Heydrich, by announcing that his killers had been found in a Prague church yesterday and were "shot while resisting arrest."

The German announcement said the two men accused of fatally wounding Heydrich ear Prague May 27 and others involved in the crime were "Czech Nationals who were dropped from British planes over the protectorate with orders to commit murder."

(The B.B.C in a broadcast to the dismembered Czechoslovakia from London, said the Germans "decided to discover" the plotters after their threats of heavy reprisals failed to move the Czechs to co-operation.

(The B.B.C. pointed out that word the killers had been "discovered" came two hours after the expiration of an ultimatum to the Czechs to deliver the killers or suffer the consequences).

The German announcement said the two Czechs had been hiding in the church "for some time." An announcement from the German-controlled Prague radio reported that, in addition to killing the actual assassins, "it was possible to dispose of their closest aiders and abettors."

382 Paid Hun Price.

Previously in reprisals for Heydrich's assassination, the Germans executed some 382 perso s, mostly in Prague and Bruenn, besides slaying all the men in the village of Lidice on the ground the assassins first found refuge there.

Lidice was wiped off the map as the men—Czech sources in London put the total at 350—were executed and the women and children were transported to other areas.

Heydrich died June 4. He was buried with elaborate Nazi ceremonies and eulogies by his chief, Himmler, and Hitler, who called him "one of our martyre."

Golf Course Opens In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, June 20. —(ENS)— After several postponements the Nursery Golf Club here final managed to get in its inaugural tourney between showers on Wednesday afternoon. With all of the greens dried out after the continuing rains and several improvements from last year being completed the golfers felt the day was a complete success despite the fact rain sent them scurrying to the club house early in the evening. Winners of the tourney were Mrs. W. Peloquin with a low gross of 100 and Jim Gay with 72.

LAKEFIELD

Institute Group Sponsors Lively Comedy

LAKEFIELD, June 20.—(ENS).—The three-act comedy, "Ready-Made Family," brought forth many laughs and proved a real treat at the Memorial Hall on Monday evening. The play, which was put on by Warsaw, was brought here under the auspices of the local Women's Institute.

The Rev. Mr. Snelgrov of Warsaw was chairman for the evening and introduced the cast. Miss Minnie Charlton entertained at the piano before the opening, and Mr. Charles Hemsley, accompanied by Mrs. H. E. Moore, sang between acts.

The play, in three lively divisions, was very well presented, and at the close Mrs. Howard Bullock, president of Lakefield Women's Institute, thanked the cast for their splendid performance.

Lunch was served to those participating in the performance by Mrs. Stan Higgins, Miss Margaret Sanderson, Mrs. Howard Bullock, Mrs. Roy Bullock, and Mrs. Amberson Davis.

The proceeds, which amounted to approximately $38, will be used for war work, to buy supplies for quilts and layettes.

The Women's Institute plan to hold a tag day for the Navy League on July 25.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Roy Bullock on July 2.

ROMMEL RACES ON EGYPT TOBRUK AS SPRINGBOARD

Street Fighting On In Sevastopol

LONDON, June 22 (CP)—Reuters said to-day it had recorded a Vichy broadcast reporting that street fighting had begun in the besieged Russian fortress of Sevastopol. The report was based on a Bucharest dispatch.

During last night German and Rumanian forces pierced the last line of fortifications guarding the city at two points, Reuters quoted the broadcast as saying.

Also during the night, it continued, a number of units defending Sevastopol began to embark on transports. But at midday fighting "of unprecedented violence" was going on.

A Stockholm dispatch also said Soviet troops had withdrawn into the city's central defences.

The Red fleet, this dispatch said, had succeeded in landing some reinforcements, but these were insufficient to affect the situation.

Yield Two Fortress Lines

MOSCOW, June 22 (AP)—Sevastopol defenders dropped back from north and south fortresses guarding the Crimean naval base before enormous German pressure, exerted ceaselessly despite heavy casualties, estimated at 100,000, which Axis forces have suffered in less than three weeks.

A fresh Nazi wedge was forced in the fortifications to the north where the enemy massed a huge force of infantry artillery and tanks, press accounts said.

In the south, where the Russians had dropped back to the central lines, a furious battle was reported under way for a hill dominating the sector.

Today marked the start of the second year of the war for the Soviet. As the battle for the last remaining bit of Crimea entered its climatic stage, German vessels appeared off Sevastopol, dispatches from the city said.

Two German torpedo cutters were reported detected by two Russian rowboats on a mission close to the shore. The Russians claimed to have damaged one. The rowboats also were said to have found an enemy submarine on the surface. The vessels could have come from Rumania, Bulgaria or the occupied Russian port of Odessa.

Sporadic fighting was reported continuing on the Kharkov front, 400 miles to the north. The Germans were said to be attempting to restore lines in a sector where they previously had lost four Ukrainian villages but the attack of two companies was reported repulsed.

The Germans besieging Sevastopol already were lodged in the outer defence lines.

Last Fort Taken?

BERLIN. (From German Broadcasts), June 22.—(AP).—The German High Command claimed today that the entire region north of Sewernaja Bay on the northern side of Sevastopol's defences had been cleared of the defenders with the capture of the last coastal fort.

The fort was taken in a hard fight, the communique said.

"Destruction of enemy forces still resisting at the utmost tip of the isthmus is in progress." it continued.

"On the rest of the investing front German and Rumanian troops, supported by the air force have assaulted and captured several forts and strongly-defended heigths."

German planes shot down 28 Russian planes over Sevastopol and the Donets front yesterday. the communique asserted.

Railway buildings and enemy supply columns also were bombed on the southern part of the eastern front.

The Russians attacked on the central front and on the Volkhov sector south of Leningrad where theier force was said to be strong and to have tank support, the Germans said.

They were reported repulsed in the central sector. but bitter fighting was said to be continuing on the Volkhov front.

Hint Surface Raider Off W. Coast

Suspect Same Craft In Both B.C. And Oregon Swoops

VICTORIA, June 22.—(CP)—Possibility of an enemy surface raider was on the prowl along the Canadian-United States East coast was raised here today as a shelling attack on the shore near Seaside, Ore., followed a similar attack Saturday night on the Dominion Government radio telegraph station as Estevan on the west coast of Vancouver Island. No damage was reported in either case.

In commenting on the calmness of the people of British Columbia following the first attack of the war on Canadian soil, Mayor Andrew McGavin of Victoria said the people "would like to learn if the Seaside attacker is the same that attacked Estevan, or is a fast surface craft is loose on nuisance raids."

Military authorities declined to comment but it was said unofficially some military men subscribed ot the surface raider theory.

Mayor McGavin said the people's interest in the raid was "due to curiosity, not jitters."

"I haven't noticed any change in the people's demeanour," he told The Canadian Press today. "No one is jittery. Why should they be over a nuisance raid such as Estevan or Seaside."

90 p.c. Of Convoy Makes Russia

SOMEWHERE IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC June 18— (Delayed).—(AP). — The tired gun crews of a munitions convoy to Russia, hearing a shrill "Here they come again" from lofty lookouts, pulled helmets tighter and sped to action stations to meet the challenge of German bombers attacking for the third consecutive day.

Heretofore the attackers had been light dive bombers but now the enemy formations were made up of larger torpedo-carrying aircraft.

One huge German bomber was hit while directly over the middle of the convoy. It fell blazing less than 100 feet from a ship.

An aerial torpedo hit a British merchantman, blowing it up.

The story of the attack was told to-day by the officers and crewmen of a freighter which was two lengths from the British ship.

The Admiralty already has announced that 90 per cent of the convoy reached Murmansk safely.

Lindbergh Moving

DETROIT, June 22. — (AP). — Charles A. Lindbergh has leased an estate in Bloomfield Hills, fashionable suburb, with plans to move there with his family this week, it was learned to-day from a central agency.

Join Or Be Cheated

VICHY, (From French Broadcasts), June 22.—AP).— Pierre Laval, Chief of Government, told Frenchmen in a radio broadcast to-night that "I desire Germany's victory, and we must either take part in the new Europe (of Hitler) or be resigned to being cheated."

"If I tell you this policy is the one to save France and guarantee a good future you must believe me," he said. Germany, he declared, was making great sacrifices to create the "new Europe," and without her "the Bolshevist menace would spread over Europe."

Appealing to French workers he said: "It is for the liberation of a great number of war prisoners that you have to go to work in Germany."

Japs Inch Nearer Now 585 Mi. Off Dutch Harbor

WASHINGTON, June 22—(AP)—Under cover of fog and thick weather, Japanese landing forces have inched along the Aleutian Island chain toward Alaska and now are establishing themselves at Kiska, only 585 miles from the United States Navy base at Dutch Harbor.

This was disclosed in a communique yesterday that told of the bombing of "a small force" of enemy ships in Kiska Harbor. Army fliers reported hitting one cruiser and sinking a transport.

(At the same time it was announced in Ottawa that an enemy submarine presumably Japanese, had shelled the Dominion Government radio station at Estevan Point, Vancouver Island, on Saturday night. The submarine pumped shells at the station for about half an hour but failed to do any damage.)

While the number of ships actually in Kiska Harbor may have been small, observers pointed out that presence of a cruiser might indicate a force of destroyers and auxiliaries was somewhere in the vicinity.

The communique said operations in the Aleutians "continued to be restricted by considerations of weather and great distances."

"Within the last few days, however," it added, "the weather was sufficiently clear at times to permit some restricted air operations against Kiska where the tents and minor temporary structures were observed to have been set up on land."

The Navy reported on June 12 that a small enemy force had landed on Attu, a barren, rocky islet marking the westernmost tip of the Aleutian chain. At that time the presence of enemy ships at Kiska was noted but they were reported shortly afterward to have been driven away.

Kiska, formerly used as a Navy coaling station, is about 275 miles east of Attu. About 20 miles long, it is sparsely inhabited by Indians and a few white traders.

African Units Mainly Escaped Trap

4 Ships Fled Tobruk, Troops Do Fast Job of Destruction

LONDON, June 22 —(AP) —Gen. Jan Chrisitaan Smuts, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, announced to-day that, although "substantial numbers" of South African troops were captured at Tobruk, most of the force from South Africa remained intact and ready to help hold Egypt, the B B C said to-day.

"These units ,together with the reinforcements which South Africa will now provide, will play a vital part in the defence of Egypt and in the ultimate resting of Libya from Axic control," B B C quoted Gen. Smuts as saying.

Another B B C broadcast said that although Axis shelling of Tobruk harbor made it impossible to embark troops, four supply ships escaped from the port during the fight, saving their cargoes of war material.

The broadcast quoted a dispatch from Cairo that "British, South African and Indian troops were strenuously engaged in the work of demolition, and they may have been more successful in destroying stores and equipment than might have been expected considering the shortness of the time at their disposal."

Crisis Seen Ahead.

A military defeat in Libya of such magnitude that it may have blighted the Allies' hope for a second front in Europe this year and prolonged the whole war was acknowledged to-day with undisguised anxiety. All sources agreed the Allies were faced with a crisis.

The next few weeks, they said, will decide whether Germany can be beaten in 1942 or 1943 or will be able to fight on for years using the oil of the Middle East and the tin and rubber of the Far East.

If Field Marshall Erwin Rommel followed up the capture of Tobruk with customary Nazi speed, it we believed the impending Axis thrust toward the Suez canal and the road to Iraq would be launched within a month.

Even more than the fall of Tobruk, itself, alarm was felt because Rommel's assault on the fortress, once so staunchly held against seven month of seige, showed that the Axis possessed a striking power which appeared to have been underestimated.

Depend Upon Us Churchill Assures Stalin

LONDON, June 22—(CP) — A message from Prime Minister Churchill to Joseph Stallin on the first anniversary of the German invasion of Russia said today "the fighting alliance of our two countries and of our other Allies, to whom there has now been joined the vast resources of the United States, will surely bring our enemies to their knees."

"You can count on us to assist you by every means in our power," the Prime Minister added.

The message contained "a renewed expression of our admiration for the magnificant defence of your armed forces, guerilla bands and civilian workers" and expressed the conviction that those achievements will be equalled and surpassed in the coming months."

Mr. Churchill recalled that Britain soon would enter her fourth year of the war.

He told the Soviet premier that the Anglo-Russian 20-year pact reflected the progressive strengthening of relations between the two countries during the past year and said:—

"That treaty is a pledge that we shall confound our enemies and when the war is over build a sure peace for all freedom-loving peoples."

Advised To Move

HONOLULU, June 22. — (AP). — Warning that the United States victory over the Japanese in the battle of Midway "has given many people a false sense of security," Lt.-Gen. Delos Emmons today urged all non-residents to leave the Hawaiian Islands as soon as possible.

Although American air and naval forces early this month routed the largest fleet Japan ever sent across the international dateline in what may have been an attempted invasion of the United States west coast, it is dangerous to assume the enemy will not return.

Southampton Hit As Hun Repay Raid On Emden

LONDON, June 22—(CP)— Nazi air raiders, apparently replying to two successive R.A.F. night assaults on Emden and other targets in northwest Germany, unloaded high explosives on Southampton last night in a sharp attack which caused some damage and casualties.

The raid was described at the heaviest on Britain in three weeks, but informed quarters said the number of planes which participated was not large in comparison with the formations the R.A.F. has been hurling against Germany.

Two German planes were shot down by heavy anti-aircraft fire and two more were destroyed by R.A.F. fighters over their continental bases.

The R.A.F. fighters also strafed German airdromes in northern France and the low countries and blasted at railway communications, the Air Ministry said. One British bomber was reported lost during the night in the course of mine-laying operations in enemy waters.

Bad weather over the continent, however, prevented the R.A.F. from following up its Friday and Saturday night attacks on Emden with another assault on German territory.

EXTRA!

BERLIN.—(AP).—In hard street fighting, house after house in the shipbuilding section along Sewernaja Bay on Sevastopol's northern defences were stormed by German troops today, high command sources asserted. A group of Russian forces was surrounded and killed, it was claimed.

TORONTO, June 22 —(CP) — Firemen were surprised when they were called to extinguish a blaze in the boiler room of a Toronto steam bath on Saturday. There were some 30 customers on the premises at the time.

Threaten Allied Positions In Whole Middle East, British Stand At Ft. Capuzzo

Isolated Allied Units Fight on About Tobruk Battling Way Out of Port Roundup; Extended Desert Railway Falls To Axis

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

CAIRO, June 22.—(AP).—Driving forward without a pause from their capture of Tobruk, Nazi mobile columns have clashed with British forces a few miles from the Egyptian border, British headquarters reported today, as the Allied position in the entire Middle East appeared threatened by the defeat in Libya.

The British command said the clash occurred 12 miles northwest of Fort Capuzzo, which is just across the border in Libya.

It was indicated that a few of the garrison troops—Britons, South Africans and Indians—had escaped from Tobruk. Some small craft moved out of the harbor while it was under shellfire from German tanks and other parties fought their way through enemy formations in the desert.

Isolated parties also were reported continuing resistance.

The booty gained by the Germans still was not known here, but it was reported that great explosions occurred in the last hours of Tobruk's resistance, indicating quantities of material were destroyed.

One of the gains of the Germans was a recently built extension of the desert railway to a point south of Tobruk. This formerly reached only to Matruh in Egypt, 120 miles from the border, Retreating troops were reported to have torn up stretches of the railway, however.

The Egyptian Government issued an order to-day to check the downward trend of the Cairo stock market.

The Axis air forces, following up quickly their success in Libya, bombed the Egyptian coast between Sidi Barrani and Fuka.

The British loss of troops in such numbers, many of them non-fighting or technical personnel, was regarded as serious, but it was said here the loss of position did not mean the end of the desert war.

Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie has fortified this important gateway to Egypt and prepared for defence of the whole Egyptian-Libyan border.

Storm For Churchill

It was expected that Prime Minister Churchill will face an aroused House of Commons when he returns from the United States, and some political observers said many members of Parliament were critical of what they called the "rosy picture" painted by the Prime Minister after the first clashes in the current campaign.

A military commentator in London, however, said that Axis claims to a least 25,000 prisoners taken at Tobruk were "exaggerated." It was believed little shipping was caught in the harbor.

The general view was that Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck's Middle East command faced a decisive battle within 60 days, with Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel having his greatest advantage in his preponderance of armed formations over the British 8th Army which is under immediate command of Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie.

The British line along the frontier is of slight use, some commentators believed, so long as the Axis has tanks to flank it through the

County Gives Red Cross Grant Of $2,500

Patriotic grants by the county council Saturday were: Red Cross Society $2,500; Navy League $1,500; British War Victims' Fund $500.

The council retained $1,019.34 until the November sessions and will use this sum for the assistance of local branches of the Red Cross or other emergencies. Total amount provided by the levy of half a mill for patriotic purposes was $5,519.34.

The grant to the British War Victims' Fund was in response to a special appeal by Fred G. Mann, its administrator, who said earlier in the week that he needed $550 to complete the eighteenth £500. He also said he intended to make special mention in his cablegram of the help received from Peterborough County Council.

A Health Campaign

The council declared itself in favor of the ideal of municipal health services and adopted a resolution appealing to the provincial government to pass legislation enabling local municipalities to engage doctors for their communities. The council is asking the other counties in the province to endorse this resolution, and as a further step in that direction Reeves Johnston, Mather and Gifford were appointed a special committee to endeavor to have local health surveys made during the summer and autumn months, and to report at the closing sessions of the year.

'It has been said, and possibly it is true, that we have been giving more attention to the health of livestock than to our people," said Reeve Gifford. "We asked the government to make a survey of the soil of the county, and now we are making a move to get better health conditions.

Alarming Condition

Rejections of young Canadians when they volunteered for the army and other branches have been amazing to me. The large number was proof that we have reached a low health category and we are still only a young country. Another phase is that the number of rejections of men from the country has been larger than those from the city. I consider it is an alarming situation, and it is about time we began doing something about it."

Reeve Mather said that if the council could get the medical association's objections "down on paper" it might be a great help to those

Battle of Egypt May Pivot on Air Power

Rommel's Success Likely To See Hitler Unleash Planes From Crete, Greece

By DE WITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Marshal Rommel's capture of Tobruk, and the precarious position of Russia's great naval base of Sevastopol under furious German assault —operations vitally linked with Hitler's attempt to break into the Caucasus and Middle East—bring us appreciably nearer the moment when the Nazi chief will unleash his full pack and race for a kill.

The British 8th Army now is back on Egyptian soil, preparing to defend the base of Alexandria and block the road to the Suez canal. Obviously the position is serious.

The London Press, surprised and angered at this defeat, asks whether there has been a blunder. That's a legitimate question, but pending further information one is entitled to say no more than that Rommel has again demonstrated he is a master strategist and tactician.

While Britain certainly must inquire into the circumstances of defeat, the problem now is to defend Egypt and the canal, for they must be held at all costs. We don't know how much the British command has salvaged from the shattered 8th Army which was operating in Libya, though a considerable force withdrew across the border.

Apart from this, there are the Egyptian arm yof 40,000 well trained men and 100,000 Allied guardsmen.

So far as concerns land forces, it's doubtful whether Rommel could at this moment muster more men than the defence appears to have, although he is superior in tanks. However, it seems that the battle for Egypt is likely to turn on air power.

This may be the time when Hitler will cut loose the air fleet which he has been grooming for so many months. One of the most significant news dispatches of theday is the report of a Greek submarine commander, who has just returned to Alexandria, that "the Nazis seem to have lots of aircraft on Crete and in Greece." From those positions the Germans could attack either the Middle East or Egypt.

The greatest danger is that Hitler may not only stage a violent air offensive against Egypt, but may also reinforce Rommel with airborne troops and supplies. Therefore control of the air over Egypt becomes a matter of paramount importance, and it will be surprising if Britain is not urging the immediate dispatch of substantial air reinforcements from the United States.

The capture of Tobruk may permit Rommel to make a quick stab at Egypt. He will want to catch the British defenders before air and other reinforcements can reach them, and while his army undoubtedly is weary from the terrific pace it has been keeping, and the even more terrific summer heat of the desert, he likely expects quick reinforcements.

Churchill, F.D.R. Plot Brews

Conferences on Day and Night—Statement Later

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(AP) —Vital conferences between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt were described to-day by the White House as progressing day and night in a "very satisfactory way" and it was disclosed that the two United Nations leaders expected to issue a joint statement later on.

They were conferring together and also with military, naval and air experts of both countries.

This much was revealed by Presidential Secretary Stephen Early in the first word since the conference began.

"I can say simply this." Early told reporters. "the conferences are continuing in a very orderly and a very satisfactory way. Neither the Prime Minister nor the President feels they have reached a point in their talks where any public statements can be made. As soon as that point has been reached, you may expect a joint statement from them.

"The conferences are continuing day and night and between the British and American staffs working under their guidance, but holding at times separate conferences. from those being held by the Prime Minister"

McNaughton For 2nd Front

Canuck Mentioned in U.S. as Supreme Commander

WASHINGTON, June 22—(CP)—Published reports which lack any official confirmation or backing that Lt.-General A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian Corp Commander in Britain, is favored as supreme United Nations commander in the opening of a second European front, were called "highly speculative" to-day by Steve Early, President Rousevelt's Secretary.

The reports about Gen. McNaughton had become widespread in Washington since the Montreal Gazette published a dispatch containing them from its Washington correspondent L. S B. Shapiro. It is admitted, even by British sources here, that it might be difficult to persuade the United States Government that a British general should be given the command, considering the public reaction in the United States to the Malayan and Libyan campaigns.

An American leader, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, is in command of the South-west Pacific, and it might be considered that some one other than an American should be given the high command in Europe. When he was in Washington several weeks ago Gen. McNaughton made a profound impression on President Roosevelt and various military leaders, particularly as an attack-conscious officer and for his deep knowledge of modern warfare.

25,000 Britishers Captured Says German Claims, Libya Back In Axis Hands

Fear Tobruk Garrison Given Little Time To Destroy Huge Store of Supplies; Enemy Columns Head for Fort Capuzzo

CAIRO, June 22.—(AP).—Egypt and the whole British position in the Middle East were menaced today by the capitulation of Tobruk under a smashing Axis offensive which has done incalculable damage to Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie's 8th army.

As the battered British survivors of the bloody Libyan campaign worked feverishly to strengthen their positions along the Egyptian border. military quarters here conceded the probable truth of Axis claims that 25,000 of Gen Ritchie's men had been captured by the combined German-Italian forces which completed occupation of Tobruk yesterday.

There was no denial either of reports from Berlin that German troops had pushed on fro Tobruk to capture Bir El Gobi, a desert track centre 40 miles to the southeast, and the port of Bardia, only eight miles from the Egyptian border.

A British communique reported today that an Axis column was moving toward Fort Capuzzo, which is just inside the Libyan border about 20 miles south and slightly east of Bardia.

This force made contact yesterday near Sidi Abeiz, 12 miles northwest of Fort Capuzzo, with mobile British forces operating out in front of the Egyptian border defence line, the communique said.

The bulletin gave no new information on developments at Tobruk, saying merely:

"There is no further news from Tobruk, which must be presumed to have fallen."

Libya Back to Enemy.

While some British forces were still operating west of the Egyptian frontier, virtually the whole of Libya was presumably to all intents in Axis hands. It was expected here that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel would attempt to capitalize on his successes by striking swiftly at Egypt in the hope of dealing the remaining British forces a death blow before they could be regrouped.

Military quarters here were vague as to the factors accounting for the fall of Tobruk, but it appeared the British forces had lost such a large proportion of their armored strength in the savage desert fighting which preceded the final assault that they were unable to offer effective resistance.

Dispatches from the front gave no indication of any attempt to remove the Tobruk garrison by sea during the furious 25-hour battle that ended in its fall.

Supplies Bolster Nazis

It seemed probable that in addition to large numbers of prisoners, most of the equipment which Britain convoyed to Tobruk only a few days ago at great cost had fallen into Axis hands, for events moved so rapidly that complete destruction of stores would have been impossible.

While the portion of Ritchie's forces which escaped this debacle were said to be holding strong positions along the Egyptian frontier, there was no disposition here to minimize the seriousness of the situation.

The fall of Tobruk, which British forces had held since Jan. 22, 1941, and which had withstood a seven-month siege last year, gives Rommel an important supply port close

Board Expected To Ask Nominee To Quit

PORT HOPE, June 22 (Special to Examiner) — A special meeting held on Friday evening in Port Hope between the Citizens' Committee on the School Question and members of the Public School Board failed to reach a decisive point.

It is understood the citizens' committee acting on the program authorized by the signators of a petition asked for the special meeting so that they might formally request the Board to ask the Board's appointee to the High School Board, R. E. Sculthorpe, to resign. This was done, but after lengthy discussion the meeting was adjourned until Monday evening when the deliberations will continue and it is expected a decision will be reached. No information was available from those in authority as to what action the Public School would take, but two rumors were being bandied back and forth across the town. The first was that the Board would unanimously endorse the request that the appointee tender his resignation and the other was that the appointee, who appears to be a popular resident of the village, would throw his weight into the fight to have the principal of the school reinstated.

Mr. Sculthorpje could not be reached for a statement on the matter, but the rumor was heard in several places in the town.

Definite information on this particular development will be available for publication on Tuesday, it was understood today. Already the committee has approached the Counties' Council at Cobourg, who agreed by a majority vote that their appointee, Mr. Davidson, the High School Board chairman should be asked to resign.

sert warfare, and there was possibility that Gen. Wavell, who invaded Libya successfully before with 30,000 men, may be called back from his present command in India to handle a situation which hourly grows graver.

The sources consulted included Allied Staff officers, United States diplomats and cabinet members of the Allied Governments in London.

All shared the opinion the situation in North Africa is the most important and potentially the most dangerous of any facing the United Nations.

Military observers expected that an Egyptian thrust by Rommel would be accompanied by a drive at Russia's Caucasian approaches to Iraq and the landing of air-borne infantry and parachutists in Syria in an effort to pin Britain armies there and prevent them from reinforcing the tired 8th army in Egypt.

Nine Shells Waken Oregon Resort As Enemy Craft Rakes Coastline

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—(AP). — The United States army announced that six to nine shells, apparently fired from an unidentified craft off shore, landed in the area north of Seaside, Ore., at about 11:30 p.m. (Pacific war time) last night (2:30 a.m. Monday).

The firing continued for 15 minutes, the army reported, but apparently no damage or casualties resulted.

The announcement was made by headquarters of the western defence command and fourth army. It said:

"Six to nine shells landed in the area north of Seaside, Ore., at approximately 11:30 last night (June 21, 1942), apparently from an unidentified craft offshore

"Firing lasted 15 minutes. No damage or casualties reported."

An army spokesman added that no further details were available for the time being.

Seaside, primarily a resort city, is about 25 miles south of the mouth of the Columbia River. It is several hundred miles distant from Vancouver Island, where a similar attack was made by another unidentified craft Saturday night.

A number of beach resorts and other small settlements lie between Seaside and Astoria, at the entrance to the Columbia, but none is of a character to be described as an important military objective.

Seaside itself has a permanent population of 2,902 or the basis of the 1940 census. Astoria is a city of 10,389.

Resort Jarred Awake.

ASTORIA, Ore., June 22.—(AP)—Shelling at sea awakened hundreds of residents of Astoria and surrounding communities late last night, among them Robert Lucas, associated editor of the Astoria Budget.

Lucas said the sound of gunfire came between 11.30 and 11.45 p.m. (P.D.T.), 2.45 a.m. E.D.T., Monday.

"I hurried upstairs to have a look toward the sea," he continued, "and heard from 12 to 16 shots. The shells seemed to be landing somewhere with a great thud, but I couldn't tell what the objective was.

"I don't know where they were aimed at the land or at some target at sea."

Lucas learned many of his ac-who were beginning the campaign for better health.

"The doctors are a hundred per cent against it," said Deputy-Reeve McIlmoyle.

The special committee was given power to act, "use its best judgment" in its assignment for local health surveys for the purpose of obtaining information as a groundwork of what may be undertaken.

Salaries Increased

The finance committee's report was adopted including the recommendation to increase the salaries of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Garbutt, respectively superintendent and matron of the House of Refuge, from $70 to $90 a month. The increase in their combined salary is $20 a month. Reeve Gifford presided as finance chairman.

A five year audit of the books of the Peterborough Board of Education by J. L. Langley of Toronto was approved in the report of the committee on education which met in secret sessions during the week with Reeve Mather in the chair. The time specified is 1937 to 1941 inclusive. The Board is requested to make the records available to the auditor, and it was stated in the resolution that at the conclusion of the enquiry adjustments between the council and the board could be made "either way" depending on which body was in debt to the other for a final settlement of the matter in dispute.

Payment of $25,000 on account to the Board of Education for county pupils in 1941 was authorized, and the requisition for school purposes this year through the tax rate was estimated at $45,875 for the present budget.

The legislative committee included in its recommendations a request that insurance companies be asked to decrease their rates on automobiles.

$2,000 For Reforestation

The reforestation committee set aside $2,000 in the estimates for reforestation work this year. An amendment by Reeves Mann and Mather suggested that this appropriation be cut to $500, but the motion for the larger sum carried. Deputy-reeve McIlmoyle is chairman of the reforestation committee this year.

One of Britain's leading military experts said dive-bombing not only decided the issue at Bir Acheim but was "to a great extent responsible for the fate of Tobruk."

An R.A.F. commentator said R.A.F. fighter patrols could not be over Tobruk all the time. An Air Ministry statement yesterday mentioned that on Saturday, when the assault on Tobruk was taking place, the R.A.F. was engaged in withdrawing from its advanced fields in Libya.

Varied Program Is Planned For Army Week

Peterborough's committee for Army Week, June 20 to July 5, has prepared a most extensive program. Officials of the District Committee pointed out at Military Headquarters to-day.

A summary of the contemplated schedule for this city indicates that every citizen in the area will be given full opportunity to play his part in honoring the men in khaki. It is now assured that there will be many parades and other events of a military nature, built largely around the men who are now training in Morrow Park.

Arrangements are being made to open the week's celebration with a drumhead service. Music is to be furnished by a band from Headquarters in Kingston.

On Tuesday of Army Week, as in every community across Canada, Peterborough housewives are requested to serve all meals during the day according to a diet sheet as used in military camps. Every citizen is asked to write at least one letter to someone on active service. It is also suggested by the committee that friends and relatives send parcels overseas.

It is also expected that all men of the Reserve Army will wear their uniforms during the whole of Friday which has been set aside for this part of Canada's defense forces.

Although final arrangements have not been completed, it is hoped that service clubs will have soldiers as their special guests during this week and that a large number of men in training will find a welcome in private homes for at least a part of the day.

LAKEFIELD

Auction Nets Red Cross $100

LAKEFIELD, June 22.—(ENS)—A miscellaneous auction sale, the first of its kind held in Lakefield netted the Red Cross and Beaver Club members over $100.

The auction with all materials and articles donated ranging from three kittens, a tricycle, home cooking, fruit, flowers, furniture, chickens, to glassware and lamp shades, was held on the main street Saturday night with J. H. Miles of Peterborough donating his services as auctioneer in this unique eight to eleven p.m. sale.

All the executive of both organizations under the presidencies of Miss Grace Stuart and Mrs. Sarah Wiggins aided and did an admirable job in this drive for war funds.

Special draws were made on five feature articles, two quilts, one donated by Mrs. Hescott, the other by the Missionary and Service Club, an oil painting given by Miss Laura Quinn, and a bag of flour and a four-pound box of chocolates, prizes won last fall by the Red Cross on their exhibits at the agricultural fair.

The first quilt was won by Mrs. R. Davis of Omemee; second quilt, Mrs. J. W. Ridpath, village; oil painting, Mrs. Reg. H. Howden, Barrie; chocolates, Elsie Waldon, Lakefield; flour, David Spence, Lakefield.

The sale of tickets on these special articles previous to the auction brought in $62, swelling the total proceeds to over $162.

Besides donations from members of both clubs and a host of friends, village merchants generously donated towards the cause with flour, articles of clothing and groceries.

The money from the venture will be used by the Red Cross to provide materials for a busy fall in the club work room.

Radio Station Escapes Night Raid

Barrage Half Hour; New Jap Forces Landed on Aleutians

OTTAWA, June 22—(CP)— War came to Canada's doorstep over the weekend when shells from an enemy submarine screeched through the darkness and fell at remote, rocky Estevan point on the west coast of Vancouver island late Saturday night, for half an hour.

The shells, fired at the Dominion government radio telegraph station on that isolated spot, missing the building and did no damage, except a few windows broken by concussion.

A brief mimeographed statement from National Defence headquarters supplies first word of the initial at-supplied first word of the initial at-Canadian soil.

The statement was issued by Defence Minister Ralston late Sunday—just 5½ hours after the undersea craft pumped shells at the isolated station some 160 miles from Victoria.

It was based on a report from Lt. Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of the general staff who is temporarily commander-in-chief, west coast defences.

The statement:

"The commander-in-chief, west coast defences, reported that the Dominion government telegraph station at Estevan Point, Vancouver Island, was shelled by a submarine at 10.35 p.m. (Pacific Time) on Saturday night. No damage resulted."

There was no indication of the nationality of the submarine, it was presumed unofficially that it was Japanese.

More Japs in Aleutians.

The statement coincided with an announcement in Washington by the United States navy that the Japanese forces have put forces ashore at Kiska Island in the Aleutians, less than 600 miles from the American navy base at Dutch Harbor.

An air raid warning was sounded in Prince Rupert, B.C., on June 9 when unidentified planes approached that northerly coast port, but it was lifted when the aircraft were identified as friendly.

Last May 26 an unidentified bomber flying over the Lake St. John area in Quebec caused alarms to be sounded at various points before the plane was identified as friendly.

Plans for protection of British Columbia against possible sabotage by Japanese living in that province were aired in the House of Commons last Friday. A number of coast province members expressed concern over Government arrangements for moving Japanese from protected areas.

One speaker, Howard Green, Conservative member for Vancouver South, said the situation with respect to the Japanese had become more critical since the landing on the Aleutian Islands.

A short six months since the United States was attacked by Japan you see one of the U.S. tank factories in operation, turning out these land battleships by the hundred. This is a view of the Chrysler tank plant in Detroit. Imposing as it is, it is a cog in the mighty machine now in high gear churning out the sinews of war to beat the Axis. Production has hit its stride and the tanks roll off, night and day, in a steady stream that forces the turn of the tide against our enemies.

Weather, Sugar Dominate Women's Minds

CAMPBELLFORD, June 22 (ENS) —Some noteworthy short-cuts for the busy housekeeper and an address "Eating for Good Health" were features of the monthly meeting of the Seymour West Branch of the Women's Institute which met on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ward Archer. The president, Mrs. Arthur Rutherford, who was returned to that office at the annual meeting a month ago, gave a brief inaugural address in which she thanked members for their cooperatoin of the preceding year and urged the same measure of support during her present term of office. Mrs. Rutherford then read members a part of the introduction book by Miss V. Powell dealing with the growth of the Women's Institute since its organization. Title of the book was "Forty Years of Growing."

The response to the roll call, "Short Cuts in Housekeeping" was principally a reflection of the proposed rationing of sugar since many of the forty ladies placed emphasis on this question expressing the belief it would result in a greater amount of fresh fruit being consumed. Another suggestion that stayed with some members mirrored the weather. It dealt with the problem of salt refusing to came out of the shaker. The remedy proposed was to put a few kernels of rice in with the salt to take up the moisture.

Red Cross Quota

Mrs. James Waters outlined the new quota asked for by the Red Cross and asked all of those who could knit or sew, to make a special effort to assist with this work. Though members have been making a valuable contribution to the work of the Red Cross Mrs. Waters who heads this committee felt the necessity of making a new appeal with the busier season at hand since some might otherwise be disposed to overlook its importance. It was announced that at every future meeting a short prayer for peace would be offered and on motion the secretary was authorized to invite the district president, Mrs. Wofraim, to be their guest at the September meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. John Locke. First aid kits placed in four of the district schools by the branch will receive the attention of the Home and School committee during the present month. They were authorized to inspect the kits and replenish any supplies giving a statement of their purchases to the secretary. The president, Mrs. Art Rutherford and Mrs. Harry Hoard were named as delegates to attend the meetings planned to arrange the army week celebration in Campbelford.

Gardens Important

Mrs. Harry Hoard presided for the program and she called on Mrs. James Waters who gave the topic "Eating For Good Health." Mrs. Waters spoke of the vitamin content in various foods and told of the effect of insufficient vitamins. In her opinion the home which had its own vegetable garden from which a plentiful supply was used on the family table, was less frequently visited by illness. The listed three things which made meals more palatable: 1, fresh vegetables; 2, properly and attractively prepared food; 3, attractively served meals. Mrs. Water characterized the sugar rationing as a blessing in disguise since most people were inclined to over-eat sweet foods. These same people may now turn to vegetables and fresh fruits to satisfy their longing for sweet things. A vocal solo by Mrs. Don Rutherford, a piano solo by Miss Phyllis Elmhirst, community singing and a contest conducted by Mrs. Hoard formed the balance of the program.

Two Youths Face 38 Counts In Cobourg Court

COBOURG, June 22.—(ENS)—Albert and Andrew Ibey were remanded until next week when they appeared in police court here on a long list of charges of breaking and entering in connection with a series of robberies of summer cottages in the Campbellford and Hastings district. They were arrested some time ago by Provincial Constable Don Carruthers of Campbellford. The offenses covered a period extending from April to June of this year.

Albert Ibey on 20 separate charges of breaking and entering and theft, pleaded guilty to ten of them and secured a remand without plea on two of them. He appeared jointly with Andrew Ibey on two charges. Andrew Ibey was charged with 18 counts of breaking, entering and theft and pleaded guilty to only two of them. He secured remands without plea on two of the charges and pleaded not guilty to all the rest.

Both youths were charged with having in their possession a sawed-off rifle, the gun being a .22 rifle with most of the barrel sawn off. They pleaded not guilty.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman asked for a remand of one week in order that the Crown could have witnesses to testify in all the cases in which the accused had pleaded not guilty.

Livestock Shipper Is Fined $50

COBOURG, June 22.—(ENS)—Charged with breach of the Hog Subsidy Act, Arthur Covert, Roseneath livestock shipper, was fined $50 and costs or 15 days when he appeared before Magistrate R. B. Baxter on a charge laid by the Department of Agriculture.

Inspector G. Mackay of the C.I.B. of the Ontario Provincial Police, Toronto, produced a cheque for $3 made out to Nicholas Dodge, Roseneath farmer, which the inspector testified had been signed by the accused for Dodge and collected by Covert. Crown Attorney Harry Deyman stated that the offense had apparently arisen out of a misapprehension of the correct interpretaton of the Act. The Act was designed to encourage the raising of hogs of a certain weight. They had to be shipped, the Crown Attorney pointed out, by the farmer who raised them, making the farmer and not the intermediary shipper eligible for the subsidy. Covert paid his fine.

Cobourg Church Marks Centenary Of Founding Theological College

COBOURG, June 22.—(ENS)—St. Peter's Anglican Church, Cobourg, marked the centenary of the founding of the "Diocesan Theological College," an institution for the preparation of young men for the ministry of the Church of England. This college was founded by the first bishop of Toronto, Dr. John Strachan, who appointed Rev. A. N. Bethune, then rector of St. Peter's Anglican Church, here, as the principal. During the first term there were nine students in residence at the college which occupied a building on Green street not far from the church. Some 45 students were trained during the ten years that it was located at Cobourg. In 1852, when Trinity College, Toronto, was opened as a church college with both arts and theology on the curriculum, the Diocesan College closed in Cobourg and merged with Trinity College in Toronto.

The occasion was marked by a special service of thanksgiving in the morning at which the Archbishop of Toronto attended, the sermon being preached by Rev. F. H. Cosgrave, Provost of Trinity College, Toronto. In the evening, after a brief service in the church an illustrated lecture of an historical nature was given by T. A. Reed of Toronto, an authority on church history in the province who gave an account of the founding and development on the Diocesan Theological College in Cobourg.

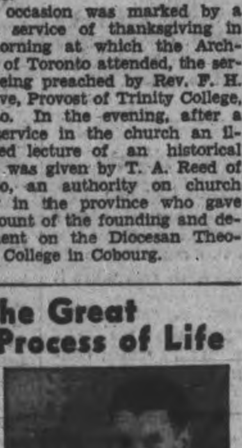
Digestion — The Great Process of Life



Acute indigestion may arise from overeating or the use of food which is difficult to digest.

But chronic indigestion, which stays with you, causing sleepless nights, headaches, bodily pains and depressed spirits, is usually the result of torpid liver and constipation. The process of digestion is held up and the body is poisoned by accumulated waste matter.

The use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills helps to arouse the torpid liver to action, the bile flows freely to the intestines, stimulating these organs and soon everything is going fine. What a pleasure it is to enjoy your meals and feel that there will be no discomfort afterwards.

The Honors Question Re-Opened

In the House last Friday the Hon. Mr. McLarty, Secretary of State, gave notice of a motion to set up a special committee to re-consider the question of honors for Canadians. Since 1919, when an anti-title resolution was adopted by Parliament, honors and titles have not been conferred upon Canadians, except for those which were bestowed under the Conservative administration of Lord Bennett. Now, according to Mr. McLarty, "application of the principles embodied in the report in the circumstances which have emerged during the present war have led to discrimination between the members of the Canadian armed forces and others of His Majesty's armed forces, between different ranks of the Canadian armed forces and between Canadians actively participating in the present war and others of His Majesty's subjects."

The 1919 resolution did not involve the discontinuance of military and naval decorations, such as the Victoria Cross and the Military Cross. But these are granted only to men who have shown especial bravery in action, and the men who do staff work and the commanders who are not in the thick of the fighting cannot be recognized with any of the distinctions which are reserved for such work.

Good soldiers are not medal hunters, but there are few people who do not like to have their good work recognized. We are all human, and it helps our morale to have the Sovereign decorate us when we have done well. We sincerely hope that the committee will be able to arrange matters so that no man who renders distinguished service shall go unrecognized.

We should like to see the whole question of honors re-considered. The 1919 resolution was a churlish one. It said, in effect: Titles, medals and such gauds are all very well for Britishers, Australians, South Africans, Indians and suchlike, but we Canadians have souls above these things, and we do not want them. It was, in fact, an indication to the Sovereign that Canada did not value any of the distinctions which he had to bestow. The resolution passed Parliament, but the Senate did not adopt it, and consequently it is not binding upon the Crown. When R. B. Bennett was Premier he very sensibly disregarded the resolution and several knighthoods were granted to distinguished Canadians.

As things stand in Canada the eminent scientist, artist or educator receives no recognition from the State for his work, and we feel that this is wrong. It may be contended that titles and honors are undemocratic, but we do not agree with this view. Surely democracy consists of recognizing ability where it exists, and not in a foolish attempt to ignore the obvious differences between one man and another. Once again we raise our cry: Let us by all means have democracy in law, but let us have aristocracy in thought. And where aristocracy of thought exists, let the King honor it in the traditional way.

Labor Not Frozen

The Order-in-Council by which the Government has assumed control of all labor in Canada has been widely misunderstood. Labor has not been "frozen"; rather the object of this legislation is to make labor somewhat more fluid. In future no worker, "from president to office-boy" in Mr. Little's phrase, may change jobs without information to that effect being made available to the regional office of the Department of Labor. No employer may take on a man or woman without informing the local office, and if he wishes to discharge employees he must also consult the local office first.

This will be a nuisance, but it is a measure to prevent confusion and worse nuisances. The Government wants to know at all times exactly how much labor is available and in what part of the country it is to be found. Our war plants are not yet at peak production, and before they reach that state more than a hundred thousand more workers must be found. It may be necessary to transfer workers from one overcrowded part of the country to another part where labor is scarce, and naturally this must be done with the least possible fuss and hardship. Therefore we must co-operate in this matter to the best of our ability. But labor is not frozen; on the contrary, it is coming to the boil.

Reverse In Libya

Winston Churchill promised us that we should have reverses and hard knocks this year and we may accept the setback in Libya as one of these. To the civilian onlooker desert warfare must seem as wasteful and as meaningless as any form of combat. The losses of men and equipment in driving back and forth across the worthless sands are colossal, and the gains are impermanent. Nevertheless, the British forces in the Middle East stand between Germany and the Suez Canal, and that vital link with the East must be kept at any cost.

Because the German armies have met with no success in Russia there has been a tendency to assume that they are played out, and that Hitler's defeat is a matter of months, or even weeks. Nothing could be more foolishly optimistic. It is undoubtedly true that German losses in Russia have been great and that these must have had their effect upon German might, but Germany entered this war with huge supplies of everything she needed, including men, and she is not near the end of her supplies yet. And in the East the Afrika Corps has been well supplied across the Mediterranean, despite British vigilance. And Erwin Rommel, though our enemy, is a great general, with the devil's own luck.

Now our forces are back in Egypt. We have taken a drubbing, but Rommel is still a long way from Suez.

The Marshal's Dilemma

Last week, on the second anniversary of that fateful day when France asked Germany for an armistice, Marshal Petain addressed his people. His speech was a pathetic one in which he did not hesitate to admit that his regime was a failure, that France was as far from peace as she had ever been, and that the people of France was filled with discontent. In all the Marshal's long life he has rarely cut a poorer figure.

It is impossible not to feel some stirring of pity for Petain, an old man faced with an impossible situation. But it must be remembered that the situation in which he finds himself is to a great extent of his own choosing. Character is destiny, and the character of Henri Philippe Petain has, since his first appearances in politics, been reactionary, depressive and bureaucratic. Before the present war he was the acknowledged head of a French Fascist group, and he has never troubled to conceal his contempt for republicanism. He saw himself as a French dictator, and Fate, the incorrigible practical joker, has at last put him in a painful travesty of that role; he is a dictator now, without power and without the support of his people.

Petain has never liked the British, and when France asked for an armistice two years ago it was his belief that Britain could never resist Germany successfully. It is curious that this old warrior has, all through his career, shown a strong strain of defeatism in his character. Defeatism may be depended upon, as a usual thing, to bring defeat upon those who harbour it, but it is always unwise of them to attribute their own feelings to others. And so the Marshal missed his guess, and now he is faced with a dilemma; he can find no salvation for his people in German care, and his position forbids him to make any conciliatory move toward the United Nations. What must this ancient fascist feel, knowing that the future of his country lies in the hands of the hated Britain, republican America and —bitterest pill of all—communist Russia?

The Marshal is now in his— eighty-seventh year and he cannot wait long to see the outcome of this war. But he has seen his own plans for France utterly undone, and he must now realize that the French people are temperamentally unfitted for fascism. He has been entirely mistaken and the bitterness of his error is his daily portion. But in spite of all these things Petain loves France and in his address that love was the one redeeming feature; the apologies, the inadequate explanations and the confessions of failure were as nothing compared to that. But love, alas, is of little use without clear vision, and that the Marshal has never had.

Farming News and Views

By
HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

THE eleventh and twelfth of June were the first hot days in Eastern Ontario, and they proved good hay days for those who had alfalfa ready to cut. Red clover was in quite good bloom near Belleville and some timothy was in head and would make very nice green hay if cut now. Pasture fields were full of feed, the cattle were very sleek and the whole countryside looked very promising. Spring crop is very even and promises well where the land is in any kind of fair fettle. What cheese has done for this part of the province in days gone by is hard to estimate, and it is the strong support of the man who milks cows at this time. Belleville-Brockville cheese has had a splendid reputation on the British market for many years and there is no doubt that it will be maintained right through this increased production, as this district has always been jealous of its good reputation in this respect.

I was on the farm of a breeders of beef cattle the other day. He had some fair beasts, some registered, others not, but I was surprised to see the condition of the feet of a few of his cows. Hooves grown out like sleigh runners and of course he was just going to trim them. What a pity it was not done in the spring instead of allowing these cows to go limping about with their feet in such an uncomfortable condition. Trimming the feet of cattle should be regularly and carefully done. Long toes or foul in the foot should be attended to as soon as you notice that they need attention. Cattle have to move about to graze and they should always be able to do this with the greatest comfort. It pays to keep cattle so they can walk with ease.

CATTLE prices are good and pure breds are selling readily at quite high values which makes this a time to cull your herd. This is not the first time I have made this suggestion. There is no herd but has a few misfits. Breeding livestock is not an exact science and there is always such a thing as atavism. Among beef breeds there are cows that never drop a real good calf, and among dairy breeds there is always the odd cow that neither breeds well nor milks well. Such beasts should go out of the herd by the stock yards route. No one wants to put them on to another breeder. There is plenty of grass this summer and fat cows are a good price. A bull weighing 1950 lbs. sold in the Toronto yards the other day at 10c, bringing $195, and cows are going strong for the beef market. Now is the time to rid your herd, in a profitable way, of the beasts that should not be in it. Buy young things of promise to fill their places and you are on your way to a better herd. There are two resolutions a cattle breeder should make and stick to. One is to get rid of inferior beasts even at a loss, but get rid of them, and without delay. The other is not to sell the good ones that are good breeders. With regard to such an animal it should be "She's not for sale."

The British Government has made a new appointment which may have quite a considerable significance to the future agricultural relations as among Britain, United States and Canada. I refer to the appointment of Professor J. A. Scott Watson as Agricultural Attache to the British Embassy in the United States, at Washington, and as agricultural adviser to the British High Commissioner in Canada. In commenting, a British Farm Journal says: "It is a sign of the times. It means that the British Government recognizes that in agricultural production and marketing we cannot any longer hope to achieve prosperity in isolating ourselves; that in farming, as in other industries, there is an interdependence between countries. That a prosperous agriculture in one country, which depends for its success on the penalization of farming in another, is as a house that is built upon sand—or a dust-bowl. In the years following the last war, it became abundantly plain to everyone that farming abroad, particularly in the big exporting countries, flourished in inverse ratio to the depression of British agrciulture."

In commenting on Professor Scott Watson this paper says: "The choice of Professor Watson is an excellent one, both from the point of view of personality and qualifications. He knows British Agriculture as well as any man living, and is no stranger to farming on the American continent.

On the farm of B. B. Warnica, near Allandale, I saw some bacon pigs that looked like grading quite well, and Mr. Warnica told me that of the last 24 pigs he sold, 23 of them graded A and the other pig was B1. He sent these to the Barrie Packing plant in groups of 2, 3 or 4, weighing them regularly and selling them as near as possible to 200 lbs. live weight. This man has no wish to put another 25 lbs. of weight on his pigs as he says to do so would lower the quality of Canadian bacon.

Mr. Warnica pastures his pigs on alfalfa in summer and feeds ground alfalfa in winter. This plan he claims reduces the cost of feeding pigs and gives a better grade. He figures on having his pigs ready to go at seven months and doesn't favor trying to rush them off at 5½ months. Feeding hogs off at less than 6 months, Mr. Warnica says, does not give a chance for proper growth, to produce muscle which means lean meat, something choice bacon must have. Mr. Warnica feeds a grain mixture of one part wheat, two oats and one barley, and in finishing makes the last two quantities one of oats, and two of barley, with a trace of peas added for finishing. There were ninety-eighth pigs on this farm the other day, though about 125 are generally carried. Mr. Warnica is enthusiastic about what the Barrie Co-operative Packing Plant has done for the production of pigs in this part of Ontario.

A wealthy old man with a weakness for gambling called his children round his bedside.

"You must all promise me," he said, "never to touch a card. Above all, I would warn you against playing baccarat. It is a game which will cost you a fortune, waste your time, ruin your health. Do you all promise never to play baccarat?"

"Yes, father!" in chorus.

"And remember—if you do play, always take the bank!"

War Clouds Black In East

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON Associated Press War Analyst

THE European scene, clouded by fresh uncertainties in Russia and North Africa, dominates the war news. All observers agree it is developments to eastward that brought Prime Minister Churchill again to the United States to talk war strategy with President Roosevelt.

Westward, the war clouds have been lightened by United States air-naval successes in the Coral Sea and the North Pacific, successes that put a crimp in Japanese striking power against any United Nation except China—and possibly Russia. Chinese sources insist that Japan now is preparing for a back-door intervention in the war in Europe by attacking Siberia, probably in July.

The Chungking reasoning on which that is based, as differentiated from Chinese information as to Japanese troop or plane movements, does not seem convincing. Certainly the outcome of American-Japanese air and sea clashes in the North Pacific did little to help mount a Nipponese attack on Russia.

There and in the Coral Sea Japanese strength in ships, planes, skilled air crews and, above all, plane carriers was heavily whittled down. Those are military elements on which Tokyo must count heavily if it is in fact planning a surprise attack on Russia.

They would be more essential in meeting possible American use of the Alaska-Aleutian Islands-Kamchatka air lanes westward to help Russia or hammer Japan than any base the enemy has or could set up in the Western Aleutians for interception purposes. Those fog-shrouded and often weather-bound rocky extensions of the Western Hemisphere could be bypassed easily. The very conditions that make it difficult to blast the Japanese off of them no less serve to make them of small value for interception purposes.

But as for Chinese reports of impending Japanese-Russian hostilities, some other motive for the Midway and Aleutian forays must be sought. The theory that Japan wants to build an air security zone around her home area can and no doubt does partially explain the far-flung Japanese effort to knock out China or at least drive her forces beyond easy bombing reach of Japan. It seems improbable, however, that Japan would take on another adversary or ignore the growing menace of American-Australian forces short of glittering opportunity or imperative necessity.

Events to come in Russia could provide that necessity or a favorable opportunity. Smashing Hitler victories in his summer offensive against Russia well might be deemed an opportunity in Tokyo to blast at Russia from the east. A Hitler disaster in Russia, or even a Nazi-Russian stalemate, might force a necessity on Tokyo. The little brown war makers know their fate is bound up with Hitler's. They know that if he goes down, nothing can save Japan.

They entered the war in the obvious belief that a Nazi victory was close at hand and to get what they wanted while the getting was good.

Japan's military tycoons are proven realists, certainly not idealists. They will help Hitler only to help themselves in either case. And meanwhile persistent and sustained Japanese bombing of Australian key ports tends to indicate they have not forgotten the growing danger to the south or the loss of "face" incurred in the Coral Sea.

Waive the attack-on-Siberia motive and the most probable explanation of the Midway-North Pacific operations would be a diversion. Tokyo might have calculated to draw American sea and air power to that sector in preparation for a sudden, new invasion attempt against Australia or the islands off her eastern coast.

If that was the Tokyo design, its authors have had a rude shock. They found American air and sea forces on the job in the north without prejudice to protection of South Pacific routes to Australia. And they have suffered losses that certainly put a deep dent in Japanese ability to mount a distant sea-borne offensive against the United States, Australia or in the Indian Ocean.

Sevastopol A Mighty Port

THE worst news for Russia last week was that on the two fronts where the Germans attacked in strength they had more men, more planes, more tanks, more everything than the Russians had. It was proof that, after all the agonies and losses of the Russian winter, the German armies were strong and fresh. And it was proof that in this new year of war Russia will need all the aid, on a second front and on her own fronts, that the Allies can give her.

"The August City" is what the Russians call Sevastopol, their great port and naval fortress on the Black Sea. It is not a big city (civilian population, 67,000), but it is a majestic town with cathedrals, palaces, a mighty harbor where all the warships in Europe could anchor, a holy "Common Grave" near by. That grave holds the dust of 127,000 Russians who died at Sevastopol in 1854-55, when Britain and her allies in the Crimean War besieged the city. Nine miles south of Sevastopol is the town of Balaklava, where the Light Brigade's 600 rode against the Russian batteries. Last week many times 600 Nazis died near Balaklava, but the Russians called their decisive maze of gun-pits and tank traps nothing so poetic as "the valley of death." They called it "the meat grinder."

Jaws of the grinder were two stoney heights, Fediukhiny to the south and Mekenzevy to the east. Guns emplaced on these slopes commanded all the land approaches to Sevastopol. Below them, and between them and the city, was an unbroken mass of emplacements, trenches and shelters dug into the soft white-and-yellow limestone and into the red-brownish slate of the hilly countryside. They comprised probably the most thorough "defence in depth" ever organized. Southern Russia's young summer was already hot, and half-naked Nazis lunged against these hills, died in the forest of guns.

Hitler's General Fritz Erich von Manstein had thrown some 100,000 men into this effort to smash Russia's last stronghold on the Crimea, to abolish the southern anchor of the long Russian front, to win command of the Black Sea, to open one gate to the oil-rich Caucasus. He also threw in planes, so many that the Russians soon —and ominously—admitted that the few Russian aircraft able to operate within Sevastopol's narrowed defence area were greatly outnumbered.

Lacking air control, the Russians found it difficult, if not impossible, to reinforce Sevastopol from the sea, and the Germans had closed all the land approaches. Swarming Nazi bombers pounded at the Russians' bristling caves, at the city itself. Probably, since the port was all but immobilized by air siege and they wanted to use it themselves, the Germans did little or no damage to the great docks and naval yards.

The Russians said that German planes were dropping iron rails, plowshares, other clanging hunks into the city to demoralize besieged civilians. The Russians showed no signs of demoralization.—Time Magazine.

Englishwoman's Tribute

Letter to Canada's Weekly (London)

SIR:—I should like you to know—and I only wish I could let all Canada know—that many people in this country do very much appreciate all Canada has done and the spirit with which it has been done.

In a small vegetable (I can't say "and fruit"!) store the other week some few people were talking, when I heard one say, "Well, I reckon Canada has done most and said least in this war." I eagerly butted in with "Hear, hear," and was surprised at the lively interest and appreciation everyone showed of what Canada had done and is doing. It is the spirit as well as the help which warmed our hearts and steadied us on our course in those dark days we went through. I just wanted you to know that there are many ordinary folk in this country who are grateful to the Canadians, and I, for one, never lose an opportunity of saying so.

I am saving up for a trip to Canada when the war has no further need of my small investments!

Best wishes to all the people of Canada and thanks for the help, encouragement, loyalty, and affection they have given to us over here.

BETTY HOOTON.

A Bible Message For Today

Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.—Matt. v, 43-45.

Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?.....

And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: and yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you. O ye of little faith?

Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Whatwithal shall we be clothed? (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things.

But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.—Matt. vi, 25, 28-33.

Letter To Editor

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I should like to make a plea for better understanding of the rural side of Canadian life, by those of the urban centres.

It is necessary at any time that farmers work long hours. Therefore it is hard to understand the statement of some members of labor unions, it is a backward step in our civilization. That is that if they work more than forty hours a week seven hours for five days and five on Saturday! Some men in offices too, work only a few hours a day. The women in their homes do not have such short hours, nor thousands of other men. Do they lack strength or are they just plain lazy?

Farmers are in desperate need of help but the city folk sneer at the comparatively low wages farmers can pay. These low wages are caused by the greed of city middle men, and the demand of city and consumers for goods delivered at their doors at too low prices. Money that could be spent on farm produce is spent on luxuries, supposed to 'to keep up morale.'

We are fighting overseas against nations who have blindly followed leaders who take more than their share at the expense of others. Here in Canada we have exactly the same conditions on a smaller scale. Middle men have gone to the government and have received help to enable them to prevent direct selling from producer to consumer. Just ask any of these middle men why they do not farm, or work for another farmer!

There is a shortage of meat because of last years' drought and because farmers and their sons are refusing to do slavish work at a loss or at too little profit. We hear that a company of middle men are demanding that the government refuse butchers the right to buy direct from farmers. We have tasted too much butcher shop beef that came by way of packing plants. It was stale and too high priced.

I am afraid that if the city consumer does not co-operate with farmers to eliminate some of the middle men, and to enable farmers to receive parity prices, there are stormy times ahead.

THE MONEY RETURNED
CHAPTER XI

HUNTER stared at Bella Ballard. She knew who got the $17,000, and who had it now! And it wasn't Red—or Strickland Ballard, which Hunter would have accepted as the same thing—who signed his bond so he could be released, but Temple, president of the First National. So many questions popped up in Hunter's mind that he could only gulp and stammer.

"You know who did get that money? I mean—"

"I took it out."

"Great guns!" Hunter Dent groaned. "What is this, anyway. You mean you were the one that opened the new safe, when I am the only one who knows the combination, and removed the money? Red, was that you? How in the nation did you get the combination?"

"Hunter Dent, do you mean to sit here and pretend that you don't know I'm even alive? For years and years I have trotted after you like a puppy. I used to as a little girl let you put me on your horse, and you were almost a father to me. I've been so much underfoot that now I'm a young lady I have grown ashamed and tried to stay away from you, though not very successfully.

"So, one day when you were trying to open the safe and couldn't remember the combination, and took out your wallet and read it, and got down on your knees and said the combination aloud while you worked it, I was there in the door watching. You were so absorbed you didn't even notice me.

"So I remembered your old combination just to out-smart you some time. Maybe I had in mind laying a bet and taking your last dollar. I don't remember. But when Junior came in that night after he had got mixed in the hold-up—you see, Hunter, all that ws doped up while I was out for a ride with Oliver, and so I didn't know anything about it until too late; well, I followed those blood stains, I went up to your office, because Junior would make right straight for you if he got into trouble, I opened the safe, and there was the bag of money. With my own little hands I removed it. I'd got wind enough of what was going on to know the money had to be restored.

"I told you I know who has it now. Would you like to know?"

"Who?" Hunter asked.

"The First National Bank. I took it there myself and turned it over to Mr. Temple. I asked him to see father, and the two of them worked out some way of going on your bond and letting you out. I couldn't tell them much. I couldn't say to Dad that Junior was the hold-up man. I just turned the money back to the bank and told them to keep their mouths shut until we could see a little further."

Hunter could only repeat, "So you did that."

"Yes, and I asked a man to marry me and he turned me down cold."

"What are you talking about?"

"I'm talking about coming to see you in jail and making a wager with you that you'd soon be free, and you would propose to me and I'd say yes, and we'd get married. I even laid my bet on the barrelhead and you wouldn't put up. You just sat there dumb. Well, if you don't want to marry me you don't have to." She assumed a lofty manner.

"Red, you're plain crazy! You and Tisdale are engaged to be married. He's rich. He's in on the Ballard fortune. What's more logical than you two should marry and keep the fortune intact? What am I? A kind of glorified hired man for your dad. Why, even the colts I raise go to him. The strain of prolific corn I develop becomes his. What chance do I have?"

SHE turned to examine him. Her eyes traced his features, dropped to take in his big athletic shoulders and chest. "You're young though. You seem healthy. You appear to have your original equipment of teeth, hair, and brains. I always admired your intelligence Hunter."

"Thanks," he said with dry bitterness.

"Did it ever occur to you that I might be a good sport after all, Hunter? I mean your being poor has never worried me. I read stories and see motion pictures where the poor boy refuses to marry the wealthy girl because it will give him an inferiority complex; but I thought you might be above such petty things, Hunter. You've made yourself — gone through the university mostly on your own, become a scientific research man, you've created things, such as that strain of corn. And you've only begun. Your whole life lies ahead of you. There is nothing to keep you from making a name for yourself that will be the envy of many men who only had wealth to start on — Ol Tisdale, for instance. I wouldn't be afraid to start from scratch with such a man as you, Hunter. I'm betting on you. You remind me in lots of ways of Dad. He met a challenge. They made him mad and he showed them. Well, now I've told you. I thought perhaps you loved me, Hunter."

"God," he said, "I do love you!"

"I wouldn't have you now on a silver platter."

"Red, you drive me almost to murder!"

"We still have one of those messy things to clean up."

"So we have," Hunter said. "So we have. Look here, Red. Let me tell you how I have this doped up." He knit his brows groping for words. "Let's start from the beginning. At one of the parties at your house Hank Temple let it drop that he had to get to the bank to see a shipment of money get out. Seventeen thousand dollars. It would have to be a private matter. Maybe only Hankins and his father, and the parties who were to get the money, know about the business. Hank didn't mean perhaps, to let it slip. But it was between friends. All right. The gang is there hears; and Hank has to go. They make their wagers. Suppose, just as a hypothesis, the Ghibarto twins make a wager no one there could intercept the messenger and take that roll off him. Or it could have been any one else present who bet. Junior with a little too much under his belt as usual, took the bet up. The party broke. Hankins Temple dispatched the money by the messenger. The time was not far from midnight. Why the money had to move at such an hour, and in such a way, is not easy to explain unless you consider another thing or two.

"OKAY, let's consider them. There is tha ordnance plant scandal which has just broken. The older Ghibarto is involved in fraud against the government. Rascal. And a man who in wartime pulls something like that is a rascal. Like father like twins. The money is a bribe. Know about that wharf project which is just across the river from the old landing below Water Street That is a part of this ordnance plant. Some one down there in the know was getting ready to talk. Ghibarto—and this is hard talk but we have to look things in the eye—and perhaps Banker Temple and just possibly your dad, who usually has irons in all the civic fires, fingers in all the local pies, though I take it for granted neither man knowingly got caught with his pants down—had to get a bribe there to shut a mouth. Since it was secret it looked safe enough. The murdered messenger left the bank. He had to go on foot, part of the way in any case, because the street was closed down which he must hurry.

"He goes along, Junior drives into town with the gang and strikes out after him, and yells 'Stick-'em up' in his best style. Up to now it is all just a good joke. Good sports standing on their sportsmanship.

"But the Ghibarto twins, rascals like their daddy, see a chance to pick up $17,000. Looks like a sure-fire set-up. The gang don't dare talk. Kill the messenger and he can't talk. Might as well shoot Junior, too. Two men, nondescript and dark, did appear, and the fireworks started. Well, those were the twins. Why they didn't leave town when the plan flopped—they didn't figure on Junior really shooting back to keep the joke from spreading, and toting his hot lead like a true sport—is explainable when you figure that Junior won't talk; he may yet die without talking. Besides, the guy that runs looks guilty. So—"

Red, her face strange, let in the clutch and started off with a scruff of rubber. Her jaw was suddenly grim and set.

Picton Players Whip Locals In Cricket Match

The first visit of the Peterboro Whitaker Club to Picton was a very pleasant outing but was disastrous in a cricket sense as the R. A. F. took an overwhelming revenge for their defeat given on May 30th, by running up a score of 176 for 4 wickets (innings declared closed) and outsing the locals for 25. The score on May 30th had been P. W. 62, R. A. F. 33.

R. A. F. batted first and lost Cox to Dyer i nfirst over and 3 wickets were down for 54 but upon F. O. Ruck going in with Sgt. Miller, the two batsmen hit the bowling all over the lot and added 100 runs in short order before Ruck was out for a stylish 50. He has played in the Kent County team. On Stakes joining Miller, runs still came fast and at 6.20 after 3 hours play the innings was declared closed with the total 176 for 4, leaving Sgt. Miller not out for a freely hit 104. He is a newcomer to Picton and has played football for Middlesborough.

The bowlers had a rough time of it an dthe need of relief keenly felt. The 36 overs delivered produced nearly 5 runs apiece and there were only 6 maidens.

The Peterborough Whitaker innings was a series o fdistasters. Pagett again showed how improved a player he is by scoring 15 out of 24 scored by the bat and punished Tabberor for 10 in one over. Smith scored 7 and the rest of the team contributed 2 between them. The bowlers figures are sensational but the local man had previously proved successful against them. No doubt the concrete wicket was very fast and made it difficult to time the ball. It will be seen they were all clean bowlers though as a fact Langhorne played on a ball on to his wicket. The latter made a great showing behind the stumps allowing only 2 byes and making two catches. Theer is no match next Saturday.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

Juveniles and Royals will battle in a City Softball League fixture at Riverside Park tonight that should be a hummer all the way. The youngsters have been battling all and sundry in great style and dropped two games last week that with a little luck would have been wins. They predict that they are due to break into the victory column and are going to do it at the expense of the Royals. The latter have been bumped off in their last two starts and feel that it is about time they threw out the anchor and stopped the losing habit. Gossip has it that they will be strengthened tonight by the presence of Eddie Murphy, former manager of the Peterborough Central League club, who has been persuaded to throw in his lot with Royals. Eddie has never played City League softball but he is a useful performer and undoubtedly would be a big help to the former Chesterfields in their pennant aspirations. Tonight's game will start at 7 o'clock sharp.

Westclox and Electrics (formerly the Porcelain team), are the opponents in tomorrow night's Girls' League game at the Ashburnham Bowl and the first clash of the season between the two will arouse considerable interest. Westclox, league winners last season have dropped their first two games, losing to C.G.E. and Brintons and they will be fighting all the way tomorrow night to grab off their first victory of the season. On the other hand Manager Bob Batley's team can climb close to the league leaders by a win over the Clockmakers and they will have their strongest lineup in action in an effort to cop their second win. Mary Larmer will probably get the pitching call for Electrics while Marg Watson is slated to do the tossing for Westclox. Both teams may introduce a couple of new players and the tussle should be about the most interesting the girls' loop has dished up this season. The starting hour is 7 o'clock.

The league leadership will be at stake when Luckies and Plazas meet in a City League game at Riverside Park, Tuesday evening. Luckies, by reason of a three-game winning streak are heading the parade right now with Plazas right at their heels. A win for the hockey squad Tuesday night would put them out in front while a victory for Luckies would increase their margin. Last night the two clubs met the Plazas won in hollow fashion but the Luckies have not lost a game since and they claim they are going to get revenge for that defeat by taking the hockeyists for a buggy ride in the Tuesday night battle. Certainly the team managed by Fred Griffin have been playing air tight ball. They have won their last three games by a one-run margin in each case and it takes a steady ball club to do that. Both outfits will be at full strength tomorrow night. Bill Lewis is the logical starter for the Luckies and either Dave Wilson or Tom Parsons will be the gunner for Plazas.

Yanks Salvage One

The New York Yanks, thanks to effective pitching by Hank Borowy who grabbed off his sixth win of the season managed to salvage one game of the Cleveland series yesterday by taking the second fixture of the double-header with the Indians 4 to 0, after losing the first 3 to 2. The Yanks thus have dropped two series in succession three games to one, by far their worst showing of the season. Saturday they were tied in a knot by portly Al Smith of the Indians who allowed them only one hit, a double by Joe DiMaggio in the second and shut them out 1 to 0, with Ernie Bonham, Yank ace on the losing end. So effective was Smith that he only had to pitch to 29 men during the game. In the first game Sunday the New Yorkers, ran into their old jinx, Chubby Dean and were beaten 3 to 2, the Indians getting the winning run off Red Ruffing in the ninth, after tieing the score in the last half of the eighth.

* * * * * *

Inspite of their dismal showing however the Yanks did not lose so much ground for Boston, second-placers did not play Saturday and only succeeded in breaking even with Chicago Sunday so their net gain on the leaders was but half a game. The Red Sox came from behind in the first game after being down 5 to 0, only to lose out when the White Sox pushed a run over in the eighth. It was another win for the venerable Ted Lyons while Dobson who relieved Newsome in the sixth was the loser. In the second game Hughson held Chicago to three hits and the Red Sox won in hollow fashion 7 to 0 getting 12 hits off Grove and Haynes. Although George McQuinn hammered out two homers for St. Louis and Auker was doing the pitching the A's slapped the Brownies down 4 to 2. And Detroit who had little trouble defeating the Yanks split a double-header with the Washington Senators, winning the first 4 to 1 and dropping the second 3 to 2. It was Trucks' first loss in six games.

Brooklyn Dodgers have disposed of the St. Louis Cards' challenge for the time being at least by allowing the Cards only one win in the important five game series that wound up yesterday. St. Louis certainly missed the boat by a wide margin although they did manage to break even in Sunday's double-header, through a fine bit of pitching by Mort Cooper who held the Bums to five hits while the Cards shellacked the offerings of Head, Webber and Schoolboy Rowe and won by the lop-sided score of 14 to 0. The Dodgers came back to take the second game 5 to 2 with Kirby Higbe pitching seven-hit ball. The Cincinnati Reds broke even with Philadelphia. Johnny VanderMeer being the losing pitcher in the first game, which the Phillies won 3 to 2 in spite of making five errors. Ray Starr pitched the Reds to a 2 to 1 win in the second game, allowing the Phils only five hits. New York Giants and Chicago divided a twin bill. New York took the first game 5 to 0 at the expense of Bill Lee with Melton yielding only five hits and the rookie Bithorn delivered a winning effort in the second to beat the Giants 7 to 2. Carpenter was the losing New York pitcher.

Absorb A Bad Beating

The Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club journeyed to Picton Saturday and ran into about the most one-sided defeat a Peterborough eleven has experienced in many a moon. Their opponents were the Royal Air Force eleven and playing on a cement, mat-covered wicket the British Flyers were entirely too powerful for the Peterborough-Whitaker players. R.A.F. batted first—and how they batted. Sparked by Sergt. Miller who ran up a score of 104, not out, they had piled up a total of 176 runs when they declared their inning closed for four wickets. Then they proceeded to cut down the Peterborough scoring just as effectively as they had piled up runs themselves. In a short time they had the visitors all out for a a meagre total of 28 runs of which Art Pagett who went in first contributed 15 and Fred Smith came through with seven. They were the only Peterborough representatives to do anything with the bat. However the visit to Picton was enjoyable, in spite of the one-sided game.

Diamond Drill:

In Copper Cliff, Ont., a midget baseball league has 28 hitters with averages better than .300, one named Santo batting .777....And (Toronto Star) Lytle, bemoaning the trend of etiquette in baseball, writes: "Baseball, with body and tongue contacts out, will become merely a languid cousin of basketball and crouquet." Wonder if Andy thinks basketballers get the bruises and vocabulary playing pinnochle!....Dick (Port Arthur News-Chronicle) Elliott calls golf's hole-in-one the 'equivalent' of baseballs home runs. That'd be the year golfer Babe Ruth sings 70 from the tee..Weather tricks: In a recent International League twilight game in Montreal, Umpire Van Graflan ordered the lights turned on midway in the contest; later he had to shade his eyes from the sun....A bit of baseball strategy many fans overlook is that the team manager orders when the infield grass shall be cut. Long grass slows down the hop, helps the infield.

Incidentally:

Ken (Edmonton Journal) McConnell reports Clem Loughlin, former big time hockey star and Chicago Black Hawks coach, is one of the most successful citizens of Viking, Alta., where he operates a hotel, an 800-acre farm and dickers in horses and cattle. But Clem still hankers for hockey. "You can't spent most of your life in sport and then suddenly withdraw and not regret being away from the boys" ....Harry (Calgary Albertan) Scott passes on a suggestion by B. W. Cartwright, chief naturalist of Duck Unlimited (Canada), that surplus ducks shot by hunters next autumn be delivered to army camps, hospitals, or wherever they can be used in the war effort to replace beef and bacon. Cartwright says many of the 15,000,000 ducks shot in Canada and United States each year are permitted to spoil because hunters bag more than they can use.

Jones, Heckman Are Winners In Ball Sweeps

Al. Heckman, last week's winner in the ball sweeps at the Kawartha Golf Club came through with two wins this past week-end. Al. doesn't seem to have any trouble making old man par sit back and take notice. Saturday's sweep was just about the smallest in history, only four members took part. The results are as follows:

	Gross	Handicap	Net
Al. Heckman	45	8	37
C. A. Low	41	3½	37½
Fraser Dunfield	40	2	38
J. G. Betts	58	18	40

Jim Betts, a new member both at the club and at golf, although the rough was to much for him on Saturday, gives promise of becoming some shucks at the old and ancient game.

Old man Sol did all right by the golfers on Sunday. Imagine twelve full hours of sunshine, on a golf course at that. There were golfers galore at Kawartha, but still only a few with courage enough for the ball sweeps. Come on men, get in there and win yourselves those precious little pills.

Rod. Jones was the winner on Sunday, hitting old man par right on the button. He wasn't quite satisfied with one over par so he went back and tried again, chopped the stroke off and went home contented. Other ball winners were Al Heckman, Hap. Wilgar, Jack Roberts.

	Gross	Handicap	Net
Rod. Jones	45	10	35
Al. Heckman	43	7	36
Jack Roberts	45	9	36
Rod Jones	46	10	36
Hap. Wilgar	45	9	36
Ed. Riley	46	9½	36½
C. A. Low	41	3½	37½
S. Whiddon	41	3	38
Alex. McGregor	50	10	40
H. Jopling	55	10	40
J. A. Deyell	52	7	46
H. Tewsley	69	18	51
Vern Selkirk	No score
Bill Brown	No score

Next week should be something to remember. Kawartha has planned a Scotch mixed two ball foursome to start at one-thirty Sunday afternoon. Partners will be drawn as usual. We would like to see more ladies go into action this time and get some of those prizes. All the members should get a telephone call from one of the special events committee. An informal dance will be held in the club house on Saturday night to get the members tuned up for the big event next day. Now get in there gang and make your club the club it ought to be.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

The attention of all bowlers to the schedule games arranged for Wednesday, June 24, is drawn. It reads: 1:30 to 6 p.m., men's doubles. Choose your partners, $1.00 per pair. And then in the evening at 7:30, schedule games will be played.

These Wednesday afternoon and evening programs were arranged by a sub-committee of the men's games committee, away back in April, and they were drawn up with the view of creating bowling for members who would not be able to go away on the half-holiday owing to the transportation difficulties. It is no small task to try and run tournaments that will suit everyone.

We must admit that we have very little lawn bowling news for to-day, so we are going to pass on a little poem written by Robert W. Service, entitled "Ambition." It has not one thing to do with bowling, but then it helps to fill in:

"They brought the mighty chief to town;
They showed him strange, unwonted sights;
Yet as he wandered up and down
He seemed to scorn their vain delights,
His face was grim, his eye lacked fire,
As one who mourns a glory dead;
And when they sought his heart's desire
'Me like-um tooth some gold,' he said.
A dental place they quickly found.
He neither moaned nor moved his head.
They pulled his teeth so white and sound;
They put in teeth of gold instead.
Oh, never saw I man so gay,
His very being seemed to swell:
'Ha, ha,' he cried, 'now Injun say,
'Me heap big chief, me look like Hell.'"

Schedule Arranged For Girls' League

Following is the schedule for the Ladies' Softball League:

June 30—Electrics vs. Generals.
July 3—Electircs vs. Westclox.
July 6—Brinton Carpet vs. Electrics.

The Porcelain team are now called the Electircs and C.G.E. team managed by Mike O'Brien are the C.G.E. Generals.

R.A.F. Team Beats Port Hope Schools

PORT HOPE, June 22. — An R. A.F. eleven from Kingston hit up the winning runs in the last over of their game with Trinity College School at Port Hope to beat their hosts by 3 wickets and 4 runs. T. C.S. batted first, and after three hours they were dismissed for 84 runs, of which Huycke made 23 and Lambert 18. The Air Force then went in, and when the last over arrived they were trailing Trinity by only one run. On the second ball of the over, however, Bennett hit a long three to win the game, bringing his total for the day up to 23 not out. Inglis also batted well for the visitors, knocking up 20 runs before being run out. Sells was the best bowler for the R.A.F. taking 4 wickets for 22 runs, while Scott was the most effective for Trinity with 4 for 30.

DODGERS SLAP CARDINALS DOWN FOUR TIMES IN FIVE CONTESTS

St. Louis Pushed Further Back

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Sadder but wiser, St. Louis Cardinals limped toward Boston to-day, able to rejoice in only two things—their departure from Brooklyn and the discovery of one pitcher who can fool the devastating Dodgers.

When the Card invaded Flatbush last week they were riding on a seven-game winning streak and trailing the National League leaders by only 4½ games. But the Dodgers slapped Cardinals down four times out of five, pushed them three full games farther behind, and sent them on their weary way.

For the Cards the only bright spot on their visit was provided by Mort Cooper, their pitching ace.

Cooper handcuffed the league champs on five hits in the first game of Sunday's double-header, while his mates hopped on three Dodger pitchers for 14 safeties, including home runs by Ray Sanders and Stan Musial, to compile an 11-0 shutout.

But the second game was the same old story. Kirby Higbe pitched seven-hit ball for the Dodgers, who bunched their blows off Howard Pollet for a 5-2 decision. Joe Medwick connected safely in both games, stretching his consecutive game hitting streak to 26.

Whitewashed Dodgers Twice.

Cooper's victory was his ninth of the season, his seventh in a row, his fifth shutout, and his second whitewash job on the Dodgers, who have yet to beat him.

However, the Cardinal right-hander wasn't the only hurler to have a good day in the Major leagues, both of which produced several sparkling mound performances.

Tex Hughson of Boston Red Sox tossed a neat three-hitter, Cliff Melton pitched a four-hitter for New York Giants and Hank Borowy of New York Yanks turned in a five-hit job—all shutouts. Luman Harris of Philadelphia Athletics and Ray Starr of Cincinnati Reds also had five-hitters, but both yielded runs.

Ted Lyons of Chicago White Sox became the second active pitcher to win 250 games, joining Red Ruffing of the Yanks, who reached that goal only two weeks ago. Only 18 other hurlers ever have won that many games and only 10 have done it since the turn of the century.

Melton pitched the Giants to a 5-0 triumph over Chicago Cubs in the first game yesterday, but the Cubs took the nightcap, 7-2, as Stan Hack hit a two-run homer and pinch-hitter Dom Dallessandro smashed a four-bagger with the bases loaded.

Cincinnati Reds and Philadelphia Phils split, the Phils winning first, 3-2 behind six-hit pitching by Tommy Hughes and the Reds rallying behind Starr to square accounts, 2-1.

Pinch-hitter Eddie Stewart tripled in the 10th inning with the bases loaded to give Pittsburgh Pirates a 7-3 decision over Boston Braves. Their second game bowed to the weather.

Cleveland Indians handed New York Yankees their fifth straight loss, 3-2 but Borowy led the world champions out of the wilderness with a 4-0 shutout in the nightcap, preserving that seven-game lead.

Lyons pitched the White Sox to a 6-5 victory over Boston Red Sox in the first game, but Hughson evened it up in the second, which Boston won 7-0.

Detroit Breaks Even.

Detroit and Al Benton beat Washington and Buck Newsom, 4-1, in the top half of their twin bill, only to loose the 10-inning nightcap to the Senators, 3-2, when Virgil Trucks, Tigers reliefer, walked a man with the bases loaded.

Philadelphia Athletics took both games from St. Louis Browns, 4-2 and 4-3, with Bob Johnson supplying most of the batting punch.

Cards Ponuded 10-4.

In the National League on Saturday the Dodgers pounded St. Louis Cardinals 10-4 for their third successive victory over Billy Southworth's men. Joe Medwick stretched his hitting streak to 3 consecutive games by collecting three singles and a double.

Hal Schumacher pitched five-hit ball and Babe Barna and Manager Mel Ott each clouted home runs with one on to lead the Giants to an 8-1 triumph over the Cubs.

Elmer (The Great) Riddle retired the first 20 men to face him and then went on to chalk up a two-hit shutout against the Phils as Cincinnati won their sixth straight 7-0. Al Javery of the Braves whitewashed Pittsburg Pirates 4-0 on three hits.

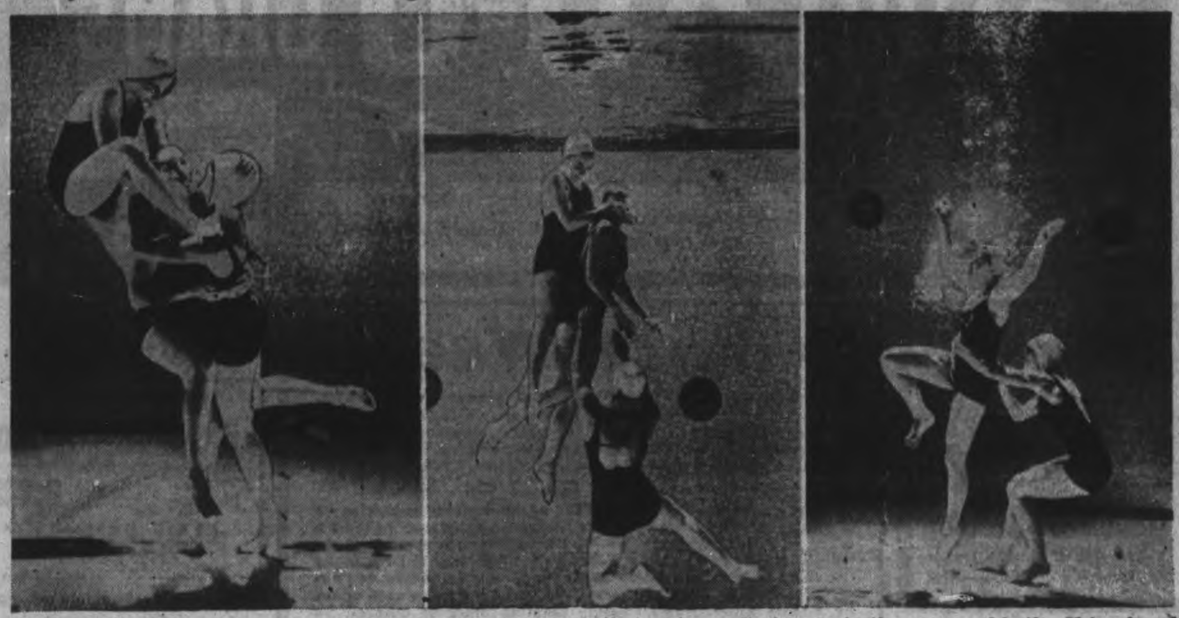
In the American League Lefty Al Smith of Cleveland Indians hurled a one-hitter against New York Yankees to win 1-0. Joe DiMaggio's double was the only New York blow as Ernie (Tiny) Bonham, who gave only five hits, was tagged for his second loss of the season against nine victories.

The Tigers took a free-scoring game from Washington's Senators 7-6 while in the only other league contest St. Louis Browns beat the Athletics 5-3.

One Bad As Other

IADHO FALLS, Ida. June 22.—(AP).—A divorce petition was denied because both husband and wife proved each was entitled to it. Under Idaho law, Justice C. J. Taylor explained, he was forced to deny the decree when both parties "proved grounds for divorce." If either had sought it alone, the Judge said, it probably would have been granted.

Fish-Eye View Of Life Saving As It Should Be Done.



A demonstration of life-saving is shown, photographed for the first time under water. At LEFT, three swimmers enact the role of "victim," untrained rescuer and trained rescuer. Phillis Reihl, RIGHT, is the victim who follows the usual custom of a drowning person and grabs the would-be rescuer, Cynthia Child, about the neck. Miss Child, untrained in rescue work, is infected with the victim's panic and she in turn grabs the victim. Then Trainer-Rescuer Betty Cartwright drops down on both and proceeds to break their grips as first move in the rescue of both. Using hands and feet, Miss Cartwright pries the two apart in the manner shown in the first and second photos, lifting Miss Child to the surface with an under-chin hold. "Victim" Reihl sinks to the bottom. But not for long. In picture at RIGHT, Miss Cartwright is back for her and is shown taking the hold that will float her to the surface. Miss Cartwright, RIGHT, flexes her knees for the spring that will shoot both to the surface.

Chiefs Capture Six In Row

By the Associated Press.

Only seven days ago Syracuse was threatening the cellar occupancy of Rochester Red Wings, but a week of double-barrelled action in the International League has lifted the Chiefs to within two games of the First Division.

Right now Syracuse has a victory string of six in a row and a record of eight triumphs in the 11 games played last week.

The Chiefs split double-headers with Montreal last Monday and Tuesday, but swept a twin bill with Baltimore yesterday, 4-1 and 8-4.

Red Barrett, Chief righthander, set the Orioles down on five hits in the opener, while Nate Andrews duplicated Barrett's pitching in the nightcap.

Jersey City displaced Montreal in second place by defeating league-leading Newark Bears twice, 6-3 and 5-2 while the Royals were splitting with Toronto.

Best pitching performance of the day, however, was registered by Max Macon of Montreal, who stopped Toronto Leafs on two hits in the supper shift for a 5-0 triumph after the Leafs had won the opened 4-2.

Home Run in Ninth.

Bob Latshaw's home run with one on in the ninth gave Toronto its triumph in the first game to end a losing streak of four.

Rochester and Buffalo shared their bargain bill, the Wings coming from behind to take the first, 7-6, and the Bisons slamming out a 7-2 verdict in the second.

The Buffalo victory was the personal property of Mike Rocco, the first baseman getting two home runs, one with the bases loaded, and a triple in three trips to the plate.

Saturday Montreal and Jersey City split a double-header, the Royals taking the opener with a 17-hit barrage, 11-5, and the Giants the nightcap, 6-5.

Jack Graham, of the Royals, who clouted his 12th homer in the opener, was struck near the right eye by one of Warren Sandel's pitches in the seventh inning of the first game but X-rays showed no fractures. The incident nearly precipitated a riot.

Syracuse knocked over Toronto in both ends of a twin bill 7-2 and 8-7 for a sweep of the four-game series. Newark Bears chased over eight runs in the second inning and then went on to pound out an 18-4 decision over Buffalo Bisons. Frank Kelleher of the Bears clouted his 15th and 16th homers of the season. Six-hit pitching by left-hander Ed Wissman salvaged the third and final game of Rochester's series with the Orioles, the Red Wings taking the decision 3-2, before an overflow of 17,000.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press.

Ted Lyons, White Sox and Tex Hughson, Red Sox—Lyons pitched his 250th major league victory, but Hughson squared accounts with three-hit shutout in second game.

Mort Cooper, Cardinals, and Kirby Higbe, Dodgers—Cooper shut out Dodgers with five hits and Highbe fanned seven in winning nightcap with seven-hitter.

Al Benton, Tigers ,and Alejadro Carrasquel, Senators— Benton outpitched Buck Newsom and singled to start game-winning rally, while Carrasquel pitched seven-hit pinch triple with bases loaded in 10th inning to beat Braves.

NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP) — Lowdown on that horsemen's strike at Suffolk Downs, as reported by Leroy Atkinson of the Worcester Telegram, is that the blow-off began when a popular "swipe" nearly passed out from the shock of icy water in the stable shower bath ....Lulu Costantino, who lost one fight out of 56 around New York, makes his Dixie debut tonight against Georgie Hansford at New Orleans....

Strike—Who's Out?

Fort Worth sports scribes tell how Stub Overmire missed his swing at a third strike the other day and the right fielder threw him out at first base....Yes, it really happened. When the ball got away from the catcher, Overmire was slow in starting to run. The catcher threw over first, but th eright fielder recovered the ball and got it to the bag in time to retire Stub.

What Price?

Price Brookfield, the sharpshooting West Texas basketballer, isn't pitching 'em so straight on the ball field....In his first four appearances as a flinger for Borger in the West Texas-New México League Brookfield gave 15 runs, 23 hits, 13 walks, fanned eight, hit one batsman and made four wild pitches.... But he whacked nine hits in 12 at bats to lead the league with .750.

Hogan Shatters National Record

By Gayle Talbot,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, June 22 —(AP) —Little Ben Hogan, some 135 pounds of pure whipcord, finally crashed through to win that major golf championship which eluded him so long while he was busy winning most of the money and otherwise establishing himself as the uncrowned king of the links.

His victory in the Hale America tournament which ended yesterday at the Ridgemoore Club was about as brilliant a feat as golf has seen. His total of 271 for the 72 holes shattered by 10 strokes the record for the National Open Championships. On his second round, the dark, diminutive ex-Texan shot an almost unbelieveable 62.

Yet, ironically, the supreme goal of every golfer still eludes Ben. His name will not appear in golf's record book as winner of the National Open Title. Because of the war, there will be no open tournament this year.

Ben was the winner, the player who pocketed first prize of $1,100. The "goat" of the four-day event —and there seems to be one in every tournament—was Jimmy Demaret, of Detroit, the happy-go-lucky Jimmy needed only to shoot the last four holes in par to score a 66 on his fina lround and finish in a tie with Hogan for the title. Instead ,he went to pieces, drove like the rankest duffer on three consecutive holes and wound up in a tie with Mike Turnesa for second place with a total of 274.

The final round was a tense one, with close to 8,000 spectators tearing over the course in the hot sunshine, trying to stick with the winner. Demaret broke a lot of hearts when he blew up in sight of the finish.

After the first three contenders, the field was widely scattered. Seven strokes behind Hogan at 278 were Horton Smith, Jimmy Thompson and Byron Nelson. Tied at 290 were Lawson Little and Eddie Burke; at 281 were Dick Metz, Jim Ferrier and Lloyd Mangrum. From there they soared on into the 300-odd brackets.

Among them were the two Canadians—R. T. Gray, Jr., and Gordon Brydson, both of Toronto. Gray outshot his colleague in the aggregate, scoring 300 to Brydson's 304. In the final day's play Gray posted a 71; Brydson a 78.

Rounding A Turn On New York's Aqueduct Track

This is the field in the third race of an afternoon card at New York's Aqueduct track rounding the turn at the three-quarter-mile mark in a mile-and-a-sixteenth canter. "True Knightess" ridden by Jockey H. Lindberg pushed her nose under the wire to take down first money.

Valdina Orphan Lowers Record

NEW YORK, June 22.—Valdina Orphan, a bay colt bred and reared deep in the heart of Texas, filed a belated bid for the 3-year-old turf crown Saturday by upsetting Greentree Stable's Kentucky Derby winner, Shut Out, in the fifty-fourth running of the $25,000 added Dwyer Stakes.

The rangy Western entry that finished third in the Derby stretched his speed from wire to wire and broke the Aqueduct course record for the mile and a quarter by one and three-fifths seconds for a two-length triumph.

In front all but the first dozen yards of the way, Valdina Orphan was clocked in 2:01 2-5 with Carroll Bierman on his copper-colored back, and he wasn't giving an inch to Shut Out as he whipped his maroon silks under the wire for the biggest victory his stable has scored in a decade of racing.

No Argument

The crowd of 23,833 that had established Shut Out a 3-5 favorite in the six-horse field wasn't exactly liberal with applause as the Texas standard-bearer romped home to a $21,150 prize. Although he was conceding ten pounds, Shut Out was whipped fairly and squarely after trailing in last place for the first half-mile.

The Derby victor, away smartly, was pulled back by Jockey Eddie Arcaro, sprinted through the inside on the backstretch to take command of second position, then lacked the necessary zip once he rounded the final turn and cocked his sights on the leader. Shut Out was unable to close the gap.

J. R. Roebling's Lochinvar finished third, ten lengths behind the winner, while Dogpatch took fourth, Trierach fifth and Redthorn sixth after Vagrancy was scratched. None of these four were serious contenders once Valdina Orphan streaked by the clubhouse turn and began moving out to what at one point was a six-length lead.

Didn't Stop

The Orphan, who flattened out badly in the Preakness after a creditable showing at Louisville, came into Saturday's feature with a streak of three straight victories. Held as second choice in the betting, once in front he stayed in front, and when it came time for him to fold up he amazed every one by breezing easily.

The $21,150 Valdina Orphan earned brought his lifetime winnings to $43,375 and represented the richest stake ever won by Owner Emmerson Woodward, a Texas oil millionaire. It was worth $7, $2.90 and $2.50 in the mutuels. Shut Out paid only $2.40 and $2.10, while Lochinvar was worth $2.40 for the show. The others never figured.

Obituary

MRS. CECIL McMILLAN

HAVELOCK, June 22.—(ENS).—The citizens of this community were deeply shocked on Wednesday evening at the passing of Mrs. Cecil McMillan. Apparently in the best of health in the morning, she complained of not feeling well, and as she reached her bedside, was seized with a heart attack and lapsed into unconsciousness, from which she never recovered.

Hazel Helen McKay, she was the daughter of William and the late Mrs. McKay, and was born at Havelock June 20, 1902, and has lived in this vicinity all her life.

Eighteen years ago she married Cecil McMillan, who is left to mourn her loss, with her four children, Donald age 17, Rhea 14, Morley 10 and Barbara 4; also her aged father, Mr. William McKay; three sisters, Mrs. Orbie Reid and Mrs. Art King, Niagara Falls, Mrs. George Hubble Havelock and three brothers Orval McKay Niagara Falls and Lorne and George of Havelock. Of a quiet unassuming nature her instinct centred in her home, family and community, and her generosity and genial friendliness made life brighter and happier to those about her.

A very large assembly of relatives and friends gathered at the home in Belmont on Friday afternoon for her funeral to pay their last respects. Service were conducted by Rev. D. K. Perrie, pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church at 2 p.m., thence to Maple Grove Cemetery for interment.

Many beautiful floral tributes adorned the casket, which was carried by Messrs. Orval McKay, George McKay, Lorne McKay, George Hubbel, Orbie Reed and Art King.

Betting On the R.A.F.

NEW YORK, June 22—(AP)—Recent R.A.F. raids over Germany have stirred the betting instincts of American soldiers in the Pacific. A letter from a New York soldier in the Hawaiian Islands said: "The recent raids over Germany by the R.A.F. really pepped us up a hulluva lot. In fact we now have a nightly pool ($2.50) to see what city is flattened next. We have a list of about 18 important centres—and one guy just made $3 on having Bremen—more darn fun."

U.S. Destroyer Sunk

With only a tiny portion of her hull showing, the U.S.S. Peary is shown slipping beneath the waters of Port Darwin harbor after she had received fatal hits with Japanese bombs during an air raid on the northernmost Austraian port.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

MAY BE A RECORD.

The longest day of the year is now behind us, and many of the citizens have not yet dragged out the hose to water the lawn. There must be great husbandry this season up at Ross Dobbin's big pumps.

A MAMMOTH EGG

Red Sedgwick local barber, reports the finding of a oversized hen's egg at the farm home of his parents. The egg measured ten inches in girth from end to end and 7 inches in girth around the middle. When broken it was discovered there was another shell on the inside. The egg was a double yolker.

ON WEST COAST

Prince of Wales Rangers First Battalion under command of Col. J. A. Dewart, M.C., have arrived at their new training quarters on the West Coast. The trip took place without incident and the men are now well established in new quarters. They were stationed at Camp Niagara.

TAXI IS DAMAGED

As Edward Ferguson, Long Branch, was moving his car into the curb outside Plaza Billiards on Charlotte street Saturday, a taxi driven west by Ellen Elmhir collided with the rear of the other machine. The Long Branch car was not damaged, but a fender was torn off the taxi, according to the police report.

LOVE IS GRAND.

A number of people who were resting in Victoria Park yesterday were given real entertainment which they declared to be better than the movies any day. A young men and his girl friend were accupying a prominent park bench when apparently the love bug bit 'em and onlookers said these five-minute kisses were "hotter than the movies ever thought of putting out."

WHY WAIT LONGER

The Germans have practically all Libya now, the Japs have gained another foothold on the Aleutians, Sebastopol may fall any minute, and a Jap sub shelled the West Coast over the week-end. This should convince even the most obstinate, of the need for a strong reserve army to protect Canada. The 4th Field Battery parades at the Armouries Monday evening, and new recruits will be made welcome.

UNKNOWN CAR SOUGHT

Police endeavored Saturday night to discover the driver of a car whose machine shot off highway 7 at Downer's Corners, and plunged into lilac bushes on the property of Walter Withers after breaking off the guy wire of a telephone pole and grazing the pole. From the marks it was evident that the machine had got out of control and had left the highway in a north-easterly direction. The car was gone when police investigated the accident.

SCOUTS ATTENTION

The Scouting Club will meet Wednesday at 7.15 at Local Association Headquarters and then go on to the camping grounds.

CAMPBELLFORD FLIER

Air gunners from Canada, Newfoundland and the United States graduated from the R.C.A.F. training station at Mountain View on Saturday. Included in the list was E. H. Ingram, Campbellford, who is well known as a hockey player in the Trent district.

THINKING OF HOME

Alderman Max Swanston of this city has received a letter from Lt. Alex Elliott, now taking an officer's training course at Indian Head, British Columbia, and in the letter Mr. Elliott wants to know if the 200 adult bass promised the residents of Buckhorn have been delivered. These fish some of them weighing four pounds were deposited in Buckhorn Lake by Hatchery Department officials last week.

A GOOD ACT

C. W. Dinney, a C.G.E. employee who boards at 183 Mark street, is doing a fine bit of service work in his own quiet way, and it was quite by accident that a reporter noticed him and made enquiries. He spends every Saturday afternoon, and several evenings a week at the Maria Street bridge, sitting near the canal, with a complete first aid kit to treat any injuries which swimmers might sustain. To date he has taken care of 16 minor cuts and bruises. He studied under the St. John Ambulance group in Toronto, and as a Scout. He buys all his own equipment and surgical supplies.

She had been active about her home up until a short time ago when illness prevented her. She was in her 79th year.

HOW TO GET A $100 LOAN WITHOUT ENDORSERS

Monthly payments to fit your own income

A quick, simple way to borrow for emergencies

WOULD a cash loan help you? If you have a job, you can borrow at Household Finance without fuss or bother—and at reasonable cost. You may repay your loan in monthly instalments which fit your own pocketbook.

Just this to do

All you do to apply for a Household Finance loan is to tell us how much you need and how you wish to repay.

You may choose the most convenient payment plan from the table below. Suppose you borrow $100 to be repaid at $9.46 a month. Twelve instalments of $9.46 each will repay your loan in full. You may prefer to repay sooner in order to reduce the cost. Six monthly instalments of $17.85 each—a total of $107.10—will also repay a $100 loan. The cost of your loan, in this case, is just $7.10. A $25 loan, repaid in six monthly instalments of $4.46 each costs only $1.76.

You need no endorsers or guarantors to borrow at Household—just the ability to repay in monthly instalments. This spares you the embarrassment of asking friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. And at no time do we question friends or relatives about your credit.

Household Finance loans are usually made on furniture or car. But we consider character and regular income far more important than the value of your security. You can get your loan quickly—usually in 24 hours or even sooner if necessary. If you should get sick or lose your position while paying on your loan, Household will show you every consideration.

Let Household help you

People borrow at Household to pay taxes, insurance, medical, dental, hospital and funeral expenses, school fees, and overdue bills of many kinds. Household service helps men and women, both married and single, to take care of emergency expenses and work their way out of debt.

If you can make good use of a loan, see us at once. We are in business to make loans to folks with money problems. Phone or visit us without obligation.

Manvers School Makes $54 For War Victims

Some time ago, six ladies living in the south end of the city, Mrs. L. D. Letellier, Miss Albina Gordon, Mrs. J. Martyn Mrs. J. E. Deemers, Miss Maude Theobald and Miss Josephine Gordon made a very fine maroon and grey afghan and donated it to the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund to be the means of raising money to help the victims of air raids over Britain.

Quite some time ago, the children of S.S. No. 10, Manvers, held a draw and social evening on behalf of the fund, and through the teacher, Milburn M. Jones at this school, who makes periodical visits to the city, it was arranged that they would sponsor a draw for this afghan, and last Wednesday night saw the culmination of this effort, when the draw was made at a social evening held at the school house, the proceeds from which were also given to the fund. There are not many children in this school, so they must have worked hard, with credit going to Ray Stinson for selling the largest number of tickets at three for 25 cents to raise the sum of $32.55, on the afghan, and this with $1040 from door receipts and $5.10 from the booth which they operated to add to the receipts, made a grand total of $54.05 which has enriched the fund to that extent from this effort. First a short program was given by the children of the school, aided by local talent, then a euchre and dance was held, and during the course of the evening, Leona McGill, a little lady who starts her school attendance this September, made the draw for the afghan, and curiously enough drew the ticket which gave the prize to a 5 year old boy, Tom Dawson, whose home is near Bailieboro. A pleasant feature of the evening was the presentation to the teacher, Milburn Jones, of a club bag on behalf of the pupils, ex-pupils, parents and friends. Mr. Jones is leaving this school at the close of the present school session to take up similar duties at Orange Corners. Much credit reflects on the children and teacher of the school for the splendid results they attained to help the sufferers from air raids over Britain.

S.S. No. 1, Cavan.

From another school in the district, S.S. No. 1, Cavan, comes the results of a somewhat similar effort, when four ladies, Mesdames Boyd, Gardner, Downer and Hayes, made and donated a quilt for which the children sold tickets to raise the sum of $1200, this also appearing in the list of receipts for the day. On Saturday, a donation of $17.00 to honor the memory of the late J. G. M. Wilson on Father's Day by his former associates in the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd. plant was reported, and since then an additional $1.32 has been received from others per H. A. Cranfield, who also wished to be associated with this, and this additional amount appears in to-day's list.

This evening a pleasing few hours may be spent on the grounds of Senator Iva Fallis's residence in East City on Charles street at the extreme end of Burnham street, with many and varied attractions, from which this fund will receive half of the proceeds, with the other going to a national fund for mobile canteens for Britain. All are cordially invited to attend.

First Juvenile Dance Band To Play At Bobcaygeon

The management of the "Edgewater" Pavilion at Bobcaygeon, Ont. has, as usual, led the field in bringing to this popular summer resort the tops in first class and novel entertainment for the summer dancing season.

This year they present a dance band of merit, under the baton of "Gerry" Nichols, Jr. and known as "Gerry" and his Juvenile Gentlemen. But . . . there is a very interesting story behind all this.

Realizing the probable difficulties that would present themselves in trying to obtain the services of an older "Name" band, due to Canada's all out war effort, the most skillful of youthful musicians were sought throughout the province of Ontario some months ago and placed under the tutelage of a well-known and capable leader.

The result is a rather remarkable aggregation of 12 and 14 year old youngsters, selected from many boys, and trained into a smooth working dance band of some 11 boys.

They are playing special arrangements of the very latest dance numbers and represent the first juvenile dance band in Ontario.

Watch out for them. You'll like these youngsters.

Opening night will be Friday, June 26th.

A Record-Breaker

Aircraftsman Alec Armstrong, Antrim street, a brother of Captain Gordon Armstrong, set a new high on Saturday when he landed this brown trout weighing 7¼ pounds in the Millbrook stream, just below the dam. It is the largest trout of this species ever caught in the Peterborough district. It measured 26½ inches in length and 14 inches in girth.

Brown Trout Betters Seven Pounds

Alderman Adam Sands who has taken first prize in the Examiner Lucky Strike Fishing Contest during the past two years in the brown trout division had better look to his laurels for a new champion has appeared on the fishing front.

The new champion for the time being is Aircraftsman Alec. Armstrong, 234 Antrim street, who caught a brown trout in the Millbrook stream, in the big hole at the foot of the dam in the vilage on Saturday afternoon that weighed 7¼ pounds. The fish was a monster as Brown go around the Peterborough district, and it measured 26½ inches in length and 14 inches in girth.

Armstrong hooked the same fish on a fly about two weeks ago, and lost him, but this time he made it a sure thing, despite the fact that he was using a 7-ounce fly rod. He had been using streamer flies, but he noticed the big fellow come to the surface and snare a polliwog with a swirl and a lightning rush. Armstrong, caught a small polliwog, hooked it through the tail, and tossed it out. It had scarcely hit the water, when the trout had it, and the battle was on. Armstrong battled the fish carefully, allowing it to run, as he claimed that while he could turn the trout, he could not check its rushes, and he finally worked the prize into the shallow water and grabbed it with his hands.

The Canadian record for Brown trout is 12 pounds, five ounces, and the fish was caught in Lake Edith, Alberta on July 17, 1938. Catching of a fish of this species weighing 7¼ pounds in the Millbrook stream indicates that the Brown trout mature very rapidly and within three years at the present rate of growth, fish exceeding the Canadian record should be taken in district waters. The world record was set up in Scotland, when a man named W. Muir, caught one in Loch Awe, which weighed 39½ pounds.

Car Salesman Is Charged Theft By Conversion

Evidence of George H. Smith, former manager of the local branch of Consumers' Finance Limited, took up the whole morning session today of the trial before Judge S. L. Smoke in the County Judges' Criminal Court of Donald Lloyd, Lakefield car salesman, on a charge of the theft by conversion of three automobiles from Industrial Acceptance Corporation, Limited.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted and Lloyd was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C.

Smith, formerly of Consumer's Finance Limited, and now with Industrial Acceptance Corporation was the first witness called. Both companies had an office here at one time, he said, and later the Consumer's Finance Corporation was sold to the Industrial Acceptance Corporation.

Witness said he knew Donald Lloyd as an automobile salesman in Lakefield dealing both in new and used cars.

"Have you had numerous transactions with Lloyd?"

"I had when I was with the Consumer's Finance Corporation."

Smith identified a chattel mortgage dated January 15, between Lloyd and Consumer's Finance. The signature on it, he said, was that of Don Lloyd, and the document covered several automobiles.

The document was signed in his office, witness said. There would be an original and one copy.

One copy was sent to Lloyd with a covering letter.

"Can you tell the court how much credit was given Lloyd on the Chevrolet car mentioned "

"$755", replied the witness, adding that he did not know whether it was cash or contract account. He had no knowledge of the amount being paid back.

Witness identified a ledger card which he said showed that the amount had not been paid.

Smith said that the chattel mortgage was signed in blank and filled in afterward.

The information, he thought, had been taken from the license card, supplied by Lloyd. Although he said he could not be sure. At all events the information had come from Lloyd.

Smith said he had seen the Chevrolet car. He added that he had made an audit on April 1 and the car was there then.

Says Amount Not Repaid

Mr. McElderry produced a document which Smith identified as a chattel mortgage, dated February 12, covering a used Chevrolet coach that he said had been signed by Lloyd. That mortgage, he said, had been prepared in the same way as the other and the information had been furnished by Lloyd. The accused had received $404 credit, witness said. The amount had not been repaid, Smith added.

Mr. Carley objected to the introduction of ledger cards, saying they were not admissible.

"Were the entries on the cards made in the ordinary course of business?", asked Judge Smoke, and Smith replied in the affirmative.

The cards were ruled admissable.

Smith said that the used Chevrolet coach was at Lloyd's place when he made a checkup in April.

In cross-examination by Mr. Carley, Smith said that he had been constantly urging upon Lloyd to keep selling cars.

To Mr. Carley witness said that Lloyd began his dealings with Consumer's Finance in May, 1940.

"How many chattel mortgages had Lloyd given Consumer's Credit from May 1940 to the end of that year."

"Probably over 200".

"How many the following year?"

"Perhaps 250."

Smith added that there had probably been 40 or 50 in 1942."

No discharge of these mortgages had ever been given Lloyd, the witness said.

Smith said that he could not remember the circumstances in connection with the first chattel mortgage entered as an exhibit.

"Any information in regard to that given by you to the court was based on the system used rather than on memory of the details," asked Mr. Carley and witness replied in the affirmative.

Smith said that he could not explain why the affidavit of execution had shown the transaction to have taken place at Lakefield whereas the mortgage had been executed at Peterborough.

"Is it not true that no mortgages were ever executed at Lakefield?"

"Yes."

"But the affidavits all showed them to have been executed there."

"Yes."

Smith said that the first chattel mortgage produced did not show how much had been paid in respect to the Chevrolet car or how much in regarded to the other car mentioned. Lloyd never applied for permission to sell any cars he said.

"You knew that he was selling cars covered by chattel mortgages without apply for permission to you."

"Yes."

"There never was a complaint about that."

"No".

The witness said that no statement had ever been given Lloyd of the state of his wholesale account.

Smith said that there was a promissory note attached to each chattel mortage.

"Did Lloyd ever receive one of those back?" asked Mr. Carley. "No".

"You must have a lot of those promissory notes," said defense counsel. "What has become of them?"

Witness said that they were sent to head office. Many of them came back to the branches, the witness said, but they were not sent to the dealers.

"Did they give evidence of having been negotiated by head office?"

"They did give such indications."

"They were regular promissory notes?"

"Yes in the regular form."

Train Wins The Argument

Rommel's battering ram tanks had nothing on a locomotive that smashed into one of the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Company trucks on Rink street at eight o'clock on Monday morning. George Plumpton, 133 Aylmer street, and Ted Edwards, 217 Bethune, who were in the cab of the truck, escaped with a few bruises.

Coal Truck Is Hit By Train

Two men were slightly injured and a coal truck badly damaged in a collision between the vehicle and a C.P.R. train near the corner of Rink and Bethune streets shortly before 8 o'clock this morning.

The injured men were George Plumpton, 133 Aylmer street, driver of the truck, who had his right shoulder injured, and Ted Edwards, 217 Bethune street, who received a bruise on the side of his head.

Plumpton had just driven the truck, laden with two tons of coal, from the yard of the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Company on Rink street and was making a right turn to cross the first of two tracks when the train in charge of Conductor James Mark, Toronto, and Engineer Art Betts, of Lindsay, came along and the truck was hit and carried thirteen feet north of the road, coming to rest partly on the sidewalk.

The side of the truck was extensively damaged, but the two men escaped lightly. Their injuries are not regarded as in any way serious.

Small Child Blamed For Auto Accident

When a three-year-old girl suddenly lost her balance and fell on top of the steering wheel of the automobile in which she was a passenger Sunday she was the innocent cause of a traffic accident.

George G. Bickell, Thomas street, was driving his car north on highway 28 between Peterborough and Lakefield. His wife and young daughter were with him and the child was standing on the front seat when she toppled over and fell on the wheel. By the time the driver had rescued the youngster and looked up, again, there was a bicyclist on the road just in front of the car, and it was impossible to avoid a collision.

The rider, Allan Little, 165 Romaine street, was thrown off his wheel to the pavement and sustained a cut on the back of his head that required two stitches to close.

She carried a floral fan of Talisman roses and cornflowers. Miss Helen Hayward, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid, wearing a gown of turquoise marquisette with white flowers and a sweetheart hat of matching flowers with white net. She carried a floral fan of Rapture roses and gypsophila. Mr. J. Johnston, brother of the groom, and Mr. H. Boucher, brother of the bride, were best men. The Rev. J. J. O'Brien officiated, with Oscar Chenier, nephew of the bride, serving mass, with Vernon Grady. Mr. Armstrong was at the organ and the bride's nieces, the Misses Doris, Cecile and Theresa Chenier, sang very lovely hymns during the mass, including "The Ave Maria." The ushers were Mr. J. Michael, uncle of the groom, and Mr. A. Chenier, brother-in-law of the bride.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother to about 35 guests, including the Rev. J. J. O'Brien. The decorations were carried out in blue and white. The bride's mother received in a gown of orchid crepe with white accessories and wore a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. The groom's mother also received in a gown of navy silk jersey with white accessories and a corsage of Bettertime roses.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold locket; to the junior bridesmaid, a gold necklace; and to the best men, a gold tie-pin and bar.

Amid a shower of good wishes, Mr. Johnston and his bride left on a honeymoon to Niagara Falls and Toronto. The bride chose for travelling a costume of tearose crepe with pleated skirt and a corsage of Briarcliffe roses. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will live at 208 Lake street.

THE STARS SAY

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, June 23

A PARTICULARLY lively and interesting day, with much creative work in literature, correspondence, communications as well as travel and change in connection with rearranging professional, legal or other public vocations. The mind will be found keen and astute and the imagination and intuitions dependable. However, it would be well to utilize finesse.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a lively and progressive year in which the intellectual faculties may be found exceptionally productive. All pertaining to writings, communications, advertising, publicity and public appeal should thrive, but with a measure of tact and strategem rather than straightforward approach. Travel and change of plans are indicated.

A child born on this day should be usually talented in the arts, professions, and business as well.

Are You a Sufferer From Rheumatic Pains?

These pains come from an inflammation in the muscles and are generally caused by a deposit of poison in the blood called uric acid which produces the irritating and painful effect that causes many days and nights heavy with pain.

During the past 60 years Canadian people have found that by purifying the blood stream, Burdock Blood Bitters aids them to enjoy freer body movement with less rheumatic pain, as B. B. B. helps to tone up the system and clear up the uric acid in the blood, and probably help fortify the system against future attacks.

WHY "DOSE" CONSTIPATION?

There's a "Better Way" Than Harsh Purgatives!

LONDON, Canada: "Dosing" constipation brings only temporary relief, at best. If yours is the common type, due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet, try correcting it instead. Eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day!

This crisp, delicious cereal (it's good in muffins, too) supplies the proper "bulk" to help keep you regular . . . naturally. But it must be remembered ALL-BRAN doesn't work like purgatives. Reserve Rangers Flock To First Week-End Camp At Rifle Ranges

Thirty per cent. more men than were expected took in the first week-end camp of the Prince of Wales Rangers (Reserve) on Saturday and Sunday, and they had a grand time, with 130 all ranks on hand. Sports and rifle practise were fitted into the general training, and the officers had full scope for the program aimed at acquainting the men with soldiering under battle conditions. Equipped with light pith helmets and suitable dress, the men were not bothered by the warm sunshine. At TOP LEFT, five of the men are taking it easy as they wait their turn for rifle shooting. From LEFT to RIGHT, they are Tom Lillico, Sgt. Frank Dracup, Vern Tarkington, K. Dorrington, Jim Chalmers and Graham (Red) Eastwood is standing. At TOP RIGHT, the senior officers of the Rangers check over a sighting stand. The group from LEFT to RIGHT includes: Lt.-Col. M. H. Park, Lt.-Col. Clair H. Stuart, Captain Bob Nott, Major Jim McGrath, M.M., and Major Vincent Eastwood, M.C.

130 Men Attend Prince Of Wales Rangers' Weekend Military Camp

Expecting a maximum of 70 men at the newly established week-end camp at the Rifle Ranges on the Norwood Road, officers of the Prince of Wales Rangers (Reserve) were a little bewildered when close to 130 all ranks put in an appearance.

This fine turnout emphasizes the popularity of this week-end outing under canvas where the soldiers get a chance to play at war under conditions similar to that in actual warfare.

Lt.-Col. M. H. Park, officer commanding, was enthusiastic over the new arrangements, and he is convinced that the camp is ideal for actual training, in other words it is the straightest way to the objective of the reserve army. It was apparent however, to the eyes of a reporter that there were not sufficient bell tents, nor shelters for the men, and with next week-end bringing even a larger quota, the officers are going to have a problem on their hands.

The campsite is ideal in many ways, it is located on a gravel knoll that is dry, and which dries out readily following a rain. There is a good well with class A water, which is piped to the kitchens, to the wash basins, and to the mess, by means of an electric pump owned by Major Eastwood. The officers found many tradesmen in the ranks, and these men soon turned their ability to putting the camp in tip top shape. White stone marks the driveway, a new flag pole has been erected, and refuse cans are placed throughout the camp, and properly marked.

If sufficient tents and equipment is available, it is obvious that this military camp is going to be one of the most successful in the history of the regiment.

Not All Work.

The men seemed to get a lot of fun out of the training. They were taught by Major Jim McGrath, M.M. veteran of World War 1, who gave them several lessons out of the ordinary run of training. For instance he located a sniper 400 yards distant, and signalling with a flag, had the sniper fire four shots with live ammunition. It was the duty of the men to locate the rifleman. After that he explained to the rookies just how to go about spotting a sniper. Rifle practise, with .22 calibre rifles, sighting with regulation army rifles, field telephone work, visual signalling with lamps, map reading, physical drill and a little foot drill kept men busy.

There were softball games, horseshoe pitching, and football, a canteen where soft drinks, cigarettes and chocolate bars could be purchased, and all in all the boys had a great time.

The ground, which embraces 400 acres, is wooded in spots, undulating with high grass and ideal for infantry training in all the manifold branches of modern warfare. At later camps, the men will be taught several of the guerilla tactics, and camouflage, and a competitive spirit wil be engendered that will make the mock battles almost realistic.

Lawyers, doctors, bankers, garage men, factory workers, and office help, all attended the week-end camp, all determined they would learn the handling of the small arms in order that they may be of value to their country in the event of an invasion. Officers pitched in with the men to get the work incidental to the setting up of a camp under way, and now the boys are all set for a summer's training. Captain Robert Nott, M.D., who like other city doctors has mighty few spare moments spent the week-end at the lamp giving the recruits the assurance of immediate attention should any mishap occur.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY RISES AS MOTHER SERVE U.S.

Parents of Small Children Advised To Keep Home Fires Burning

According to the church welfare workers and probation officers the chief victims of this war are the children whose mothers are so busy saving the country that they have no time to protect their own boys and girls. They report that juvenile delinquency among the boys of this country has increased 22 per cent during the last year and among girls 8 per cent. And the officers of the Volunteers of America assert that in all their long history never before have they had such a multitude of young girls many of them children themselves, begging at their doors, asking for shelter in which to hide themselves to bear their fatherless children.

A clergyman, who is a director of a church federation welfare bureau, said that there are many cases of children being locked in cars, or trailers, or houses all day while their parents are at work. In other cases, he declared, they are barred from their homes during the day while their mothers, who work on night shifts, are sleeping. In thousands of other cases they are just turned loose on the street to do as they please and shift for themselves while Mother is doing war work.

Now I would not for a moment asperse the motives of these women war workers, or belittle the value of the service they give. Most of them are simply overflowing with patriotism and they feel very noble when they think of how they have sacrificed everything—themselves, their homes and their children to their country—and how tired they get standing for hours and hours in a canteen serving coffee and sandwiches to soldiers, and what back-breaking work driving an ambulance it.

"Why, my dear," they say, "I'm on the job all the time. I'm at home so little the children scarcely know he now. I have forgotten there are such things as bridge and cocktail parties and beauty shops; and as for my hands, well, I hate to think of what my manicurist would say if she saw them."

Praised For Defense Work

There is no denying there is need of women's nursing, need of women's tears in war, as the old poem used to say, and it is a fine and splendid and brave thing for the women who have no young children and no domestic responsibilities to give their time and energies to the defense of their country.

They fill an important part in the war economy. Many a hungry rookie will remember to his dying day the good hot meals some women's auxiliary fed him. Many a homesick young draftee goes on his way heartened and comforted by a little sympathetic talk with a gray-haired woman who looked like his mother. Thousands of men have the curse of boredom taken off their stay in camp by dances and amusements that women arrange for them.

In unnumbered factories millions of women are doing men's work and releasing men for fighting. No other factor is more important in keeping up the morale of an army than the enthusiasm and the burning patriotism that women pour into it. They wave the flags that make men fight on to victory.

Keep Home Fire Burning

But when women have young children the fighting line for them is not on the front but in the rear, and they serve their country when they keep the home fires burning. A bungalow apron is not as nifty a costume as a gold-braided khaki uniform but the woman who wears that and who has kept her family together during all this upset wild wartime; who has disciplined her youngsters and watched over them and kept them safe has done a patriotic a job and is of more value to Uncle Sam than if she had piloted a flying fortress or broken a riveting record.

For what is the use of saving a country if we have not saved our children first? Why should we fight and die for our country if we are going to turn it over to hoodlums and wastrels as we will do if we let our youngsters run wild in their formative years? Our future lies in the hands of the mothers of our land. In the end they must save us, if we are saved.

I leave this thought with the women who apologize for not being on war committees. Their battle is at home. Their fight is with their own children. And if they rear fine sons and daughters they have given their country the best gift they can offer.

If they fail—well, not all the plaudits in the world will compensate them for knowing that if they had stayed at home and watched over John he might not have gotten in with that criminal gang, and if they had taken care of Mamie when she was so young and ignorant she might not have been one of those girls who are creeping in the night to the doors of the Volunteers of America.

Reta Darling Bride Of Ernest Castle

St. Andrew's church was the scene on Saturday of the wedding of Reta Emmeline, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Darling, of Smith, to L-Cpl. Ernest Richard Castle, Camp Borden elder son of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Castle, Wolsley street. Rev. E. W. Young officiated and the church was decorated with peonies. Mr. R. B. Harle played the wedding music.

The bride was lovely in a floor length gown of sea-foam blue net over taffeta, of which the square neck-line and fitted midriff were outlined with matching lace. Bands of lace also trimmed the bouffant skirt. Her veil of sea-foam blue net was draped from a wreath of flowers and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and mauve sweet-peas.

She was attended by Miss Helen Howden, who wore a long gown of pink chiffon with bishop sleeves, of which the midriff and neckline were outlined in matching lace. She wore a wide-brimmed corn straw hat and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and blue cornflowers. The best man was Pte. Alan Haley of Camp Borden.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of Dubonnet flowered crepe with blue and white accessories and a corsage of Bettertime roses. The groom's mother, who assisted her, wore a gown of navy blue sheer with white accessories and a corsage of Bettertime roses.

Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip north. For travelling the bride wore a queen's blue redingote with blue and white accessories.

Early-Canadian Rag Rug Easy to Weave

Weft Is Bright Cotton Strips

Charming, this early Canadian rug with color in variegated effect! You'll love weaving it — in a cool summery combination of blue, rust and ivory.

Here's how to do it. Tear cotton fabric (cast-off dresses, perhaps) into strips 2¾ inches wide. Press down ⅛ inch on each side and fold again through the middle. Prepare also some "filler," 1-inch strips of rag which you'll use to start weaving and will later remove.

Now, in a home-made wooden frame 28 by 40 inches, drive in nails about ¼ inch apart on short sides. To set up your warp, of rust candlewick yarn, tie one end to your frame and carry up and down over alternate nails.

Next weave 2½ inches of "filler," going over and under warp threads, and weave 7 rows of rust candlewick for a heading.

Start weaving the body of the rug with a 2½-yard blue strip, then add a strip of another color and length —continuing in this way for variegated effect.

Our 32-page booklet tells how to finish with fringe, gives details of warping, weaving, amount of materials. Also tells how to make hooked, braided, crocheted, other types of rugs.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of GAMES and STUNTS FOR TWO OR MORE to the Peterborough Examiner, Home Service. Be sure to write plain your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

A SAFER SITUATION

WHEN THERE is a sound major suit available—that is, eight trumps, regardless of whether there be four in declarer's hand and four in dummy, or with them divided in some other way—it is nearly always safer to play for game in that suit than in No Trumps. That is especially so if the side's two hands both contain doubletons or singletons in different suits, which may be liabilities at No Trumps, but are assets for suit play because of the ruffing possibilities.

North: ♠ K 8 2 ♥ Q 8 3 2 ♦ A 8 ♣ K 9 4 2

West: ♠ 10 5 3 ♥ A 10 9 ♦ Q 6 5 3 2 ♣ Q 3

East: ♠ Q J 9 7 4 ♥ 7 6 ♦ K J 7 ♣ J 8 5

South: ♠ A 6 ♥ K J 5 4 ♦ 10 9 4 ♣ A 10 7 6

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

	South	West	North	East
1.	1♣	Pass	2 NT	Pass
	3 NT
2	1♣	Pass	2 NT	Pass
	3♥	Pass	4♥

Notice how much better South bid at Table 2 on this deal. His call of 3-Hearts gave North a chance to make the same 3-No Trumps call as the other table, and in addition a whack at 4-Hearts if it happened North held four of them, as he did. In other words, South covered more possibilities with his second bid. North's response of 2-No Trumps on the first round was eminently correct, with so many suits that would be better with the lead coming up to them than through them.

At Table 1, North took a pasting, since East was a player with vision. With the opponents having bid hearts and clubs, his choice of lead was between spades and diamonds. Deciding his own hand was too weak for his spade suit to be hopeful, and that diamonds would surely be his partner's suit, he led the diamond K. North ducked, and the J was then led to the A. North's only apparent chance now was to find one defender holding originally only two diamonds, plus the heart A, so he led a heart, but when West won that, he sent North to defeat with three more diamonds.

At Table 2, South received an opening of the diamond 3. It was easy to make the heart game, losing only one trick in trumps, one in diamonds and one in clubs.

In rubber bridge, if the bidding starts with 1-Diamond by North, 1 Heart by South and 1-Spade by West, what should be the ensuing course of the auction if East and West are average players, and what if they are expert cardsmen?

County Councillors Who Purchased Lumber From County Forest Are Liable For Disqualification

Any members who have bought lumber from the county forest are liable to disqualification, F. D. Kerr, K.C., told the county council at its closing session Saturday.

The auditor's statement for 1941 showed that Reeve C. S. Tanner of Lakefield was one purchaser, and he frankly stated that he had paid $55 for the material he got, "and that was every cent it was worth, and the county got the money."

Mr. Kerr's information was to the effect that a member of the council dealing in an asset of the municipality became subject to disqualification if any ratepayer took action for that purpose.

Although Reeve Tanner was the only member mentioned in connection with county lumber sales, Reeve Ferguson said he had heard some gossip around Norwood that five or six of the members of the council had made purchases.

Presumably the sales were made by William A. Anderson of Otonabee, as chairman of the reforestation committee of the council.

Reeve P. J. Mather, Otonabee, turned the attention of the council to the lumber transactions by pointing out that the audit for last year showed that a member of the council had paid $55 for lumber from the county forest.

"If it is permissible for the chairman of the reforestation committee to sell lumber, I see no reason why the chairman county property committee could not sell any of the furniture and property of this building. I see no reason why I could not sell insurance to the county and collect the fee. I want to know where I as a member of this council stand in regard to those sales."

Heard Rumors

"I've been hearing around Norwood that some of the reeves had bought county lumber," said Reeve Rork Ferguson, "and that the reforestation committee had lumber to sell. We take certain obligations when we come into the council, and in my opinion this is one of the things we are forbidden to do. This is only a small matter, but we don't know what it could lead to in the future."

The minute in the auditor's report affirmed the receipt of $55 from W. A. Anderson for Chas. S. Tanner in the sale of lumber, and was interpreted by Mr. Anderson to the county treasurer of $55 received from Reeve Tanner for lumber he had bought from the county forest.

"I am not questioning the man who bought it," Mr. Mather said. "I want to know where I stand as one of those allowing it.'

"You were not a party to the transaction, so your skirts are clear," said Mr. Kerr who was temporarily taking the place of E. A. Peck, K.C., county solicitor.

"The question of the purchaser of the lumber, whether he leaves himself subject to disqualification, that is another matter," Mr. Kerr commented. "Off hand, it appears to me that the councillor was dealing in a county asset..."

Timber Salvage

"It was just salvage timber to begin with," Reeve Tanner said. "They cut down trees that were dead, and they had this stuff on their hands. Some of the lumber was bought in good faith, and the county got every cent it was worth."

"A member is not disqualified unless by action of some ratepayer," Mr. Kerr said.

Mr. Tanner:—"Then if any one takes part in municipal matters he is debarred from dealing in any county property?"

Mr. Kerr recalled a trifling incident which was referred to the late Judge Huycke respecting a member of the Board of Education suggesting when the detail of cleaning floors was being discussed that he had some material which he had used with highly satisfactory effect. He sent several cans to the Board and they were charged in the regular way, but Judge Huycke said that the transaction was not a proper one.

Deputy-reeve McIlmoyle, Smith, said as a member of the reforestation committee, he did not know what sales were made.

"It is suggested that you were not as alert on the job as you might have been," Mr. Kerr remarked, as the council laughed at Mr. McIlmoyle's admission.

"I think that's absolutely correct," Mr. McIlmoyle said.

"That was sticking your neck out," Miss Batten remarked to the Smith's Deputy.

"Some of these matters should not be left in the hands of one man," said Mr. McIlmoyle.

"Do you mean to say that you would call the reforestation committee together every time there was the sale of some lumber coming up?" asked Mr .Tanner.

Discussed Values.

Reeve John McColl of Asphodel stated that W. A. Anderson "on different occasions spoke to me about the value of the lumber we had on hand and asked me what I thought we should get for it. I think perhaps Mr. Anderson was following the prices he mentioned with me. Personally I don't think a member of the county council should be prevented from buying any lumber from the county forest if they have some on hand."

Mr. Kerr:—"When a man enters municipal life, he makes certain sacrifices. One of them is that he will not buy or sell to the body of which he is a member."

Mr. Mather: "Doesn't the municipal act say the sale is null and void?"

Mr. Kerr hesitated on that question and said he was not sure but he thought it did. Miss Batten said the Act did say so.

"In regard to the member, he has an opportuntiy of resigning," Mr. Kerr stated. "If he does he can run again, if the money has been paid back."

Mr. McIlmoyle—"There are some fellow here who'll have a job getting that lumber back."

Other Members of Committee.

Mr. Kerr: "Now, as to the members of the committee that was party to the sale,—I don't think they are subject to disqualification, but their electors might think later on that they had gone a little too far."

Mr. Tanner:—"If there was anything irregular about it, wouldn't both parties be equally guilty?"

Mr. Kerr:—"I can't say that I have ever heard of anything of that kind. But it required of the individual member that he shall be like Caesar's wife, above suspicion."

Mr. Tanner—"What about Cleopatra?"

Mr. Kerr:— "History tells us she was not the official wife of Caesar."

Reeve Mather enquired whether it would be more helpful if the audit of the county forest accounts separated expenditure into such details as roads, materials and so on. The book did not show any statement of permanent assets. Between twelve and fifteen thousand dollars had been spent on one project and another down there, "but no statement appears as to what has been done."

Not Owners Yet.

Mr. Kerr:—"I wouldn't think I was an auditor unless I had a birdseye view of everything." He added the comment that he could audit only the matters referred to him.

Reeve Mahoney of Douro reminded the council that the county did not yet own the forest, that it would not come finally into Peterborough's possession until a ten year period was ended.

"We have to spend at least $1,000 a year on it, and I understand we have been doing that," he said.

Mr. Kerr said there could be no question about the county owning the property, but it was like paying off a mortgage during a period of ten years.

The discussion of the lumber purchase ended on that note.

Mr. Anderson Comments.

"I think the first thing the ratepayers of the county should understand about the lumber sold from the county forest is this, namely, that it was cut from spruce and pine in an area of about 300 acres that was burned over in 1936, two years before the County decided to acquire the forest," said W. A. Anderson of Otonabee, who is still chairman of Council's Reforestation Committee.

"The most important thing is that a correct knowledge of what was done should be known because we don't want any wrong impression to get around in the county about what kind of trees were cut into lumber. A wrong impression could possibly have an effect of causing people to get a discouraging opinion about the forest and its future.

"The first thing the committee did was to have a survey made of the entire property. That was done by Mr. Pierce in November and December, 1938, soon after the county bought the main part of the forest. We then found that a man who had been cutting pulpwood on an adjoining lot to the north had crossed the line to our property and was actually a trespasser. The Crown ordered the seizure of this pulpwood that was cut on the county land, and in the long run we acquired the entire lot this man had cut, including some to the north of the line. This line, of course, was marked out definitely by Mr. Pierce, and that is how the trespass came to be known. This pulpwood was greenwood in a part of the forest removed from the area the fire had swept through.

Sold Some Pulpwood.

The committee considered what it would do with this pulpwood, and we finally decided to sell it, around 18 cords altogether, to J. Russell Thompson of Norwood, who was then Reeve of the village. He was the only dealer who we thought had a place in his contract for the small quantity we had to sell.

"The rest of the material that has been sold was lumber cut from trees in the fire area. It amounted altogtther to 93,000 feet, and we have about 40,000 feet still on our hands. As to quality it was good, bad and indifferent. It should be remembered that this lumber was left for two years just as the fire had left it. Then we got possession of it. Some of it had fallen and some was still standing. Grubs had got into quite a lot of this burned timber during the two years, and as a result the general quality was good, bad and indifferent.

We had 93,000 feet cut into lumber at Mr. Wood's mill in North Monaghan on Braidwood Avenue. We tried to get some of the dealers interested in it. One man said it was no good even for crating because insects had got into some of it, and it would not be admitted into another country. Another man offered $15.00 a thousand providing he could get a buyer for it. The committee had been expecting a considerably better price than that, and I did not even mention it to them. Nothing more came of that sugestion.

Small Lots Bought.

Reeve M. H. Johnston of North Monaghan bought 150 feet of the lumber at $40 a thousand; I bought 250 feet myself at the same price; Reeve Mann got a small quantity for $24 and Reeve Tanner paid $55 for what he wanted for a camp or cottage away back in the north. These men paid substantially more than any dealer offered us. I said that any person who would buy the lumber from the county at $40 a thousand was really doing the ratepayers a favor in helping us to get rid of this material.

"Then there was some that was sold to the county at about $35 a thousand, delivered to the job. We paid the trucking costs. The county got some of the best of the lumber for bridges, including repairs to the Chemong Bridge. The committee used some of the lumber on small bridges in the county forest.

"Another point that might be mentioned is that when we first got this lumber cut the demand was not so keen as it has been in the last year or two. In 1941 the Council authorized the construction of a building that could be used for the workmen at the forest, if we could put some men in there to work, and the committee felt that we could use the best of what remained of the lumber for that purpose."

Not Green Timber.

Mr. Anderson said that he wished to emphasize the fact that the lumber discussed at the Council meeting on Saturday was material salvaged from the fire of 1936, and was not cut from good green timber. No green timber can be cut from the forest without the permission of the Department of Forests.

"Perhaps it might have been just as well if we had cut this timber in the fire area into lengths piled them up and burned it; but the members of the committee had the idea that they might be able to get some revenue for the county out of the stuff which the Department said we could go ahead with.

"I'd like to repeat that the members of the Council who bought some small quantities of this lumber certainly got no profit at the expense of the county. They did not try to. A lot of the same timber in that fire area was not cut, and since then it has gradually been rotting away. We found so much difficulty in getting buyers for what we did cut that there was no encouragement for us to cut any more of it."

to the Egyptian frontier and thereby vastly improves his chances for a succesful thrust toward Suez.

Military quarters here said Rommel might find it difficult to move supplies through Tobruk as long as Allied air forces can contest control of the skies. It was presumed, however, that the Axis leader would hasten to concentrate strong fighter plane forces at nearby El Adem and other desert airports to protect his oversea supply line.

The question of the R.A.F.'s existing strength in this area, moreover, was rendered doubtful by Rome reports that Axis divebombers had met no British fighters over Tobruk in the smashing attacks which paved the way for its capture.

The full damage suffered by the British forces in the Libyan campaign and the reasons for their defeat still are obscure here.

Start Out in Equal Strength

At the outset of the campaign, May 26, armored strength was believed to be about equal on both sides and British troops appeared to have gained the upper hand when they thwarted Rommel's first thrust toward Tobruk.

In the light of subsequent events however, it seems likely that they achieved this initial success at such heavy cost they were unable to follow up the blow.

Further heavy losses were reported suffered by British armored forces when they fell into an Axis trap in the Acroma-El Adem-Knightsbridge triangle southwest of Tobruk June 13 and were picked off by carefully-planted 88-millimetre guns.

Rommel also was said to have sprung another surprise—a 150-millimetre gun mounted on fast armored cars which proved the answer to the speedy 28-ton "General Grant" tanks armed with 75-millimetre cannon.

Despite the adverse turn of affairs in Libya, the city of Alexandria — some 300 miles east of the frontier —was calm today and there was no outward sign of change in the situation facing the country, which is not yet formally at war with the Axis.

Egypt's well-trained army of 40,000 regulars, augmented by 100,000 guardsmen, is ready for action, however, and actually is performing valuable service in support of the British by patrolling vast stretches of the western desert.

Egyptian anti-aircraft batteries are in position to defend both the Nile Valley and the Suez canal and have, in fact, already shot down raiding Axis planes.

The official position of the government, pledged to give Britain all aid short of war, is that it will not make any declaration against the Axis powers unless invaded.

The Italian advance to Sidi Barrani in September, 1940, was not regarded as an invasion since it was an occupation of an almost unpopulated stretch of desert on the other side of the country's real defence lines.

quaintances in Astoria and nearby towns were awakened by the detonations. He was advised that residents in Hammond and Warrenton, west of Astoria near the mouth of the Columbia river, also heard the gun fire, and that persons in the vicinity of Seaside, on the oceanfront south of Columbia, saw flashes of light from a gun or guns.

The shellfire was heard over an area of approximately 30 miles extending from Seaside, 25 miles from the Columbia, to Ilwaco, Wash., on the north bank of the river.

Looked Like Lightning

Lucas said he, too, saw the flashes, which he described as "bright orange and fan-shaped." From his house, he said, they looked much like lightning playing on the horizon, except for their color.

Other Astoria residents reported they could hear plainly the whistle of the shells, followed by explosions.

A check with unofficial sources indicated that no shells landed in any community. The only important settlement on the beach north of Seaside is Gearhart, which was not disturbed.

Between Gearhart and the Columbia river is a stretch of about 16 miles of broad, sandy waste, and it was in that area that most observers here believed the shell had fallen.

One resident of the coast put it: "The Japs picked a swell place for harmless target practice."

Hundreds Attend Strawberry Social

BAILIEBORO, June 20—(ENS)-The strawberry festival sponsored by the Women's Association of the United Church Wednesday evening was a huge success. Long tables were set out on the Church Lawn, and looked very attractive with vases of summer blossoms, heaping saucers of strawberries and cream, cake, tarts, etc. Waiters were kept busy attending the many guests that came from far and near.

A ball game between Fraserville and Bailieboro drew quite a number of spectators with Bailieboro winning. The program which was held in the church was opened by the pastor Rev. M. E. Rowland with a few words of welcome. Miss Jean Fairbairn of Springville delighted the audience with several humorous readings. A one-act play "Those Husbands of Ours" was presented by 7 of the Ladies Association, showing the housekeeping ability of the men folk when the wives were on vacation, many laughable hits were given the local men of the village, keeping the gathering wondering who would be the next victim.

Those taking part were Mesdames W. C. Jewison, G. Dean, R. Kelly, N. T. Thompson, T. Jewison, W. Garner, Clara Seens. A number of boxes of strawberries and cake were sold at close, proceeds amounted to around $136.00, leaving $100.00 cleared.

Every home should have one or more flashlights. Before buying a new one, inspect and repair your old one. It may need only a new bulb, new lens or fresh batteries.

Keep your flashlight in a convenient, accessible place—and always in its place. When using it INDOORS, never point it toward unshielded windows, skylights or open doors.

During a blackout, stay indoors. Do not go out unless it is absolutely necessary. Do not use a flashlight OUTDOORS except in an emergency. Then make sure it is shielded. Keep the beam downward—never point it even slightly upward.

Here's how to shield your flashlight for outdoor use. Use several thicknesses of white tissue paper preferably under the lens—or if necessary, over the lens, tied as shown in the above sketch.

Always keep fresh batteries in your flashlight—and have an extra set on hand for your light in case of long-continued use.

Allied Leaders Call In Ship Experts

Allies To Aid In Field, Red Front Won't Fail Says F.D.R.—4 Fronts

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt centred their attention today on the vital problem of shipping, as they went ahead with the mapping of plans for the United Nations' war strategy.

They summoned shipping experts of the two governments to a White House conference, which was described as one of the most important of the series the Prime Minister and President have been holding for the last five days.

The White House permitted the disclosure also that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill had conferred yesterday with Dr. T. V. Soong, China's Foreign Minister, who has been in this country for some time. Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said it was "quite an extended conference."

"The subject was, of course, China, in a military sense," Early said.

A Major Topic

Early said today's major parley "will be on the subject of shipbuilding and ship use." It was he who said the meeting was one of the most important yet held. Meeting with the Prime Minister and President were Harry L. Hopkins, a principal adviser to the President in the field of supplies; Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, head of the 40,000 Children

LONDON, June 23.—(CP Cable).—Free French authorities said today that 40,000 children died on the roads of France in June, 1940, in the exodus of refugees fleeing the Nazi terror.

They quoted a statement made to an assembly of the French Red Cross Society held at Nice in unoccupied France. "Forty thousand little bodies buried by the Red Cross in graves dug in fields," the newspaper exclaimed. "How many others were killed and buried in unknown graves?"

88 Go To Deaths As 2 Torpedoes Sink Ship, 3 Mins.

AN EAST COAST UNITED STATES PORT, June 23—(AP).—Two torpedoes fired in quick succession by an enemy submarine sank a medium-sized United States freighter in three minutes off the coast June 15 with a possible loss of 88 lives—the heaviest in American coastal waters since the United States entered the war—the United States navy announced today. Two of the 88 are known definitely to be dead.

Eighty-one persons, including 23 United States soldiers and a number of crew members, were rescued. Forty-four were brought into this port, 37 at another.

Crew members said the torpedoes struck within a minute of each other and that the vessel, running full speed, literally plunged below the surface, about 75 miles off the coast. The ship sank so rapidly—listing between 70 and 75 degrees just before she went under—that none of the craft's 10 lifeboats could be launched and deck guns could not be fired.

They said many of the 88 reported missing apparently were trapped in cabins below decks as the attack came at night, while many of the crew were not on deck duty. The rescued, some of whom got away on liferafts, were picked up by vessels which were nearby when the attack occurred.

Capt. Arthur Buck, 51, New York, a pilot for the British Admiralty and a naval lieutenant in the First Great War, said:

"She was blown to hell. I don't know why everyone wasn't killed. But I plan to go back to sea next week."

Buck survived a torpedoing in the English Channel in the last war, and had part of his pants "ripped off," but was uninjured, in the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing in 1914.

Blasted In Half

The pilot said he was in the wheel house when the first torpedo hit under the bridge and "apparently tore the ship in half, causing a list of 70 to 75 degrees."

He grabbed a floating door as the

No Budget Leaks Held Till 8 p.m.

OTTAWA, June 23 — (CP). — Finance Minister Ilsley will begin his budget speech in the House of Commons at 8 p.m. to-night breaking a custom extending back at least 25 years of always bringing down the budget in the afternoon.

Last week he had told the House he expected to bring down the budget on Tuesday afternoon, but yesterday he announced he was going to bring it down on Tuesday night instead.

No official explanation was given for the change although unofficially it was suggested Mr. Ilsley might wish to make sure exchanges and other financial and commercial businesses had closed for the day across Canada before the new taxes are announced.

In former years while the stock exchanges in Central and Eastern Canada were closed before the tax changes were announced, exchanges in Vancouver were open.

When Canadians get the news tonight about what taxes they have to pay they will be unable to do much about it until next day.

Axis Cooking Plot For Jap Blow At Reds

Tokyo Says Churchill F.D.R. Urging Soviet To Hit Japan First

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP) — An Axis propaganda campaign, either preparing advance excuses for a Japanese attack on Russia or signify ardent German desires for such an attack, was launched today on the German radio.

The Tokyo newspapers Asahi and Hochi were quoted at length as saying that Britain and the United States were fomenting a Russian attack on Japan, that this was the main purpose of Prime Minister Churchill's visit to the United States, and that Churchill would soon go to Moscow to put the proposition up to Premier Stalin.

Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov of Russia rejected such a proposal when he recently was in London and Washington, the broadcasts asserted.

The Tokyo press comment, as reported by Berlin, said that an American submarine had sunk a Soviet ship off Japan in an attempt to stir up trouble and that Britain and the United States were continually starting rumors of tension between Japan and Russia.

Japs Are Stopped 2 Chinese Routes

CHUNGKING, June 23.—(AP).—The Japanese are making a powerful bid for control of railways in East China in the hope of quickly linking Shanghai and Singapore by rail, but have been stopped along vital routs in Kwangtung and Kiangsi Provinces, a Chinese spokesman declared today

Using more troops and planes in Kiangsi Province than anywhere else in East China, the Japanese have even brought up reinforcements from the south seas, the spokesman said, but still have been unable to close the 50-mile gap in the northeast - southwest railway that traverses that province

Fighting still is raging around Shangjao on the east and Kweiki on the west, he said, and a Japanese plan to invade the coastal province of Fukien from Kiangsi has been thwarted.

The Japanese also have been stopped in all sectors in Kwangtung, the southern province which has Canton as its principal city, particularly

Allied Fliers Smash Axis Lines Hard As Rommel Moves Up

CAIRO, June 23 (CP)—Axis forces are consolidating their sudden gains in Eastern Libya and moving up apparently for a thrust at Egypt without delay.

Royal Air Force observers reported that "large numbers" of German-Italian vehicles, presumably carrying troops, were in the vicinity of Sidi Azeiz, 12 miles west of the border, where they were attacked by fighters and bombers, but it was reported here that the great bulk of the enemy strength still seemed to be some 50 miles west of the border.

Land activity in the desert area near the border thus far has been limited to incursions by enemy armored patrols southwest of the frontier post of Fort Capuzzo, where British mobile forces also were active.

How soon Field Marshal Erwin Rommel can launch an attack on Egypt remained a debated question here, but steps to meet him were being taken.

While Egypt and the Middle East unquestionably are menaced by the forceful German drive eastward, the situation was not greatly different from that of last Summer, when the German also were at the frontier, or even in September, 1940, when an Italian army was 70 miles inside Egypt.

In the earlier instance, it is true, there were no Germans among the invaders, but British strength, especially in equipment, was only a fraction of what it is today.

Two serious aspects of the situation, however, are to extent of what the British 8th Army lost in the past four weeks of fighting in Libya, especially in tanks, and the possibility that Rommel will get important reinforcements across the Mediterranean in a short time.

Hit Axis Bases Hard

The R.A.F. and the United States Army Air Force opened defence of Egypt with a damaging raid on the Axis supply base of Bengasi, Libya, it was disclosed today.

The raid staged Sunday night, was aimed at piers and the railway in an effort to interrupt supplies to Rommel's army. Many fires were started.

The R.A.F. also raided other Libyan points, shooting up airdromes and transport. Torpedo hits were scored on merchants vessel in the Mediterranean. Constant aerial patrol was being maintained.

The extent to which the Axis can add to its forces in Africa depends on what it can afford to withdraw from Europe rather than on difficulties of getting it across the Mediterranean, now that Malta has been largely neutralized.

ALLIED FLIERS SMASH

Twin Convoy Run Costs U.K. 7 Warships, Duce 5 and 65 Planes

LONDON, June 23 (CP) Dominions Secretary Clement Attlee today told the House of Commons that the British 8th Army, now standing at the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, has received reinforcements, with more on the way.

His statement on the Libyan defeat was received critically by a section of the House and Sir Stafford Cripps, Lord Privy Seal and Leader of the House, announced a two-day debate would be held on Libya in the near future. The debate probably will await the return of Prime Minister Churchill from the United tates.

Mr. Attlee read to the House Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck's official account of the fight for Libya in which the Middle East Commander declared it was a battle to exhaustion in which the 8th Army was too far spent to deliver a decisive stroke at the one stage when Field Marshal Erwin Rommel "had literally fought himself to a standstill."

The Dominions Secretary also informed the House that the naval side of the Libyan struggle cost Britain seven warships, including a light cruiser, and 30 planes, but the Axis losses had been heavier.

The Royal Navy with assistance from the R.A.F. and United States army planes, he said, sank one 8-inch enemy cruiser, two destroyers and one submarine, in addition to torpedoing a battleship and shooting down at least 65 aircraft.

These losses were inflicted in the mid-June battle of the convoys in which Britain ran two separate convoys toward Malta, one from Gibraltar and one from Alexandria, to relieve the island garrison.

As members asked when Mr. Churchill would return to give a full statement, Sir Stafford Cripps, Lord Privy Seal and Leader in the House, announced there would be a two-day debate on Libya soon.

Mr. Attlee suggested that the House should vote "and if there is blame they should place the blame on the right quarter" after learning the full facts.

Part of Mr. Attlee's statement was a telegram from Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, Middle East comander in chief, disclosing that the 8th army "already had received and still is receiving further reinforcements."

Morale Still Tops

Mr. Attlee acknowledged that "events have turned against us" but he declared Britain still has strong forces in the field being implemented by "substantial land and air reinforcements" and that "the splendid courage and morale of our troops" is unshaken.

Gen. Auchinleck reported that at one point Rommel's army was ex-

Canadians Blast Emden Apart For Solid Hour

By ALLAN NICKLESON

LONDON, June 23 —(CP Cable)—Canadians from all parts of the Dominion took a hand during the night in aiding the Royal Air Force blast the German port of Emden with high explosives in a concentrated raid lasting one hour.

One R.C.A.F. squadron flying Halifax bombers roared in at a low level and crews agreed today that bursting bombs, fires and flares made the targets, including docks for submarines and surface vessels, as clear as daylight.

The attack, third smash at Emden in four nights, was authoritatively stated to have been both heavy and successful. Six British planes are missing.

"I saw our bombs burst near the docks and set fire to some buildings," said Flt. Sgt. Jack Rogers of Gull Lake, Sask., one of the first group of airmen trained under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan and a veteran of two years of raids on enemy territory.

"Nazi fighters were seen at the edge of the target but did not come near us," he said.

Flt. Sgt. A. G. Johnston of St. Vital, Man., said fires and flares sprang up around the wharves and the enemy defences threw up a heavy curtain of light anti-aircraft fire.

"It was different from the stuff you get in other places, being all colors of the rainbow," he said.

PO. Jimmy Davidson, air observer and former sports writer for the Sherbrooke, Que., Record, said the raid could not compare with the "1,000-job on Cologne but it was most satisfactory just the same."

Ten Million Germans Lost On Red Battlefields In Year Of 'Adolf's Mistake'

At Least 3 and Half Million of List Dead Says Moscow Admitting 4,500,000 Losses; See Nazi Gains But None To Avert Allied Win

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 23.—(CP). — The B.B.C. quoted Russian newspapers as reporting today that Red army reinforcements were reaching besieged Sevastopol by sea, and that the garrison of the port had closed a gap the Germans made in the northern defence system. The paper adds that the enemy has reached a forward Soviet position, but has not penetrated into the depth of the defence."

10 Million Less Huns.

MOSCOW, June 23 — (AP). — Soviet Russia said to-day that Germany had suffered 10,000,000 casualties against 4,500,000 Red losses in their year-old war. But the Reds, conceding that Hitler still mounted powerful sector offensives, declared these could only postpone the "complete destruction of the Hitlerite army."

The hour of victory, it was said, has been hastened by "the conclusion of the Anglo-Soviet Treaty and the agreement between the U.S.S.R. and the United States."

Of the killed, wounded and missing, Nazi dead total not less than 3,500,000, the Soviet Information Bureau reported in a special review.

(The figures would indicate the Germans have lost an average of almost two full divisions and the Russians almost one daily through offensives, local fighting and lulls since the Germans invaded June 22, 1941, sacrifices unprecedented in military annals.)

Phrases suggested the Russians expected new local setbacks—perhaps the fall of the finally-cracked defences of Sevastopol. And German troops struck against Soviet lines on the Kharkov front, renewing a drive originally launched June 10.

"Hitler is still able to concentrate considerable forces on certain sectors of the front and to achieve certain successes," the review said "This occurred on the Kerch peninsula, where the Germans had numerical superiority in tanks and planes.

"Similar successes are possible in the near future, but one thing is clear: that such successes are not decisive regarding the outcome of the war. These successes are temporary. The German army of 1942 is not what it was at the beginning of the war."

The review declared the Red army "bled the enemy to death" in its epic stands on the approaches to Moscow last November and had held the general initiative since the December counter offensive started.

Mechanical losses were presented thus:

"Guns—Germany 30,500, Russia 22,000.

"Tanks—Germany 24,000, Russia 15,000.

"Planes—Germany 20,000, Russia 9,000."

Figures on wounded and prisoners were not broken down, but the review said 70 per cent of the army's injured had been able to return to front-line duty, while only 40 per cent of the German wounded fought again. The difference was laid inadequacy of the Nazi ambulance service.

The Information Bureau said the Baltic Fleet air arm is "steadily win-

Probe Ignored Tip On Escape

NORTH BAY, Ont., June 23. — Investigation into alleged lack of police action in connection with a tip an escaped German prisoner was in North Bay last Tuesday is underway and will be discussed at a meeting of the Police Commission soon, Mayor Charles R. Harrison said today.

The mayor said he has requested Chief Constable William Clark to place facts of the incident before Commission members.

Story of how the prisoner, Egbert Brosig, spent several hours dining and chatting with members of a North Bay family was told here yesterday by Miss A. E. Smyth, who also said her sister, Margaret, had notified city police concerning the man, but that no action had been taken.

Brosig subsequently was taken into custody in New York State and taken to Montreal. He then was returned to the Northern Ontario prison camp.

Miss Smyth said the Brosig admitted his identity just before he left the Smyth home, presumably to take a train to Montreal. Police were ntofied immediately, she said, but nothing was done.

Police said that Sergeant Frank Michaud admitted receiving the call but that it had not been recorded because it was anonymous. Miss Smith said her sister had identified herself during the phone call.

Hun Use Paratroops on Tobruk Remnants

Drop Men From Planes To Round Up Do-Or-Die Units That Escaped Fortress

By HARRY CROCKETT
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH BRITISH FORCES AT HALFAYA PASS, June 21.—(Delayed).—(AP).—Some of the defenders of fallen Tobruk still are fighting on their own, resolved to die rather than be captured.

They are the quarry of German parachute troops the first used in all the warfare of the desert.

The parachutists floated down from a moonlit sky at several points on the Tobruk outskirts, sifting into the numerous canyons between the escarpments in search of British troops who stayed on for last-ditch guerilla fighting.

I tried to reach the closest perimeter of the battle area yesterday, but I could not go further than Halfaya, the natural gateway between Libya and Egypt.

From north of the Pass I could see towering columns of smoke from the direction of Capuzzo, the old Italian border fort where British stores evidently were being burned. I could hear the distant din of battle both German and British columns roamed the no man's land out there from Fort Capuzzo to Bardia.

The fall of Tobruk, the last major Allied fortress in Libya, came after two days of the fiercest desert fighting and a week of disheartening luck.

When a British armored force sought to make contact with the main Axis forces but drove into an anti-tank trap during a dust storm June 13, the chain of events leading to the storming of Tobruk had come to a climax.

Axis men and armor finally closed around Tobruk five days later, fighting the last two days under the blazing sun in heat reaching 120 degrees Fahrenheit.

The main German mechanized forces were concentrated to the east aided by constant daytime dive-bomber raids and high-level bombardments by night.

Despite this blazing hell of heat and fire, Britain's sun-scorched, sweating young defenders held their ground and met the German and Italian infantry hand-to-hand even after the enemy's tanks had driven through a five-mile-wide gap in the eastern defences.

They stayed below in their steel and concrete underground forts until the tanks had rolled over them and into the minefield barrier with seeming disdain for the cost of men and machines as the Nazis pressed their greatest, most concentrated desert assault of all. Then they emerged to face the foe's machine-gun, rifle and grenade-bearing troops.

The end obviously was near then. Earlier bombing of Tobruk's water tower had left the fortress' water

Unable To Deliver Goods

Laval's Cards Down, No Longer Able to Fool People

LONDON, June 23 — (CP). — French workers who volunteer to work in German industry in response to Pierre Laval's request will be working in areas which are "targets for British and United States air forces," a Foreign Office commentator said to-day in discussing Laval's address in Vichy yesterday.

The Free French spokesman said Laval's speech was that of a man "unable to deliver the goods" demanded by his masters. He said Laval who stated "I desire Germany's victory because of the Red peril," was attempting to capitalize on recent Allied reverses.

It is "clear beyond all doubt" that Laval wants a German victory, the Foreign Office commentator said, adding that his determination to assist in the victory by obtaining the approval and collaboration of the French people was "not unlikely to bring the response for which he hopes."

Each French worker "will release a German worker for service with the German armed forces and the cause of the war will be prolonged," the commentator said.

Laval, he said, has tried for some time to cultivate the belief among the French that he was "subtly working to oppose Germany" and to "defeat German ends." Yesterday's speech makes it impossible to continue the deception, the commentator said.

42 Billions For U.S. Army

Biggest Supply Bill In History Tops Great War

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—A $42,820,003,606 United States Army Supply Bill—largest in history—was sent to the House of Representatives by its Appropriations Committee to-day to finance an Army with a strength of 4,500,000 by July 1, 1943, and to send war material to other United Nations.

The measure amounted in itself to more than this country's direct outlay for the First Great War and would boost to $205,141,039,537 the total for defence and war in the last three years.

The committee quoted Lt.-Gen. J. T. McNarney, the Army's Deputy Chief of Staff:

"The War Department regards our present situation as the most critical which this country has ever encountered."

The omnibus measure provided $12,700,000,000 for financing war material for the United Nations, bringing to $62,944,650,000 the total of lend-lease aid thus far approved by Congress.

It included $11,316,898,910 for 23,550 planes and spare parts to complete the War Department's part of President Roosevelt's production program calling for 60,000 planes this year and 125,000 in 1943.

ROMMEL GATHERS FORCES FOR DRIVE ON SUEZ CANAL AND NILE

Desolate Plains Of Salum Loom New Battlefield As British Spread Out Lines

Eyes Turn to Crete for Expected Invasion Of Paratroops Behind Egyptian Lines; Rommel Notifies Berlin of Heavy Losses

LONDON, June 23.—(CP).—The rapidly-gathering enemy might on the border of Egypt banished any doubt today the Axis would strike swiftly and in force at the hastily-manned British line barring its way to the Nile and Suez.

Britain's general staff, already criticized for its decisions in lost Libya, now must make another momentous choice — whether to engage the enemy on the Egyptian frontier itself or to retire to the more easily defended, fortified area of Matruh, 130 miles back into Egypt.

Dominions Secretary Clement Attlee gave the House of Commons a telegram from Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, the Middle East commander, stating that the 8th army, now on the frontier of Egypt with Libya, has received and is continuing to receive reinforcements.

Nazi Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel seemed to be set to order his legions forward in a gamble of catching the British forces off balance and disorganized as a consequence of their Libyan defeats.

The Axis' armored vanguards already have clashed with British troops at Sidi Azeiz 10 miles from the frontier. The airfield there is in enemy hands.

Out on the desolate plains north of Salum, a frontier post on the Egyptian side of the border where the next big encounter probably will occur, part of the regrouped 8th army is in place to face Rommel.

In front of this line, British field guns and planes have been pounding Axis transport rolling east along the Trigh Capuzzo.

2 Nazi Divisions Ready

Although his forces have been worn by the gruelling fight and scorching heat in weeks of desert fighting, Rommel was believed to have his armored 21st Division and a considerable part of his motorized 19th Infantry Division ready for a thrust along the border, with the Italians left behind to clean up Tobruk.

Rommel himself broadcast to Germany last night that his troops have experienced four weeks of 'superhuman' effort and have felt "the heaviest losses and privations."

However, Egypt's defenders had to face not only westward toward Rommel in Libya but also northward toward Crete, where the Germans have been training thousands of parachutists and glider-born infantry, presumably for just such an opportunity.

Military observers here said they expected Rommel's next move would be timed with a German parachute invasion behind the British lines in Egypt.

But amid the gloom that has gripped Britain since the sudden reversal in the desert came the uathoritative voice of Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, chief of Australia's ground forces and second only to Gen. Douglas MacArthur in rank in the southwest Pacific.

Reuters reported he had declared in a speech in Melbourne that the Libyan developments "had nothing like the significance being given to them." Emphasizing that the Axis' forces, too, are limited, he said that "while the position may become grave, there has so far been no decisive development."

situation in difficulty and the outnumbered defenders were tackling a heavier force of guns.

The R.A.F. attacked time and again, smashing the enemy and his supplies without rest, but he was able to concentrate nearly all his air strength at that one key spot for the final effort while the R.A.F. had numerous fronts to handle at the same time.

Some South Africans reached Tobruk from isolated positions in the Ain El Gazala area to the west under a gallant covering attack by British home forces.

In another remarkable preliminary the British 15th Division, with the Germans behind and the Italians in front, smashed through the Italian divisions.

To preserve the element of surprise, they charged without benefit of artillery, led by 11 tanks with extra fuel cans strapped dangerously to their sides.

water "came in line with my position on the port wing bridge," and struck out for safety.

But just about that time he saw the second torpedo coming directly at him and he swung back toward the freighter only to find himself "over and almost sucked into a smokestack."

"I struck out with all my strength," he said, "to get clear of the stack. Then I grabbed another piece of wreckage. As I turned the ship had disappeared."

The quick action of Third Mate Edwin R. Kerner, 20, Philadelphia, saved the lives of several persons.

Kerner said that after the ship's captain, Twiggs E. Brown, of Florida, ordered all to "save yourselves" he (Kerner) was trapped under a floating lifeboat dragging in the water. When he came up, he said, "I saw the ship going away from me and grabbed a stay."

He held on until he could cut away a raft with his knife and then floated off. Later he pulled six men into the raft.

"We found three other floating rafts," he related, "and lashed them to ours. One parted as a naval vessel tried to take us aboard, and we in the other three floated away and were picked up three hours later by another freighter."

Convoys on U.S. Coast

The attention directed at shipping followed disclosure that coastal shipping along the Atlantic seaboard was being convoyed by the United States navy.

Provision of adequate shipping, plus adequate protection of that shipping, would be a primary element in perfecting any United Nations plans for taking the offensive and opening a second front in Europe.

Early asserted that the heads of the British and American Governments carried on their deliberations until the "small hours of this morning" and would continue hard at it all day long. After the shipping conference, he said, the day was to be left open so that various officials might be brought in from time to time, if their presence was needed.

The President's regular Tuesday press conference was cancelled. Early said he would not assume, however, that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill would hold a joint press conference, as they did when the Prime Minister visited the President last December.

For the time being, the Prime Minister and the President confined their public remarks to a carefully-worded statement, issued last night. It made one principal point:

"The object in view is the earliest maximum concentration of Allied war power upon the enemy, and reviewing or, where necessary, further concerting all the measures which have for some time past been on foot to develop and sustain the effort of the United Nations."

Offensive the Only Plot.

The assertion that the two leaders are mapping an offensive strategy came from Harry L. Hopkins, a presidential intimate and a key man in the United States' war leadership. Hopkins, addressing a Russian war relief rally in New York last night, said that Mr. Churchill has "but one business here," and that is the planning of such strategy.

Neither the Churchill-Roosevelt statement nor the Hopkins speech was so phrased as to nullify wide speculation that opening of a second front in Europe was a matter of prime consideration in the consultations.

Hopkins told the meeting he had talked to Mr. Roosevelt a few hours before leaving Washington and the President gave him this message to deliver:

"Tell them that we mean to give Russia aid on the field of battle and that our armed forces will attack at the right time and at the right place and that the Russian front will not fail"

"A second front?" Hopkins said: "Yes, and if necessary a third and fourth front," to pen the German army in a ring of offensive steel. "Hitler's boastings are getting tamer and tamer for he knows that the Russian army on his eastern front and a British-American army on other fronts—when and where he does not know — will bring his vaunted Panzer divisions to heel. And his cities, one by one, will be destroyed by the Allied air forces."

"Step by step, country by country—no matter how long it may take—the forces of the United Nations will strike their way back to the very gates of Japan. We mean to, and will, destroy the last vestiges of that military dictatorship which has dominated Japan for so many years and oppressed the great masses of their people."

hausted and had been fought to a standstill.

"Had we been able to take advantage of the enemy's position we might have turned the scale," he added, "but in point of fact, however, we were equally exhausted and this was impossible."

He indicated, nevertheless, that the situation in North Africa is not irreparable.

Describing the fall of Tobruk as a "heavy and unexpected blow," Mr. Attlee reported "we have as yet no details of the subsequent fighting nor information as to what number of the garrison have been able to escape capture."

Axis claims have put British captives at 28,000.

"Y" Members Hold Conference At Inglestane

Members of the Y.W.C.A. held a conference at Camp Inglestane over the week-end to discuss problems of Y work and exchange ideas on row to meet these problems.

The guest speaker of the evening was Miss Julia Matouskava of Toronto, who on Saturday evening spoke to the girls on the problems confronting women in war time and how to meet them. She spoke of the danger of leaving a secure peacetime job to seek higher-paid employment in a war-job that would end when peace came. She also warned against hasty marriages, of war time. She said that she did not think a mother of small children should leave them to do full time war work unless she really needed to, since her children are her first responsibility.

After the speech problems were discussed among the members of the conference.

On Sunday morning the girls went to Eaglemount, where a brief worship service was conducted by Miss Matouskava, who again addressed the conference, this time on the value of spiritual things in a successful life. She said that many people were apt to forget, in the struggle for material success, that the accumulation of possessions is not alone a sign of success. It is the use we make of those possessions, the way in which we make our mark on the community, that make our lives successful or unsuccessful.

The group gathered in the Council Chamber on Sunday afternoon for a discussion of problems of "Y" work, aided by questionnaire which the girls had answered before coming to the discussion. The answers to the questions were read and ideas were asked for from the group. The questions of group co-operation and religious worship in the groups received spirited discussion.

Rangers Arrive

arrival at Niagara, more than 400 (R) recruits were added from Military District Two. They were mainly from Toronto and Hamilton.

About 4 days before the unit left Niagara, 85 more men were drafted from Newmarket Military Training Centre. Many of them had been in the army but three days, and Col. J. A. Dewart granted them an embarkation leave of three days. This group came from all parts of Ontario, and needless to say, they welcomed the leave. First stop en route was Toronto where a number of Toronto boys with the Rangers said goodbye to friends and relatives.

Main route of the trip to British Columbia was through Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton before reaching sight of the Canadian Rockies.

Settlers in many of the villages the trains passed through were out en masse to see the Rangers. Three and four times each day the men were taken on short route marches and given P.T. to break the inevitable monotony of the journey. Meals were served by the Canadian National kitchen in the commissary cars and were of a high standard to the pleasure of the men.

Orderly rooms were functioning in both trains during the journey and clerks were kept busy at publishing the many lists and orders each day.

The regiment as a whole was accorded a special honor by railway officials who stated the men of the Prince of Wales Rangers were to be complimented on the order they kept during the journey.

Judge Reserves Judgment In Lloyd Case

Judgment was reserved by His Honor Judge S. L. Smoke in the county judge's criminal court Monday afternoon in the charge against Donald Lloyd, Lakefield of theft by conversion of three automobiles from Industrial Acceptance Corporation, Limited.

Six witnesses were called by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. who prosecuted and the crown finished its case at 4.25 o'clock.

T. J. Carley, K.C., who defended Lloyd did not put in any defence evidence and argument by counsel followed the end of the Crown's case, after which His Honor reserved his decision until Thursday afternoon.

Norman C. Dittman, manager of the Peterborough branch of Industrial Acceptance since April 13th said Industrial Acceptance Corp. had bought out Consumer's Credit Corporation on April 4th, 1942. Witness identified a document produced as the agreement between the two companies.

Asked as to the ownership of the chattel mortgages, Mr. Dittman said they were now owned by Industrial Acceptance and there had been no further change in ownership.

Dittman said that on April 15 a check was made at Lloyd's place and a report was made to him. Later on the witness said that on April 30, he went to Lakefield to check cars that were on wholesale at Lloyd's, 13 in all. He had found 11 cars missing, including a Chevrolet coach and the Chevrolet coupe mentioned in the indictment.

Says Lloyd Admitted Sale

On May 2, Don Lloyd came into his office and was asked by the witness as to where the cars were and Lloyd had replied that he had sold them and that they were sold for cash to retail purchasers.

"What about the names of the purchasers?"

"No names were given by him, except that he mentioned that one car was at Lillico Motors."

Lloyd said he got cash for all the cars and paid his creditors who were pressing him for money. He said he had no money in the bank or in his pocket.

Witness said that Lloyd had told him that there were no conditional sale agreements and that automobiles had all been sold for cash.

Dittman said that Lloyd said he had no money to pay the chattel mortgages.

Asked when the cars had been sold Lloyd said they had been sold within the the two weeks previous. Lloyd had admitted that some of the cars had been sold at the time of the Smith checkup but that they either had not been delivered to the purchaser or were brought back for purposes of the audit.

Dittman explained the dealer's reserve loss fund which he said was set up to take care of losses on repossessions.

Cross-examined by Mr. Carley, Dittman said that in his conversation with Lloyd he did not particularize the cars that were missing.

The witness said in answer to a question from defence counsel that he had told Lloyd to get rid of some of the cars as soon as possible and turn over the agreements.

"It is only the fact that he didn't turn the proceeds over that you are complaining", said Mr. Carley and the witness said that was so.

"Did you ever tell Lloyd the number of cars that were missing?"

"No."

Dittman denied that he had ever told Lloyd that he would put him out of business.

Financial Position Described

John S. Clark, Montreal, assistant credit manager of Industrial Acceptance and formerly in the head office of Consumer Credit at Ottawa gave evidence in regard to the Dealers' Reserve fund said that on June 22, 1942 there was a credit to Lloyd of $1,201.99 and also of $18.95 in another account but witness said these sums were not available while there were any contingent liabilities and in Lloyd's case he said the contingent liabilities with Lloyd's endorsation totalled $27,970.

"We figure $7,893 is not collectible," said the witness, "because we can't locate the purchasers or the cars."

Clark said that the indebtedness of Lloyd was $15,275. To Mr. Carley the witness said that on February 28, 1942, Lloyd's credit in the reserve fund was $1,673.18 and in another account $18.95.

Harry G. Crowder of Lyndhurst Motor Sales, Toronto, told of Lloyd and a man named Dinsdale calling on his place of business and making a deal by which Dinsdale turned in a Chevrolet coupe bearing the license number of one of the cars mentioned in the indictment on the purchase of a 1941 Pontiac car from Crowder. This was on April 29, the witness said. The arrangement was that $400 additional was to be paid and Lloyd had promised to bring the money to Toronto in a day or two. The coupe was in Lloyd's name and it had been explained to witness that this was on account of the insurance. The sale was to Dinsdale witness said.

Everett Dunford, called by the Crown told of a deal with Lloyd by which the witness had bought a Chevrolet coach from Lloyd in exchange for his own car, a horse, and $400 in cash and Provincial Constable Price Morris was called in connection with the serial number of the car in question.

Mr. Carley announced that he was not calling any defence.

Crown Attorney McElderry in a brief argument submitted that there should be a conviction. The facts he said were simple. Lloyd had given chattel mortgages and thus had given Consumers' Credit a special interest that had been transferred to Industrial Acceptance when the latter had bought the assets of the other company. He had disposed of the cars, he said.

Mr. Carley pointed out that Lloyd was not being charged with failing to account for funds but for theft of three automobiles and he argued that there could be no conviction on a charge of theft. Defence counsel pointed out that in the case of several hundred chattel mortgages Lloyd had been allowed to sell the cars without asking any permission from the company.

"In this case," said Mr. Carley "he was not only permitted to sell these cars but was ordered to do so."

Defence counsel attacked the validity of the chattel mortgages and declared that the Crown had failed to establish that the interests of Consumers' Finance in those mortgages had been transferred to Industrial Acceptance.

At the conclusion of the argument His Honor announced that he would reserve judgment until Thursday afternoon at 2.15 o'clock.

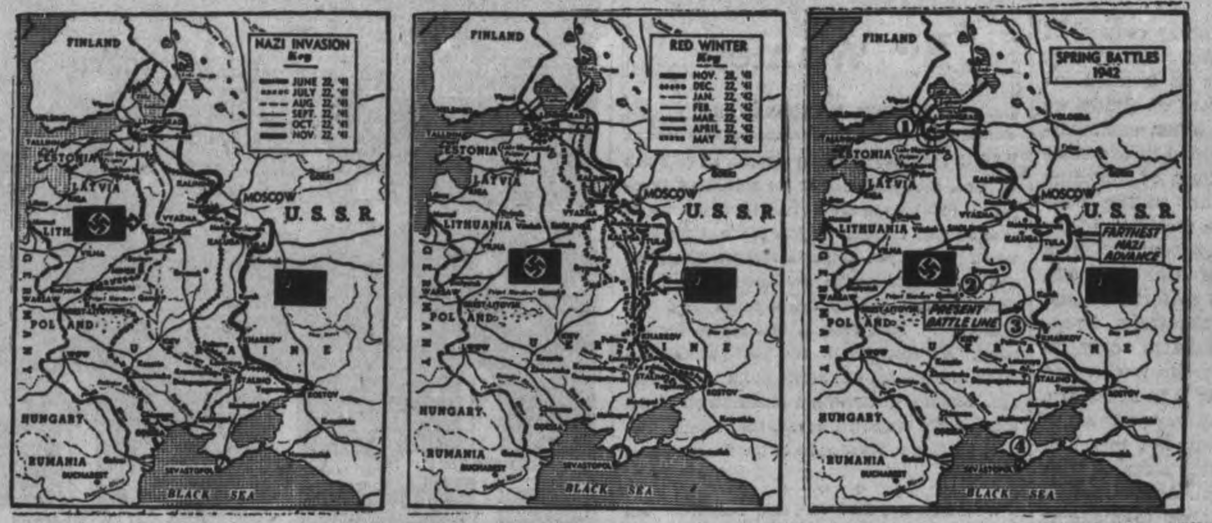
The Battle Of Russia—One Year Old



These three maps show you the huge area over which the Battle of Russia has been fought almost without let-up for a full year. The Nazis began their attack on June 22, 1941, and in the first phase swept over the area shaded in the first map at LEFT. But the Russians kept their army retreating intact and when winter bogged down the Nazi machine, the Red army struck back, retaking the portion shaded in CENTRE map before spring. However, when the time came for Hitler to begin his new offensive he was still in possession of the greater part of the territory taken last year, but this blitz technique can't seem to get going this year. At Leningrad (1) the Reds have gained a little; at Kharkov the battle swings back and to like a pendulum (3). At Bryansk (2) the Russians still hold a position jutting into the German line wedgelike, and at Sebastopol (4), the Russians still hold the great naval base, despite allout German efforts to subdue the fortress.

Collegiate Band Captures District Trophy

High honors have come to the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School with the announcement that the Cadet Band has been awarded the Military District No. 3 Trophy for the best Cadet band in its class.

This honor will be consummated in a short time when the Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, will present the trophy to the Cadets in Ottawa, following a demonstration which the Cadet band is scheduled to give in Canada's Capital.

The band will accompany 54 Cadets from the Collegiate to the summer camp for Cadets at Connaught Camp near Ottawa from June 28 to July 4. Norwood Cadets and Lindsay Cadets will also attend this camp, but it will be necessary for the contingent from Norwood to motor to Peterborough to make the train connections on the special carrying the students.

The train leaves Peterborough at 7:40 a.m. C.N.R. on Sunday, June 28, and Cadets must bring a lunch with them, as no dining facilities are available on the train. All Cadets must be on the station platform 20 minutes before the train leaves.

Cadets attending the camp will parade in civilian dress, and uniforms, consisting of trousers, shirt and sun helmet, will be issued on arrival at camp. The band must bring its own instruments and Cadets are also reminded to bring running shoes and baseball gloves, while the bats and balls will be provided at camp.

Each student should bring the following personal equipment: One shirt, three pairs of sox, one pair of boots, or shoes if boots are not available, shoe polishing equipment, handkerchiefs, two suits underwear, one sweater, one bathing suit, one tooth brush and paste, two towels, bar of hand soap, two face cloths, and a razor if required, brass polish and one pair of pyjamas.

At camp the following will be issued: A uniform as described above, one ground sheet, which is also used as a rain cape four or give blankets, one palliasse for mattress, a plate, soup bowl, cup, knife, fork, and spoon.

Forty Ladies Honor Mrs. Tate

PORT HOPE, June 23.—(ENS).—On Monday afternoon almost forty ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. Edward Taite, Walton street, to make a presentation to Mrs. M. S. White before she leaves town to take up residence in Toronto.

A delightful afternoon tea was served on the spacious lawns amid summer flowers, after which Mrs. L. Stephenson made a short speech and Mrs. M. Perkins presented Mrs White with a walnut coffee table tied with pink ribbon and roses. Mrs Taite presented Mrs. White's mother, Mrs Sinclair, with linen handkerchiefs.

Both ladies were greatly taken by surprise and thanked their many friends in a most fitting manner.

Arms Output Growing In Modern India

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23 —(ENS).—A political background picture of India together with a comprehensive summary of the part she is playing and is likely to play in the present conflict, formed the subject for an interesting address to Rotarians at their noon-day luncheon held at the Woodlawn here on Monday. Rotarian G. N. Maxwell, B.A., was the speaker, and he began by telling briefly of the religious and political complexity of India which "is more a continent than a country," and is as big as all Europe, omitting Russia.

According to the speaker, the population had a tendency to expand to the limit of subsistence and any increase in industrial or agricultural production brings only a larger population and higher birth rate. Only checks to the rapidly swelling population (3,400,000 a year between 1921 and 1931) are infant mortality, disease and premature death. This over-population results in ignorance, undernourishment and famine with 25 million dying between 1875 and 1900. These people are intensely religious and their attitudes towards social, economic and political problems are invariably a reflection of their religious philosophy. Though there are many sects, the chief groups are the Hindus and Moslems which often represent two different and sometimes antagonistic cultural systems. An essential part of the Hindus religion is the caste system dividing each community into many compartments, each having its part to play in the social, economic and religious life. An individual belongs to the caste of his parents and cannot free himself or marry outside it. It is this division that has prevented India from developing and deep feeling of national unity. Though there are only 5 main classes of castes there are actually 25,000 castes and these groups will not intermarry. The lowest class — the untouchables — number 40 to 60 million.

Favor Caste System

"To the westerner the manifestations of the caste system are repugnant, but to the Indians it is an integral part of a well ordered religious and economic structure in which each individual is assigned a definite place. While modern life (railway travel, etc.) has necessitated modification of certain caste customs and has introduced new occupations, it is still the basis of Hindu life, and marks them as separate from the rest of the population," said the speaker in summarizing.

Another explanation for conditions in India is that the population is 80 per cent rural, while another 300 million live in 700,000 villages, hence "poverty is unspeakable, resulting in diseases of all kinds and plagues.

India's caste system has not encouraged Indian enterprise, but Indian capital is becoming available for larger industries. Power is another problem confronting the people since coal deposits are centred in one or two areas, while electric power is too expensive. At the close of the last war England introduced new industries and the landless and destitute flocked to the cities and factories. The principal contribution to India's war effort comes from the rajahs, leaders of independent states, whose fabulous wealth supports great armies of their own. "Directly war broke out the Government of India set in motion a scheme for the expansion of the army, navy and air force. Volunteers by the million offered their services and money donations of over 1½ million pounds Sterling have been made. Twenty-three million pounds have been subscribed to All India Defense Loans. One rajah has given 100,000 pounds for an R. A. F. fighter squadron and a further 50,000 pounds for its upkeep. The Indian army is well equipped with modern weapons and new units are being formed as fast as they can be given supplies. The speaker declared they could raise an army of 8,000,000 if equipment could be obtained. Though all small arms are manufactured by the Indians themselves, heavier equipment such as tanks and large calibre guns are imported. Having a long coast line many Indians have a natural love for the sea and their shipyards are building well armed mine-sweepers and anti-submarine patrol boats. The number of ratings in the Indian navy has increased 200 per cent., while over 30,000 Lascars are in the British merchant service. When air training stations opened in India the recruits "literally stormed the stations, and squadron after squadron has been trained and equipped—and are giving a good account of themselves.

Great Wealth

On the subject of supplies, Mr. Maxwell told the gathering that the Tata ironworks at Jamshedpur was one of the world's largest and was turning out steel at full capacity. The iron reserves are estimated at 3 billion tons and coal at 36 billion tons, and production of pig iron rose from 1,600,000 in 1939 to 2 million tons in 1941. Rotarian N. Alex. MacColl moved a vote of thanks to the speaker at the conclusion of his remarks. Guests at the meeting included Rev. J. Ralston of town and Mr. Reginald Lovelock, Montreal.

Identify Gloves In Trent River Garage Theft

COBOURG, June 23.—(ENS)—John H. Verral, Toronto, was committed for trial at the preliminary hearing yesterday of a charge that he broke into and entered the service station of John Hay, Trent River, Township of Seymour, on April 27 and stole numerous articles. Verral, elected trial by judge and jury, and pleaded not guilty.

First witness called by Crown Attorney Harry Deyman was John L. Hay, proprietor of the service station, who stated that he had locked up his premises on the night of April 27, and when he had returned the next morning had found that place ransacked and numerous articles missing. Among the stolen goods were light bulbs, a car battery, flashlight batteries, patching kits, oil, pop, and approximately 10 gallons of gasoline from the pump out in front from which the padlock had been broke.

Entrance to the premises had been gained, Mr. Hay stated, by forcing a back window.

Urge City Folk Stay Home Thursday Night

OTTAWA June 23 — (CP). — If millions of Canadian city dwellers will stay at home on Thursday evening they will be making an important contribution to the war effort, Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials said on Monday.

Volunteer workers in cities from coast to coast are to collect sugar rationing application forms between 6 and 10 p.m. on Thursday, and the Board is asking that householders see that some "responsible party" is in the building when the canvasser calls.

In many cities, the canvassers will be members of the local Air Raid Precautions organization. They will check the cards to see they have been completed in proper form, and this is the reason why the Board is anxious someone stay at home to facilitate the work of the canvasser.

More than 20,000 women are in readiness to transcribe the information on the application forms so that temporary rationing cards, good for 10 weeks, can be ready for issuance on July 1. Permanent rationing cards good for six months will be issued later.

PORT HOPE, June 23.—(ENS).—Forty gentlemen friends of Pilot Officer Grant MacMillan gathered at the St. Lawrence hotel on Friday night to do him honor on the occasion of his coming marriage.

Council Awards Contract To New Bidder

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23 (ENS) —Tenders for the collection of garbage were awarded by Campbellford council which met in special session here Friday evening. There were three tenders read and Roy Martin, who was given the award offered to do the work for $850.00 per year. The other tenders were William Smith at $860.00 and David Bowen at $1,200.00. A letter from Mr. Bowen (who has had the yearly contract since the corporation began its regular collection of garbage), in which he lowered his tender from $1,200 to $1,000, was ruled out of order since it did not reach the clerk's hands until Friday, whereas the closing date was at noon on June 16.

Although Reeve Calver made a motion that none of the tenders be considered and that Council again advertise and deal with the matter at their next regular meeting, he found no seconder for his motion. Councillor O'Sullivan voiced the feeling of the majority declaring that it was the council's duty to award the tender to one of the three at the meeting. He added that in his opinion Mr. Bowen's second tender should not be considered since all of them had been opened at a spec-

Teachers Given Offers New Positions

PORT HOPE, June 23 (Special)—By a vote of 3 to 1 Port Hope Public School Board, at a special meeting held last night asked for the resignation of R. E. Sculthorpe, the board's representative on the high school board. The resignation was asked as an expression of protest against the decision of the Port Hope High School Board in dismissing Principal G. L. Brackenbury.

Last week County Council requested the resignation of its appointee to the high school board, W. J. B. Davison. There are three representatives of the town council on the board and a move is on foot to seek similar action from them. There has been no indication that any of the board will resign.

Considerable speculation exists over a trip made to Toronto on Monday by Messrs. Sheehan and Johnstone, two of the Citizens' Committee members, and it is believed that the members had been to the Queen City to discuss developments with the Deputy Minister of Education.

Members of the Port Hope High School staff who resigned a short time ago in protest of the Board's action in dismissing G. L. Brackenbury are reported to have received several offers to take positions in other schools. At the present time there is a marked scarcity of teachers due to enlistments and the fact that war industries has absorbed many of this profession.

SPEND a day or two each week on the farm during harvesting. Join the thousands of Farm Commandos who are prepared to "close up shop" or lay down their tools for a time, if necessary, to "raid" the harvest fields and help ensure the safe harvest of millions of dollars worth of precious food.

Farm Commando Brigades are springing up in Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, Service Clubs and Churches all over Ontario —bringing together townsmen who are willing to make a direct, patriotic contribution to the War Effort and gain the good-will of neighboring farmers at the same time.

If there is no Farm Commando Brigade forming in your locality, take it up with your Service Club, Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce or Church Executive and get your local Brigade started at once.

The need for a great emergency reserve of Farm Commandos is urgent. The "stake" is tremendous. Ontario farmers must have every possible man-hour of labour during harvesting to prevent irreplaceable loss of foods to the Allied War Effort and to Canada herself.

Your help is needed—NOW. Volunteer in The Farm Commando Brigade and be ready to help if harvest emergencies arise.

Shorter Council Sessions

Re-organization of the internal set-up of the Peterborough County Council whereby public business might be conducted with more despatch was intimated at the closing of the June session on Saturday. For some years we have believed that such a course was necessary and in recent months we have endeavored to bring this to the public's attention.

We wonder if the ratepayers of Peterborough County are aware that it took their councillors seven days to conduct the same business that the Council of the United Counties did in three (and drew pay for five); Hastings in four, and Victoria and Ontario in five each. While the Peterborough Council only met four days last week, they held a special session in April of three days which was then announced as being held to shorten the June session, for it was felt that with the labor shortage on farms the councillors would be needed at home.

The whole committee set-up of the County Council makes for long sessions and needless delays as members serve on all committees, and hence no two committees can function at the same time.

The changes will require the members giving that leadership which they are well able to give, and also there will be needed from the county clerk a study of municipal affairs equal to that of officials in other counties. The clerk might put an end to her petty sniping and wise-cracking, for neither are in good form, especially when coming from a public servant.

Several reeves have been guilty of technical irregularities in connection with the purchase of lumber from the county forest, but we do not believe that they in any way benefitted through these purchases. The county had the lumber to sell and apparently no purchasers. In fact, these appear to have been committed more through ignorance of the Municipal Act and lack of guidance by the responsible county officials. We do not think they are of a nature whereby unseating proceedings should be taken, but that is a matter for the county ratepayers. However, the question might be asked why the name of Reeve Charles Tanner of Lakefield was singled out, except that his was the only purchase in 1941, and two other members who also made purchases were more or less given a clean slate.

The Examiner is interested in seeing public affairs conducted in a business-like way, and we firmly believe that the county ratepayers want it thus. There has been an increase in the tax rate, while a decrease has been general in most municipalities, and conducting the county's business in a manner which wastes time and needless discussion will hardly show that an effectual effort is being made to keep the rate down.

Have You Heard About It?

Last week we encountered a Peterborough woman who did not know that any kind of rationing was in existence; she had not heard that there was any shortage of sugar, tea or coffee and she had heard none of the appeals that these commodities be conserved. Although she is not an especially well-educated woman, she is far from illiterate; she goes about the town a great deal and has many friends. She listens to the radio and she reads the Examiner regularly. Members of her family are in war industries. And yet she had not heard of rationing!

We wonder if her case is exceptional. Are there many people who have not heard of rationing, or who have only the vaguest idea of what it means? The human mind has an amazing and fortunate faculty for shutting out information in which it is not interested. The woman whom we met who had not heard about rationing reads the news which interests her and she listens to the radio programs which she likes. Apparently news items about Canada's wartime economy and the radio addresses of Donald Gordon have no charm for her. It was not that she consciously ignored the many notifications which have been given of rationing; it was simply that she took no more interest in such things than most of us who live in cities take in the waxing and waning of the moon. So much for our 'honour' system of rationing!

The rationing of sugar by coupon, of which you have received notice today, should not be taken as an isolated instance of government control. Unless we are greatly mistaken, other commodities will shortly be rationed in the same way. Meanwhile, any form of hoarding is against the regulations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and by hoarding is meant the accumulation in the home of stocks of tinned goods, clothing, footwear, and so forth beyond what is immediately necessary. Foodstuffs may be accumulated only in quantities sufficient for two weeks, and wearing apparel only as it is necessary. Thus, although you may buy your small boy a new suit you may not buy him three new suits of varying sizes, so that he may grow into them. And although you may buy enough food to make it unnecessary for you to go to the shops more than once a week or so you must not tuck away stocks of food against a rainy day. Anyone who disregards these regulations may find himself in trouble.

We do not like harping on this subject, but we feel that there may be many people who are still foggy about rationing, or completely ignorant of its existence. If you should meet any such, will you tell them about the wartime regulations? It will help the war effort and it may serve to keep these innocent and ill-informed citizens out of serious difficulties.

A Blow Near Home

The city of Washington is a busy place these days and much of the time of the legislators there is spent in discussing labor problems. Usually these labor problems are on a grand scale, involving many thousands of men and women and large sums of money. But a labor problem cropped up on Tuesday last which involved only thirty-four men and no vast sum; nevertheless it succeeded in drawing the direct attention of the House of Representatives. It was a strike of the negro waiters in the Representatives' dining-room, twenty-eight of whom walked out in the middle of the lunchtime rush, leaving their bosses astonished, though we hope not open-mouthed.

The problem was simple. The waiters had been trying for two years to get the same money as the waiters in the Senate dining-room; that is to say, they wanted $35 a month part-time wage instead of the $25 they now get, and they wanted $65 full-time wage instead of their present $42.50. They are not union men and even their increased wages are 20% less than the union scale.

We appreciate their problem. After all, it is just as hard to feed a Representative as it is to feed a Senator, and two years is a long time to battle for a raise. The Congress seemed perfectly willing to be conciliatory in the matter, and probably by this time everything is satisfactorily settled.

But as always on these occasions, some interesting sidelights on human nature were revealed. The waiters, who were apparently almost apologetic about their action, said that their tips were not enough to make their wages acceptable. When the waiters were asked for their spokesman they replied firmly, "We are all spokesmen," and one said, "We've noticed that Congressmen don't seem to tip very much; most of them leave a dime and some only leave a nickel; we average about $2.50 a day at that rate." So it looks as though Congress would have to grant the raise and perhaps some Congressmen, for very shame, will have to raise their tips to fifteen cents.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Balaklava is back in the news, and once again "someone has blundered." Last time it was the British, but this time it is Germany.

An eight-foot snake was found coiled around a picture in a 5th-floor apartment in New York yesterday. Charges that the reptile was acting as an Axis agent have not yet been proved.

There was a time when all the big parties were held in the Brenner Pass. Now the better people are going to Washington when they feel the need of stimulating conversation.

The housewife these days hardly knows where to turn. There is no beef, lamb is expensive, and we are asked to save the pork to be sent to Britain. Nebuchadnezzar might have done something in this situation.

The Chiefs of the Iroquois tribes in the U.S. have passed a resolution expressing their horror at Axis atrocities. Germany has fallen far behind in the race toward civilization when she is rapped over the knuckles by the Iroquois.

Three Novels By Women

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

HERE are three novels by women, all of which have been published by the Macmillan Company. Possibly you are looking for something to read on your vacation (if your job is of the kind which permits you to take a vacation this year) and one of these may be just what you want. The first is by Rachel Field, and is called "And Now Tomorrow." Miss Field is best known for her novel, "All This and Heaven Too" which was made into a successful movie about two years ago. She is a writer with a pleasing style and a considerable command of artifice; these two qualities help to cover some of the weaknesses of her work.

We are assured that "And Now Tomorrow" will be one of the best-sellers fo 1942. Very likely. It is a pleasing and interesting story and, considering the weaknesses of Miss Field's equipment, could hardly have been better handled. But the weaknesses are apparent, all the same. What are these weaknesses? The first is a consideration for the reading public which makes Miss Field pull her punches when she is dealing with "unpleasant" topics, and the second is sentimentalism. It is difficult for the critic not to feel that Miss Field is thinking of the lending-library trade when she writes some of her scenes. Of course, if she wants to do that, it is nobody's business but her own; still, it seems a pity that such a good writer should allow commercial interests to sway her. As for the sentimentality, it is by no means unpleasing, but it makes the author's attempts to deal with such matters as labor disputes appear somewhat mild.

IN THIS book Emily Blair tells her own story. She is one of the Blairs who run a prosperous textile mill in Blairstown, Mass, and her history is that of a decline from a day when life was easy for manufacturers to the present, when life is not especially easy for anyone. Woven into this background is her own adventure caused by the loss of her hearing, its restoration, and her discovery of herself in the process. If you like to be in the fashion you had better read this book as it is bound to be widely read and widely enjoyed.

The second is also a reminiscent novel. It is "House In the Dust," by the English novelist, Doris Leslie. Miss Leslie has more salt in her than Miss Field, and you may find her book more lively. It is the story of Jennifer Drew, a child born late in the reign of Victoria, and if you read many novels you can doubtless guess what it is like from that slight evidence. The story is not especially original, but it is well written and vivacious, and although I picked it up with the idea of reading it quickly I found that I read every word with attention and pleasure.

JENNIFER is the youngest daughter of a well-to-do Victorian family, and as is so often the case in novels she lost her mother at birth and is tyrannized over by a stern Papa. She has great musical talent, which is developed by a kindly Irish music master, and she grows up to be an unusually fine pianist. She becomes engaged to a young man whom she does not love, but jilts him for an Irishman named Jonathan who is an author and, it later appears, a pathological drunkard. He strikes Jennie several times, but she is used to that; her father used to strike her too. At last the unpredictable Jonathan falls off a horse and kills himself, and Jennie marries a doctor. We last see her as an old lady, looking at the ruins of the house in which she spent her youth; one of Hitler's bombs has destroyed it. In spite of the familiar nature of its plot, this book is excellent light entertainment.

And this brings us to the last of our group, which is "Arise From Sleep" by Elizabeth Delehanty. This is one of those books which makes the critic feel that writing novels is, after all, a man's job. It seems to be possible for a man to describe a woman's feelings with some degree of success, but very few women can write convincingly about men. Miss Delehanty sets herself some difficult problems, and no one can say that she is completely happy in solving them. Her book is about Fascist Italy just before the war, and her attempt to describe the effect upon lecherous Italians of a beautiful American girl is very funny indeed. So also is her attempt to describe the inside of a bawdy-house. Reading these passages I was reminded of Jane Austen's saying that she never attempted to describe the conversation of gentlemen when there were no ladies present as she had no first-hand information on that subject; Miss Delehanty might take a tip from the faultless Jane in this respect.

"Arise From Sleep" is a first novel and it may be that Miss Delehanty will grow better. But at present it appears that she would be well advised to do some hard thinking and a little reading before she writes any more. She should not, for instance, make a quotation from Horace Walpole and attribute it to Shakespeare, referring to him breezily as "Old Shake." Nor, until she gains more skill and more knowledge, should she try to describe scenes of sexual passion; when they do not succeed they are apt to be funny. Happy Miss Delehanty! She still has so many interesting things to learn.

Unconsidered Trifles

In the middle of the road a man and a woman were quarrelling violently.

"Why, you wretch," screamed the woman, "I'll teach you a lesson you'll never forget. I'll knock you silly, that's what I'll do."

And she administered a sound cuff.

"Oh, you will, will you " roared the man as he landed a nice right to the jaw. "And what will I be doing while you're knocking me silly? Take that. And that. And that."

A policeman hurried up.

"What's on here?" he demanded.

The woman regarded the intruder angrily.

"You keep out of this," she advised. "This man is my husband. We've been married ten years."

"Well, then," declared the policeman, "why don't you do your fighting at home instead of in public?"

The husband glared.

"What?" he shouted. "And break all the furniture "

Oil In East Threatened

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON Associated Press War Analyst

ONE year after his first attack on Russia, Hitler's war machine has revitalized its march eastward with a stunning blow at Britain in North Africa and seems on the verge of shattering Russian resistance in the Crimea.

Tobruk, Libyan outpost for the defense of Egypt, has gone down like a house of cards. The Suez Canal link in Britain's life lines is more ominously menaced than it ever has been. Overnight, Allied control of the Eastern Mediterranean has been put in grave jeopardy. The threat to British oil resources in the Middle East is real and no longer remote.

In the Crimea, German claims to have virtually overrun the defenses of Sevastopol go all but undenied by Moscow. The fall of that naval base seems impending, probably paving the way for a Nazi surge against the Caucasus and its oil treasures.

NOT DECISIVE

Thus a huge Axis vise is yawning in the East to squeeze between its jaws a large part of the Allied oil resources, the most vital necessity of modern war. Japanese victories have already stripped the United Nations of the Netherlands Indies and Burma oil pools. If the Middle Eastern and Caspian oil should also be lost, the Western Hempisphere wells would be practically the only source left to power the whole Allied war effort.

Admittedly, that represents a look at the seamiest side of the war picture. It is making the worst, not the best, of a bad situation; but it must form the background of the conferences between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, out of which must stem moves to revise the unhappy picture quickly.

Tobruk and Sevastopol, important as they have proved to the Allied cause in the past, are not decisive in a strategic sense. The main battles in the Nazi program of closing in on Egypt and the Caucasus simultaneously are still to be fought.

DAUNTING DEVELOPMENT

The sudden fall of Tobruk is the most daunting development, not because the Libyan port is vital to the defense of Egypt; but for the implication it gives of defeat-bred disorganization in Britain's 8th Army. That it has been outguessed and outfought by the master desert warrior, General Rommel, cannot be denied. Rome and Berlin claim close to 30,000 British prisoners taken at Tobruk, plus mountains of war gear, including tanks.

There are rumblings in London of utter dissatisfaction with the handling of the Libyan campaign. Calls for the return of Mr. Churchill to face his Parliamentary critics are voiced there. He obviously faces a new uprising at home such as followed Crete and Singapore.

For the moment, however, both Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt must be more concerned with military measures to offset the defeat in Libya than with political repercussions at home or abroad. The effect of the loss of Tobruk and indicated coming fall of Sevastopol could be very serious, particularly in Turkey and on the pro-Nazi Laval regime in France; but even that must give place in United Nations command circles to purely military exigencies.

A Letter From Lin Yutang

(TO THE NEW YORK TIMES)

CHINA'S case must be stated. The Chungking spokesman revealed the possibility of a Japanese attempt at a knockout blow for China, which grows out of the miserable conduct of the Burma campaign, which again follows the loss of Singapore. Dr. T. F. Tsiang demanded, immediately, bombers and pursuit planes, and more bombers and pursuit planes. There was not one word of complaint, not the slightest suggestion event to give up the Burma Road for lost. Yet back of that mild appeal, which might receive some scant attention in the responsible quarters, is a state of tremendous dissatisfaction with the whole conduct of the war in the Far East. The unpleasant duty has often fallen upon me to tell the blunt truth. The blunt truth at this juncture is Chungking is bitter.

FAITH IS FIRM

China's faith in the United Nations is as solid as a rock; her determination to defeat Japan, growing out of five years of hard, grim struggle, is immutable. When we direct our publicity to China on the necessity of hating Japan, we are carrying coal to Newcastle; more of that is wanted elsewhere, not in Chungking. It is time that we export something more than words of praise and anti-Japanese propaganda to China. Rather, China's voice should be raised here that there is something woefully wrong in the cruel neglect—to put it mildly—of China in the psychology of those responsible for the Allied efforts in Burma and the neighboring regions.

Wholly unintentionally, and through neglect, China has been shamefully, disgracefully sold out by her Allies. I say "unintentionally" because I know what is at fault is not intention or lack of appreciation of China's services, but an old psychology prevailing among the bureaucrats in Burma and in the councils of the United Nations in the West. It is this psychology that must be changed.

BUREAUCRATS BOTHERED

To illustrate: Chinese soldiers were ready at the Burma border in December. In fact, plans for defense of Rangoon were offered earlier and rejected. A plan for Chinese defense of Burma was submitted to the British Government as early as February, 1941. By political chicanery it was sidetracked. When Moulmein fell in the beginning of February, Chinese soldiers were still not permitted to cross the border. These soldiers were permitted to cross the border on March 7 and 8, when Rangoon fell. And then there were ridiculous bureaucrats standing at the border, with pencil and paper, to check the number of Chinese that got into Burma, to be sure that not too many came in and that the same number should leave Burma when the war should be over. On April 24, when the Chinese had saved the British troops on the Irrawaddy, it was fully six weeks afterward that the news at last came that "now there was no limit to the entrance of Chinese troops into Burma."

It was assumed of course that there was an intention to defend Burma and save it as a springboard for a future offensive. It was assumed that there were a "million" troops in India right across the border, and that, of course, if the Chinese were not needed, then Indian troops must be coming over the border to relieve the "tired" troops. Yet we heard only sympathy for the "tired" troops without reinforcements during the whole three months from February to April, inclusive.

China's appeal for fighting and bombing planes must be heeded, and must be heeded immediately and properly—not as "injections" to Chinese morale, I repeat, but for the Allies' own good. The Americans are desperately anxious to hear news of bombing of Japan from Vladivostok. Here in China, ready to give bases and all co-operation for the Americans to have a chance to bomb Japanese troops right in China and right now. What is holding us from doing it?

LIN YUTANG.

New York, May 26, 1942.

"Are You Swing?"

Reports from Occupied France say that the commonest greeting when Frenchmen are introduced to each other is "Bonjour, etes-vous swing?" The answer to this at first blush baffling question is invariably "yes." The cryptic word refers to swing music, which the French hear by listening clandestinely to the American and British radio. Any amateur of swing is thus by extension presumed to be a partisan of the United Nations and an enemy of the Axis. The full import of the question is, therefore: "Are you for the Allies?"

Harlem and Tin Pan Alley may record this as one of their notable contributions to the cause of victory.—New York Sun.

A Bible Message For Today

Now there cried a certain woman of the wives of the sons of the prophets unto Elisha, saying, Thy servant my husband is dead; and thou knowest that thy servant did fear the Lord: and the creditor is come to take unto him my two sons to be bondmen. And Elisha said unto her, What shall I do for thee? tell me, what hast thou in the house? And she said, Thine handmaid hath not any thing in the house, save a pot of oil.

Then he said, Go, borrow thee vessels abroad of all they neighbours, even empty vessels; borrow not a few. And when thou art come in, thou shalt shut the door upon thee and upon thy sons, and shalt pour out into all those vessels, and thou shalt set aside that which is full. So she went from him, and shut the door upon her and upon her sons, who brought the vessels to her; and she poured out.

And it came to pass, when the vessels were full, that she said unto her son, Bring me yet a vessel. And he said unto her, There is not a vessel more. And the oil stayed. Then she came and told the man of God. And he said, Go, sell the oil, and pay thy debt, and live thou and thy children of the rest.—II Kings iv, 1-7.

Rubber and the Romanies

How are those colored rolling stones, the gypsies, faring under current rubber restrictions? Some years ago they discarded their picturesque horse-drawn conveyances in favor of ancient but capacious automobiles or trailers. Now, with new tires unobtainable and used ones at a premium, they are seemingly faced with a situation which would daunt the average stay-at-home.

Whosoever assumes that this peregrinating people have been grounded for the "duration" reckons without his Romanies. In the day of Dobbin, no caravan was without its string of ponies. The men of the group did a thriving business with farmers along the way. The Romany is skilled in a variety of crafts, with the ability easily to master many others. Although the cars he drives seem ready for the salvage yard, whoever saw a Romany machine drawn up by the roadside for repairs?

Those familiar with Romany resourcefulness may easily envision gypsies as riding long after others have had recourse to the horse and buggy—or else ambling leisurely along in trailers equipped with makeshift wheels. For upward of a century, these nomads of the highway have brought a much-needed touch of color to the oft-times drab American scene. One does not like to think of these "early settlers" as really settling down.—Christian Science Monitor.

Crime Stories

All literature entering Canadian penitentiaries is carefully censored so that the inmates may be protected from the influence of articles calculated to encourage the idea that there is any romance in crime. Possibly if others were protected from such literature there would be fewer inmates of the penitentiaries. True stories of crime are without the happy endings which so many story-readers demand.—Guelph Mercury.

Why Nazi Tailors Are Busy

I was shown a copy of the Swedish newspaper Svenska Pressen, and in it their Berlin correspondent states that tailors in Germany and in the occupied countries are extremely busy just now.

They explain this by saying that owing to the severe rationing of food and fuel this winter the bulk of the male civil population have lost to 50 pounds in weight, involving a reduction in the waistline by as much as eight inches.—London Daily Sketch.

Ephgrave, took place in Murray Street Baptist Church on Saturday, with Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiating. The church was decorated with pink and white peonies and Mr. A. Collison presided at the organ. During the signing of the register Mrs. McColl sang "Because."

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. George Morrison, of Toronto, the bride looked lovely in a gown of white lace net over satin with a long train. Her white net veil was caught to her head with a pearl-studded coronet and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink and red roses. She was attended by Mrs. George Thomas, her sister, as matron of honor, and little Barbara Joy Creber. Mrs. Thomas wore a gown of turquoise blue net over taffeta with matching hat. Barbara was dressed in pink organdie with a blue ribbon and a little Dutch cap to match. The matron-of-honor carried Talisman roses and the bridesmaid roses and spring flowers. The best man was Mr. Harold Ephgrave and the ushers were Ross Latimer and Stuart Currie.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Ephgrave, where the groom's mother received, wearing a gown of printed silk jersey with white hat and a corsage of red roses. The bride's mother also received wearing a gown of heaven blue crepe with a matching hat and a corsage of pink roses.

Later the bride and groom left on a trip north. For travelling the bride wore a dusky rose dress with white accessories, and the groom's gift, a pearl necklace.

Also included in the inscription is a quotation from a pageant written by Mrs. McKone for the C.G.I.T. some years ago. "Life is yours to make or mar; Life reveals just what you are; Built it well, whate'er you do; Built it four-square, build it true!"

Music Pupils Of School Classes Give Fine Recital

An interesting recital was heard last night at Prince of Wales school by pupils of Queen Mary and Prince of Wales schools under the tuition of Miss Harstone.

The program, which spoke of thoughtful planning, was interspersed with trios, duets and solos and was opened with a few words of welcome to the parents and friends, by Miss Harstone, who also announced the numbers.

The proceeds of the recital, which amounted to $9.67, are being donated to the Mrs. Winston Churchill fund and during the intermission Mrs. Paiage Rowell briefly explained the fund and at the close of her remarks thanked Miss Harstone, on behalf of the parents, for her splendid contribution to the musical education and character building of the children.

The pupils, who, with few exceptions are quite young and have been studying piano in some cases for less than a year, gave evidence, by their general deportment and work at the keyboard, of careful and meticulous training.

Is YOUR JOB wearing, too?

Here's a tip for sit-down workers...

Sitting all day at a desk or work table doesn't give much chance for healthy exercise. So guard against the headachy, heavy feeling that so often means incomplete elimination. Take these two steps to health: (1) To get well, see your doctor; (2) to keep well, watch your habits. Make sure elimination is complete, but shun harsh cathartics! Get enough "bulk" in your diet to keep the food wastes moving promptly. Start every morning with a bowl of crunchy Kellogg's Bran Flakes With Other Parts Of Wheat. Gently laxative, they help supply valuable minerals and proteins, too. And they're so fresh and crisp, so delicious, you'll want them every day! Look for Kellogg's Bran Flakes in the golden yellow package. Comes in two convenient sizes. And when you breakfast out, order the individual package with the inner, WAXTITE, sealed bag. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

"BEING TIED to the end of a wire in these wartime days is no picnic. I can't afford 'slowdowns' and dull, listless days. I have to keep fit! So here's my message to every 'sit-down' worker: do as I do, get plenty of bulk in your diet, eat a big bowlful of Kellogg's Bran Flakes every day in the year. They're mildly laxative, and there's nothing like their crisp flavour to start the day right."

KEEP FIT WITH KELLOGG'S

every day in the year!

How to make the most of your Coffee

WHATEVER type of coffee-maker you use, follow these rules to prevent waste and to use coffee to best advantage.

1 Use good coffee — correctly ground for your method of coffee-making.

2 Measure ground coffee and water carefully so as to provide just the number of cupfuls you need and no more. Use freshly drawn water.

3 Make coffee at just below boiling point. Boiling develops bitterness and spoils flavor. Remove grounds as soon as coffee is made.

4 Serve immediately, if possible. If necessary to keep hot, use only low heat.

5 Keep coffee maker scrupulously clean. Stale odors and sediment affect flavor. Preheat by scalding just before use.

MAXWELL HOUSE is a blend of the world's finest coffees, roasted by a special process to capture all its extra goodness. It offers precisely correct grinds for each type of coffee maker—Drip and Regular. Maxwell House reaches you absolutely roaster-fresh because it is sealed in a Super-Vacuum tin. This is important because roasted coffee, once ground, loses flavor rapidly when exposed to air. The best way to retain its aroma is to keep it in the tin.

ROYALS BREAK LOSING STREAK BY DEFEATING JUVENILES 12 TO 5

Winners Score Six Runs In Fifth Inning

After losing two games in a row Royals snapped back into winning form at the expense of the Juveniles in a City Softball League game at Riverside Park Monday night, winning 12 to 5. It was a tight enough game until the fifth when the winners got six unearned runs, scoring them after the side should have been retired and that broke the contest wide open.

Ronnie Akers pitched for the winners and held the youngsters to seven hits, four of them coming in the last two innings. He had the Indian sign on most of the Juvenile hitters and was given nice support by his teammates who played steady ball in the field.

Bob Crowe started for the losers and got along nicely until he hurt his ankle at the beginning of the fifth and the Royals' big innings followed. Bev. Gray went to the rescue and held the winners fairly well until the eighth, when they broke through with three runs to clinch the verdict.

Eddie Murphy and Arnold Smith, each with three hits, led the winners' attack. Reg. Leether, third baseman for the losers also had three safe blows and Gray came through with a single and a triple in his only two times at bat.

Juveniles broke into the scoring in the first inning. With one gone Leether singled to right, went to second on a wild pitch, ran to third after Crowe's long fly to right centre had been caught and scored when Murphy kicked Jones' grounder around.

Royals got two in the last of the second. With one away Scriver doubled and Gatfield drew a pass. A wild pitch advanced the pair and they scored on McNabb's double to left which Greatrix could not reach.

There was no further scoring until the fifth when the Royals got six. It all happened with two out. Then Smith fired a single to centre, and Murphy singled through short. Leether made a great stop of Pryde's hard hit roller and the side should have been out but he tossed low to first and the runner was safe and Smith and Murphy scored. Parnell singled to right scoring Pryde. Scriver walked, filling the bases; Gray took over the pitching duties and walked Gatfield, forcing in Parnell. Akers doubled through short, and two more runs were in. McNabb walked, but D. Holmes struck out.

Scriver walked with one out in the seventh, and was forced by Gatfield. The latter scored on a double by Akers.

Juveniles got two in the eighth. Gray opened with a single and after Jones had popped out to Murphy, scored on Greatrix's long triple to centre. Greatrix registered while McNabb was tossing out White.

Royals came back with three in their half. With one down, Smith walked and Murphy singled into right, sending Smith to third. Pryde singled to centre, scoring Smith. Parnell flied to White, Murphy scoring after the catch, and when Gray tried to cut off the throw-in and deflected the ball, Pryde also scored. Scriver doubled to right but was out trying to steal third.

With two out in the ninth the Juveniles came back with a pair. Garvey drew a walk, with two hands down, and Leether singled past third for his third hit. Gray's long triple to right field scored Garvey and Leether, but Jones struck out to end the game.

DOOLITTLE'S STORE
CHAPTER XII

ABOVE the rush of wind Hunter Dent yelled again at Red Ballard, "Idiot, what's the idea?" Red kept going. She shouted back at him, "Taking you back to jail!" She ran a red light in town and turned down the side street where the jail was located. She shot on the brakes. Out she leaped. She ran into the jail office. Hunter followed, as always both irritated and amused by by her precipitous movements. Red was just finishing her instructions to Sheriff Anderson.

"The Ghibarto twins are catching the ten-nine plane. I happen to know, Sheriff. There it is now." They stopped to listen. Overhead came the roar of the Miami plane. "Those twins are the killers, Sheriff!" In a moment Red came out, and right after her the red-faced officer. "Come on, Hunter!" the girl said, and hauled Hunter into her roadster while the sheriff jumped into his big official car.

Red started out of town ahead, taking the highway three miles out to the airport; but Anderson got the right of way with his siren and they saw the big car disappear down the highway as the plane banked, made a wide circle, and got ready to land.

When Red raced up to the airport they saw the Ghibarto boys getting ready to go aboard. Sheriff Anderson stepped up. Red and Hunter ran through the gate.

"Sorry, gentlemen," Sheriff Anderson said, "but I have to detain you."

The exotic young men shed all their debonair sophistication. Sportsmanship, if they'd had any, went out of them in this moment. One of them reached for his revolver. Anderson had expected something like that. A huge, fast worker, he knocked the twin down. Passengers were excited, and a child screamed. Hunter had moved in. When the other twin looked as if he would resist arrest Hunter landed a clean lick right back of the beautiful youth's ear. He went down with his brother. Anderson put the bracelets on the two dazed fellows and soon was going back to town with them.

When Junior Ballard was able to make a statement, he corroborated pretty much Hunter's hypothesis. When the details were all cleared up it was fairly well established that the Ghibartos shot the bank messenger, and had tried to kill Junior but had missed him twice and the shot that caught him was at a distance down the street, beyond the paving, where Junior had his car parked and waiting. The elder Ghibarto was in jail in lieu of bond; and his sons occupied cells down the corridor from him.

STRICKLAND BALLARD came out to the estate. It was a sunny autumn day. The men stood and looked over the farmlands, talked in a desultory way about plans for the next year.

"I'm raising your salary five hundred dollars," Ballard said. He eyed the young manager. All at once the sporting blood in him began to circulate. He broke into a laugh. "I'm fixing to come across, Dent. I restore to you your strain of corn. I have promised some through advertising, but I'll either pay you for the seed grain, or withdraw the offer and work it out some way with the customers. As for your horse that, too, belongs to you. That is unless you wish to make a gift of the animal to Bella, but if I were you I'd not do that unless you kept a halter on the whole matter. Finally, sir, I am going to beg your pardon. I beg your most humble pardon, Dent. I've been through a lot these last few days, and I've done some thinking as I went along. I've made a few resolutions."

Hunter looked at the man. He was doing a better job than Hunter had dreamed. "For instance?"

"I've decided to ease up on the pill business and work at the daddy job a little better. To my mind you have been a true sport, Hunter. You've even worked at my job, trying to rear my children as best you can; and I have to take my hat off to you in your determination to protect Junior. You're a better man than I am, sir."

Hunter was red with both pleasure and embarrassment. Triumph in the face of true sportsmanship is never the thing one dreams of in burning rage and desire for revenge.

He and Ballard shook hands, and the man went and got into his waiting limousine and was whisked back to town.

Hunter went slowly to the office. There he telephoned Squire Doolittle. "I have a little chore for you, Judge," he said. "You'll be there in about thirty minutes? Okay." He hung up, went down, and backed out his car. He hunted around for Red. He found her on the front porch. "Hello," he grinned. "How about a ride?"

"You taking me for a ride "

"Something of the sort. Wait here till I bring my car."

Mine's right out here. How about just going with me?"

"You might not want to go where I'm going."

"Where's that?"

"Doolittle's store."

"Sure," she laughed. "I was going there, too."

They went and got into her car and soon they were going along a gently rolling country road through an azure day.

"Am I riding Firefy in the horse show, Hunter?"

"I'll tell you yes or no in about fifteen minutes."

She gave him a questioning look, and then laughed with odd merriment. "Then it will be yes. What'll you wager?"

"Let me see," he mused. "What do I have to put on the barrelhead?"

"Yourself."

"Okay. I'll bet me against you."

THEY came to the little rustic store. Squire Doolittle, with one suspender, sat on the porch waiting. Red and Hunter got out and ran up the steps.

"Well, Judge," Hunter said, "here we are."

"Yes," Red laughed, "here we really are, Judge."

Squire Doolittle laughed the mellow laugh of an old man who still remembers the habits of the young heart. He looked from one to the other of them.

"W-well now, folks," he drawed, "I've got a dockymint in one of my hip pockets. Lemme see now." He took out a large envelope from his right pocket. "This here is a wedding license what I bought just as you directed me to Hunter. It's a fust rate license and it'll do the job."

He reached into his other pocket and brought out another envelope. Now he grinned at Bella Ballard.

"Miss Red, I done just exactly what I told you I'd do. I went to the co't house t' other day, when you said you was laying a bet, and bought this pair of license to marry you by. They seem to be fust class prime marriage license. One is writ out to Bella Ballard and Hunter Dent, and the other is writ out to Hunter Dent and Bella Ballard. Whichever one I use to marry you two by, the other loses his barrelhead. Which sha it be?"

Red looked at Hunter; Hunter looked at Red.

"Ah!" they both said at the same time.

"You'll have to get Sam, or Mrs. Doolittle to witness," Hunter suggested.

"I'll go to the house and fetch the little lady."

Squire Doolittle moved off to get his three hundred pound wife. Hunter and Red collapsed into each other's arms.

"I win!" Hunter said.

"No, I win," Red half-laughed and half-wept.

They stood a moment there in the bland afternoon and kissed. Then Squire and Mrs. Doolitte came. In a few moments Red said, "I do," and Hunter Dent said, "I do."

Hunter, as they drove back to the estate, hadn't ever seen the day so gay in autumn, or the brown land so kindly under a sky in the fall.

THE END.

Track Guarded On Tip, Jock To Be Picked Off

NEW YORK, June 23—(CP). — Anonymous telephone threats that Jockey Johnny Longden, formerly of Cardston, Alta., would be "picked off," have prompted police to post a guard at Aqueduct race track. Meanwhile authorities are checking on the possibility the calls were the work of a "crank."

Two persons received the calls—Mrs. Joseph Beck, wife of the track superintendent, and a track employee.

Mrs. Beck said she was informed by a man who said he was a member of a clique that had lost money on Longden's mounts, that he was going to shoot the veteran jockey "with a high-powered rifle." Mrs. Beck's call came Saturday and the unnamed track employee received the second threat aimed at Longden yesterday.

Longden piloted Duchess Anita home in front in the second race on Saturday, but hasn't been successful since. He rode in the first race yesterday, his mount coming in seventh, and was forbidden to ride again until further notice by Francis P. Dunne, racing commission steward.

Heels Missing

BOSTON June 23 (AP)—Employees of an hotel have experienced the effects of the scrap rubber drive and while they didn't lose their soles, they—but we're getting ahead of the story. For years employees, when reporting for work, have taken off their street shoes and put on more comfortable ones. Last night they started to get back into their good shoes again—and found all the heels missing. A young employee had cut off the rubber.

SPORTS – DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

Luckies who have won three straight games by one run to crash to the top of the City Softball League race face the acid test tonight when they meet Plazas in a game on which the loop leadership hinges. It was Plazas whom the Luckies encountered when they made their City League debut and the hockey squad gave the newcomers a rough ride in that opening battle, winning by a big score. Since then however, no one has been able to pin the Luckies' ears back and the Griffin outfit declare that Plazas will find them a different team tonight when the two meet for the second time. The Plazas can take top spot by a victory over Luckies while a win for the latter would strengthen their hold on the top slot. Royals won last night, to close in on the two leading clubs and so both the Plazas and Luckies have a double incentive to battle for a win tonight. The game will be called at 7 o'clock sharp with Bill Lewis on the rubber for Luckies and either Dave Wilson or Tom Parsons firing them for the hockey squad. The battle will of course be staged at Riverside Park.

* * * * * *

There will be another hot softball battle in the same vicinity tonight when the Westclox girls will battle with the Electrics, formerly the Porcelain squad at the Bowl in a league game that is highly important to both outfits. Westclockers, not used to holding down a cellar spot, have lost their first two starts and they are anxious to snap out of their slump and hit a winning stride. They predict that they will turn the trick at the expense of the Electrics tonight. Coach Bob Batley of Electrics cannot see it that way at all. He says that his team is improving and that it will show it tonight with a clean cut win over last season's champs. Both teams expect to have some new players in action. The pitching choices look like Mary Larmer for the Electrics and Marg Watson on the firing line for the Clock-makers. The game is called for 7 o'clock sharp.

* * * * * *

The Royals turned up with a revamped team for their battle with Juveniles last night. Only Arnold Smith was in his customary place in the infield. Earl McNabb, back in the game after injuring his arm, shifted from short to second, with Giardino out of the lineup and at short was that well known ball player Eddie Murphy who played nice ball in the field and slammed out three clean hits. George Hawks did not get into the game at third until the last couple of innings and previous to that Don Holmes played a bangup game at the hot corner. Catcher Mowry was an absentee and Bob Parnell did the receiving. With all these changes Royals won one of their most decisive victories of the season, defeating Juveniles 12 to 5. The kids started off well but ran into a big Royal innings in the sixth and the ball game was shot after that as Akers held the youngsters to seven hits and had an easy win.

Farewell, Cadets

Royal Military College, Kingston is through until after the war and the cadets who have had a long and glorious career in sport will not be represented therein until Hitler has been licked and the Japs junked. Peterborough remembers something of the athletic prowess of R.M.C. They gave the Peterborough intermediate champions of 1902 a hard run in a playoff series. Later Peterborough rugby fans saw Royal Military College and Varsity seconds battle at Riverside Park and the most recent clash was a year ago last winter when the Cadets eliminated the Peterborough juvenile O.A.B.A. team in a sudden death game played at Cobourg. The R.M.C. teams have always been worthy of the best traditions of Canadian sport and the cadets deserve all the good things that were said about them by Scribe Bill Walshe in his sport column in the Kingston sheet a day or two ago. Especially interesting was the Walshe reference to the importance of the Bugle as an athletic symbol.

* * * * * *

Here is what the article says on that point: "While the annual international hockey game with West Point is the major interschool sports event for the cadets the Bugle is the main sports honor at the college, awarded to the individual track and field champion. The famous Bugle (which is a miniature silver bugle) must be won three times in succession for permanent possession and the winner must donate another which carries his name until it is won outright. The first bugle was presented by the "Old Eighteen," the first class at the college. It was won by James Spelman, Cadet No. 11, from 1678 to '79. The second bugle, donor not known, was won by A. C. Joly de Lotbiniere, 1881 to '83. Lotbiniere, now a major-general, is living in England and attained great honors for building a dam in India. He has two unusual Indian decorations to his credit as well as the Empire honors. W. B. Kingsmill, now honorary solicitor of the Ex-Cadet Club, was the next to win the Bugle in 1894 to 1897."

* * * * * *

"He replaced the trophy," continues the article, "and his token was not won until 30 years later when G. Winder Smith, now headmaster of Lakefield College, took the token in 1924 to '27. J. L. McAvity, now a major, won the Smith Bugle in 1928 to '30. S. H. Ward, who was last heard from in the Royal Australian Air Force at Manila, got a two-year grip on the Bugle but graduated before winning. In 1932 to '34 D. V. Rainnie won the Bugle and his name will continue on the coveted prize when the cadets return to Kingston after the war. The toughest competition probably in all Canada was staged every year for the R.M.C. recruit class when the obstacle, or initiation, was held. The test had all the trials of modified suicide from swimming in oil, creeping through tar and feathers, over high fences and through swinging barrels. Any boy had to be tough to get through the test and the same toughness and endurance was demanded all through the college sports career of the cadets. Kingston says farewell to the cadets today just as the cadets say farewell to Kingston, and all hope the parting will not be long."

There was a real Peterborough tinge to the senior O.A.L.A. game in Toronto last night when the Etobicoke Indians defeated the Hamilton Tigers 11 to 7. This burg had two representatives on each team. Mick Magee and Rowan Chute performed for the losing Hamilton crew and Red and Jerry Creighton wore the uniform of the victorious Indians. Magee who started at wing for the Tigers was represented on the score sheet with a goal and an assist and Chute also managed to get up from his defense position and pop a goal past Red Creighton. The latter was one of the stars of the game, however, despite the kidding he'd get from Chute and Magee after that one slipped by. A Toronto story of the game says "Russell Kelley's Ambitious City team, a better outfit than their paper strength would indicate had trouble with Etobicoke's goal tender, Red Creighton. The stocky little guy stopped a lot of rubber."

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The Yanks seem to be definitely in a slump. The world champs were beaten 5 to 1 yesterday in an exhibition game by the Toledo Mudhens of the American Association..Ken Anderson, shortstop of the Juveniles had his wrist hurt in the eighth inning of last night's game when Scriver slid into second....Johnny Rigney pitched for the Great Lakes team yesterday and won a victory over his old club, the Chicago White Sox by 7 to 3....Joe Kraukauskas is expected to land with the Royal Canadian Air Force....Joe Louis is going into training but this time it is military basic training that the Brown Bomber is going to receive....Cy Collison who used to pitch for Sugar Bowl in the local City League pitched a great game in the Beaches Major Fastball League last night when his club Union Dairies played a scoreless tie with Tip Tops.... Collison was stacked up against big Susie Turner and although he allowed the hard-hitting Tip Tops nine hits, he was invincible in the pinches.... Eddie Murphy looked quite at home out there at shortstop for the Royals in last night's game with Juveniles. He covered a lot of ground on pop flies....Whirlaway set a new track record at Aqueduct yesterday.

Close Finish? Brother You Said It

How close was that finish between Bobby Ginn of Nebraska and Leroy Weed of Southern California at the recent N.C.A.A. track meet at Lincoln, Neb.? Plenty close, as this picture shown. Ginn stuck his neck out and hit the tape by a flicker in the excellent time of 4.11.1. The defending champion, Les MacMitchell of New York U., finished third. Southern California won the meet.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

It would be rather difficult to point to any one game as being the outstanding game of the evening. They were all good—maybe some of the scores would not bear out that statement but remember all these games are 18 ends.

As you would walk from one end of the two hundred and forty foot green to the other—or walked from the east to the west—by the time you made your round trip the score boards would present a different outlook altogether.

There is no change in the standing in Group No. 1 as the two leading teams won again last night. As usual we had the overtime game. It was the Downey-Burns affair and it was a good one. And then as if Benny Chesler wasn't satisfied with being up seven on Bob Hendry, coming home, he helps himself to a great big seven on the last end. Benny just wanted to make sure.

Don't forget the men's doubles tomorrow afternoon at 1.30 to 6.00 p.m. Choose your own partner. At night No. 1 group will continue their schedule.

Norwood Loses Baseball Tilt

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23. — (ESS).—Local ball enthusiasts saw their first contest of the season here last night when two teams from B Company of the 2nd Midland Regiment battled out a five inning game on the High school diamond. No. 12 Platoon, composed of reserve recruits from Norwood, Havelock and Hastings had the edge over the local platoon, taking the contest by overcoming Campbellford's narrow single run margin at the end of the opening stanza. There was nothing outstanding in the game and the only excitement came in the fifth when, aided by dusk five members crossed the home plate to boost them well into the lead over the four counts held by the losers. Pitcher Craig was the leading hitter for the winners with a double and two singles to his credit, while McComb led the locals with a double and a single.

JIMMY BORGENSON

An early army call may interfere with acceptance by Jimmy Borgenson of an offer to play major league baseball. Several big league scouts are reported interested in the youth who has just closed a four-year campaign at Lake Forest, Ill., college, where he won 26 of 28 games pitched. Borgenson's latest victory was a no-hit, no-run game against Illinois Wesleyan. He batted .451 this year.

Raybestos Players Cop Spotlight In Men's Weekly Sweepstakes

The Raybestos Company stole the limelight at the men's weekly sweepstakes affair held at Peterborough Golf Club on Saturday. The local company copped the daily double with their entrants Bill Cowell and Bob Abbott. Bob, after a slow start released the brakes to coast in the winner of the low gross event with an 80. Bob going out with a 42, warmed up, tacking on a 38 for the back nine.

Bill Cowell supplied the other half of the winning combination, with a low net 91-24—67. Bill, a fairly recent arrival to these parts, improves each time out and with a dryer track should show his heels to many of the other local divot diggers, and incidentally was the only player to beat par 69.

The Westclox entrants ran well, with Stan Payne winning second low gross after a toss with T. Gentles, both players having a gross 84. Orley DeGraw of the same stable won low net No. 1 group 82-10—72. Orley played a very steady game as usual, putting two 41's together.

Winners of the low nets in the various classes were:

1 to 10—O. DeGraw ....82-10—72
11 to 15—G. Putnam .....86-15—71
16 to 21—A. Rutter ....90-20—70

37,000 Expected For Twilight Giant-Bear Tilt

By The Associated Press

By command of Mayor Frank Hague, at least 37,000 spectators will pack Roosevelt Stadium in Jersey City at twilight tonight for the International League game with Newark which is being played for the benefit of Army and Navy relief funds.

Everyone—players and umpires included—will have to buy a ticket and it is hoped that approximately $40,000 will be realized for the charities.

Although the game isn't slated to get under way until 7:30, the gates will be opened at 5 p.m. and early arrivals will be entertained by a Navy band, the Jersey City Police Band and numerous fife and drum outfits.

The game was arranged several weeks ago when the Little Giants were trying to keep from sliding into the second division and the Bears were making a run-away of the flag chase. Recently, however, Jersey City has been doing the winning and Sunday swept a twin bill with the Bears to move within 3½ games of first place.

Not only will the Bears want to win and choke off the Little Giant threat but they would appreciate a triumph as a birthday gift for George Weiss, Bear vice-president since 1932.

Weiss, who aso is a vice-president of New York Yankees, is 47 today and has been connected with baseball for 23 years.

Weather conditions kept the two clubs idle yesterday and also interfered with the appearance of Buffalo at Rochester.

That left only the meeting between Toronto at Montreal as Baltimore and Syracuse were not scheduled.

Eddie Morgan, a former Toronto player but now wearing the livery of the Montreal club, slapped out a home run with two mates on base in the first inning. That was all the scoring the Royals could do but it was good enough, Montreal winning 3-2.

With The Boy Scouts

GEORGE ST. GROUP

We are very pleased indeed to report that the Cub Pack is carrying on all through the summer months. This is indeed good news; in fact we hope that the disease is as catching as the measles and that every pack and troop will catch it. Last week was alive with activities in the George St. Jungle when 6 young fellows were invested as tenderpads in this great brotherhood of Scouts, as Gord and Garry Gilders, Bobby Kingan, Tom Morgan, Claude Johnson and Hugh Outram made their Cub promise before Akela to do their best. Another ceremoney was conducted as Vaughan Tucker was invested as Sixer. We wish all the youngsters good scouting. It was a picnic day, everyone having a good time. We were also happy to have with us Lieut. Copp, a member of the group committee It is hoped that every Cub will do his best to attend every meeting throughout the summer months.

ST. LUKE'S PACK

Last meeting was softball night. The pack met at the church, then proceeded to King George school, where teams were chosen under the leadership of Sixers Billy King and LaVergne Butcher. Akela and Baloo acted as umpries. No report of the score has been revealed but we understand that it was real fun right from the start. Alfred Curtis was accepted into the pack as a new chum. The closing ceremonies were held on the grounds.

All Cubs are requested to be present this week as there are some important notices to be given out.

ST. JOHN'S GROUP.

The Pack games to k up the principal part of the program at the last meeting. 26 boys were in attendance with Murray Gray and Lorne Bolton still absent through sickness. We hope that they will be well enough to attend the meeting next week. Mr., Mrs. and Miss Franks were present to witness the ceremony in which George Franks became a fully invested Tenderpad. Following the investiture Wilfred Woodcock and Drew Buckland were presented with their first stars and Carl Sargeant with his second star. Cub Woodcock also received his collector's badge. The meeting next week will be held in the Parish Hall as usual when it is expected that the summer program will be outlined.

On Wednesday next, all first star Cubs will meet at the Skipper's home at 7 p.m. sharp. The following boys are warned for this meeting: Bob Morris, Carl Sargeant, Donald Searles Jimmy Flett, Jack Gray, Dick Schram Wilf. Woodcock, Bob Hagerman, Stuart Wigg, Lorne Bolton. Albert Cunningham and Drew Buckland.

The Troop.

Outdoor activities are the theme of the programs as the troop take advantage of the fine lawns on the east side of the church. On Saturday Gordon Best and Leslie Groombridge were seen heavily laden with packs and blankets travelling south on the old Grand Trunk tracks in Ashburnham as they started out on their first class hike. On returning late Sunday afternoon both stated that the grounds were very wet and not really fit for hiking except for the roads. Sleeping in the open, they reported some rain, but otherwise very warm.

Local Association News.

At the regular meeting of the local Association it was decided to ask the committee of the Scout Craft Show to remain in office and make preparations for another display for about the same time next year. It was felt that the affair was a huge success and the best way in which to bring Scouting before the public eye. If it is at all possible it will be repeated in the Market Hall. Also it was moved that A.D.C. Ernie Wolfe be chairman of a committee to draw up definite rules and items for the annual Jamboree and that every Pack and Troop be notified regarding these rules so that all will come prepared in the knowledge of, not only what they are doing but also the way it should be done. Also that the judges would be given the rules in which definite standards are set up. The committee as a whole will consists of three Cub and three Scout leaders acting under the Assistant Commissioner.

Missing.

We regret to read that Flight Officer Bill Davies is on the missing list and our sincere sympathy to his wife and parents. We are hoping that further reports will follow. Bill was a former Scout in the old second Armour Troop years ago and was very popular with both the boys and your scribe, who was their leader at that time.

Scouters Club.

Although no definite word has been received up to the time of going to press, we understand that the Scouters Club will be holding a social evening out to the Scout grounds on Wednesday evening of this week. No definite starting point or time was issued For further particulars consult your president, Scouter Peter Dominik. Phone 7756.

The meeting of the Scouters' Club called for this Wednesday has been postponed till further notice.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR ARMY?

(10) BREAKDOWN ARMY WRECKER

Vehicle recovery is the job expected of this wrecker-truck and it is well fitted to do it. A powerful all wheel drive mechanism gives its six wheels strength to pull and push it over the most obstinate countryside at a good speed.

Arrived at the scene, the crew use the two swinging booms of the sturdy Holmes wrecker with which their machine is equipped, right the vehicle out of commission and, if necessary, tow it back to the repair depot. It is used for this work by the Ordnance and Army Service corps. Its weight is 3 tons.

Medwick Shows Real Spurt Comeback Road

NEW YORK, June 23 — (AP) — There was a startling squib in one of the New York newspapers the other day when Chicago Cubs were in town.

Lou Novikoff told a writer he thought he ought to be included in the National League's all-star team. "I'm not the worst outfielder in the league," said the Mad Russian. "I'm not the best either. The best is Joe Medwick."

This shows how times change, or perhaps how history repeats. Five years ago when Muscles Medwick was ripping all kinds of pitching to shreds for St. Louis Cardinals there was no doubt about his supremacy. But it has been a long time since anybody has thought of Medwick as the best, or even one of the best, players in the senior circuit. He hasn't even been called the best of his own team, the Brooklyn Dodgers.

On the basis of his play this season, however, Medwick deserves consideration again as the most valuable player in the league.

He has a batting average of .350 and a batting streak of 25 consecutive games. He needs to hit in his next eight games to tie the National League record set by Rogers Hornsby in 1922.

Yesterday, an open date for all major league clubs, Medwick was six points behind his teammate, Pete Reiser, in the race for the league's batting championship, but for one day last week Medwick was on top and he may be again before the season ends.

Medwick's comeback was helped by the frequency with which opposing clubs used left-handed pitchers against the Dodgers in order to offset the champions' portside power—Dolph Camilli, Dixie Walker, Arky Vaughan and Reiser. This helped the right-handed Medwick until now he doesn't need any help.

He not only has become able to hit right-handed pitching again, but he has now overcome the fear of another beaning that haunted him after he was hit by Bob Bowman two years ago. Yesterday Mort Cooper of the Cards, the outstanding hurler of the league, threw a couple of head-high pitches that made Medwick dive into the dirt. But he got up to make one of Brooklyn's five hits and continue his streak.

He also is fielding and throwing better than he has since 1937.

Whirly Reduces Aqueduct

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—Whirlaway had to set a new track record at Aqueduct yesterday to win an ordinary overnight race that was supposed to be just a workout "tightener" for Saturday's Brooklyn Handicap.

Under the unfamiliar handling of Jockie Georgie Woolf, Whirlaway came from far back as usual in the mile-and-an-eighth test to come in just in front of Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention, who upset Whirly in the Arlington Classic a year ago.

So fast did Warren Wright's Kentucky Cannonball have to travel to pick up the $2,275 winner's purse that he was clocked in 1:49 2-5, three-fifths of a second better than the old track mark which was posted by his handicap rival, Market Wise, last September. On that occasion, however, Market Wise carried only 112 pounds, while Whirly packed 122 yesterday, spotting Attention five pounds and the three others in the field nine each.

Attention, finishing fast along the inside while Whirly took over the middle of the track with his customary closing rush, easily took the place by two lengths over Mrs. Payne Whitney's Swing and Sway. The other half of Mrs. Whitney's entry, The Rhymer, who won the Widener Handicap at Hialeah last winter, was fourth, while John Clark's Waller wallowed 'way back of the pack all the way. Whirlaway's stable mate, Col. Teddy, was scratched.

A good portion of the 14,924 fans who turned out for the program had several anxious finger-nail-biting moments waiting for the photo to be developed showing Whirly the winner, for they had backed him far down to 3 to 10 in the betting. He was the absolute minimum of $2.10 to place and Attention was $2.40. There was no show pool.

The victory boosted the lifetime earnings of the little red flier to $380,836, leaving him $56,894 short of Seabiscuit's all-time mark. He expects to pick up the difference between now and mid-July.

Nazi Contribution To British Scrap Drive

A party of the British Royal Engineers is shown working at the job of salvaging a German Messerschmitt somewhere in the desert. The plane was forced down and not too badly damaged. A similar plane salvaged after it was shot down in England is now in the United States on exhibition, aiding the war bond selling drive.

War Firm Asks Board For Scientific Lens

War, with its manifold restrictions and shortages reached into the board room of the Board of Education on Monday in the form of an appeal for assistance from a firm engaged in war work.

This Toronto firm, manufacturing fine optical lens and scientific lens, finds itself unable to secure a certain type of lens required for vital war work. It happens that the science department of tre Collegiate has such a lens, and the firm wished to borrow the lens for some time and wold substitute another of slightly different type until they were finished with the special one.

On motion of D. G. H. Melton and D. V. Canning, the Board agreed to lend the piece of equipment subject to another being substituted and that a satisfactory bond of indemnity be given.

G. W. Craw, chairman of the Property committee, reported in answer to a question that painters were working on the exterior of Queen Mary School, and had finished the interior of one room at King Edward School. During the holidays the complete interior of King Edward School will be finished, and the teachers can store supplies and equipment in the room that is finished now.

H. G. Walker, chairman of the Board, explained he had granted permission to the Canadian Women's Voluntary Services to use ten classrooms in the academic section of the Collegiate to make out sugar rationing books. It is expected that several hundred volunteer women will be engaged in this work on June 26, 27, 29 and 30.

J. E. Huggins, secretary-treasurer of the Board, told the members the County Clerk and Treasurer had mailed in a cheque for $25,000 on account for tuition fees for county pupils covering the period ending December 31, 1941. The law states this money is to be paid by June 30 of the following year, and as the amount submitted is $5,000 short of the total, the Board hesitate to accept the cheque.

H. G. Walker stated a special meeting could be called to deal with the matter before July 1, and J. E. Huggins immediately made out the notices calling the meeting for Tuesday, June 23, at 8.15, when the entire question will be discussed.

There seemed to be an undercurrent of dissatisfaction over the fact that the County apparently did not intend to clean up the 1941 account by July 1. D. G. H. Melton in commenting, said, "I cannot understand why they do not clean up the 1941 account, because they already owe us for six months of 1942, and it would be a simple matter to make an adjustment should we discover that the County had been overcharged."

Naval Minister Stands Back Of Conscription

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, June 23. — (CP). — Members of the House of Commons to-day were digesting the most definite argument for conscription for overseas yet to be delivered by a cabinet minister in the conscription debate.

Navy Minister Macdonald, himself a veteran of the First Great War, speaking in the House yesterday, defended conscription as a method of raising men for armed service and expressed difficulty in understanding those who, while agreeing to support conscription "proceeded to damn it with the faintest praise."

Mr. Macdonald also took exception to the statements of those who argued that conscription could not be applied to men for the navy or air force and declared this was "an unjust and unwarranted reflection" upon the army. He was frequetly applauded by Opposition members as well as government supporters.

He said the government should be free to impose conscription when the moment came that it was necessary and that moment might come "suddenly."

Mr. Macdonald was the first of the defence ministers to participate in the conscription debate.

Defence Minister Ralston is the first scheduled speaker when the debate resumes to-day. It will be of the annual budget address by interpreted to-night for delivery Finance Minister Ilsley.

Debate is on second reading of Prime Minister Mackenzie King's Bill 80 which removes section three of the National Mobilization Act and leaves the government free to impose unlimited conscription without further reference to parilament.

Col. Ralston told the House that possibly two enemy craft participated in the shelling of Estevan Point on the west coast of Vancouver Island Saturday night.

Praise For Russia

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told members the situation in the Middle East was as critical as any which has arisen in that area since the war began. He took the occasion of the first anniversary of the entry of Russia into the war to express on behalf of the House and the Canadian people, admiration of the fight the Russians had put up during the past year against Germany.

Six of yesterday's 11 speeches were in support of the bill and five against. Opposed were four French-Canadian Liberals and Clarence Gillis (C.C.F. Cape Breton South) who said his party would not vote for the Bill unless it included a declaration that wealth and industry would be conscripted when men were conscripted for services overseas.

Mr. Macdonald announced at the outset of his speech that he would support bill 80 "without any doubt," hesitation or reservation whatever."

Repeal of section three was "a wise step in itself" he said, and if the plebiscite and all it entailed was "to be given any meaning," it should be repealed.

"If this bill is passed and the government is thereby freed I believe the government should take the responsibility for which it asked, by implication at least, in the plebiscite question, and which it asked directly in the speech from the throne."

He believed the majority of those who voted "yes" in the plebiscite thought only of freeing the government to act on its own judgement and not that they were instructing it to impose conscription.

Trend of debate so far would seem to indicate that "the majority of members were against conscription in any circumstances whatever," he said.

Some had openly stated that view while others, although stating they would support conscription if it became necessary, "proceeded to damn conscription with the faintest possible sort of praise."

OUR CHALLENGE TO THE "U" BOAT

Canada started this war with virtually no active shipbuilding industry. To-day there are 17 major and 58 smaller yards which, with subsidiary industries, employ 40,000 men. Canada's first 10,000 tonner, launched in October last year, completed its first Atlantic voyage in February! Since then many others have been launched and the present programme calls for 172 new cargo ships costing $325,000,000. Keels for over 50 have already been laid. Before the year is out we will be launching a new ship every few days.

Over 500 Canadian industries are making components for these ships. About 95% of the material used in their production is now "made in Canada."

Not included in these figures are some 200 naval ships already launched, the large majority of them corvettes and minesweepers.

This advertisement is published as a contribution to the general knowledge of our country's war effort and as an inspiration through the days ahead. For reasons of security complete figures are not available. The facts presented, however, are impressive evidence of the growing might of Canada's war machine.

Wasting Of Time At Sessions County Council Commented Upon

By T. H. THEOBALD.

Miss J. A. Batten county clerk and treasurer, pointedly told the county council Saturday that it wasted too much of its sessional time.

"We sit and chat in council and talk to a question six to twenty times," Miss Batten said "If a member of Northumberland and Durham county spoke to a question two or three times he would be quickly told he was out of order."

Miss Batten suggested that time could be saved by committee work and less discussion in council.

"We are a democratic country up here," Reeve C. S. Tanner remarked.

"Too democratic," was Miss Battens comment.

Reeve Gifford mentioned the recent experience of Reeve M. H. Johnston and himself on a visit to the council of Victoria county. "We were taken into a well furnished committee room," he said and added that Peterborough councillors were not accustomed to anything like that.

Some months ago the Examiner suggested the advisability of changes in the way Peterborough county council carries on its affairs, and possibly the general recommendations of the saving of time may have been more or less resented Intimation of reaction by several of the members sounded less than appreciatve of that kind of interest in the council's methods.

Miss Batten's direct reflections tossed the subject right at the members, but immediately took wing on the dismissing comment about the democratic atmosphere pervading Peterborough council's sittings.

In regard to Miss Batten's reference to committees and their constitution, it appears that five committees are composed of all the members of the council. These committees are: Finance, printing, equalization of assessment, legal and legislative and appointments. It may be that the members of the council are all convinced that this is the most effective way of doing business, but as Miss Batten referred to the counties council at Cobourg she might also have said that not one of their standing committees is composed of all their forty members.

If it were argued that forty members would comprise an unwieldly committee, the same criticism could be made more or less of the local composition of at least five committees of Peterborough council mustering every one of its members.

Why could not the legal and legislative committee be allotted to six or seven members, appointments the same number, and an arrangement of committee meetings to enable two of them to be meeting at once? It may be entirely preferable that the finance and equalization of assessment committees should be composed of all the members of Peterborough council. The Examiner has not tried to tell the county council exactly what it should do in procedure, and its previous refernce to lost time during the sesions were inspired directly by comments of some of the members themselves. In fact two of themembers said 'give it another blast and we might eventually get somewhere."

Of course the idea that two local committees could be sitting simultaneously would necessarily involve the use of one of the ante-rooms. The County Council has two available rooms, each large enough for a committee, and they are adequately furnished if not with the quality of appointments noticed and noted by Reeve Gifford in his recent meeting with a committee of Victoria County Council.

And again mentioning the Council of the neighboring United Counties, a: without invidious intent, it usually meets at 3 p.m. and all the members are expected to be in their places when the warning bell sounds at about a minute before three o'clock. Sometimes committees meet immediately after the opening session, and almost invariably at least one committee meets that night. Others ask for appointments at 10 or 11 o'clock the following morning, and another committee may meet prior to the opening of the second day's session, again promptly at 3 p.m. And rarely does any committee of the Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham exclude the press. At least that was the practice over quite a number of years, and presumably it is retained.

These observations are merely pointing out a difference in approach, and certainly does not refer in any way to what is actually done. It refers to a way of doing business, rather than to the utimate business itself. And this way puts responsibility, deputes it, to committees, thereby saving time, and resulting in conclusive business reaching the Council with a economy of time in the committee stage. The Examiner has occasionally seen three committees in session at once at Cobourg, and no one ever suggested that their business was neglected or given short shift.

All Meet in Council Chamber

Peterborough Council has its small committees such as the House of Refuge Board, Reforestation Committee, County Roads Commission and so on, but whatever their constitution they all meet in the Council Chamber, one after the other.

And as to the hour of Council beginning its sessions, if the members are satisfied without a precise time of meeting that is their affair, but some of the members assert it is far too dilatory a way of setting about a morning or afternoon's affairs.

Presumably time could be saved during a session and could be allotted to at least several periods between the customary sessions with a continuity of freshness in contact with affairs that might in the end be an advantage to the Council and the county. That is the sort of detail the Council has to decide. It seems that they could streamline their methods, save a few days here and there, and spread them over extra meetings in March and possibly September without adding anything to the year's cost in sessional indemnities.

At the very least they could fix a time for meeting, and to refer once more, as Miss Batten did, to the Northumberland - Durham Council, they could strain a point of convenience, or whatever it is, to begin their sessions at that time, and not thirty or forty minutes later, as has often happened in recent years.

100,000 Killed

New York, June 23 (AP)

HAROLD Beresford Butler, new British Minister to the United States, said last night on arriving by clipper that at least 100,000 lives had been lost in the United Kingdom during the war and that every fifth house had been damaged or destroyed by bombs.

"We are now hitting back hard," he said in a statement.

Butler, who will head the British information services in the United States, succeeding Sir Gerald Campbell, said in reply to a question that 58,000 British servicemen were killed or missing since the war started and 44,000 civilians killed in air raids.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from McDermid & Jury or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended, and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money. —(Advt.)

A GUESSING CONTEST

Finance Minister Ilsley will bring down the budget at eight o'clock this evening, setting a precedent in that it is the first time a budget has been brought down at such a time. Down the main street gossip is rampant on which commodities will get an extra tax, and the general opinion is that beer, whiskey, cigarettes, will be hit, and the National Defence tax will scale upward.

FIRST BOAT TRIP

It is true that there are hundreds of people in this city who have never enjoyed a boat trip down the Otonabee river, and for that reason it is believed such trips will be popular this summer. On Wednesday afternoon the first excursion of the season will be held, when St. Paul's Congregational picnic will take place at Wallace Point.

NO BIDDERS

No contractors have submitted bids on the super-structure of the new incinerator as yet, it was learned today. T. F. Doughty completed the excavation work some time ago, and employees of the Board of Works are busy putting in the concrete work, which will be practically completed in ten days.

WILL FINISH TODAY

With very few exceptions householders throughout the entire city will have received their sugar ration cards which must be filled out and ready today. Citizens are asking the postmen for cards, indicating that the people are aware of the situation. However postmen do not carry extra ones, but they may be obtained at the Post Office or at the Wartime Prices and Trade Board office.

FLOOD OF WEDDINGS

At this date it appears June 27, next Saturday will set an all time record for weddings in a single day. There has been a regular army of young couples marching to the altar every Saturday and holiday with many more during the week days, but applications for marriage licenses, indicate the next two Saturdays will be boom days for the clergymen and the portrait photographers.

FRUIT AND BLOSSOMS.

Lou Brooks, former restaurant owner of this city, discovered a rather unusual situation in his garden. He has a pear tree which has well-formed pears on it already, and on the same branch as the fruit are pear blossoms.

NEW POTATOES.

Ernest Holden, 482 Driscoll Terrace, had new potatoes on Monday, setting something of a record in the city for early spuds. He dug around a few hills just to see how the potatoes were coming, and discovered several as large as a hen's egg.

WHEEL, CAR COLLIDE

Jack Feal, 10 years old of 157 Hart avenue, was knocked off his bicycle but escaped with minor injuries when his wheel collided with the back of an automobile on Dalhousie street near Park street Monday. Kerchel Welbourn, 218 Reid street, was driving his car west on Dalhousie street and slowed down as he neared Park street. The boy, riding his bicycle behind the car, failed to stop in time and the wheel ran into the rear of the automobile. The boy had a scrape on the inside of his leg and scratches on the abdomen but was otherwise unhurt. The forks of the bicycle were damaged.

BEACH IS OPEN

Inverlea Bathing Beach is now open to the public; in fact the bathing house was thrown open last week and Paul Imming, Antrim street has been engaged as life guard and is on duty. While the absence of hot summer weather has prevented a rush to the beach there has been a fair attendance of young bathers.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, June 24

AN OUTSTANDING period for pushing toward high goals, with the promise of possibly sudden and unexpected advancement, recognition or preferment from influential personages is the augury based on interesting planetary configurations. This prospect for great fulfillments and personal gratification and happiness also has some difficulties and dangers, not only from impulsive, emotional or dramatic behaviorisms but as well by fraud, treachery or litigation. With restraint and moderation there should be rich rewards.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is stand at the thresold of a year of rich returns for faithful and worthy past labors. Superiors, employers and those in power will be found ready to be generous and friendly in bestowing such largesse where rightfully due. It may materialize in increase of financial security, expansive business standing, or in enhanced position in the social, cultural or public affiliations, all assuring personal prestige and popularity. Impetuosity, rash moves or contention should not be allowed to interfere with the advent of such good fortune.

A child born on this day should be ambitious, efficient and fertile in organizing a plan of action bound to bring it much success and happiness in life. It will be noble, generous and good hearted.

DOCTORS ON CALL.

The Peterborough Doctors are observing Wednesday Afternoon as a Half-Holiday throughout the year. Those on call on Wednesday Afternoon and Evening of this week are: Dr. C. M. Scott, Dr. D. W. Clark, Dr. H. V. Dobson.

Villages Swept By Fire Being Rebuilt

Two northern villages which were swept by fire will have new structures rearing their heads towards the skies in the near future, replacing those levelled in the fires. Kinmount which lost its entire business section, and Minden with half the business section demolished will both blossom forth again with much of their former appearances.

The general opinion following these tragedies was that the buildings would never be rebuilt, but now it seems the owners have got straightened away, and decided they would try again on the same spots to earn their living.

At Minden practically all of the buildings are either underway or will be started shortly. W. McArthur, proprietor of the Minden Echo Printing Company is erecting a single storey printing shop and office. D. B. Hartle will replace his three-storey grocery store and living quarters. Herbert McKelvey is erecting a two-storey frame restaurant and apartments for Lott's restaurant and his own ocupancy. Percy Brintnell, in whose bakeshop the fire started, is erecting stores and apartment, two storeys, frame construction to house Brintnell's bakery, Easton's butcher shop and office for J. Lorne Dawson. Phillip Taylor has sold his garage business, and the new owner may rebuild.

At Kinmount it is much the same storey, although it is doubtful if a number of buildings will equal those burned. Fred Marks, hardware, Gordon B. Hopkins, dry goods, J. Thompson, groceries, Henry Butts, hotel owner, all plan to rebuild and it is reliably reported that another building to accommodate restaurant and Bell Telephone will be built also. At the present time, a Coboconk contractor has a two-storey stone store building underway for J. Thompson, grocer.

Institute Honors Miss Bessie G. French

TRENT RIVER, June 23—(ENS). Members of the Women's Institute, friends of the community and cottagers of Trent River met at the War Service Workers' Rooms to honor Miss Bessie G. French on the eve of her departure for Toronto and present her with a table lamp and duffle bag. Mrs. Melville Wight read the address, Mrs. William G. McLaughlin and Mrs Harry Mann made the presentation. Miss French expressed her deep appreciation for the lovely gifts. Miss French spent the past six months in Toronto, returning to Trent River recently for three weeks.

Domestic Labor Shortage Acute

The shortage of domestic labor in this city is daily growing more acute, and at the present time there are 19 requests for maids, cooks and other domestic help lying in the Unemployment Insurance office, unfilled because there are no women and girls available.

The same situation exists in regard to summer resorts and hotels who depend on extra help for the summer months. Miss Irene Ruth who handles this work in the Unemployment office sees no easing off in this shortage which has existed for some months. All the girls who normally would be interested in this work are being funnelled into factory positions which pay much better wages and give much better working hours than any domestic job would offer.

LUCKY MISSES

This is the second scholarship he has won since attending McMaster. He received the S. L. Squire Scholarship in mathematics in his first year.

Robert Graham Is Awarded Scholarship

Robert L. Graham, of McMaster University, Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Graham 8 Aberdeen avenue, has been awarded the Governor-General's Medal which is given to the Third Year student who ranks highest in scholarship, personal character and influence, and in qualities of leadership. He is a student in Honor Mathematics and Physics.

His career in college has been a distinguished one. In his first year he was the winner of the S. L. Squire Scholarship, a valuable one in Mathematics. Since there have been R.C.A.F. men in the University taking the Radio Technicians' Course, he has been an assistant instructor in this work.

The name of Graham is a well known one around McMaster University. The late Rev. John E. Davis, grandfather of the present student is on the graduate list in 1897 with a B.A. degree. Both his mother and father are graduates too. Mr. H. H. Graham, Science Master at the P.C.I., graduated in 1914, and Mrs. Graham, the former Evelyn Davis, graduated in 1915.

While attending the Collegiate here, "Bob" made many friends and had an enviable scholastic record, with a number of Nicholls Scholarships to his credit and always ranking at the head of his class.

This is an amazing record for one so young and his parents are to be congratulated on his success.

MRS. REGINALD AKERS

A well known resident of Peterborough died in the Civic Hospital at Ottawa this morning after a short illness in the passing of Ethel Smith, wife of Reginald Akers of Peterborough in her 49th year.

Mrs. Akers had gone to Ottawa only a short time ago for an operation.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, Carlisle avenue and was born in Yorkshire, England, coming to Peterborough over 29 years ago and residing here since that time.

Surviving are her husband, Reginad Akers, 521 Romaine street, two daughters, Jean and Helen of Peterborough, and two sons, Ronald, Peterborough, and Melville with the R.C.A. overseas, a sister, Mrs. A. Lounsberry of Brantford and a brother, Arnold Smith, Peterborough.

The funeral service will be held Thursday, June 25, from Nesbitt's funeral home, 347 Charlotte street, at 2 p.m., with interment in Little Lake cemetery. Rev. H. R. Roberts of George Street United church will officiate.

MRS. MATHEW McCARTHY.

Friends will mourn the passing of a life-long resident of Peterborough County Mrs. Mathew McCarthy, Hastings, who died on Monday after a very short illness in Peterborough, in her 80th year. The late Mrs. McCarthy was a staunch churchwoman and took a keen and active interest in the furtherance of its work.

Born in Ireland, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gallagher, the former Catherine Gallagher came to Ontario as a very young child, and has been here about 77 years. She was the widow of the late Mathew McCarthy. Mrs. McCarthy was a member of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, in Hastings.

She and her family have lived in several places in Peterborough County. In 1916 they resided in Hastings and from there they moved to Norwood. In 1937, Mrs. McCarthy went to Douro and since then she had divided her time between Douro and Hastings, where she lived with her daughter, Mrs. M. A. O'Shea.

Surviving her are two daughters, Sister Mary Adele of Toronto and Mrs. M. A. O'Shea, Hastings; three sons, Rev. J. J. McCarthy, Douro, James F. McCarthy of Prescott, and Joseph McCarthy of Toledo, Ohio. There is also one sister, Mrs. James O'Shaughnessy of Campbellford.

The funeral will take place on Thursday from St. Joseph's Church in Douro at 9:30, when Requiem Mass will be sung for the repose of her soul. The body will then proceed to Hastings where interment will be in Mount Carmel Cemetery.

600 More Cars Secure Licenses In City

The number of automobile licenses issued so far this year has exceeded those of last year by about six hundred, James Dorris, of the Chamber of Commerce said Monday, giving as his reason the fact that there has been such an influx of the population from other places who are buying their licenses here instead of "back home." To date there have been 8000 licenses granted to car owners, with no particular sign of a let-up.

When asked if he thought the rubber and gasoline shortage would have any bearing on the situation, Mr. Dorris said that he thought it would affect it considerably. So far, there has only been about forty per cent. of the tourist inquiries received this year and there has been a noticable falling off in the prospect of American tourists, too Last year, of the number of tourist requests pouring in. 75 per cent were American. This year it is divided about equally, with 50 per cent. Canadian and 50 per cent. American.

"Not only does the gas and rubber shortage affect these people," Mr. Dorris said, "but many of them are working on war production and do not expect to receive any holidays If they get them it will be a short and last minute affair, and they will not be travelling this far."

Musical Program At Strawberry Social

COTTESLOE, June 23—(ENS).— On Friday evening a merry crowd attended the Y.P.S. strawberry social. After supper a good program was given in the church, with Mr. Thistlewaite in the chair.

Rev. Mr. Snelgrove of Warsaw, who already has won the hearts of the people here, brought greetings and spoke on how happy such occasions are, when we leave our work and meet other people. George Bennet of Warsaw sang many songs and was heartily applauded. Recitations were given by Helen Tedford, Susie Matthews, Isobel Gallagher and Albert Thistlewaite. Shirley Cuffe rendered a solo, and a trio was given by little Misses Sheila, Dorothy and Leona McMillan. A duet by Betty Barr and Marjorie Patterson and a duet by Isobel Matthews and Bernice Scott, Norwood. The singing of the National Anthem brought a pleasant evening to a close.

County Council Completes 18th Donation

This is a red letter day for the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, marking as it does the passing of the $43,000 mark for the fund, and what is far more important, the cabling of the 18th donation of £500 to England, to make a grand total of £9,600 sent to date to give succor to those who have suffered so much from attacks from the air.

All of this was made possible by a grant of $500, voted at the recent sessions of the Peterborough County Council, of which Norman Lean is Warden, for which the fund management expresses its gratitude, and is in itself a token of the interest that the whole district takes in the welfare of the cause of helping the British people.

The money was sent in the usual manner by cable transfer this morning, accompanied by a cable to the Lord Maor of London in which reference was made to its completion by the Peterborough County Council.

Coming on top of the recent heavy air raid by the Germans on Southampton when more people lost their lives, this should be most welcome indeed. Recently the Omemee and District Horticultural Society had a meeting at which Messrs. Butchardt and Harrison, members of the Rural School Beautification Commission presented pictures and gave addresses, and from a collection taken at it, a donation of $3.25 is recorded in today's list for the fund per Horace Hill which came in through the fund's representative, Rev. R. M. Patterson of Omemee.

Decoration Dad Sunday

Next Sunday is Decoration Day, an event originated and sponsored by the Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges of Oddfellows of this city, as it is in many places in the Dominion, and at this gathering an appeal on behalf of the fund will be sponsored by them, which will be voiced by former Mayor, G. A. MacDonald, further details of which will appear later on this week. At the same time we would remind those interested that flower pot holders are available for the decoration of the graves at small cost, and can be procured from Isaac M. Harrison at the greenhouse at Little Lake cemetery. Every cent from the sale of these will come to the fund, since they have been made and donated for the cause by William Naish.

Bridge Tender Averts Water Tragedy

Plunging into the Otonabee River just below the canoe slide, Eric Kimball, tender of the bridge over the river about the Peterborough lock, reached and rescued seven-year-old Donald McIntosh, Lansdowne street, just in the nick of time.

The little lad had been playing around the canoe slide and slipped into the swift water below the lock. Kimball, at his home nearby, heard a commotion and ran to the slide in time to see the boy being whirled around in the eddy and in bad shape. The bridge-tender wasted no time in swimming to the rescue and bringing the little fellow to shore. His quick action and disregard of possible consequences to himself undoubtedly averted a tragedy.

Incidentally, Mr. Kimball would like to sound a warning to parents of young children to keep them from places of danger around the river.

"The holiday season is at hand and there are many spots that are dangerous, but that does not keep the youngsters away," he said, "and you can't keep your eyes on all of them."

Awning Bylaw Irks Commission

At the last meeting of the board of police commissioners a request was received from the city council that the city regulations in regard to awnings should be more strictly enforced and accordingly instructions to that effect were passed on by the commission to the Chief Constable.

Since then members of the police department have been busy checking on the heights of awnings above the sidewalk, in accordance with the request of council.

But a glance at the section of the building bylaw dealing with this matter reveals a legal snag.

The section in question reads "No awning shall be supported on iron or other supports extending to the sidewalk in front of a building but said awning shall be supported on iron or steel framework secured no the building and no part of the same shall be nearer to the sidewalk than eight feet."

According to the construction of that sentence the words "no part of the same" could refer either to the awning or the frame and it makes a lot of difference. Most awnings have fringes hanging down six inches or more below the frame and in such cases the frame itself might be eight feet clear of the sidewalk while the fringe would be closer to the ground.

Probably the difficulty cannot be cleared up without a test case. And even then the court may take the position that it is not supposed to guess what was in the minds of the city legislators when they passed that section of the building bylaw.

In other words, the council may eventually have to make it clear whether it meant the awning itself or the frame thereof in the eight-foot order.

Religious Training In Schools Receives Cooperation Of All

The Committee for Religious Training in Public Schools met in the Y.M.C.A. on Monday afternoon. Rev. Dr. E. W. Young presided and present were Adjutant Norman Buckley, Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart, Revs. F. W. Craik, C. C. Boyter, H. N. Bracken, and W. A. Filer.

The work of the past year was reviewed and it was felt that there has been a growing interest on the part of the pupils and parents. In some cases oral examinations are held at intervals, and these show that the pupils have given close attention to the Scripture lessons. In at least one school the principal and teachers follow up the course of study on other days of the week.

The chairman was asked to procure a supply of hymn sheets for those ministers who desire to use them.

The course of lessons for next year was arranged as follows:

September to Christmas — The Old Testament Beginnings of Israel and the Journey from Egypt to the Promised Land as found in the syllabus of Bible study prepared by the Interdenominational Committee, this course to be followed in the spring and summer by lessons on the Life of Christ.

Appointments for the next session were made:

King Edward School—Rev. F. W. Craik.

King George School—Rev. E. W. Rowland.

Prince of Wales School—Adjutant Norman Buckley and Rev. W. A. Filer.

Queen Alexandra School — Rev. H. N. Bracken.

Queen Mary School—Rev. Dr. E. W. Young.

Central School—Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe.

May's School—Rev. H. J. Mahoney

Confederation School—Rev. C. C. Boyter.

Queen Elizabeth School—Rev. Dr. M. C. McLean.

Substitues—Revs. E. C. Moore, H. L. Roberts William McDonald, A. H. MacConnachie, and Fred Horton.

It was proposed by Rev. F. W. Craik, seconded by Rev. W. A. Filer, that the committee express its deep appreciation for the hearty cooperation that the principals and teachers of the schools have given to the ministers during their visits to the schools during the past year.

Repeated mention was made in the discussion of the value of the religious exercises conducted by the teachers in classes each morning of the week. Selected passages of the Bible are committed to memory, and the Scriptures are read daily from selected chapters. Testimony was borne to the fact that several teachers spend much time upon this portion of the school curriculum.

10 Applications Have Been Made Dependents' Advisory Committee

Although the Dependents' Advisory committee in Peterborough has only been in operation since the first of June, there have already been ten cases under consideration by the committee under the chairmanship of G. A. Gillespie, Mrs H. K. Fallis, secretary, said Monday.

Some of the ten are still under consideration, but it is believed that all are justifiable cases and the speed with which they are handled depends on the urgency of the request. When a real emergency arises this branch can authorize the payment of funds as soon as notification can be sent to Toronto and the money sent back, a matter of about two days. Those who are not in such desperate straights, may be dealt with a little more slowly.

One unusual aspect of the applications so far received, is not only to distribute requests come by mail, but also local requests. The committee is of the opinion that perhaps those in Peterborough do not realize that they can apply at the Dependents' Advisory committee's office in the City Buildings for assistance by way of advice or grants of money.

Unless the case is extremely unusual the decisions and payment are left in the hands of the committee here. Most of those who have applied so far have been women, with two or three children, who were managing nicely on the allowance until they had some sickness or some other unexpected drain with which trey were simply unable to cope.

The majority of the cases to date, according to Mrs. Fallis, have been mostly district, with only four local appeals. The district appeals came from Norwood, Lindsay, Brighton and Belleville.

The committee, which meets regularly to discuss matters carefully, is composed of G. A. Gillespie, Peterborough, William Ford, Belleville, Mrs. Paige Rowell, Peterborough, J E. Sullivan, Peterborough, Mrs. Robina Templeton, Belleville, Mrs. Reginald Turner, Peterborough, and Peter Wallace Peterborough.

Council Awards

ial meeting on Thursday. The Reeve then suggested the town would save money by purchasing a truck of its own and putting regular town employees on the work of collecting garbage. "We would then have a truck for moving any machinery and hauling gravel when required." Other members were of the opinion that upkeep would offset the advantage. "A man will take better care of his own truck than of one owned by the town," said Grant Anderson. On motion of Deputy Reeve MacMillan and Councillor Fowlds the tender of Roy Martin was accepted.

Oppose Action

Council re-acted quickly to the information made public this week that the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce was to close its doors here. On motion the clerk was authorized to write a letter to the Head Office expressing their concern and disappointment at this action particularly in view of the fact the Commerce had taken over the old Standard Branch, the oldest one in the corporation. They viewed the decision as highly regrettable.

Deputy Reeve MacMillan raised the question of weed-cutting and claimed it was impossible to hire a farmer with a mower to do the work this year. Scything the weeds was not economical in his opinion and he felt the town should obtain a one horse mower of its own. On motion of the Reeve and Councillor Maguire he was authorized to purchaseo either a used or new mower.

Identify Gloves

Detective Sergeant J. Ewing of Toronto police force testified that he had interviewed the accused, Verral, at No. 4 police station, Toronto, after Verral had been picked up driving a car which had been listed by police as wanted. In the car, the sergeant found a short crowbar, which was entered as an exhibit, four pairs of gloves, a small paint brush. The sergeant stated that the end of the bar bore specks of what looked like white paint. He said the accused had stated the bar was used in fixing the car, and had explained that the gloves were used at work. Verral had also admitted, the sergeant testified, that he had been in Campbellford on April 28.

The service station proprietor, Hay, was recalled to the stand to identify one of the four pairs of gloves. He pointed out various tears in them and stated definitely that they had been in the service station the night of the robbery. He said the gloves belonged to him and had been given him two years previously. He said the paint brush found in Verral's car was very similar to one which had been in the service station.

Provincial Constable D. M. Carruthers of Campbellford, who investigated the break-in on April 28 said that he had been forwarded the bar found in the Verral car in Toronto and had compared it with the groove found in the window casing and had found they matched.

A second charge against Verral of stealing gasoline on May 1, was withdrawn by Crown Attorney Deyman after the accused had pleaded not guilty.

Lifford Friends Welcome Newlyweds

LIFFORD LINE, June 23—(ENS). —A jolly bunch of Lifford and Brunswick friends including about fifty people in all, gathered on Wednesday evening at the beautiful farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lang, who were recently married at Omemee. The marriage was performed by Rev. R. M. Patterson of the Omemee United church at the parsonage. The bride before her marriage was Mrs. Evelyn McPhee, a well known and popular youg lady of the village Mr. Lang, eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Lang, has spent his entire life at the homestead.

The spacious rooms of their new home were hospitably lighted and thrown open to the invaders.

Toward the conclusion of the evening lemonade, sandwiches and cake were served to all and the crowd dispersed, leaving behind every good wish for a happy, prosperous married life.

Living Scenery on View in a Terrarium

"Lake" Bottom Is A Cake Pan

A living miniature of your favorite view, in a glass box — hills, lakes, trees and flowers!

You can make such a terrarium easily, with panes of glass and electrician's tape, or you may use a fishbowl. Your hills and valleys are loamy soil covered with green moss, your trees are tiny spruce seedlings and budding twigs of forsythia.

In the humid atmosphere of a terrarium the forsythia flowers quickly and lasts for weeks.

To make the beautiful lake with its winding rill, fill a cake pan with water and fit it at the bottom of the terrarium. Over it place a sheet of tin, as our sketch shows, from which a "lake" shape was cut with an old pair of scissors.

You may also make desert scenes, using cacti and sedums, and place a tiny donkey and Mexican of pottery in their midst. Many lovely glass gardens — in jugs and jars — grow a single plant to perfection, a begonia, orchid, gardenia.

Our 32-page booklet shows how to make all kinds of terrariums, grow pine and palm, cactus and orchid, African violet, begonia, croton and many more flowering and foliage plants. Also has directions for dish gardens.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of "Glass Gardens and Novelty Indoor Gardens" to Peterborough Examiner, Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

"The Authority on Authorities"

OUT-THINKING THINKERS

CERTAIN stratagems are never tried by fine players against average opponents, but are attempted only on advanced ones. Why is that? It would seem illogical, as the expert would off-hand be expected to see through a scheme to mislead him. The answer is that some of the dodges of the canny depend upon making an opponent go through a certain line of reasoning which would not be used by any but a very skillful cardsman.

The first moment he heard the bid, East thought of West's spade call as a possible lead-director in case the opponents ultimately got into No Trumps. He was all ready to do it, until South made that bid of 2-No Trumps. Being a careful calculator, East decided that North's diamond rebid, after having bid No Trumps once, indicated he had a single stopper in the suit, and so feared it.

When South, knowing about North's apparent fear, then bid No Trumps himself, that sounded to East as if South was showing a second spade stopper. Hence, he reckoned, West must have pretty good stuff elsewhere in his hand, probably in the heart suit which South had bid. Consequently he led the heart 3 and the jig was up. Winning that, North took two diamonds, gave up one to West, captured the spade return and then ran the balance of the needed nine tricks.

Most members of the rank and file could have been depended on to lead a spade after West showed the suit. That would have knocked out the A, and then, when a diamond had been lost, spades would have beaten the contract. Consequently, as South said later, he never would have made that 2-No Trumps call against anybody but a thinking player, and North therefore would not have raised to 3-No Trumps.

POEMS THAT PAID.

Thomas Moore received $15,000 for his book of poems, Lalla Rookh.

BRANTFORD, Ont., June 23. — (CP)— Burford Township is becoming a wild place. Recently a wolf was shot, and its mate is still in the vicinity, howling nightly. Besides this, there is now a bear roaming around, and it has been seen twice according to Game Overseer Peter Porter.

Music Festival Success In Cavan Schools

CAVAN, June 23 (ENS) — The first musical festival for North Cavan schools, under the direction of Mr. Homer Oulette, of Millbrook, was held in Cavan Community Hall, on Tuesday evening, and the hall was filled to capacity.

Mr. V. R. Hunter, the chairman, made a few remarks and called on Mr. Oulette, the music teacher. Mr. Oulette explained that the purpose in holding this festival was not to give prizes as is the case in most festivals, but was to show the parents and others in the community the benefit derived from the teaching of music in the schools. He said he plans to hold a festival each spring, thus another time the parents will be able to see the benefit derived from the year's studies.

The schools which took part in the festival were as follows: Mount Pleasant school with Miss Jean Fairburn as teacher; Sharpe's school with Miss Yeo, teacher; Fairmount school, Miss Scott, teacher; Cedar Grove school, Mr. Haggerman, teacher; Town Hall School, North Monaghan, Miss Marjorie Galbraith, teacher.

Fraser Carr of Cavan School, added an interesting feature to the program when he repeated the address which won him second prize in the Durham County finals and third prize in the District Finals at Brighton. His subject was the "Ideals of Democracy."

Obituaries

HUGH SHANNON.

MARMORA, June 23. — (ENS).— It was with feelings of sincere regret that residents of Marmora and district learned on Friday evening of the death of Hugh Shannon, the oldest resident of the community who passed away on the farm homestead where he was born about 90 years ago, and where all his long life was spent except for a short residence in Marmora Village.

Born on January 10, 1853, of pioneer residents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Shannon, Sr., he was widely known and highly respected for his sterling qualities. Besides farming in his younger days he worked at the carpenter trade and assisted in the building of many of the business places in the village. His friendly manner endeared him to all who knew him and many enjoyed his stories of bygone days.

He is survived by his son Donald, with whom he resided and five daughters, Mrs. C. J. Munn, Timmins, Mrs. R. H. Keast, Copper Cliff, Mrs. Martin Skelley, Rochester, N.Y., and Mrs. L. P. Hughes, Marmora Township, and Mrs. D. McGrath, Marmora Township. One son Lawlor predeceased him about seven years ago. His wife, formerly Josephine Torlion, predeceased him five years ago.

The funeral was held from his late residence on Monday mornnig. Requiem mass at the Sacred Heart Church at 9:30 a.m., was sung by Rev. H. J. Farrell. Interment took place in Sacred Heart Cemetery.

Buchanan (Annie) of Barrie, Mrs. E. Rutherford (Ida) of Windsor Merton of Millbrook, and Clifford at home. Surviving also are two brothers, Thomas and John Fallis of Manvers, sixteen grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

Blacklist Widened

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP).— —The Government had extended its economic blacklist to 86 firms and individuals in Iran and Iraq and in the tiny European states of Andorra, between Spain and France and Liehtenstein, on the Swiss-German border. It also added 142 firms and individuals in Spain, Portugal, Switzerland, Sweden and Turkey, and 308 more listings in 13 American republics, bringing close to 9,000 the number of persons ond corporations the United States Government believes to be operating for the benefit of the enemy, and with which United States citizens are forbidden to trade.

The Crete Jump-Off

ALEXANDRIA, June 23.—(AP).—Cmdr. Thanos Spanides of a Greek submarine raider famed for exploits against the Axis, reported today after his return to port that "the Axis seem to have lots of aircraft on Crete and in Greece."

"They are digging big underground hangars into the sides of the mountains in Crete and improving and extending the Maleme airdrome," the commander said. (Crete has frequently been mentioned as an obvious springboard for any Axis offensive in the Middle East.)

LAKEFIELD

Decoration Rally Hears Stirring Call For Action

LAKEFIELD, June 23. — (ENS)— Perfect June weather featured the annual decoration services of the Lakefield I.O.O.F. at the cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Members led by Marshal Bro. George H. Hendren, formed at the lodge Hall at 2.15 and preceded by the Salvation Army Boys' Band of Peterborough under the leadership of James R. Victor marched to the cenotaph. Here P.G. Bro. Ellis Simpson and P.G. Bro. Hilliard McCracken, placed a wreath in honor of the fallen. A two minutes' silence was observed and the band played a hymn. The brethren then paraded as far as Coyle's garage where they entered autos for the trip to the cemetery.

Over a hundred cars conveyed citizens from all walks of life to the beautiful setting where the Rev. Reg. Howden of Barrie and formerly rector of St. John's Church, Lakefield, delivered a stirring address calling for a more determined rally behind the United Nation cause.

During the decoration of some eighteen graves, with about thirty-five lodge members taking part the band softly played several beautiful old hymns.

The Rev. Mr. Howden in his address stressed the occasion as an opportunity for us not only to pay our tribute to the departed but to renew our faith in the life beyond to which they have passed. God speaks to us today to reassure us of a reward beyond with a message of cheer and strength, and hope, a call for the United Nations who bear the responsibility of defending by the sword, the great principles of right and justice and freedom, which those our departed brethren have entrusted to our care.

God speaks, said Mr. Howden not only in words of comfort but words that challenge us to action, and greater reassurance in our struggle towards victory. "The vital key word is 'forward' to drive back the forces of evil—to cultivate in the world God's principles of freedom, justice and righteousness."

And in closing called for the organizing of the whole manpower of the nation in one vast crusade for victory.

The Ladies' Aid president, Mrs. Burke Stephens, expressed her appreciation to all of those who contributed to the success of the evening.

Mighty Blunder In Libya Hints U.K. Press

By LOUIS HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 23—(CP Cable)— Morning papers told the news of Tobruk's fall in brutally frank headlines today such as "disaster at Tobruk" and editorial pages were almost unanimous in demands for an explanation.

The Mirror, frequent government critic, asked: "What has happened to bring about this crisis? The public will want to know and they are entitled to know."

"The sooner Churchill can be back in his place and make a frank and full statement the better," the Mirror added. "We had been led to expect so much and have got so little. What is the mystery of Libya? The nation demands an answer."

The Times said "The loss of many thousands of prisoners at Tobruk together with equipment is incontestably a disaster."

The Times suggested cautiously that the British Middle East army needs "radical innovations in tactical method and mechanical design" in order to throw Rommel out again.

"It is not unnatural that some misgivings should be felt in this country over the course chosen," the Times added.

The Daily Telegraph said: "Something has happened which calls for careful examination and inquiry and, in due course, decisive action by the government....for the sacrifice of men and material on a scale which the Germans report there is no condonation possible.

"Something Very Wrong"

"Events declare there has been something very wrong with the Middle East operations and the cabinet must recognize the necessity to set it right without delay."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express avoided direct criticism of the government but pointed to Tobruk's loss as "a disaster for the defenders of Egypt and a great blow to the hopes of this nation."

Analyzing implications of the defeat, the Daily Herald—calling it a "grave, humiliating disaster to British arms....We can erase only by titanic struggle—said Britain's grip on the Mediterranean was further enfeebled, her power to strike at Italy reduced and her task of defending Egypt and Suez made more difficult."

The Daily Herald added: "And one of our most important contributions to Allied strategy—the provision of a potential menace to the Nazi forces in southern Russia—has, for the time being at least, sharply fallen in value.

"Let us pray the western second front when it comes into operation will be organized with vastly better appreciation of the enemy's capacity than we have shown in Libya. We have been outweaponed and outwitted. But the fullest allowances for the difficulties does not remove the impression there has been some mighty blundering—blundering on a scale Britain does not dare indulge.

It said the common citizen was grieved by "official over-optimism," and declared: "This means either there is still a dangerous weakness in our intelligence service or else that those directing the military effort persist, even to this day, in under-estimating the enemy."

'Beaver' Advises 2nd Front, Quick

BIRMINGHAM, June 23 — (CP Cable)—Lord Beaverbrook, who has been one of Prime Minister Churchill's closest collaborators in Industrial production for war, declared Sunday: "There must be no unnecessary delay in sending forthwith a second expeditionary force to fight on a second front."

Addressing a crowd observing the anniversary of the German attack on Russia, one day in advance, Lord Beaverbrook said also—"We have been promised a second front. We have been promised it by the government. Now the need is for urgency."

Lord Beaverbrook, who faced one of the greatest open-air meetings in Birmingham's history, called for "hatred" until final victory is won.

He charged the German people approved Hitler at every stage as he led them from "crime to time." He added: "our bombers have done wonderfully well, but the war will be won by an army propery supported and rightly sustained by bombers and fighting aircraft.

"The arm in my opinion is adequately equipped for this job. The army . . . is waiting for it and wanting to do it. The British Army wants a second front . . . Fifth columnists outnumbering the Germans will support a second front—we must let them go their way."

He said that Russia's campaign last winter was "the greatest study in the annals of man's fight in this century" and that the Germans barely escape complete defeat in the winter months.

Lord Beaverbrook said "now is the time for us to show we are warriors of the world, not by money and munitions, of plans or projects but be sharp hard blows and killing and killing."

He said that Russian pilots had shot down 12,000 German planes in the last year.

Sweeping The Harbor

Berlin, (From German Broadcasts), June 23 (AP)

THE German high command claimed today a German motor torpedo boat flotilla attacked a formation of small British coastal craft and freighters leaving Tobruk Sunday and destroyed it.

One patrol boat, six coastal craft and one freighter of 4,500 tons were sunk, three other coastal craft captured and 175 men taken prisoner, the communique reported. (There was no confirmation of the report.)

A German mine-sweeping flotilla has entered Tobruk harbor, it was said.

War Pressure Encourages More Meetings

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23. — (ENS). — Members of Tabernacle Church (English Line) Women's Association and their husbands were guests of Rev. J. R. Bick and Mrs. Bick at the Rear Street parsonage for a social evening and meeting on Tuesday. Upwards of thirty attended and the gathering was presided over by the W.A. president, Mrs. E. J. Mitchell, while Mrs. Bick officially welcomed the guests. Contrary to the general practice of cancelling meetings during July and August, it was announced that an effort would be made to sustain them during the summer months and although the usual quilting program was suspended members will continue to make patches which will be pooled for the September meeting when an energetic quilt-making program will begin anew.

Program of the evening included a vocal solo by Mrs. F. G. DeCarrol, a reading by Mrs. Edna Bixby, reading by Mrs. Alexander Stephens, contest by Mrs. Ross Stephens, piano solo by Mrs. Harry Grills, piano solo by Miss Helen Smith.

At the close dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mission Circle.

Thirty-three members of St. Andrew's Young Ladies' Mission Circle were guests of Mrs. Alexander McKenzie for their regular meeting on Tuesday evening. The president, Miss Hazel Atkinson presided for the business when it was decided the group would establish a precedent by holding a July meeting. Generally the Mission Circle holds its final gathering of the season in June, but when Mrs. Gordon McCulloch offered her home for the occasion members favored the idea of holding another meeting on July 21. Miss Esther Innes gave the Scripture reading and Mrs. Gordon McCulloch also assisted with the devotional period. A highlight of the program was a report from Mrs. Edison Wynn on the Presbyterial held in Brighton last month, and a report by Mrs. A. G. Thompson on the Young Women's Conference recently concluded in Orillia. Other items included a vocal solo by Mrs. Charles Milne and a reading by Miss Lillian Hay. Following this, Rev. J. O. Ralston recently inducted at St. Andrew's, addressed the gathering briefly, and lunch was served by the hostess and her committee, comprising Miss S. Brown, Mrs. Harry Townsend, and Mrs. Eldon Carlaw.

200 Hun Tanks Cut Hole at Kharkov

MOSCOW, June 24 — (AP) — Reckless charges by hundreds of Nazi tanks followed by infantry have driven a wedge into the Red army defences on the Kharkov front in the Ukraine and are bringing overpowering strength to bear against the far-outnumbered defenders of Sevastopol in the Crimea, the Russians conceded today.

At a single point on the Kharkov front, the Germans massed 200 tanks in an onslaught which began on June 22, first anniversary of the German invasion, and has been increasing constantly in fury and force, said Russian dispatches from the battlefront.

Dispatches to Izvestia from besieged Sevastopol declared that the fight for the important port "continues with unabating ferocity" and said "superior enemy forces are furiously pressing toward the town."

The newspaper's account said thousands of German dead littered the battlefields after every attack.

At Sevastopol, the overwhelming force of the German offensive was indicated by a report that the Nazis sent two division of infantry (up to 30,000 men) and numerous tanks into the attack in a single narrow strip.

But The Reds Beat Them Back

The infantry crept forward under camouflage and through ditches and shell craters behind the tanks, but the Sevasopol garrison managed to establish a flanking fire that checked the enemy. Then a counter-attack forced the Germans to retreat, said the Russian account. This apparently was on a peninsula in the bay north of Sevastopol.

At another point north of Sevastopol the Russians mustered the strength to recapture a hilltop, but the Germans still poured more men and machines into the assault now in its 20th day.

On the Kharkov front the story was similar.

While the defenders of the beseiged Crimean port of Sevastopol staved off superior enemy forces in a battle now in its 20th day, the strong attack in the Kharkov area began Monday and has gained in vigor ever since.

"The enemy supporting his troops with large numbers of aircraft, raiding many advanced lines of four advances and the adjoining rear," said Red Star.

"Our fliers patrolling over the strong area are repulsing the enemy in the air... They are greatly assisted by our reinforced anti-aircraft defences...

"The Germans are using big tank masses to clear the way for their infantry.

Bloodless Invasion

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts), June 24.—(AP).—First photographs and the first eye-witness report of Japanese landings on the Aleutian Islands were published in Tokyo papers this morning, the German radio reported to-day.

The account said a landing was made on one island on June 7 without bloodshed.

On another island the Japanese were declared to have taken possession of a wireless station and four barracks.

Axis Pivoting Inland To Hit Egypt

Use Heavy Barrage Trying to Mask Flanking Movement

CAIRO, June 24—(AP).—Axis armored forces moved southward on the Libyan side of the Egyptian frontier today, apparently intending to wheel eastward and crash into Egypt many miles below the coast in the hope of outflanking the British defences.

In the coastal zone German cannon sent shells over the British lines and German-Italian forces engaged British mobile units west of Salum, apparently as a mask for Field Marshal Edwin Rommel's flanking scheme.

British headquarters were making final dispositions in their plan to hurl the invaders back and there was every indication that if the Axis armies should lunge into Egypt one of the desperate and decisive battles of the war would ensue.

Yesterday British forces engaged small parties of Axis troops west of Salum, Egyptian port near the Libyan frontier, a communique said.

R.A.F. Bombing Day, Night.

Smashing at Rommel's supply lines by land and sea British and South African bomber and fighter planes were in operation day and night in an attempt to impede the reorganization and massing of the Axis assault forces.

A communique reported repeated attacks on enemy transport concentrations between the coast and the El Abd track west of the Egyptian border. The big Ain El Gazala airfield was bombed in force with good results last night, the war bulletin said.

The communique said the convoy attack took place off Cape Spartivento, the southern tip of Italy.

Hits One, Bags Two

LONDON, June 24.—(CP). — By a lucky "two birds with one stone" freak, a British "intruder" pilot who shot down one German plane was credited today with destroying another as the falling Nazi crashed into it, in a patrol last night over a Nazi airbase in Holland. In all, the night's operations cost the enemy three planes, although the only hostile air activity over this country was a small-scale raid on East Anglia. Bad flying weather again kept the R.A.F.'s big bombers home.

Keeper Douses Beacon, Saves Estevan In Raid

VICTORIA, June 24 (CP) — The Victoria Colonist, in a dispatch from its west coast Vancouver Island correspondent, today gave the first descriptive story of the shelling of the Estevan Point Dominion telegraph station last Saturday night by enemy craft.

The newspaper's correspondent, G. M. Campbell of Port Alberni, B.C., stated that the quick action of Robert Mitchell Lally, lighthouse keeper, in climbing a 50-foot light tower to extinguish the powerful beacon while shells screamed around him, is credited with saving the remote little settlement from serious damage.

(In the House of Commons on Monday Defence Minister Ralston said that the Estevan Station had apparently been shelled by two enemy craft. Previous official announcements had attributed the shelling to a submarine; and at Victoria Mayor Andrew McGavin offered a suggestion that the attack might have been made by a surface raider.)

In today's dispatch to the Colonist, Campbell reported that when the first shell exploded on shore near the foot of the lighthouse the residents of the little settlement thought that an engine at the station had exploded.

As they rushed to the doors of their homes other shells exploded short of their intended target, and flashes could be seen at sea.

Shoot the Building

The solid concrete lighthouse building trembled from the first explosions and several windows were broken by the concussion.

Lally then realized that the light was providing a beacon for the attackers. He climbed the spiral staircase to the top of the tower while shells screamed past as the raiders elevated their range.

Shells had begun to explode in the woods behind the station by the time the lightkeeper was able to extinguish the light—one of the most powerful on the British Columbia coast.

Defence Tax Shelved In New Plan

Refund on Savings Due After War, New Flat Rate Setup

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 24 (CP) — A system of compulsory saving for Canada in wartime through a combination of taxes on income was recommended in his budget speech last night by Finance Minister Ilsley.

If approved by the House of Commons, the combination taxation system will eliminate the present National Defence Tax, and dip deeper into the pockets of Canadians.

The minister said it was necessary that the higher rates should be reflected in reducing spending power as soon as possible. The new tax, to be collected at the source, would come into effect on Sept. 1.

The refundable portion of the tax—constituting the minimum savings requirements—will be paid back to the taxpayer after the end of the war.

The total proposed assessment will consist in part of a flat rate tax on total income, like the present National Defence Tax and in part of a steeply graduated tax at higher rates than at present.

Giving an example of the effect of the proposed new tax, Mr. Ilsley said that a married man without children and with an income of $2,500 a year is liable for a tax of $175, including National Defence Tax, under existing rates.

Under the proposed new rates he would be liable for a total of $431, of which $231 would be tax and $200 his minimum savings requirement to be refunded after the war, with interest at the rate of two per cent.

Barefoot Dance

GRIFFIN, Ga., June 24 (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Elliott are a little puzzled as to exactly where their son, Clarence, is stationed with the United States Marines. The only hint he gave in a letter came in describing a dance "given the Marines by the natives." "Imagine our surprise," he wrote, "when the girls showed up barefooted. But that didn't stump us. We took off our shoes, too, and enjoyed the dance."

Think Churchill To Weather Libya Raking

LONDON, June 24.—(CP)—When Prime Minister Churchill returns from the United States to report to the House of Commons he will probably hear the bitterest criticism of his career, but newspapers predicted today "that he would retain firm control of the government barring further critical military losses.

The disquiet displayed yesterday in Commons was "more serious than that after the fall of Singapore" when Mr. Churchill's government was given a 464-to-1 vote of confidence, the Yorkshire Post declared.

"This is the most serious personal issue Mr. Churchill has faced since becoming prime minister," the Mirror said. "It will undoubtedly mean the heaviest adverse vote the government has had to face."

"The government," said the Daily Mail, "is faced with all the possibilities of a serious political revolt."

The Times expressed belief that the forthcoming motion in the House to censure the military direction of the war would not get much support beyond its original 25 to 50 signers.

"Indications are that the adverse vote likely will be comparatively small," said Lord Beaverbrook's Express.

Besides the motion of non-confidence in the war leadership forecast yesterday, with the supposed backing of such members as Leslie Hore-Belisha, David Lloyd George, Earl Winterton and Arthur Greenwood, another motion today demanded "complete reconstruction of the government" on a merit basis.

It was prepared by W. J. Brown and Capt. Alec Cunningham-Reid, who recently formed a small independent coalition in the House. They were believed to lack the necessary strength to push their motion to a vote.

The Labor party met to discuss Libya. No conclusions were announced.

Few Gifts Included

CAIRO, June 24.—(AP).— It was learned today that the general commanding Tobruk before it fell had asked and obtained permission from British headquarters for his forces to fight their way out.

Because of heavy motor transport losses, however, it proved impossible for a large force to do so, and the general decided to fight on until he had completed demolition of the big supply dumps there. Subsequent terrific explosions and enormous columns of smoke indicated he had succeeded to a large extent.

HongKong Probe Remarks Get Drew Summoned

OTTAWA, June 24 (CP)—Action has been taken against Lt.-Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative Leader, under subsection B of section 39 of the Defence of Canada Regulations, it was announced at the justice department today.

An official said he had been informed Col. Drew has been served with a summons requiring him to appear in court to answer a charge based on his statement of June 5 commenting on the report of a Royal Commission on the Hong Kong expedition.

The information, it is stated, simply charges that Col. Drew's statement constitutes an offence under subsection B of section 39 and does not specify what parts of the statement constitute the offence.

Sub-section 5 of Section 39 of the regulations provides that no person shall "act in any manner, spread reports, or make statements or utterances intended or likely to prejudice recruiting, training, discipline, or administration of any of His Majesty's forces."

Col. Drew was critical after Hong Kong fell to the Japanese last Christmas Day, of the arrangements concerning dispatch of two Canadian battalions to that Far East colony—the Winnipeg Grenadier and Royal Rifles of Canada, from Quebec.

No Evidence Published.

A summary of the Chief Justice's report was made public but the evidence on which it was based was not made public. Sir Lyman found the force was a credit to Canada and said that in general the task of organizing the expedition was carried out well.

His only major criticism was of the failure to get certain equipment

Income Tax Hits New High, To Be Deducted At Source; Take 100 p.c. Excess Profits

Beer, Tobacco, Pop, Phone Calls Cost More; Insurance, Annuities, Mortgages Reductable From Forced Savings—$660 Minimum Stands

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 24.—(CP).—Hard work, plain living, saving and tax paying constitute the lot of Canadians for the duration of a war which is far from its end, under Finance Minister Ilsley's 1942 budget.

Canadians today find themselves saddled with a tax structure which far exceeds in weight the unprecedented levies imposed in earlier war budgets.

It hits incomes in increasing degree. It hits scores of less essential commodities with the alternative objectives of discouraging purchases and so making saving possible or bringing revenue to the treasury.

Combined with the extraordinary tax structure is a new plan of compulsory saving and new incentives to savings, collection of income taxes at the source and monthly payments.

The new taxes and tax increases are of two kinds—those which all must pay and those which one can avoid paying by doing without something and so having more money to lend to the Government.

The national defence tax and the personal income tax are combined to make a higher impost with part of the total repayable after the war with interest at two per cent. per annum. All must pay those, except persons with less than the minimum taxable income.

All Excess Profits Go

The maximum excess profits tax is increased from 75 to 100 per cent with certain changes and adjustments and provision for post-war repayment of 20 per cent. of the tax paid, in the 100-per-cent. category.

Users of liquor, wines, beer, cigars, cigarets, tobacco, soft drinks, playing cards; persons who travel, make long distance telephone calls, send telegrams or cables, buy furs, chew gum, eat candy, take pictures; people who buy jewelry, glassware, ornamental china, ash trays, luggage, watches or clocks; or who frequent dance halls, night clubs or cabarets have a choice of paying more taxes or cutting out these luxuries and amusements.

Off 1942 Income

The new income tax rates are applicable on 1942 income. The increase in the excess profits tax goes into effect on July 1.

Most of the special war revenue and excise tax changes and new taxes came into effect at midnight last night. Also effective at midnight last night were the few tariff changes in the budget.

The new night club entertainment tax of 20 per cent on patrons' bills is effective July 1 next.

A new tax of two per cent on insurance premiums, payable by the insurance companies, is made effective on 1941 premium payments.

As a background to his new tax structure, Mr. Ilsley gave an up-to-the-minute picture of Canada's war financial position, and sounded a stern warning against hopes for an early or easy victory.

He said the total expenditures of the Federal Government in 1942-43 on all counts—non-war, direct war and financial aid to the United Kingdom—would be $3,900,000,000.

F.D.R. Calls King To Parley With Churchill

OTTAWA, June 24.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King has left for Washington to attend conferences with Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt, it was announced today.

The Prime Minister was accompanied by Norman A. Robertson, undersecretary of state for external affairs.

Announcement of Mr. King's secret departure was made by Resources Minister Crerar, acting prime minister, announced that, at the invitation of President Roosevelt, the Prime Minister had left Ottawa for a short visit to Washington to attend a meeting of the Pacific Council at which Mr. Churchill will also be present, and for further conferences with Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill.

"Mr. Crerar also indicated that Mr. Churchill had joined in the invitation.

"Mr. N. A. Robertson, under-secretary of state for external affairs, accompanied the prime minister."

Presumably Mr. King travelled by train.

It is his first trip to Washington since last December when he went there on the occasion of Mr. Churchill's previous visit. At that time the British prime minister returned to Ottawa with him for a brief stay.

There has been no indication that Mr. Churchill plans another visit to Ottawa on his present stay in North America.

7 Badly Burned At Copper Cliff

COPPERCLIFF, Ont., June 24 — (CP).—Seven of the 24 men burned in an explosion in the coal pulverizing plant of the International Nickel Company smelter at Coppercliff on Tuesday afternoon to-day were described by hospital officials as in fairly good condition. None of the seven is in critical condition and all are expected to fully recover from the burns.

Eight others are still receiving treatment for minor burns while the remainder were discharged after attention last night.

In an official statement issued this afternoon it was said the explosion was of undetermined origin and that it occurred in a fan in the coal pulverizing plant at west of plant.

Mr. Average Man Gets A Tax Slap

OTTAWA, June 23.—(CP).— The Canadian smoking his pipe at home and the Canadian going on a trip or making whoopee with friends both received bad news in Finance Minister Ilsley's budget.

Mr. Ilsley said the record of liquor sales led him to conclude further taxes could be levied on alcoholic beverages. He recommended the excise duty on spirits, increased from $4 to $7 a gallon in September, 1939, be raised to $9 and on Canadian brandy from $6 to $7. He proposed the excise duty on malt be 16 cents a pound, against the pre-war duty of six cents.

The Minister recommended that the excise tax on wines be raised from 40 to 50 cents, and on sparkling wines from $2 to $2.50 a gal-

Rommel's Long Supply Line His Big Flaw

Axis' Success In Desert Spurs Nazis Into New Efforts To Breach Red Fronts

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

With victorious Nazi Field Marshal Rommel massing his troops on the Egyptian border for a quick drive against the land of the Pharoahs the position there is critical. Still, it strikes me that the greatest danger to the defence of Alexandria and the Suez Canal lies in the great air force which Hitler may be expected to fling into this battle, and may also employ in an attempt to invade Syria and thus advance on Egypt from the East while Rommel rushes in from the West.

However, London states that reinforcements are arriving in the Middle East, and these presumably include the essential aircraft. Meanwhile United States heavy bombers are in action with the R.A.F. against Rommel's positions, and the British navy is getting into position to blast the Nazi leader's line of communication along the wholly exposed military highway which skirts the Mediterranean. That long supply route upon which Rommel must depend is one of his great weaknesses and one which is likely to cost him dear.

Rommel's success has spurred the Nazi efforts to smash the Russians. South of Kharkov the Reds have been compelled to withdraw somewhat but, as Moscow points out, local successes of this sort cannot be decisive. The Hitlerites also continue to pile their dead before the bastions of Sevastopol, where the Muscovites are making an epic stand that ranks with the glory of the Charge of the Light Brigade, which swept the slopes of nearby Balaklava.

Every day that the Red line holds is a big stride toward victory. Moscow claims that Hitler's forces have been weakened to the point where he is incapable of undertaking a wholesale offensive. Time will show how accurate that is, but meantime we cannot doubt that the Fuehrer can at least develop in individual sectors a striking power which will be bound to move something.

The Axis' position being favorable at the moment, it is no surprise to see the Germans undertaking a propaganda campaign to precipitate war between Japan and Russia. The indications are that the Japs don't want to fight Russia now, because they already have more on their hands than they can take care of.

However, there's no doubt that opportunist Tokyo is getting set for the contingency. Fresh troops have been sent into Manchukuo and the Nipponese have in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 men on the Siberian border ready for action. It's likely, too, that the extension of the Jap operations in the far western Aleutians is part of this pre-

Argentine President Quits

Move, Plus Ship Loss, May Force Aide to Allied Side

BUENOS AIRES, June 24—(AP). —Roberto Ortiz, Argentina's ailing and inactive President, today signed a letter resigning his office.

If accepted by Congress, which two years ago rejected a similar resignation by Oritz, the resignation would hand over the executive power of Argentina in name as well as in fact to Acting President Ramon S. Castillo, whose "policy of prudent neutrality" has maintained this country's relations with the Axis.

Oritz has been inactive since July 3, 1940. Reconciled to the view of his personal physicians that his eyesight cannot be remedied, he acted today to end two years of political undectainty.

For Castillo the development came during a particularly tense diplomatic situation created by the sinking of the Argentine freighter Rio Hercero by a German submarine.

Though he has avoided friction with the Axis powers in the past, it was announced today that his Government was protesting to Berlin against "aggression" in the sinking of the Rio Tercero.

Some sources said an important alteration in Argentina's foreign policy was probable.

How To Figure Your Taxes

Two Levies to Cost Married Man, 2 Children, $215

OTTAWA, June 24.—(CP). — The task of the Canadian facing his income tax form was made no easier by Finance Minister Ilsley's budget last night, but officials said that the average taxpayer would be able to keep his records clear—if he went at the job slowly and carefully.

They took the case of a married man with two children earning $2,000 a year, filling his forms under the new tax system proposed by Mr Ilsley.

First he would calculate his flat-rate tax—seven per cent.—and find it amounted to $140. From this he would take the permitted deduction for two children—$56, leaving $84.

Turning to his graduated tax, he would find he had a basic exemption of $660, leaving taxable income of $1,340. The rate specifies $315 for $1,000 of taxable income and 37 per cent. on the amount over $1,000. Thus he finds his total graduated tax $441, to which he must add the flat-rate tax of $84, making $525 in all.

As a married man he deducts $150, along with $80 for each child, a total of $310.

His taxes to be paid therefore total $215.

POWERFUL ENEMY FORCE ON MOVE TOWARDS EGYPTIAN BORDER

LONDON, June 24 (AP)—British mobile forces fenced with the vanguard of Axis divisions advancing on the Egyptian frontier today and German long-range guns sent shells whistling over British lines in a prelude to battle.

A powerful enemy force of all arms was on the march south of Gambut, a desert town midway between Axis-occupied Tobruk and Bardia, and a military commentator declared a major action for Egypt was imminent.

Hour by hour, the opening of an invasion attempt was expected as a sequel to the German-Italian campaign that wrested eastern Libya from British hands.

British forces engaged small Axis parties all day yesterday west of Salum, Egyptian port near the frontier. and "our mobile columns were active to the west of our positions," a Cairo communique said.

Saying that Axis sea lines to Tobruk would be difficult for surface ships to cut, an authoritative London source said the Mediterranean fleet would be able to make a "really effective attack" only with large numbers of submarines.

The Axis advance also limited fighter protection that could be given Malta-bound British convoys, he said, and brought German bombers within 300 miles of the British naval base at Alexandria.

Military observers said Field Marshal Erwin Rommel apparently intended to attack northern British positions, perhaps using this to mask a sweep by his armored formations around the left flank through Fort Maddalena, 50 miles southwest of Salum, and Bir El Shegga, 20 miles farther inland from the Mediterranean.

The heaviest German strength was ranged opposite Capuzzo, the old Italian border fort in Libya which now is the keystone of Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie's outer line.

Action On Coastal Road.

In addition, British reconnaissance reported that "very strong" Axis forces of tanks and motorized infantry were moving up along the coastal road toward the Egyptian border

These, believed to include the motorized 21st division and the Italian armored Ariete division, apparently were intended as the hammer with which Nazi Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel hopes to batter his way through the British barrier athwart the road to the Nile and Suez.

Rommel's blow was expected to fall when these reinforcements have taken their places, British authorities said. They described them as relatively fresh since they were not involved in the fierce assault on Tobruk.

Throughout the night heavy Axis artillery shelled British positions and enemy patrols stabbed here and there, evidently searching for soft spots in the familiar German technique of finding one weak link in the defence chain and hitting there with irresistible power.

The defenders, meanwhile, were taking advantage of the pause to regroup their forces for the new test and to smash with airpower behind the Axis lines.

The R.A.F., helped by the United States army air corps, made one devastating bombardment of Bengasi, the Axis' important Libyan supply depot, it was disclosed yesterday. British fliers also have struck at Greece and Crete—whence, it is feared, the Germans may try to drop parachutists and air-borne infatry behind the British lines.

Although Rommel had won the initiative and the tactical advantage of a good forward base by the eastward sweep through Libya and capture of Tobruk, the changed picture brought the British navy into the battle line-up in a new role.

Axis forces swarming down the coastal road now are within range of naval guns from which they were safe while fighting in Central Libya The fleet, whose function had been chiefly to maintain communications, is expected now to help harass Rommel's exposed flank on the coast.

ion. It was anticipated these changes in wine and liquor rates would result in an increase of $11,650,000 in revenue for the present fiscal year and $15,600,000 in a full year.

If the tax increase seemed likely to affect the revenues of provinces, Mr. Ilsley said they had it in their own power to increase their prices or taxes.

Smoking Increases

In spite of wartime increases in excise duties of 50 per cent, the consumption of cigarets had increased, and the minister said he proposed to provide for an additional excise tax of one cent for each five cigarettes or fraction thereof contained in any package.

Relative to cigarettes, smoking tobacco had been less highly taxed, and an additional tax of one cent an ounce on manufactured tobacco was proposed.

The tax on cigars is upped 25 per cent.

The present supply of soft drinks is insufficient to meet the demand, said Mr. Ilsley, and he proposed a new specific tax of one cent a bottle, to 7 cents.

He proposed new excise levies at the manufacturer's level on candy and chewing gum at the rate of 30 per cent.

Buying his holiday ticket, the Canadian will find that the transportation tax has been increased from 10 to 15 per cent. If he has a berth on the train, he will find the tax on the price he pays increased from 10 to 15 per cent and the tax on seats from 10 to 15 cents.

the shelling started. Other employees and their wives and children were preparing to retire for the night.

All the women and children, including Mrs. Harrison and her seven-months-old infant, were rushed into the woods behind the station, without blankets and with only the clothes they wore at the time of the attack.

While the lightkeeper rushed to extinguish the light, Redford and an assistant sent news of the attack by radio to military authorities.

The women and children remained in the woods all night, returning at daybreak to the lighthouse and radio station, not knowing whether an enemy landing had been made.

Later in the morning airplanes and a fishery patrol boat arrived at the station.

Campbell said that the nose-cap of a four-inch shell which was picked up on the rocks at Estevan Point has been taken to Port Alberni. It was described as black with white Japanese writing on it.

Mrs. Harrison and her infant child and Mrs. Redford also have been taken to Port Alberni where they are recovering from the effects of their ordeal. Both women have refused to talk of the shelling.

The Colonist correspondent quoted Estevan residents saying that a surface craft was seen loitering off shore Saturday, but that they presumed it was a friendly ship and did not take any particular notice of it.

RedsGiveGround At Kharkov, Hold Sevastopol

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 24.—(AP).—Red Army troops were reported today to have yielded ground before a new Nazi onslaught on the Kharkov front, while Sevastopol's realigned defenders staved off superior enemy forces in a battle now in its 20th day.

For the first time the Soviet Information Bureau told today of night combat about the Crimean citadel, saying the outnumbered Red Army men, marines, sailors and guerillas fought on against the Germans through the hours of darkness.

Nazi gains in the Kharkov region apparently were limited. The noon communique reported no material changes overnight on the mainland.

Kharkov front divisions of Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock advanced yesterday against Russian opposition and "our troops were pressed back to new positions," a communique said.

Discounted in advance by the Soviet Information Bureau's general declaration that local Nazi successes "are not decisive regarding the outcome of the war," the action apparently was in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector where the Germans first countered Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's Donets Basin offensive last month.

The communique did not specify. However, that region is 80 miles south of Kharkov, key bastion of Von Bock's southern lines, and a logical starting point for the expected German attempt to strike again toward the Caucasus.

"On the Sevastopol front our units repelled fierce attacks of superior enemy forces," he communique said.

Military dispatches announced yesterday that the Motley Garrison, backed by Black Sea fleet guns, had closed gaps torn in the Crimean naval base fortifications under increased German pressure. At the same time, it was said the situation remained grave.

Havelock Man Faces 2 Charges

As the result of a raid made by a squad of provincial police from Belleville on a Havelock hotel last Saturday night, the proprietor, Thomas Poulos, faced two liquor charges before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police this morning.

He was charged as a second offender with keeping liquor for sale and also with being an interdicted person and illegally having.

Poulos said that he was not ready to go on this morning, and when asked for his reason by the court, replied that he had not had a chance to get a lawyer yet.

A quantity of whisky, gin and beer was seized by the provincial police when they raided the hotel.

14th Ship Sunk In Past 13 Days

By The Canadian Press

Survivors of a small Yugoslavian merchant vessel, the torpedoing of which about 25 miles off shore in the Gulf of Mexico was announced by the United States Navy today, told one of the most iaconic survival stories of the recent submarine warfare when they recounted that "we simply rowed toward port."

It took them eight hours. All hands were saved.

The sinking brought the unofficial total of ships sunk in the Western Atlantic to 309 since Pearl Harbor. Reports from the Caribbean area indicated that two additional ships were torpedoed but they had not been included in the total pending further details.

The announcement followed upon the navy's report yesterday that enemy submarines over a 12-day period sent 13 United Nations merchantmen to the bottom of the Caribbean.

Casualties ran high, with 46 known dead and 87 missing in the Caribbean sinkings occurring between June 3 and 14; three dead and 85 missing in the June 16 sinking of a medium-sized United States merchant vessel off the New England coast and five dead in the torpedoing of a British freighter the same day in the same area.

The Caribbean victims were five United States ships, two medium-sized and three small; five British merchantmen, four medium and one small, and one Honduran, one Norwegian and one Netherlands vessel, all small.

Tales of suffering and heroism were related by 635 survivors, including 126 passengers, on being landed at a Caribbean port. They told of encountering English-speaking Axis submarine commanders and of being photographed by a German cameraman aboard one of the undersea craft.

Torpedoes, shell fire, or both, were used in sinking the Allied ships, they revealed.

Engineers Enjoy Big Annual Outing

Members and friends of the Engineering Institute of Canada were forunate in having perfect day for their outing at G. R. Langley's summer place on Sandy Lake. The afternoon was spent at picnic games, making hay, picking strawberries, swimimng and other interesting activities.

At softball the married men under Mr. Langley defeated the single men, captained by Jules Mercier. Interest was considerably heightned by H. Foster's capricious umpiring. A volleyball team headed by John Cameron was able to beat off all challengers. The horseshoe contest had a particularly large entry, but was eventually won by the combination of Batanoff and Tate. The final item on the program was a nail-driving contest carried out amidst tremendous noise and confusion. A veteran team led by Clark Muir and consisting of Messrs. Langley, Malby, Girdwood, and Emery demonstrated that they had survived the vicissitudes of the day best by outhammering a quintette of Test Men in the finals.

Refreshments were supplied throughout the day, and in the evening the assembly sat down to an ample outdoor-served meal.

HASTINGS, June 24 (ENS)—The death occurred recently of Miss Mary McGrath, a well-known and highly respected resident of Hastings, following a short illness.

The late Miss McGrath was born in Toronto 93 years ago, and at an early age came with her parents to live in Westwood, later moving to Hastings.

Here she learned the trade of tailoress, being employed in the store of the late Mr. Harry Wilson. Giving up this position, she carried on a very successful dressmaking business for several years.

Her two sisters predeceased her some years ago.

She was a consistent member of Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, and had a most kindly and devout Christian character, which will long remain a memory to her many friends.

The funeral took place to Our Lady of Mount Carmel church for Mass of Requiem sung by Rev. J. J. Garvey. Interment was in the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Hint Explosion In Bomber Crash

ST. THOMAS Ont., June 24 — (CP). — Bodies of the five Royal Air Force fliers killed in the crash of an Avro-Anson bombing plane near Wallacetown on Tuesday are still held at a funeral home here, pending instructions from Air Force Headquarters. When this is received they will be forwarded to No. 33 Air Navigational School at Mount Hope, near Hamilton, where the men were stationed. Meanwhile a court of inquiry is proceeding with investigation into the disaster.

That the big plane was in difficulties before it went into a steep vertical bank is indicated in reports received on Tuesday afternoon and evening. One of the ailerons or wing ends of the plane is said to have been found about half a mile from the place where the bomber crashed while the pilot of a plane from No. 4 Bombing and Gunnery School, Fingal, is said to have seen the ill-fated bomber in flames, apparently just before the crash.

Flames are said to have been leaping from the plane, suggesting that an explosion occurred while it was in flight and that this may have caused the loss of the aileron and the bomber to go into the steep bank described by Douglas Bobier, the farmer who was cultivating corn in the field adjoining the one where the crash occurred.

The big plane must have struck with terrific force for the motors were reported to be buried more deeply in the soft soil of the field on the Ezra Bedford farm than the engines of the big American airliner which crashed at Lawrence Station last fall. Only charred wreckage remained of the plane.

Board Requests County To Pay Account In Full

Paramount in the minds of members of the Board of Education was a desire to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement on the payment of county tuition fees, judging from the trend of comments around the table at a special meeting of the Board held on Tuesday night to deal with the question.

The decision of the Board, after consultation with J. F. Strickland, K.C., was summed up in a motion put by Dr. C. M. Scott and D. V. Canning, and which passed unanimously. The motion was, "That the Board accept the cheque for $25,000 an account for county tuition fees in 1941, and make an immediate demand for payment of the balance of the account. Should the account be rendered in full then the County may conduct an audit of the Board's books covering a five-year period up to and including 1941. Following the audit the Board will be ready to consider any representations made by the County.

T. D. Scollard: "What happens if we do not see eye to eye with the County viewpoint?"

Mr. Strickland: "The question could be referred to a county judge for decision."

Reviews Case

According to a summary of events as outlined by H. G. Walker, chairman of the Board, the County Council has hired an auditor to conduct an intensive audit of the question of school fees by the county for county pupils. This man with Peter Mather, a member of the County Council, approached the chairman of the Board and Mr. Huggins, the secretary, seeking certain information. He was allowed to start an audit of the Board's books for 1941, but owing to the fact that he had to attend military camp for two weeks was unable to complete the audit. He had planned to finish the job in July, and in the meantime had suggested that the County pay $25,000 on account, which is $5,000 short of the amount owing.

Mr. Walker had suggested to the two County representatives that the bill be paid in full and any necessary adjustment could be made later.

D. V. Canning: "What are they looking for in this audit?"

H. G. Walker: "They are just on a fishing expedition to see if they can find anything."

G. H. Thompson: "Actually they are trying to determine if anything has been charged to maintenance that should have been charged to capital account."

J. F. Strickland: "You are not bound by anything this auditor says. I think you should do this in the regular legal way. Your claim is established right now." Mr. Strickland then went on suggesting the motion, which was made and passed.

Continuing, Mr. Strickland pointed out that he could see no objection to a five-year audit, and then if not satisfactory agreement could be reached, the Board could have recourse to the courts. "There is no point in threshing out straw."

G. H. Thompson: "I think we can get together and I think, too, tha the County will revert to the old system of interim payments."

Mrs. W. R. Morris: "We have rendered a bill which has not been thrown out by the courts. Why has it not been paid?"

H. G. Walker: "That's the funny part of it. They are not actually disputing the bill."

Interpretation Of Act

J. E. Huggins explained to the meeting that there seems quite a difference of opinion on the interpretation of an amendment to the School Act, which made it difficult to decide whether the County should be charged on a per pupil day cost or a pupil cost.

W. A. Anderson: "I think the County has found what they consider an irregularity."

Mrs. Morris: "Well, we have not heard of it."

Mr. Anderson: "It is in the manner in which the register of attendance is kept."

J. E. Huggins: "There again we have a difference of opinion. We happen to take a different view to that of the County officials on the method to be used."

Mrs. Morris: "What can we do to secure a more reasonable attitude on the payment of the accounts. Why do we have to wait six months for our money. For years the County Council paid interim account and the plan worked fine. I want the city taxpayers to get a little better deal. We must borrow the money and pay interest for six months. I am a little tired of all this fraction, and we didn't start it."

H. G. Walker: "The Minister of Education claims the law was never intended to be interpreted in that manner, but nevertheless, as the law stands, the County Council is within its legal right to withhold payment of tuition fees for six months after the year ends.

G. W. Craw: "Actually it means we finance the County pupils for 18 months before we get a cent back from the County."

D. V. Canning: "Let us say the County refuses to pay this account as is suggested."

J. F. Strickland: "Then the Board will have to call a special meeting again, and give me my instructions."

G. W. Craw: "To meet the law as it stands we had to make an extra levy on our city ratepayers."

W. A. Anderson: "York County starts interim payments of $20,000 in February of each year. We used to have a somewhat similar plan."

At this point the meeting adjourned.

500,000	401,120	60,834	461,954	1,000	462,954

Note: In calculating the above taxes it has been assumed that all incomes up to $30,000 are entirely earned incomes and that incomes of more than $30,000 included earned income of that amount and additional investment income to make up the total.

The figures in the above table lists the total tax payable, including both the new flat-rate tax on total income and the graduated tax.

In case of a married man with two children earning $2,000 a year, first he will calculate his flat-rate tax of seven per cent. and it amounts to $140. From this there is the permitted deductions for two children—$56—leaving $84.

Turning to his graduated tax, he has a basic exemption of $660, leaving a taxable income of $1,340. The rate specifies $315 for $1,000 of taxable income and 37 per cent. on the amount over $1,000. Thus his graduated tax is $441, to which he must add the flat rate tax of $84, making $525 in all. As a married man he deducts $150 along with $80 for each child and total of $310. His tax to be paid therefore is $215.

Missing Overseas

TORONTO, June 24—(CP).—Sgt. Observer Charles Honychurch who took part in the great raid on Cologne several weeks ago is reported missing in air operations overseas, his wife was informed by cable today.

Describing the Cologne raid Honychurch had told newsmen in England his plane was the last of 1,000 R.A.F. machines to fly over the burning city. "It was like looking down the mouth of hell," he said. "It was the most horrible thing I've ever seen. I don't believe anything could have survived in the area."

NEW ORLEANS, June 24.—AP).—Unquestionably, this is a sign of the times. An hotel here has advertised for 20 men to operate passenger elevators, and added "no one under 65 years of age need apply. The hotel said elevators are equipped with seats for the operators.

Ralston Places Security Before Unity

OTTAWA, June 24—(CP).—Defence Minister Ralston told the House of Commons yesterday that national security must come before national unity if the two come into conflict in Canada.

Speaking in the resumed debate on the bill to amend the National Resources Mobilization Act so as to permit conscription for overseas service by order-in-cuncil, the minister said he wished to afford every opportunity to those who had an aversion to compulsory service overseas. But he added:

"We are facing the possibility of fighting for our very existence, and if considerations of national unity should come into conflict with measures for our national security and existence, then surely it is the security of the nation which must count—and by that I mean the security of all the nation, both the majority and the minority.

"It may be that if the test comes we shall find our national unity in the mutual support which we shall have to give each other and which will be imperative by reason of the instinct of self-preservation itself."

Col. Ralston warned Canadians would have to do without some ordinary civilian commodities, so men now engaged in civilian production can be released for more important work.

Col. Ralston said it was "needlessy timorous" to suggest there must be some serious consideration as to where men for the army might be raised simply because single men up t 30 years old were nearly exhausted. here were "still those from 30 to 45, still those from 19 to 21, and still the married class of all the ages from 19 to 45."

Canada was not approaching the full mobilization of manpower for war purposes simply because everyone was employed. The question was whether they could be got out of their particular employments into the armed services or made available for munitions, agriculture or other

Citizens Will Fight Till Battle Won

PORT HOPE, June 24.—(ENS).—Interviewed regarding the action of the Public School Board in requesting the resignation of their appointee, Mr. R. E. Sculthorpe, to the High School Board, a member of the citizens' committee expressed his satisfaction with their action Enlarging on this he went on to say that as two public bodies namely the Counties' Council and the Public School Board, have concluded that the action of the High School Board in dismissing Principal Brackenbury was arbitrary and unjust, it was reasonable to suppose that the town council would adopt the same attitude. He is convinced tha the great majority of the citizens of Port Hope are fair minded that they believe in justice and feel that the idea of five men defying public opinion is contrary to democratic principles. He assured this reporter that the citizens' committee would not cease their efforts until justice had been secured and the good name of Port Hope vindicated.

So far as can be learned no arrangements have been completed between the citizens' committee and the town council for a further review of the situation. The committee does hope to have an audience with the council at an early date to formally request the resignation of the council's three appointees.

Ilsley Formula Hits Dance Halls

OTTAWA, June 24.— (CP).— A formula for their taxation discovered, expenditures in dance halls and cabarets should be subject to a tax of 20 per cent., Finance Minister Ilsley said in the House of Commons last night.

The Minister said it had been his opinion at the time of the last Budget that expenditures in dance halls and cabarets were a proper occasion for taxation. but he was unable at that time to find a proper formula.

"I shall recommend that a tax of 20 per cent. be collected on all expenditures in dance halls, night clubs, cabarets and other such establishments which combine any two of the following features: Provision for dancing by the patrons, the sale of alcoholic beverages, the offering of musical or other entertainment by said performers," he said.

"This tax is to be payable by excise stamps affixed to the bill or account which must be rendered by the proprietor to the patron.

"It is proposed that this tax take effect on July 1 next."

In his Budget last year the Minister announced taxes on moving-picture theatre tickets and playing cards, and a levy of 5 per cent. on total bets made through the pari-mutuel system at race tracks.

This year he remembered playing cards again with an increase in the tax from 15 to 20 cents a pack recommended. The others were not changed.

Significance Of The Middle East

After a period during which a superficial observer might have assumec that things were going well for the United Nations, the British have suffered a serious defeat in Libya, and the wave of popular optimism is dissolving in foam. Angry questions are being asked, serious accusations are being made, and news commentators are, as usual, full of theories and partial explanations. But from the welter a few clear facts emerge: first, the British underestimated Rommel's strength and daring; second, the British forces were not as well equipped as the enemy; third, the whole Middle Eastern position of the United Nations is in jeopardy.

It is only a few days since Rommel was on the run, and if our forces had pursued him they might have broken his strength and gained command of the Middle East for the duration of the war. Why they did not do this we cannot tell, but it looks as though they had assumed that once Rommel was driven back he would not attack again. But Rommel seems to have more of that quality which Sir Archibald Wavell values most in a general—toughness—than our men, and he returned to the attack as soon as he could. Our generals are painfully slow to learn that in modern war nothing but aggressive tactics will win anything. Now they await another attack on the Egyptian border, and this attack may be accompanied by parachute landings in their rear. We cannot view this prospect with optimism.

Why were our forces not as well equipped as the enemy? At least part of the blame must be attributed to the divided nature of the so-called United Nations. Britain and the U.S. still continue to produce inferior armament because they will not agree on designs. The British have the best fighter planes in the world; the U.S. makes a magnificent bomber; Britain knows much about tanks and so does the U.S. And yet both continue to produce inferior articles. If the industrial machines of both countries would agree to produce only from the best designs we should not have to send men into battle with inadequate equipment. The American tanks in Libya were simply not good enough.

The defence of Egypt will be extremely difficult. The 8th Army is already receiving reinforcements, and Sir Thomas Blamey has declared that the Libyan defeat is not a decisive development. But if the British forces are handicapped by inadequate equipment their task will be hard enough. And if they cannot outwit the daring and resourceful Rommel it will be even harder. The loss of Suez and thus of the Mediterranean, which Mr. Churchill has declared to be as vital to Britain as the holding of the British Isles, would place a burden upon the United Nations which might lengthen the war by years.

Death Of John Imrie

The death of John Imrie, formerly the vice-president and managing director of the Edmonton Journal, robs Canada of an able and courageous journalist. Mr. Imrie was born in Toronto in 1883, and was during his life associated with many prominent publications, among which were Printer and Publisher, Bookseller and Stationer, and the Hamilton Spectator. He was also prominent in the Canadian Press Association and the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association; he was at one time president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce and vice-president of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs. He was chairman of a trade mission to China and Japan in 1930. For the past year he had been in poor health, but his death at the comparatively early age of 58 was unexpected.

When Mr. Imrie removed to Alberta he took upon himself the difficult task of acting as a mediator and conciliator between Eastern and Western Canada. He took his duties as a newspaperman seriously, and in 1938 his splendid defence of the freedom of the Press against the repressive action of Premier Aberhart won him a Pulitzer Prize.

John Imrie was a fine type of Canadian and his loss is an occasion for deep regret throughout this Dominion. We need men of his breadth of interest and integrity now as we have rarely needed them in our history.

A Valuable Rural Service

Since last autumn the Office of Public Information and the National Film Board, acting jointly, have been sending travelling moving-picture units to rural districts of Canada where they have shown films relating to Canada's war effort. This project has been highly successful, and has done excellent work in bringing the reality of the war home to people who live in remote areas where the usual means of communication are unsatisfactory. In Ontario this work has been done with the assistance of the Department of Extension of Queen's University, the Community Life Training Institute of Barrie, and the Educational Division of the United Farmers of Ontario.

One of these units has been working in the northern part of this county, and has had remarkable success there. The exhibitions of films have been largely attended and great enthusiasm has been aroused by them. This is understandable. Many of the people who attend the exhibitions have never seen a movie before, and for this very reason they pay close attention to what they see and take it very seriously. The time has come for the unit to move on to another field, but its director feels that the work which he and his helpers are able to do locally is so valuable that they might profitably extend their visit. We hope that the various bodies which control these travelling film units will accept the suggestion and that this excellent local work will continue for some time. There are a great many people in remote districts of Canada (and to be remote does not necessarily involve being hundreds of miles from a town—to be a few miles from a highway is often enough) to whom the war is still a vague and mysterious thing which they do not relate to themselves in any important way. These movie units, with their portable 16 mm. projectors can do more to dispell this remoteness than any number of speakers or writers. We hope that the unit now operating in this county will be able to remain with us for some weeks more.

The Indian Dream

The talent which the Indian leaders reveal for bickering and temporizing when they are faced with great danger is nothing short of genius. The latest notion of Mohandas Ghandi and Jawaharlal Nehru is that the British should be asked to withdraw from India and allow that country to defend herself against the Japanese. A physical withdrawal is not insisted upon; it will be sufficient if the British give India her political freedom and do not interfere with her defence of her territory. India would not resent the presence of British soldiers on her soil if they were there as allies of a free India. The leaders add that they do not expect Britain to agree to this plan. But that, they say, makes no difference at all.

The capacity for abstract thought is a sign of civilization, but when abstraction is carried to this length civilization totters. The Indian leaders cannot be ignorant of the fact that they stand in mortal danger; therefore we must assume that they are indifferent to it. They will insist upon what they believe to be right whether they have any hope of translating their theory into reality or not. Such intellectualization of life is beyond the comprehension of the Occident.

Midsummer Day—1940

Do you remember a picture which appeared in most of the newspapers on this continent two years ago, which showed Adolf Hitler surveying the tomb of Napoleon? In the foreground was the great voluted mass of the French Emperor's tomb, surrounded by the stolid caryatids which French taste considers the proper guardians of a dead tyrant. And above, on a balcony, stands Hitler, surrounded by fifteen Nazis. They are in uniform, but he, like any well-to-do tourist, is dressed in white. All have bared their heads.

That was two years ago, on June 24, 1940. Ten days before Paris, the gayest of cities, had fallen to the iron-faced, joyless Germans. The attack on Russia was still a year away. As he gazed upon that mighty monument, what dreams of future greatness danced in the head of the little Bavarian? For that moment may be taken as the pinnacle of his career. There, in the photograph, we may see him, still and solemn, but with his mind aflame with midsummer madness.

It is suggested that city men should organize themselves to help farmers with their work. When we mentioned this to a group of farmers all they did was shout— "Hoe, hoe!!"

Planning Now For Peace

By THE RIGHT HON. ARTHUR GREENWOOD, M.P.
(From the London Sunday Times)

OUR first peace aim is to win the war. Otherwise the future for generations will be darkness, humiliation, and slavery. The survival of those basic principles of life which we fight to maintain depends on victory. Therefore our best must be given to the war effort.

But that is not to say we should not turn our minds to the future and lay our plans. In my view, it is vital that we should, for two reasons. In the first place, it is desirable to intensify the will to victory and to fortify the national morale by clear proof of the intention of the United Nations to implement the declarations of future policy to which they have subscribed. Secondly, to leave the preparation and adoption of schemes until the armistice has been signed would lead to indescribable chaos, to delay which would further complicate a complex and difficult situation, and to loss of opportunities which would postpone and might even endanger the restoration of normal life.

It must be recognized that the events of the war will impress their mark on the future, that the far-reaching adaptations of peace-time routine and practice to the urgent requirements of war will powerfully influence developments in the years to come. It is idle to suppose that the world can slip back into pre-war conditions as though the years of war were but a passing nightmare. It would be folly to spend time and effort in vain attempts to press it back into the old mould. The rich experience we have gained in many sides of practical activity ought not to be lost. Indeed, it will be our duty to mobilize for peace-time purposes the knowledge which has been gained during the war period. Moreover, we cannot assume that there will be a swift transition from war to peace and therefore to a normal state.

AFTER THE ARMISTICE

AT THE END of the last great war the greater part of Europe had not been overrun. In this titanic struggle there is not only vast war destruction and damage. Institutions essential to the free and orderly functioning of national life, in country after country seized by the Nazis, have been uprooted, the economies of the overrun lands twisted to suit Nazis ends, and their possessions, and, in some cases masses of their people, carried away.

Freed Europe, it is clear, will be disorganized to a degree immensely greater than that suffered as a result of the last war. It will be a continent of confusion and chaos. We must, therefore, face the fact that the armistice will confront us with a new set of urgent problems. Order must be restored, quislings rounded up, free institutions brought again into active being, and the energies of the liberated peoples directed to recuperative and creative tasks. There will in all likelihood be allied armies of occupation in some parts of the world. And there will need to be an International Reconstruction service of picked people with knowledge and understanding to aid the restoration of normal life and the re-establishment of the rule of justice.

Further, it is probable that there will be grave shortages of many kinds of supplies when the fighting ends. The surpluses which existed during the earlier days of the war, created by the dislocation and cessation of trade and by the effects of the blockade, have in certain cases become deficiencies. We cannot at present measure the extent of the results of the scorched earth policy and of the war ravages, but there can be no doubt that the destruction of productivity and of plant and equipment will be on a scale never known in the history of mankind. Finally, no one can predict with certainty what the transport situation will be when the armistice comes. It may be that there will not be ships enough rapidly to satisfy the many clamant demands of the great majority of mankind.

To put the matter another way, war conditions will persist after the armistice and, in some directions, perhaps for a considerable time. There are those who believe that with the armistice every form of regulation and control will be swept away. But so long as the conditions hold which created the need for regulation so long must restrictions continue. That is not to say, however, that all the emergency powers which have been exercised will be maintained after the armistice. Presumably the restrictions on personal freedom will go first. Others must continue for a time because shortage of essential supplies necessitates rationing in order that all may be justly treated. It may be—and in my view it will be—that certain controls and restrictions may be woven into our future normal national life and be incorporated into the future economic structure of the world, as a result of our war experience, both economically and politically.

THE FIRST STEP

NOW I come to the next fundamental point—how the victorious Allies are to handle the questions of the future. Our first task must be to bring succour, with all speed, to the freed peoples of Europe. Food and medical relief will be the first need. Supplies must be rushed over by ship, and British reserves must be called upon to contribute to saving lives over the water. We must fly over to Greece and Poland and elsewhere, by bombing planes, food concentrates which will restore the vitality of their peoples until we can send the normal products of the soil for their nourishment.

That is the first step. But there are others which follow on, and which, in the nature of the situation, must overlap.

Mr. Churchill, in August, 1940, declared our intention to feed and clothe the peoples released from the Nazi yoke. At that time the United States was not in the war. But we accepted our moral responsibility to give life and heart to those who had suffered most from Nazism and Quislingism. Now the American Republic is with us, and their non-perishable resources with those of Latin America will be sent to the peoples of Europe at once. With that act of human understanding, the first step will be taken in the winning of the peace. Hunger, following on the horrors of war, deepens hopelessness and despair. The hand of fellowship will fortify the courage of the overrun peoples and restore the spirit of hope.

Let this be done at whatever immediate cost to our available supplies; for unless it is done the terrors, the shameful brutalities, and the incredible sufferings of this war will have been suffered in vain.

THE ESSENTIAL PRELIMINARY

WE cannot, however, stop at that point. The Red Cross work is but necessary beginning. As the world sees the return of health and vigour to the freed peoples, resulting from food supplies and the ministrations of a world health service fighting against disease and widespread debilitation, we shall have begun—or the United Nations with their liberated allies ought to have begun—the process of rehabilitation. This is not reconstruction. But it is the essential preliminary to long-distance reconstruction.

After the elementary needs of life are provided in Europe—and in the Far East as well—we must take agreed steps to enable the freed peoples to begin their work for the re-establishment of their normal, peaceful, and progressive efforts. Those who have suffered least will be called upon to contribute according to their capacity the means whereby those who have suffered most materially — our Western European Allies, Russia, and China—can begin to build again what has been so ruthlessly destroyed. It may be they will need seed corn, or new transport, or new equipment, or raw materials for their industries.

SERIES OF PROBLEMS

This, of course, carries us over to the third stage—that of building a future which guarantees peace and freedom. Here we face the most complicated series of problems which ever fell to the lot of mankind. So great will the devastation have been throughout the world, so savage will have been the attacks on the human institutions which in their atrophied condition cannot respond out of their own resources to the call upon them, that the United Nations must organize their economic power for the good of the world. The victorious nations cannot prosper out of the poverty of their neighbors. The world is now a small parish. Time and distance have become negligible. Washington is nearer to London than London was to York in the days of the stage coach. The problem of peace in the future (a question about which I do not write now) is no more difficult in these days of swift and intimate contact than the question of the authority of the law in the person of the village constable was 100 years ago in Britain.

My purpose, however, is not to trench on the final political settlement of the war. What is vital is that mankind should, during the transition period after the armistice, begin to rebuild the structure of a healthy physical and spiritual existence in the world, the means of rehabilitation, and the conditions of freedom without which Roosevelt's Four Freedoms and the principles of the Atlantic Charter cannot be brought into full and active life.

Fireworks Face Churchill

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON Associated Press War Analyst

UNLESS his conferences with President Roosevelt produce some very concrete results to lighten British gloom, Prime Minister Churchill probably will head into the worst squall of his storm-tossed career when he returns to London.

He must account for a British defeat in Libya far more difficult to explain than the loss of Singapore and Burma. Egypt and the Suez Canal are closer home for Englishmen than the far Pacific-China Sea symbols of Empire; and in Libya for the first time in this war a British army supposed to be on substantially equal terms with its foes has been badly worsted.

That of itself makes lost Tobruk a more bitter dose for the British people than even lost Singapore. They had long awaited the day when British and Axis forces would confront each other somewhere evenly matched in air power, tanks, guns and men. They were supremely confident that British valor must bring victory under such circumstances.

That day has come in Eastern Libya—and gone in a British defeat that Cairo and London spokesmen do not seek to minimize. The censorship permits the use of such words as "rout," "disaster," and "debacle" in despatches describing what happened.

Mr. Churchill's lieutenants in Parliament breasted the first winds of the political storm armed only with assurances that the imperilled Egyptian frontier had been and was being reinforced. They also made no effort to explain or soften the blow. They even added for the first time the toll of recent British naval losses in the Mediterranean, heavy losses even if outmatched by casualties inflicted by British-American Air Forces on the Italian fleet.

It seems obvious that Mr. Churchill had passed the word to his Parliamentary spokesmen that he would presently answer for himself. Fresh from his meetings with Mr. Roosevelt and United Nations staff experts mapping plans for the ever-growing Allied pool of war resources, he should be able to ride out this storm as he has so many others.

Whatever else the British defeat in Libya portends or reflects, it serves to stress answer the fact that Washington, not London, became the nerve centre of Allied war effort when the United States entered the war. Mr. Roosevelt, not Mr. Churchill, is the dominant personality of the United Nations.

British politicos, squirming under a new and ominous British defeat, dare not change horses midway in the war stream or even greatly hamper Mr. Churchill's powers of command without a nod from Washington, and Mr. Churchill knows it. He also knows what Washington believes led to the Libyan disaster, what should be done to meet the crisis and what Washington is prepared to contribute. That knowledge tends to insure him continued mastery on his home front.

Meanwhile heroic Russian resistance at Sevastopol is still holding up Hitler's eastward march. The great Crimean fortress is slowly crumbling; but too slowly as yet to suit Nazi purposes.

What C.C.F Must Give Canada

From THE FINANCIAL POST

THERE is currently a wide tendency for people to say, without thinking it through, that the controls and regimentation of wartime must go on after the war. The C.C.F. through declarations of its leaders is definitely committed to that.

But this means nothing but the ultimate destruction of our parliamentary institutions. However alluring and easy the C.C.F. may paint the changes it wants to bring Canada, that party is doomed by its nature and by the realities of its program to create something which, to citizens, will be hardly distinguishable from a totalitarian dictatorship.

That fundamental point about socialist revolutions was well put and abundantly demonstrated by J. M. Macdonnell, president and general manager of the National Trust Co., speaking to a small group in Toronto last week.

The speaker cited the now familiar and disturbing facts about government by order-in-council; about civil servants or "dollar-a-year men" who make important decisions of national policy, apparently with little or no reference to Parliament; of the vast network of controls and prohibitions now enmeshing every citizen; and of the vested bureaucratic interest that inevitably develops in maintaining those controls, whether or not there be need for them.

Speaking of the vital and honorable place of the party system in our way of government, Mr. Macdonnell pointed out that the basic difference between the democratic system of government and other systems is that we can have a change of governments by peaceful means—by ballots, not by bullets. In all non-democratic countries, a change of government can only come about by revolution—more or less bloody.

But it is also essential, he said, to the peaceful working of the system (a) that there should be an alternative government always available; (b) that it should be loyal to the constitution, i.e. "that it will not upset everything."

"The party system can only function effectively if the difference between the parties, while definite, still leaves them sufficiently close so that their policies fit inside a single political and economic system. If not, it is at once obvious that a change of government would be virtually equivalent to a revolution, and incidentally, when that stage is reached, it is too much to expect a free election to survive. In other words, an election must have enough, but not too much at stake. If a change of government would mean a revolution, it would be expecting too much to think that any government could conduct a free election. Applying this principle, it is obvious that if you have two parties, one of which is completely socialist and the other even partly individualist, then the system cannot work.... Let anyone who doubts this ask himself a simple question—Is it conceivable that every few years we do something equivalent to changing our whole economic system?"

This point has been very bluntly put by the British Socialist writer, G. D. H. Cole, who has pionted out that the foregoing point is basic—that "parliamentary action as a means of effecting transition from capitalism to socialism" is hopeless. "For such a change is so far-reaching in its effects that, however it begins, it is bound to develop into a revolution if it continues at all. ....The Left Wing Socialist view is that in the countries equipped with the powerful parliamentary institutions, it can and should begin as a constitutional movement and thereafter develop into a revolution under the aegis of its constitutional authority."

Speaking of free enterprise, Mr. Macdonnell said:

"The truth is that no sane man, when he reflects fully on the matter, could desire to destroy free enterprise. All the controls in the world never produced anything. Controls are pure negations. All the planning and controlling assumes and presupposes the energy, skill, the resource, the thrift of free enterprise. Because liberty sometimes becomes licence, are we to have some kind of universal prohibition? To destroy free enterprise would be like taking the motor out of the motor car."

Those who flirt with the C.C.F.; those adherents who fancy it promises them something, should well consider how much it must also take away. Perhaps its leaders do not fully realize the extent of the destruction to which their aims and their character doom them. Perhaps they have not realized that their plans must take away freedoms for which the United Nations are fighting.

A Bible Message For Today

And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them: insomuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see: and they glorified the God of Israel.

Then Jesus called his disciples unto him, and said, I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days, and have nothing to eat: and I will not send them away fasting, lest they faint in the way. And his disciples say unto him, Whence should we have so much bread in the wilderness, as to fill so great a multitude?

And Jesus saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven, and a few little fishes. And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground. And he took the seven loaves and the fishes, and gave thanks, and brake them, and gave to his disciples, and the deciples to the multitude.

And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets full.—Matt. xv, 30-37.

Unconsidered Trifles

An admiral—a stickler for uniform—stopped opposite a very portly sailor whose medal-ribbon was an inch or so too low.

Fixing the man with his eye, the admiral asked: "Did you get that medal for eating, my man?"

On the man replying "No, sir," the admiral rapped out: "Then why the deuce do you wear it on your stomach?"

The special music by the choir was much enjoyed.

CHAPTER I

JUDITH pressed the cocky little hat over her red curls and reached for her purse. It was 12 o'clock and she was in a hurry to be off, but as she turned to leave the office, the buzzer on her desk rang. Reluctantly she flipped the button with a perfectly manicured finger.

"Yes, Mr. Watson?"

"I want to see you at once, Miss Kingsly," said the president of the Watson Airplane Corp. His voice was crisp and urgent.

"Yes, sir," she replied, her tone lacking its usual enthusiasm.

She could have removed her hat and put down her purse but she did not. It was her lunch hour and he might as well know she expected to eat. She picked up her note pad and pencil and started for his office. When she entered the spacious room, Watson looked up, a deep frown between his eyes.

"Sit down, Miss Kingsly," he instructed, and motioned her to the chair on the other side of the flat-topped mahogany desk.

She hesitated, thinking if she sat down the interview might be too long. He smiled, relaxing his soberness for the moment.

"I know—it's 12 o'clock and you have a date for lunch."

"Not a date, Mr. Watson," she answered smilingly and dropped her slim and graceful figure to the chair, "but I am disgustingly hungry for a girl who has to watch her diet and count her calories."

He chuckled.

"I won't keep you long and you will have no use for that," he informed, indicating the note pad. He leaned back in his chair and studied her intently with his dark eyes. "How would you like a trip to California?"

Judith straightened her shoulders and looked at him questioningly.

"I think there is a leak in this organization somewhere and to put my fears at rest, I am sending you to San Diego. I want a check-up on the office force out at the factory. Do you want to go?"

Judith's eyes sparkled and she leaned forward eagerly.

"Of course, I want to go." Her voice was swift with decision.

"IT might prove to be a dangerous assignment," Watson informed her gravely. "You understand that? There is time to back out and it isn't compulsory, you know. It won't mean your job if you do not wish to go."

"But I want to go, and I love danger and excitement," she told him, and there was a brightness to her tone that gave truth to her statement.

"I know." He smiled with understanding. "That is why I thought of you immediately. You have never seemed to be afraid of anything or anybody." There was admiration in his eyes. Judith was valuable to the company and he knew it. "You're cool-headed and not easily excited when you get in a tight spot. And you have plenty of determination to see a thing through. I've had my eye on you for a long time, young lady."

"Thank you for the nice compliments, Mr. Watson," Judith said, blushing. "But when do I start for California?" Eagerness trailed her words. "I'm terribly excited."

"At exactly three o'clock." He glanced quickly at his watch. "You haven't too much time. You will take the plane for San Diego, and no one here is to know you are going. Just walk out to lunch without a word and don't come back. I'll say you phoned in you were sick. A place will be reserved for you on the liner, and you can pick up the ticket at the field office."

He leaned over the desk and his voice was suddenly very low.

"The plans for that new bomber are being carried out to the west coast factory on the same plane. It's a secret. So keep your eyes open."

"How am I to know who has the plans?" she asked. With her red hair peeking saucily from beneath her hat she looked more like a debutante than an investigator. "After all I don't want to protect the wrong man."

"Tall, dark and handsome, I would say," smiled Watson. "Nice, quiet sort of fellow. The name is Tom Burke."

"Tom Burke!" echoed Judith, startled, and color rose to her cheeks. She looked away quickly. Even if she had fussed with Tom and they had parted ways in anger, the mere mention of his name still had the power to send her heart racing. But that was no reason why she should let Watson suspect anything existed between them.

WATSON nodded his head.

"I thought you would recognize the fellow. Seen you two together on occasions. What do you think of him?"

A deeper flush burned her cheeks and made her furious with embarrassment. She answered a bit curtly.

"Nice on the eyes but conceited and stubborn as a mule."

"Well, never mind." He smiled as if from some inner knowledge and stood up. "Keep your eyes open. I want to nick any sabotage in the bud that might be developing in this company. By the way, Burke is remaining on the coast as consulting engineer for the plant." He let that bit of information sink in, then reached for her hand and pressed it. "I am depending on you to carry through for the company."

"Then I'll be on my way, Mr. Watson." Her red mouth curled in a mischievous grin. "I shall have a very good time and spend the company's money freely."

"You have a free hand on expenses. And happy landing."

Judith fairly raced from the building and did not stop to eat lunch. She hailed a taxi and rushed to her apartment to pack a hasty bag.

As she walked through the airport gates the loudspeaker announced the approaching departure of the westbound plane. The afternoon sun sifted through her red hair, and the light of adventure glowed in her eyes. She hurried aboard the big silver ship and took a seat in the rear. She did not have time to look around at her fellow-travelers for a few minutes. There was the task of adjusting the safety belt and making herself comfortable.

But once in the air, she settled down and let her eager eyes rove the ship in search of Tom Burke. In a moment she saw him, up one seat and across the aisle. She studied what little of his head she could see, wondering if he would sence her presence. But he did not turn. A little sigh passed her lips. She knew in her heart that she still loved him, regardless of what had happened or been said.

With an effort, she pulled her gaze from him and looked around at the others she could see. The man in front of her had his head turned to the side. His eyes seemed to be focused on Burke, but she could not be sure from where she sat. The man across the aisle from her was either very frightened or very interested. His stare was glued to the back of Tom's seat. She studied the man for a long time from veiled eyes.

Just as she settled down to read a magazine, a sudden alarming thought came to her.

"Those men are watching Tom. They must know he has the plans for the bomber."

Hockey Squad Scores All Runs In Second

On the strength of one big inning during which they scored all their runs, Plazas defeated Luckies 5 to 4 in one of the most exciting City League battles of the season at the Riverside Park on Tuesday night, and thus go out in front by a full game in the loop race. Luckies and Royals are tied for second place and Soldiers in the fourth slot are only half a game back.

Th hockey squad jumped on Dal Taylor, Toronto boy, who started the game for the Luckies for five runs in the second inning, and it was just enough to win for them. Taylor was relieved in the fifth by Bill Lewis and the lefthander stopped the winners completely for the rest of the game. He did not yield a hit in the four and two-third frames in which he worked. Meanwhile big Dave Wilson had been holding the losers under control, but they broke loose with a three-run rally in the seventh and from then on had Plazas hanging to the ropes. Wilson ran into more trouble in the eighth, but Tom Parsons did a swell relief job to save the day.

Bill Moorhead turned out with the Luckies and came through with three hits, one of them a triple. Joe Stewart also had three, two singles and a triple for the losers. Eddie Starr with two singles was the only Plaza to get more than one blow.

Plazas had two double plays, both started by Art Heal and Lewis while playing left field for the losers galloped a long way to gather in a fly from the bat of Jim Ellis and double W. Starr of second.

The winners' big inning was the second. Don Crowe opened by walking, Eddie Starr beat out a bunt and Heal singled sharply to centre filling the bases. Taylor struck out Wade but slipped in two wild pitches to let Crowe and Starr score. The second was the fourth ball to Wilson, who strolled and stole second. Kingdon singled to centre, scoring Heal. W. Starr dropped a single into left scoring Wilson and Kingdon and going to second on the throw-in. He was doubled up when Ellis flied to Lewis.

Plazas threatened frequently after that and had thirteen men left on bases but they could not drive home another run.

Luckies got their first score in the fourth. Stewart beat out an infield single, but was forced at second by Lewis. The latter went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Moorhead's single to left when Wade let the roller get away from him. Jameson walked but M. Caccavella fanned and Watson hit into a forceout.

There was no more scoring until the seventh when the Luckies got three in a sudden uprising after two were out. Then the fun started. A. Caccavella walked. Joe Stewart pushed a triple to deep right centre, scoring Caccavella. Lewis walked and he and Stewart dashed home when Moorhead ripped a triple between Wade and Blewett. With the tieing run on third Jameson rolled to Wilson.

There was more trouble for Plazas in the eighth. M. Caccavella started with a walk and Watson bounced a single off W. Starr's shoulder as the latter came in looking for a bunt. Parsons relieved Wilson and got Patterson on a pop fly to Ellis. McCormick lifted a fly to right which Kingdon dropped, but M. Caccavella was out at the plate on a fast relay, Kingdon to Crowe to Eddie Starr when he tried to score on the play. Then W. Starr tossed out A. Caccavella to pull the Plazas out of the hole.

There was another Plaza scare in the ninth. Stewart opened the frame with a single to left and Lewis bounced another off Heal's shins and the tieing and winning runs were on the bases with no one out. Parsons, however, got Moorhead on a fly to Kingdon, disposed of Jameson on an easy fly to Wade and then M. Caccavella hit to Heal, forcing Lewis at second to wind up the game.

The teams:

Plazas — Kingdon r, W. Starr 3b, Ellis 1b, Blewett cf Crowe 2b, E. Starr c, Heal ss, Wade lf, Wilson p, Parsons p.

Luckies — A. Caccavella 2b, Stewart cf, Lewis lf, p Moorhead rf, Jameson 1b, M. Caccavella ss, Watson 3b, Patterson c, Taylor p, McCormick lf.

SPORTS — DAY BY DAY

By FRED D. CRAIG

The Girls' Softball League will have the stage all to themselves tonight when Generals and Brintons will clash in a league game at the Bowl. No men's game is carded for tonight. Last time out the league-leading Generals who have scored three successive wins triumphed over Brintons, largely on the strength of one big inning but the Carpet-makers threaten to come back tonight and reverse the decision. They claim they had a very bad night in their first clash with Manager Mike O'Brien's squad, who right now, in the absence from the city, of the pilot himself, are under the control of George Hawks. Leila Hughes is scheduled to do the twirling for Brintons with D. Walker behind the bat while the probable choice for the Generals is Bea McDowell. The Millbrook girl has not pitched a game this season and may get her chance against Brintons tonight. The game is called for 7 o'clock sharp and should be a real argument.

* * * * * *

There will be another lively battle in the red-hot City League Thursday night when Soldiers and Royals will tie into each other at Riverside Park. Both clubs want the win in the worst way. Royals by triumphing over Soldiers could climb into second place just half a game behind the league-leading Plazas while the boys from the Military Training Centre who have won their last two starts by playing fine ball can go up into third by a win over the Royals. With so much at stake both outfits will be all out to win. Bill Fraser will undoubtedly get the call to do the throwing for Royals and Ken Fleming is the probable Soldier choice. It should be a real pitcher's battle between the smooth-working left-hander with the sinker ball on the hilltop for Soldiers and the fastball right-hander of the Royals. The City League is dishing out a lot of good ball games these nights. Most of them are won and lost by a one-run margin, after airtight contests and tomorrow's tussle should be another argument of that type.

* * * * * *

Incidentally last night's battle between Plazas and Luckies was one of the best of the season, with lots of folk getting into scoring position and comparatively few of them getting home and plenty of action all the way. Plazas won the affair because they jumped on Luckies' new pitcher Del Taylor for five runs in the second inning and they just did manage to hold one-fifth of that margin when the shooting ended, although Luckies had them plenty worried. Bill Lewis and Tom Parsons both gave a fine exhibition as relief hurlers when they were called on in tight corners and their work was outstanding. The feature fielding play was contributed by Luke Jameson, first baseman of Luckies. He was set on the inside of the bag when Art Heal bunted. Watson's fast throw was well to the outside of the cushion and Jameson had to shift quickly and make a fine one-handed catch of the toss in time to retire the runner. Bill Moorhead, playing his first game for Luckies cashed in with three hits and they were all smacked right on the nose. Moorhead drove in three of Luckies' four runs, a nice night's work for the new addition to the Griffin squad.

Industrial Loop Operating

Peterborough has a new softball organization operating right now in the Industrial League launched a few days ago with teams from Outboard Marines, Dominion Woollens, Brinton, Raybestos and Canadian Watercraft, and possibly De Laval all lined up in what should be a well-balanced loop. Every club is expected to stick to the employees of its own plant and no City League pitcher may be used. The league got under way Monday night when Outboard Marines with Rennie and Maguire doing the pitching triumphed over Dominion Woollens 17 to 8. Cavanagh did the heaving for the losers. The league will play three games a week, starting at 7 o'clock in each case. The Monday and Wednesday games will be staged at the Dominion Woollens' field and the Friday fixtures will be played at the Brinton diamond. The public is invited to drop around and see the clubs perform.

* * * * * *

Local soccer fans are likely to be treated to one of the finest exhibitions of the game ever staged in Peterborough in September when the Picton Royal Air Force eleven will be seen in action here and their opponents, it is expected, will be the Mount Hope R.A.F. team who gave such a fine display of soccer in Toronto the other day in beating the Royal Norwegian Air Force squad 8 goals to 0. The game will be arranged in aid of the British War Victims' Fund and all the proceeds will be devoted to that most worthy cause. The original idea was to match the Picton R.A.F. against a local eleven but a survey has revealed the fact that a side strong enough to extend the British airmen who have several professional al players in their lineup could not possibly be picked up locally. Now the decision has been reached to bring the Mount Hope R.A.F. eleven and that should produce a memorable game, played by two of the strongest soccer squads ever to visit Peterborough.

Another For Mister Judd

Lefty Judd, product of Ingersoll, Ont., is doing quite nicely by himself as a member of the Boston Red Sox and yesterday he picked up his seventh win as against three losses by defeating the Detroit Tigers. Judd kept eight Bengal hits well scattered and the Sox won 6 to 2. Ted Williams who had lost his home run punch for a while came through with his 16th circuit clout, Jim Tabor contributed another four-master and Judd himself kicked in with a third. There were plenty of homers in the Cleveland-Philadelphia game too in which the Indians won a free-hitting affair 7 to 5. It was the eighth win of the season for Jim Bagby who has only dropped three contests. Oris Hockett, Les Fleming and Ken Keltner all helped the Bagby cause by crashing out circuit blows while Bob Johnson kicked in with his ninth of the campaign for the A's with two on.

* * * * * *

In the National loop Lohrman of the Giants did a real job in polishing off the Cincinnati Reds. He held them to four hits and Mel Ott's club grabbed the verdict 7 to 0, making nine hits count to the limit. Lohrman has now won six games and has only been beaten twice. Paul Derringer, who has been having trouble hitting his old time stride was the losing pitcher. He has lost four decisions this season and has won only three. With Lou Novikoff, the mad Russian, hitting his third homer of the season Chicago Cubs vanquished the Phillies 8 to 4. Olsen was the winning heaver and Hoerst the loser.

* * * * * *

Both leaders in the big show came home in front last night. The New York Yankees managed to squeeze out a 6 to 5 win over the St. Louis Browns, although the Brownies with a three-run rally made it close on end. Atley Donald was the winning pitcher and Hollingsworth lost the decision. At Brooklyn the Dodgers disposed of the Pittsburg Priates 6 to 2, with Larry French, in a relief role getting credit for his sixth win of the season without any losses. Joe Medwick of the Dodgers extended his consecutive batting streak to 26 games and the veteran seems to find all the National League pitchers alike.

"Gas House Gang," "Flatbush Mob" Mix It Up

The long-standing rivalry between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers has finally boiled over, with the result pictured ABOVE. It started in the sixth inning of a game at Brooklyn when Joe Medwick, himself a former Card, raced to second on a passed ball and slid in with spikes high. Shortstop Martin Marion of the Cards promptly went after Medwick and players of both teams joined the fray. Umpires finally stopped the free-for-all after 10 minutes of battling.

Westclox Girls Beat Electrics

Westclox girls broke into the win column in the Girl's Softball League Tuesday night when they defeated the Electrics, formerly the Porcelains, by 11 to 6, in a game in which the Clockmakers were always ahead.

Last year's champs scored four runs in the first inning on an error and hits by Isobel Bullock, Marg. Hawthorne, Eunice Armstrong and B. Rome and after that outburst they were never headed although the Electrics kept battling until the final frame.

Marg. Watson pitched steady ball for the winners, keeping Electrics' nine hits scattered, with the exception of the eighth inning when the losers bunched three safe blows to score as many runs. Westclockers played good ball in the field and catches by V. Patterson at shortstop and D. Walker at second base were features of the battle. Mary Larmer went the route for the winners and after a bad start in the first inning turned in a good card for Electrics.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

No. 2 group is all tied in a knot, with the defeat of Ray Hutchinson's rink, the only one that had won all their games. It puts Fred Dearborn, C. Giroux and R. Hutchinson all in a three-cornered tie for first place, and from now on the result of each night's play will be watched with interest.

The best played game of last night seems to have been the Ryan-McDonald game. Tied coming home, the last bowl. When we left the green C. Giroux was well up on M. Levine and seemed to be home free.

As far as our own game was concerned, we were never in it. The president was too good all down the line. Maybe the wrong Martin was skipping our rink. We can only take the scores as far as the rest of the games are concerned.

Now more about the July 1 tournament. It will be for new rinks, schedule calibre. Three 12-end games on the 2-1-0 system. Two games in the afternoon and one game and the playoffs in the evening. Get your rink together and hand your entry to H. Clegg, F. Dearborn or B. Chesler.

While the rain spoilt any chance the ladies had to play yesterday afternoon, yet a couple of games were played last evening.

On Friday evening we will have a big mixed tournament at 7:30 o'clock. Draw from the board, and everything the same as usual. It looks as if our flag pole has become decapitated.

JERSEY CITY RAISES $40,000 FOR RELIEF, WHIPS BEARS SAME TIME

Fischer Blanks Newark 5-0; Orioles Nab One

By The Associated Press

Every Jersey City Giant fan is happy to-day, for besides contributing approximately $40,000 to the Army-Navy Relief Fund their International League entry shut out the league-leading Newark Bears 5-0 and advanced to within 2½ games of first place.

Secretary Charles A. Stoneham of the Giants announced the paid attendance as 38,704. That many tickets were sold but only some 25,000 spectators turned out.

The game began at 7.30 last night and went seven innings before the army dim-out regulations which prohibit use of the floodlights longer than one hour after sundown stopped the festivities

The Giants started the fireworks by driving starter Mel Queen of the Bruins from the hill in the first with a three run barrage. Sid Gordon of the Jerseys had four hits in four appearances at the plate.

Rube Fischer went the distance and hung up his sixth victory of the year as he scattered eight hits and left 11 Newark runners on the paths. Fischer struck out nine.

The Baltimore Orioles brought to an end a six-game Syracuse winning streak as the defeated the Chiefs, 6-3. in the only other game played Lefty Clyde Smoll got off on the wrong foot as his wildness permitted the Chiefs to score three times in the second inning to assume a 3-1 lead. Ray Flanigan relieved and shut out Syracuse the rest of the way.

The Orioles came back to score three times in the third as the Indian hurler became wild and added single tallies in the fourth and ninth to clinch the victory.

Threatened Jock Laughs Rides 3 Winners

NEW YORK, June 24—(CP). — Johnny Longden sneered at danger yesterday. In fact the little veteran jockey from Tabor, Alta., ground his teeth savagely in the face of threats against his life. He scored a triple at Aqueduct.

Johnny was guarded by policemen Monday and Tuesday after the wife of the Aqueduct race track superintendent was reported to have received two telephone calls warning that Longden would be "picked off" if he took any more mounts during this Aquedect meeting.

They allowed Longden to brave danger yesterday, and all he did in the first race, a $1,500 event at seven furlongs, was bring down Miquelon in front. Miquelon, a rank outsider, paid $125.50 on a $2 ticket to win, $40.30 for place, and $13.40 for show.

Longden had piloted Duchess Anita to first place in the second race Saturday, but couldn't get another winner until yesterday. The threat against his life was made to Mrs. Joseph Beck, wife of the track superintendent, after Saturday's program.

Track authorities became so concerned for Longden's safety that they announced Johnnly wouldn't be allowed to ride until "further notice." The ban didn't take, however ,and Longden had five mounts.

Longden was inclined to laugh off the threats all along. He was guarded by a plainclothesman as he returned to the jockey room after each of his races yesterday, but no further extra police precautions were taken.

It was reported that the threat against his life was made by gamblers who had lost money on Longden's mounts.

The long-shot Miquelon didn't satisfy Johnny yesterday. He had four other mounts and brought home Best Irish, the favorite, in the sixth. Best Irish paid $3.60. In the eight he won with Bright Gray, which paid $19.60.

Canadian Army Calls Pitcher Babe Marchildon

PENETANGUISHENE, June 24—Phil (Babe) Marchildon, gift of Penetanguishene to major league baseball, has received his call to serve in the Canadian Army, it was disclosed here yesterday.

Marchildon was spotted in amateur ball as a pitcher of unusual ability. He graduated from Toronto Maple Leafs, to Philadelphia Athletics two years ago.

The Marchildon family here is in very modest circumstances, and the advice from National Defence Headquarters interrupts a spectacular and lucrative career for the sensational hurler.

Although the fact that the athlete had been called up was confirmed by some members of the family, his father, Oliver Marchildon, and other close relatives, refused to confirm the fact, when questioned. Marchildon is unmarried.

Two weeks ago a younger brother, Francis Marchildon also received his call to the army.

Marchildon's ability as a pitcher in O.B.A. contests was recognized by Jim Shaw of Port McNicholl, veteran amateur baseball coach. He persuaded Dan Howley of the Toronto Maple Leafs to give him a tryout and after the Leaf manager had seen the Penetang twirler's wares, he signed him to the Leafs' staff.

Last season Marchildon impressed Connie Mack, manager of the A's, and Mack predicted a great future for the Babe. This season, Marchildon went from a five-game winning streak to a five-game losing streak, which he snapped at Chicago last week, when he pitched the Athletics to a 4-3 victory over the White Sax.

(Marchildon is the second pitcher in organized baseball to get his call from the Canadian Army. Ralph Hammond, former Guelph amateur southpaw, on Toronto's roster, was the first. Another Canadian pitcher, Joe Krakauskas has returned to Canada to enlist.)

French Fills Gap As Brooks Clip Pirates 6-2

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associted Press Sports Writer

The Brooklyn Dodgers have erased virtually all question of their retaining the National League pennant, but they are giving their fans something to ponder in the way of batting and most valuable player honors.

Pete Reiser and Joe Medwick are away out in front of everyone else in the league in batting and it is generally conceded that they are the two foremost candidates for recognition this year as the most valuable player in the league.

But the records would seem to show that laughing Larry French is just about as valuable as any other one man on the Dodgers. He stepped into the breach again last night in a relief role to beat the Pittsburg Pirates 6-2 for his sixth triumph without a defeat this year.

The lefthander, who was almost cut loose by the Dodgers during Spring training, stopped Brooklyn's worst losing streak in May with a four-hit 11-inning 3-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals; he stopped another short losing streak later that month by shutting out the New York Giants; and last week he stopped a St. Louis winning streak.

French always has been around when needed and last night when Whitlow Wyatt couldn't get his throwing arm loosened up, Larry was flagged in from the bull pen at the start of the third inning. The score was 2-2 at the time, and French pitched shutout ball for the rest of the way and also set off the winning rally.

With two out in the fifth inning, the pitcher singled. Two more hits loaded the bases and then Reiser singled two runs home and Medwick knocked another pair across with a double—extending his batting streak to 26 games.

Yanks Shade Browns

The New York Yankees came out of their slump by nosing out the St. Louis Browns 6-5, with a 14-hit barrage including three safeties by Joe Gordon and a like number by Joe DiMaggio. The Browns succeeded in belting Atley Donald off the mound with a three-run uprising in the eighth, but it was insufficient.

The Boston Red Sox smashed the Detroit Tigers into submission 6-2 with Oscar Judd scattering eight hits and himself getting one of Boston's three home runs. Ted Williams hit one, his 16th of the season, and Jim Tabor the other.

The Cleveland Indians also collected three homers in overpowering the Philadelphia Athletics 7-5. The Tribe's round-trippers were by Oris Hockett, Les Fleming and Ken Keltner. The A's made four runs in the fifth inning when Bob Johnson homered with two aboard.

The Cincinnati Reds, who had won 13 of their last 17 games and were hopeful of getting within sight of the Dodgers during their eastern invasion, were rudely shut out by the New York Giants 7-0 as Bill Lohrman pitched a four-hitter.

It was the Giants' seventh victory in nine games against the Reds and also Lohrman's third triumph over them. The victim of the New York pounding was Paul Derringer. The weak-fielding Reds made three errors and four double plays.

The Chicago Cubs captured a free-hitting affair from the Philadelphia Phils 8-4, although outhit 13-12. The big blow in the Bruins' assault was a three-run homer by Lou Novikoff.

Actor Is Jailed On Non-Support

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., June 24 —(AP). — Wally Vernon, screen, stage and night club comedian, surrendered yesterday on a charge of non-support and was sentenced to a year in the county road camp. Justice Cecil D. Holland, who two years ago placed Vernon on probation told him:

"There is no excuse for a man earning $500 to $700 weekly as you are able to do, to permit his wife and children to be evicted from their home, as was the case with Mrs. Vernon and youngsters several months ago.

"You have been enjoying profitable bookings as a night club star, and you are now booked to star at the county road camp of 365 days. The money you earn will go toward the support of your children."

Unless Vernon wins a stay of execution, he will receive $2 a day with the road gang.

Vernon originally was arrested two years ago, put on probation, but ordered rearrested for violating probation terms.

MONTREAL, June 24.—(CP)— Even the warm rays of a June sun could not make Defenceman Jimmy Orlando forget the bitterness of Detroit losing the Stanley Cup to Toronto Maple Leafs. The husky Montreal Italian, between two-buck best at the Blue Bonnets race track, sadly gave his version of why Red Wings were conquered after winning the first three games: "The main trouble," he mused, "was that Leafs finally caught on to our knock 'em down style and threw the same thing right back at us. Instead of rushing with four men as we had been doing, they rushed out with five, playing all-out hockey and not giving a hang for breakaways."

Income Tax

He estimated total revenues on the basis of the new tax rates at $2,050,000,000, with another $95,000,000 in refundable taxes under the new plan, leaving a net deficit of $1,755,000,000 to be met by borrowing or out of cash assets.

That means, he said, that on top of paying their taxes Canadians must save and lend to their government. It means less spending, he warned, and there will be fewer things on which to spend, since less goods will be available for civilian consumption.

"Every dollar we spend means that someone else is working for us," he said. "Let us not spend it if that someone might instead be working for victory.

"I am not asking that anyone's standard of living should be reduced below the level of personal efficiency and decency. But I am asking that it should be no higher than that level.

Compete In Saving

"Let us compete with our neighbors in saving, not spending; in making shift with what clothing and house furnishings we have, not in buying more; in hard work and plain and thrifty living."

After speaking for two hours on his annual financial review and forecast, Mr. Ilsley drew congratulations from Conservative House Leader Hanson on the manner and method of his presentation and heard State Secretary McLarty declare it was the finest budget speech to which the House had ever listened.

No date was set for resumption of the budget debate in which Mr. Hanson will lead off.

"The proposed tax increases are substantial and severe," said Mr. Ilsley towards the end of his speech. "They are imposed on the assumption that Canadians appreciate the critical gravity of recent events and the necessity of making a supreme effort this year."

He said the light-hearted optimism evident a few weeks ago had been shattered by events of the last few days in Libya, the Crimea and China.

"Do not these convince us that the war may not be won this year, may not be won for many years?" he asked.

Germany and Japan had not recklessly brought the United States into the war. There was nothing intentionally suicidal about their plans. They were convinced they could win in 1942, Mr. Ilsley said he believed Canadians now realize how critical the situation is in the Middle East, in China and in Russia and how critical it may be "elsewhere before long."

The long speech, with its numerous figures and its careful statements of economic and financial policy had an attentive audience of members and gallery spectators. For most of it the minister read in a clear, firm voice, seldom raising his tone except to emphasize a point.

But as he touched on the world situation at the end he adopted the pose and tone of a platform orator.

Only once or twice he permitted himself a diversion which leaned toward wit. Once was when he announced a new tax on telephone extensions in private homes of 25 cents a month.

"The treasury will be glad to have the revenue but, if anyone chooses to discontinue the use of such extensions, the telephone companies will be glad to have the instruments," he said.

Limit On Incomes.

Another was when he discussed a proposal to set a maximum limit on incomes, such as the $25,000 limit proposed in the United States. He explained the new income tax rates reached a maximum of 96 per cent. for married persons and 18 per cent. for single persons in the highest income brackets.

The United States had large incomes from tax-exempt securities which did not exist in Canada and so might have special reason for a top limit.

The Minister admitted there might be "some logical political allurement" in establishing a maximum income by legislation but added:

"I can only say there have been to many difficult and far-reaching decisions to be made in framing this budget for me to give any consideration to its political adornment."

Tariff changes in the budget were few. The main ones were to raise the customs duty on imported liquor, wine and beer in line with the increased levies on domestic products.

Another removed duties on machinery to be used in production of oil from tar sands a move to aid in the development of the Northern Alberta tar sands deposits as source of oil. Other adjustments were downward or designed to facilitate administration.

78 Per Cent of Outlays Met.

Reviewing last year's operations, Mr. Ilsley reported that 8 per cent of Government outlays for non-war and direct Canadian expeditures had been met out of revenue; and that a little over 50 per cent of the total outlays, including advances to finance United Kingdom purchases in Canada, had been so met.

He estimated total expenditures during a fiscal year ended last March 31 at $1,894,966,000 for non-war and Canadian war outlays and total revenues at $1,481,285,000, leaving an over-all deficit of $413,681,000. In addition the financing of British purchases required $1,050,000,000, to add to the amount which required borrowed money.

In budgeting for the new fiscal year, now in progress, the minister lumped together Canadian expenditures and advances to the United Kingdom—including the $1,000,000,000 gift already authorized by stature—as war outlays. He predicted additional amounts beyond the $1,000,000,000 gift would be needed to finance British purchases up to March 31, 1943.

Regarding the exchange position with the United States, the minister expressed confidence Canada would be able to meet payments due in American dollars for increased war purchases by sales of materials under the Hyde Park agreement.

Care and economy however, were still needed in connection with United States exchange and no relaxation in pleasure travel restrictions or in the provisions of the War Exchange Conservation Act was possible.

The minister said price control was a success, but continued vigilance, application of rationing, control of commodities and direction of manpower were necessary to avoid inflation and produce the maximum war effort.

Increased War Program

Last year, he said, Canada was able to increase its war program and also increase the consumption of civilian goods. He served warning this would not be possible in future. Civilian consumption would have to drop in order to permit of expansion of the armed forces and the general war program.

The plan to make part of the income tax repayable after the war was designed to leave some profit incentive to Canadians while drawing as much money as possible into the treasury. It was also designed to equalize the base of saving.

Some individuals, particularly those in family groups, earned more and could save and lend much more than others. There was no way of equalizing their contributions. But over and above the amount they were required to pay in taxes, part of which would be repayable, persons able to do so would be expected to invest in war savings certificates and bonds.

For the first time in the history of Canadian income tax laws provision was made to enable persons to meet unusual medical expenses and contractual savings payments and treat them as deductions for tax purposes.

Medical expenses exceeding five per cent of a taxpayers' total income are deductible from his taxable income. If a taxpayer is paying fixed amounts on life insurance, annuities, or mortagges on his home, they can be treated as savings, and count to reduce the amount of tax he will pay in that part of the income tax which is refundable after the war.

The new income tax rates do not strike any incomes lower than those taxed under the national defence tax up to the present, $660 for single persons. There is a new combined flat rate of seven per cent on all incomes over the minimum. That was the old national defence tax rate for single persons, now established for married persons.

The new flat rate for single persons is eight per cent. On top of these rates comes a steeply-graduated additional tax.

The principle of making part of the tax repayable after the war is applied to the new 100 per cent excess profits tax as well as to the personal income tax.

A Fund For Post War Period

In connection with this tax the Minister made an appeal to business men to keep their costs unler control and not become careless because all of their excess profits go to the government by keeping their costs down they would build up a fund for post-war adjustments with the repayable portion of their taxes and be in a better position to come through a future critical period.

No significant changes were made in the Succession Duty Act passed last year. The rates remain unchangeable but charitable gifts up to one-half of an estate are made tax-free where they formerly paid half the regular tax rate.

Mr. Ilsley said taxes on alcoholic drinks had been increased sharply at the start of the war but sales indicated they could bear further increases. So he raised the duty on spirits $2 a gallon and duties on other drinks accordingly.

Despite an earlier increase in taxes on tobacco products, sales had increased and the new budget upped the rate on cigarets of one cent for every five with corresponding hoists on tobacco, cigars, cigaret papers and tubes. The tax of one cent a bottle on soft drinks, applied last year, was raised to two cents.

Such hitherto-untaxed luxuries as candy, and chewing gum were taxed, both at 30 per cent of the manufacturer's price.

Mr. Ilsley said that since Canada started the war with an eight-per-cent sales tax new excise taxes were applied on a selective basis. The latest imposts were designed to discourage luxury expenditure and increase savings. To the extent that they failed in this objective the treasury would benefit.

"I am sure the House will agree that these excise taxes fall on articles which it is not essential to purchase in wartime and that they will fall only on persons who make unnecessary expenditures and this gives evidence that they are in a position to contribute to the revenues of the country," he said.

Altogether, the Minister estimated the new taxes, effective for the balance of the fiscal year will increase revenues for this fiscal year by $377,850,000 over the estimated yield from present taxes of $1671,600,000.

MORE ABOUT—

Defence Tax

$1,200 a year would be exempt from tax, and the levy would not reduce incomes below those starting points.

Above these basic fgiures, the flat rate tax corresponding to the present national defence tax, would be at the rate of seven per cent for married persons, and at the same rate for single persons with incomes not exceeding $1,800.

For single persons with incomes exceeding $1,800 the proposed flat rate is eight per cent and nine per cent for single persons with incomes exceeding $3,000.

Under the national defence tax, the allowance for a child was $20 and under the proposed new system the permitted reduction is $28.

In addition to this flat rate, the Canadian taxpayer would be required to pay income tax on a graduated scale higher than the present levy. In place of the present exemptions of $750 for single persons and $1,500 for married persons, plus $400 for each child, the minister proposed a single basic exemption of $660.

Instead of past exemptions, married persons would deduct $150 from the graduated tax and the allowance for children would be $80 each.

In effect, the minister said, these allowances meant the freezing of the value of present exemptions at about the amount they have been worth to the taxpayer having an income of around $2,500 or $3,000.

Mr. Ilsley said he believed this a better way of increasing the tax on persons with families than by reducing the current exemptions.

At present first $1,000 of net taxable income is taxed at the rate of 15 per cent. Under the proposed graduated tax schedule, the first $500 will be subject to a rate of 30 per cent, the next $500 to 33 per cent and the following $1,000 to a rate of 37 per cent, compared with the rate of 20 per cent on the second $1,000 in the present schedule.

The Finance Minister estimated the yield of the present income tax, including national defence tax for a full year at about $390,000,000. The new taxation system would yield an estimated additional $115,000,000 in a full year in the form of tax revenue proper.

Minimum Savings of 250 Million

It would also impose a minimum savings requirement of about $250,000,000. But it was expected a substantial portion of this amount would be met by alternative contractual forms of saving, and possibly $125,000,000 would be left as the yield of refundable taxes.

Payments for superannuation or pensions, life insurance premiums on policies in force before the budget and principal payments on a past mortgage would be allowed as offsets against the collection of the refundable portion of the tax.

The gift tax rates would have three per cent added to them in each bracket of the schedule.

Mr. Isley proposed that provision be made for the taxpayer who has to bear the costs of illness by permitting, as a deduction from income tax purposes, amounts spent by the taxpayer and nursing expenses to the extent that these expenses exceed five per cent of his income.

The limit to be claimed was $400 for one taxpayer, plus $200 for his wife and $100 for each child up to a maximum of $1,000.

The minimum of savings required by the proposed measures did not release Canadians from the obligation to save as much as possible in addition and invest in war savings certificates or the Victory Loan, said Mr. Ilsley.

There must be a large increase in voluntary savings this year. The Government felt it was going as far as it could to ensure a reasonable minimum degree of equity in respect to war savings, but the great majority of Canadians could save more.

The effect of the proposed rates on higher income brackets would be that a married person with an income of $100,000 of which $30,000 was earned income, would be left with about $21,000 and another having a total income of $500,000 would be left with about $37,000.

Placing a ceiling on incomes with a 100 per cent top rate of taxation rather than the 98 per cent rate for a single person which he proposed on high incomes would mean no substantial additional amount of revenue.

The minister said it would not be administratively possible to deduct 100 per cent of the tax liability at the source, but from 85 to 90 per cent would be aimed at, with the taxpayer required to complete his payment at the end of the year.

The national defence tax deducted during the first eight months of this year would be credited against the tax payable on 1942 incomes.

Deductions to be made by the employers would be based on the employee's pay period against which they were made.

For those with income not deductable at the source, a plan of compulsory payments by instalments has been prepared.

The Finance Minister recommended that the age up to which children might be claimed as dependents be reduced from 21 to 18 years except where the child was attending college or school.

He proposed that persons more than 65 years old should not be liable for the minimum savings requirement if their incomes did not exceed $3,000 a year.

He propcsed that exemption from all taxes under the Income Tax Act be granted in respect to war service pensions, and that the tax on non-residents would be extended to cover salaries and annuities.

Start Deducting Tax In September

OTTAWA, June 24 — (CP). — Finance Department officials said last night that slimmer pay envelopes—with the new combined Federal tax deducted from their contents—would probably be handed to many Canadian workers at the end of their first week of September.

The proposed new taxation system, which combines the old national defence tax and graduated taxes into a single levy, was recommended in the Budget speech delivered last night by Finance Minister Ilsley.

Deduction from income will be made at the source after September 1.

With the coming of the new system the old national defence tax will disappear and it will be designated as "normal tax," with the rates increased. It will be paid in combination with the graduated income tax, also increased over last year.

Officials said that colection would begin in September on September earnings which would mean that those paid on a weekly basis would have their first deductions made by their employers from their pay envelopes for their first week's work in that month.

Officials said plans are being made to provide employees with explanatory cards or booklets to facilitate deductions at the source.

The employee will have the responsibility of informing his employer of the payments he is making on the principal of a mortgage, insurance premiums, and superannuation. He is permitted to deduct these amounts from the taxes payable.

The employee may claim deductions under the mortgage clause in respect to one residential property only.

Donald Lloyd Elects Trial In Higher Court

When a charge against Donald Lloyd of Lakefield of obtaining $535 from Consumers' Finance under false pretences was called in police court this morning Lloyd elected trial at a higher court.

Asked if the defence was ready to go ahead with the preliminary hearing T. J. Carley, K.C., replied in the negative.

"A difference of opinion has arisen between the accused and myself as to the nature of the defence to be offered and I propose to ask permission to withdraw from the case" Mr. Carley announced.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., said that the Crown was ready to proceed and that a number of witnesses had been summoned, some of them from out of town.

Magistrate Langley ruled that the case should go on and Mr. Carley announced that he would withdraw.

"I will give you time enough to get another lawyer" Magistrate Langley told Lloyd.

Mr. Carley and the accused conferred for a moment and then Mr. Carley stated that Lloyd felt that there would not be enough time to instruct another lawyer and had asked him to look after his interests in the preliminary hearing. I am doing so reluctantly, he added.

George H. Smith was the first witness called by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

He said that he was formerly manager of Consumers' Finance, Peterborough branch. He identified a document produced as a conditional sales agreement that he said had been brought into the office of Consumers' Finance in the ordinary course of business by Donald Lloyd and signed by Lloyd and James R. R. Thompson, Lakefield. As a result of the production of that agreement, Smith said that an amount of credit to the extent of $535 had been given Lloyd.

"Did you see James R. Thompson, asked Mr. McElderry, K.C.

"I never saw him in my life" replied the witness. Smith said that the company would look to Thompson for repayment and that a notice had been sent to him but that nothing had been paid by Thompson. Smith said that he had never been in touch with Thompson at any time.

To Mr. Carley Smith said that the company officials hardly ever knew the persons named in these agreements. If the payments were not paid, it was customary to look to the dealer or to the insurance for a recovery of the sum.

F. M. Vivash, former accountant of Consumers' Finance, was called in connection with a notice presumably sent to Lloyd.

The case is proceeding.

The other driver in the crash pleaded guilty several days ago and was also fined $15 and costs. It was stated in court this morning that Hosker's car was almost completely wrecked.

For driving without a driver's permit Aileen Casey, on a written plea of guilty, was fined $10 and costs, and F. Katz for driving a truck faster than 40 miles an hour was fined $15 and costs under the war regulations.

Ottawa Centre C.C. Of O. Helps War Fund

From the Capital City of Ottawa, has come a donation for the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, the story of which in a sense involves the secretary-manager of the fund, with which he has had associations dating back for a quarter of a century.

The Ottawa Centre of Canadian College of Organists has deemed it wisest to disband for the duration, and in so doing felt that the balance of its funds in the bank could be very wisely put to some good use in the war effort, thus it is that the money was forwarded to the secretary of the fund on account of his long membership, with the knowledge that he was operating a fund of some kind in the interests of air raid victims in Britain. And so in to-day's list for the fund, there appear a donation in the name of the Ottawa centre, Canadian College of Organists, per Mrs. Clara Lintell Deakin, who was the treasurer of this group, and to them the secretary of the fund says many thanks for their confidence and the cheque for $17.96 to help the people of Britain through this city and district und.

A short while ago a donation was received for the fund, being the surplus that was left over from the citizens' dinner given to Roy E. Cutting, the former general manager of the Quaker Oats plant, prior to his leaving the city, and in today's list appears an additional amount of $2.50 from the same source, all of which is most welcome help for the objectives for which the fund works.

A number of donations have been previously listed from the boys and girls of King George school and today another appears from Grades 5 and 6 of which Miss F. A. Rahmel is the teacher, an excellent way of winding up the school year, with a good deed to help others.

With the despatch on Tuesday of the 18th donation of £500 a start has already been made aiming at completing another donation, for the humanitarian work that the fund seeks to carry on MUST be continued while the need exists, and that means until such time as our enemies are no longer able to attack and bomb the civilian population of Britain.

The next donation will bring the amount sent above the ten thousand pound mark, an amount which not so long ago was considered a fortune, and this achievement speaks in glowing terms of the generosity of our citizens.

Citizens Feel All Hit By The Budget

Citizens in all walks of life scanned the newspapers today seeking to digest the various items contained in the budget brought down by the Minister of Finance, the Hon. J. L. Ilsley, and which definitely affects the lives of every man, woman and child in Canada today.

Along the main street, in coffee shops, in banks, barber shops and stores, the budget was the prime topic of conversation, and throughout the conversations ran a thread of satisfaction at the outline of the terms. In other words, the general feeling was that we ought to get on with the job regardless of the cost, and rid the country and the war job of all the encumbrances that seemingly have placed victory farther from our grasp.

A few comments picked up at random along the main street are as follows:

Vincent Eastwood: "A real fighting budget. Let us have more of the same spirit throughout all war activities and the war will be won the sooner."

Sid Goldstone, Centre Theatre: "The war must be won at the earliest possible moment, and it is very necessary that the Government impose new taxes. Every time another man enlists the cost of the war goes up for Canadians, and to me paying this bill is much more painless than what it cost Poland and other countries now over-run."

Jack Lewis, manager, Kresges: "We will just have to pull in our belts a little more, and cut out the frills. I believe that collection of the income tax at the source is a first-class idea."

Harley Weir, meat salesman: "Actually the taxes hit the luxury commodities and not the essential ones. Many of us have habits we would be much better without. And the budget in my opinion will help a lot of people get back on an even keel in their spending habits."

Norman E. Crowe, C.G.E.: "Dollars didn't pay for what we put into the first three years of World War I. It was blood, and mud, and lice, and hard fighting for the Canadians. Why should anyone kick about spending a few extra dollars to help win this war, when actually as far as most Canadians are concerned the war has not even started for them."

Chester Grant, Grant's Cleaners: "A mighty fair tax. I would prefer the new budget to the old system. Actually the Government is helping create an estate for any lean period that may follow the war."

Jos. Anthony, fruits: "The budget is eminently fair, but it really imposes a burden on the bookkeepers. There will be a lot of burning of midnight oil by girls and men who are now carrying a fairly heavy load of extra work."

J. Willey, Bank of Montreal: "The budget may seem burdensome, but when due consideration is given to the privileges we still have, and which are non-existent in Nazi-dominated countries, it is a small price to pay to retain what we consider our birthright."

T. T. Rodger, manager, Dominion Bank: "The budget will assuredly bring about a desired reduction in the volume of purchases of consumer goods, and this will allow of the release of personnel to plants engaged in the fabrication of munitions. Wage earners who do not directly contribute to meeting the cost of the war will be few in number. It is gratifying to note that so large a portion of the war cost is being met out of current revenue."

Up at the Ontario Liquor Control Board store this morning the doors were locked, and a telephone conversation with Dave Fleming, manager of the local store, brought the information that the price lists were being revised. The man who likes his nip of whiskey will pay sixty cents more for a forty-ouncer, forty cents more for a 26-ouncer and 20 cents more for a 12-ounce bottle, better known to the drinking fraternity as a "Mickey Mouse."

Nancy Leith Heads Carriers For The Past Three Weeks

The large majority of Examiner carriers are still plugging away at their self-imposed duty of selling War Savings Stamps on their respective rounds, and though the total weekly sales are showing the expected summer drop in volume, many of the leading boys and girls are selling very large amounts of stamps each week.

The girls are more than making the pace for the boys during the last few weeks and the outstanding leader of the young ladies is Nancy Leith of 617 Gilmour Street, winner of the Examiner Gold Trophy for the month of April. Some idea of the remarkable contributions Nancy has made to the War Savings Stamp selling campaign can be gained from a glance at her weekly sales since April 4. These are as follows: $67.75, $68.25, $60.00, $77.50 $55.25, $64.75, $86.00, $54.75, $69.50. This is a total of $603.75 in nine weeks, a wonderful addition to Canada's war effort. Nancy's customers who have contributed to this total are to be heartily congratulated. For the benefit of these energetic and patriotic Examiner carriers it can now be made known that some public recognition of their fine efforts is to be made in the near future. In second place to the leading lady other well-known names appear. George Clark was runner-up for the week ending June 6 with a total of $62.75, followed by Jack Harris with an even $50.00 in sales, Keith Orde with $32.25, and Victor Doughty's $27.00.

During the week ending June 13 another girl carrier made a splendid showing with $43.50. This was Elva Laing of 272 Armour Road who has had some fine sales recently. Keith Orde was third again with $35.75. Jack Harris, 239 Princess Street, placed second in the week ending June 20, selling $47.25 on his South-end route. Jack is always a strong contender for honors in the selling campaign. Another young lady, Gwen Cooper of Lundy's Lane, with a route in the South-end, also has done very well in her initial attempt at selling War Savings Stamps. She brought in a worth-while $14.00 as a beginning. All Examiner carriers are asked to keep their eyes on this column for a notice of great interest to them in the very near future. As rewards for the efforts mentioned above the following boys and girls are winners of two theatre tickets each: Nancy Leith, Jack Harris Elva Laing, and George Clark.

30 Women's Groups In City Assist In Sugar Rationing Plan

Mrs. James G. Wharry, supervisor of the volunteer workers for the coupon sugar rationing plan, which goes into effect July 1, reports that the organization is well in hand.

The C.W.V.S., which Mrs. Wharry heads, has done the organization work and more than thirty women's groups offered their assistance, with the Red Cross, business women and teachers' groups particularly active.

"Everybody is now co-operating wonderfully, and the response is splendid," said Mrs. Wharry. Her volunteer workers will have the important task of transcribing the necessary information from the application forms to the coupon ration cards.

Women Answer Appeal

Peterborough women have pitched into the job with a willingness which has been characteristic of the way in which women all across Canada have answered the appeal for volunteers.

By enlisting pulic-spirited women to do thi sall-important job, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is utilizing willing hands, and, at the same time, saving the taxpayer the huge sums which would have to be spent if the task were undertaken wit hpaid workers.

Volunteers are reminded to bring fountain pens with them when they go to the centres where they are to do the transcribing. Failure to bring a pen will result in unnecessary delays and added cost in providing writing materials.

How Plan Works

Here is how the coupon rationing of sugar works:

1.—To every urban household an application form has been delivered by the postman. Residents of urban centres not served by a letter carrier and residents of rural areas will obtain their application forms from their local post-office.

2.—Cards should be filled out in complete detail, remembering that every man, woman and child in Canada must have a sugar ration card after July 1.

3.—In urban centres authorized representatives of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board will collect the applications Thursday evening, June 25. Residents should make sure that a responsible member of the family is at home to give the application form or forms to the collector.

4.—In urban centres not served by letter carrier and in rural areas the application forms should be filled out and dropped in the nearest mail box or at the post office.

5.—Ration cards will be mailed to everyone. Volunteer workers will transcribe the necessary information from the application forms to the coupon cards and the cards will be delivered by the letter carrier. In rural areas where there is no house-to-house delivery the cards will be picked up at the post office.

6.—The ration cards will be good for the 10-week period beginning July 1. At the end of that period a coupon ration book, good for six months, will be issued.

7.—Provision is made for obtaining extra sugar for canning—over and above the half pound per person per week ration. Special vouchers are being provided to all retailers. The consumer purchasing extra sugar for canning will sign one of these vouchers.

Plans Complete For Army Week In Peterborough

The citizens' committee, in company with officers of the two reserve units in this city and Col. Keeler, O.C. of the Training Centre completed plans for the celebrating of Army Week in Peterborough on Tuesday night.

Army Week is scheduled to open on Sunday, June 28, with a drum-head service of the garrison and Canadian Legion with the following military units taking part: Prince of Wales Rangers, 4th Battery, men of the Training Centre, and Canadian Legion. Rubber Cheques Bring Jail Term

One month in jail on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently, was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on R. Richards, formerly of Timmins, after the latter had pleaded guilty to two charges of obtaining money under false pretences from two local restaurant-keepers by means of bogus cheques.

The two restaurant men, Joseph Dean and W. Gordon Powell, both gave evidence, testifying that they had cashed cheques for Richards for $5 and had found that the accused had no money in the bank on which the cheques were drawn.

Richards told the court that he would be glad to make restitution, but Magistrate Langley imposed sentence as stated.

Sells Empress' Jewels

Police said the prisoner took 85 jewels and other articles, all valued at $5,000, from the collection and pawned them for $100.

DOROTHY DIX

IT IS RISKY TO TAKE ON A READY-MADE FAMILY

Bachelor, Contemplating Marriage, Told to Consult Husbands

Dear Dorothy Dix.—I am a bachelor, 43 years old, and contemplate marrying a widow who has a seven-year-old daughter; the widow's mother lives with her. I feel that the situation is a delicate one and if I handle it right we may all be very happy together, but if I handle it poorly I will surely wish that I were a bechelor again. How can I prepare myself for the very important job I am thinking of undertaking?—L. S. D.

Answer.—To make any marriage a success requires the wisdom of a sage a nd the patience of forbearance of a saint, but to marry a widow who has the "dear departed" as a yardstick to measure you against, and the further complications of a child of whom you may be jealous, and a mother-in-law who probably is bossy, you will indeed need to possess the more outstanding characteristics of Solomon and Job and Cordell Hull.

So in order to prepare yourself for the task you are about to undertake, first of all, direct yourself of all your bachelor habits and perquisities. Up to now you have been the central figure in your little universe. You have been able to come and go as you please. Eat where you liked. Stay in or step out as you fancied. Spend all your money on yourself. Marry the widow and her child and mother—for without intending it you will will be committing trigomy—and all this will be changed.

In all likelihood you will have to listen to what your predecessor thought on every subject and have his post-mortem perfections thrown up to you. Mama and the little girl will be camped on the back seat of the car and you will spend much of your time chauffering Babykins to school and grandma to prayer meeting. And you won't be allowed to smoke in the house if Mama doesn't like tobacco, or turn on the radio after the baby has gone to sleep. Family spats will have added pep by three being in the scrimmage instead of two.

Consult a Married Man

Before taking on a ready-made family let old Tom or seedy Bill spend a quiet evening with you, going over his household bills, so you can get a sort of hardened to the knowledge of what it costs to support a family. Every man who gets married should go through this training process, but it is particularly advisable to the case of a bold adventurer who is undertaking the support of three instead of one. Adenoids, having teeth straightened, summer camps, dancing lessons and music lessons, rheumatism cures don't come as such a shock if you have gotten used to them by degrees.

Then, of course, it would be a good thing for you to take a few lessons in diplomacy so as to learn how to stroke your wife's fur the right way and keep from riling her, and to include in your daily dozen telling her how much more beautiful she gets every day, and that you like 'em a little plump instead of a string-bean figure. And if you are accustomed to living in a club with a high-priced chef, work down to home cooking by eating at beaneries for a few weeks before you enter the holy estate.

There are other things, but these few hints should make the transition from bachelorhood to domesticity comparatively painless and easy.

Philandering Women Shouldn't Marry

Dear Miss Dix.—I am 20 years old and about to enter my third marriage. I am madly in love with this man, as I was with the other two, but some of my friends say that I know nothing about real love and should not think of marriage any more. Do you think they are right?—G. G.

Answer.—Your trouble probably is that you haven't grown up. You are still adolescent, with your mind in a state of flux and your tastes unformed, and you are crazy about a man one day and think you can't live without him and tired of him the next day, and you can't get to the dirvoce court quick enough to get rid of him.

Some women are like that as long as they live. They are always unstable in their affections, always swapping husbands and never liking the new one any better than they did the old, and never getting real happiness out of life because they are always emotionally upset and always in some mess of a scandal. Worst of all, these women so often ruin the lives of fine men.

I would certainly advise you to consider a long time, at least a year, before you marry again, no matter how much you think you love this new man. Test yourself and see whether what you feel for him is the genuine love that endures, or just a physical attraction.

Philandering women as well as philandering men should never marry. They should have that much heart.

She Wants To Live Alone

Dear Dorothy Dix.—I am a widow, 55 years of age. My husband has been dead 16 years. I have no income and am in bad health, so cannot work. I am the mother of eight children. Six of them are married. The two younger ones, a girl of 16 and a boy of 21, are single. All my children want me to live with them and are good to me, but I am not satisfied as I feel that my married children should live by themselves. I have been living first with one child and then with another for 16 years, and I am worn out moving here and there. What should I do?—Mother .

Answer.—Have a frank talk with your children and tell them what you have told me—that you appreciate all their goodness to you and their making you welcome in their homes, but that you feel every family should be a unit in itself without any outsider, and you are worn out with being a perpetual guest and not having any place where you can settle down and live your own life.

Ask them to club together and rent a little apartment for you, where you can have your own things and your own way. It will cost them no more than having you with them. And they probably will jump at the idea.

If they do not like that plan, ask them to put you in a nice Old Ladies' Home, where you will be taken care of, have good nursing and the companionship of people of your own age. There are plenty of such places in which the inmates are happy as sandboys.

Children always think that their mothers are crazy to come and live with them, but such is not the case. Old people find it hard to adapt themselves to their children's ways. No matter how much they love their grandchildren, the noise of the youngsters gets on their nerves. And, above all, they want some place of their very own .

This Week's Wartime Recipe

By OUR READERS

"Dear Mary Moore:

"Out of necessity I have always had to watch the cost of food, and especially deserts which I think cost too much money usually. Take strawberry shortcake for instance, I have to buy 3 separate expensive ingredients for it, strawberries, usually 15 cents per box at least, whipping cream at 25 cents, and either homemade shortcake or bought plain cake which I don't like, at not less than 25 cents.

"As a consequence desserts have always been a challenge to me and I think I know quite a few that are quite inexpensive to make. I am giving you my Cherry Cobbler which is a favorite, and nourishing too."

Cherry Cobbler

(Contributed by Mrs. Ursula Heber)

Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 16-oz. can of unsweetened pie cherries, 1 egg, milk, ½ teaspoon salt, brown sugar, or corn syrup. Make a crust by sifting the flour and baking powder together, cutting in the butter and adding the salt, beaten egg, and enough sweet milk to make a soft dough. Roll the crust one-half inch thick and line a greased baking-tin with it. Cover the crust with very well drained canned cherries and sprinkle with cinnamon and brown sugar or corn syrup, about 1-3 to ½ cup. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. till crust and top are both a little golden. Make a sauce of the juice by heating it with 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, and stirring into it ½ cup sugar into which you have stirred 1½ tablespoons cornstarch and ¼ teaspon salt. Stir until thick and serve hot over the hot cobbler. If you use sweetened canned cherries for this cobbler, you need only ¼ cup sugar in the sauce.

Thanks Mrs. Heber for this contribution, I agree with you on deserts, most of them do cost out of proportion to their nutritive value. More ideas of this type will be most welcome.

For Thursday June 25

POWERFUL influences continue to hold sway in the celestial map, with increasing opportunities for advancing the position and prestige in a subtle or unusual manner, and with influential forces at work to bring this about by means of behind-the-scenes measures or understandings. There should be concentrated activity toward attaining honors, distinction or favors, but with an eye to much discretion, strategy and clever technique rather than any untoward effort to force issues, with those in power.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured a year of continued advance upon high position and personal prestige, possibly in some out of the ordinary manner, perhaps on the sea or in the air or in advantageous ways of enlisting the rewards and honors of those in authority. This had best be maroeuvred by subtle strategies, secret agreements or unique abilities rather than attempts to force issues.

A child born on tthis day should be gifted with exceptional creative abilities which may win it renown or tokens of approbation from those in power. Its recognition of its subtle faculties may assist in its notable career and happiness.

Gloria The Glamorous Lulu the Party Girl Take It On the Chin

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 24—(CP).—Tillie the Toiler and Gloria the Glamorous, Alice-Sit-By-The-Fire, and Lulu the Party Girl—Mr. Ilsley landed a solid sock on all their pretty chins last night.

There was a goodly feminine gallery there to hear the Finance Minister read his new budget.

There wasn't a mother's daughter of them who didn't realize her personal standard of living would be affected.

But the saving little woman with an eye to the future will be grateful to Mr. Ilsley for the minimum savings item on the income tax. It will mean that when the war is over, if there are two children in the family and her husband has an income of $2,500, there will be refunded, for every year the tax is in effect $218.11, which might be just the sum necessary, if the war lasts a couple of years, for a down payment on a new home.

Wives who are planning to have additions to the family within the year, or mothers whose Johnnies and Marys need their tonsils out will breathe a sigh of relief when they see that the new budget allows income tax reductions for medical, dental, hospital and nursing services.

Fair little debutante daughters won't be decorative assets any more, these wartime days. Papa will no longer get tax exemptions for sons or daughters between 18 and 21 years of age unless they are at school or college.

Sugar Daddies and Men-about-town are going to ask "What price Glamor Girl" from now on. New taxes on wines, beers, and brandy as well as imported spirits are going to make cocktail parties more expensive and the new taxes will hoist the cost of night-clubbing about 20 per cent.

And when the Boy Friend goes out of town it will cost him 10 to 15 per cent more to phone the girl and five to seven cents more a message to wire her.

If a girl has her eye on a new coat—be it mink or dyed rabbit, she'll pay a tax of 25 per cent on it, 13 per cent above last year's tax

She'll pay 25 per cent more if she buys jewelry whether it's real or imitation, whether its diamonds, jade, or plain sea shells, strung and colored. The same tax is on handbags, fitted toilet cases, jewel cases, watches and golf bags. Candy takes a leap of 30 per cent.

Poor Tillie the Toiler "takes it on the chin," too—chewing gum goes up 30 per cent., And she'll pay a cent a bottle more for the soft drink that she liked to have with her mid-morning cigarette.

Even the June brides don't go free. A 25 per cent tax has been slapped on all the lively things they wanted for the trousseau—cut glass, crystal glassware, metal-decorated glassware, pottery, china, clocks and ever so many household gadgets.

Miss Dorothy Lockhart, bride-to-be, was entertained by her bridge club, when a party was held in her honor at the home of Mrs. Jimmy Anderson. During the evening the guests enjoyed games and contests and a mock wedding caused much amusement. The guest of honor was presented with a beautiful white chenille bedspread and a silver relish dish during an address read by Mrs. Alphonse Feeley. Miss Lockhart expressed her thanks to her friends and refreshments were served from the dining room table centred with a bouquet of summer flowers. Mrs. Harry Barrett poured tea.

Conservation Notes

By MARY MOORE

Soup pots are a well established habit with many of our good-cook readers. Now we want you to provide a beverage jar that will fit nicely into your refrigerator, ready to receive such things as leftover tea (of all things), juice from canned fruits, leftover bits of fruit, possibly grated yellow rind from oranges and lemons—for the brew is to be boiled with some corn syrup and strained to make a nice base for your summer drinks.

There are other morsels that might be added to this fruit hodge-podge. The last bits of jam and jelly that cling to the sides of the jar give it good color and elusive flavor. These additions will vary in different households. For instance I know a lady who boils down all her apple and peach peelings in season, until they are a pulp and strains them into the beverage jar.

Watch for more ideas on this conservation topic for I'm hoping that the efficient housekeepers who read these pages will be kind enough to share their discoveries with us. When I hear from you I will print your ideas in this space.

DOES INDIGESTION WALLOP YOU BELOW THE BELT?

Help Your Forgotten "28" For The Kind Of Relief That Helps Make You Rarin' To Go

More than half of your digestion is done below the belt—in your 28 feet of bowels. So when indigestion strikes, try something that helps digestion in the stomach AND below the belt.

What you may need is Carter's Little Liver Pills to give needed help to that "forgotten 28 feet" of bowels.

Take one Carter's Little Liver Pill before and one after meals. Take them according to directions. They help wake up a larger flow of the 3 main digestive juices in your stomach AND bowels—help you digest what you have eaten in Nature's own way.

Then most folks get the kind of relief that makes you feel better from your head to your toes. Just be sure you get the genuine Carter's Little Liver Pills from your druggist—25¢.

Where little hands rest or little bodies rub, grubbiness shows!

These grubby parts need
Sunlight's "EXTRA-SOAPINESS" to get out all the dirt

HOW do you treat the grubby parts of your wash? The general grubbiness may come away easily with any cleanser—flakes, powder, or bar soap. But what of the stubborn grime at the cuffs and collar-bands of shirts; on the turned-down parts of sheets—where the dirt gets rubbed in? This is where you must have Sunlight Soap.

Sunlight's "extra-soapiness" is just what is needed for the really grimy parts. It enables you, with the merest touch, to leave a film of rich soap in actual contact with the dirt; and, because Sunlight is all pure soap, this light film is sufficient to draw out every scrap of grime safely and leave the clothes clean; sweet and fresh.

See how Sunlight's "extra-soapiness" helps to lighten your house cleaning as well as the weekly wash. Sunlight is safe for everything you wash—mild and gentle to your hands, too.

You can't do without
SUNLIGHT SOAP. A LEVER PRODUCT

IN MEMORIAM

CRAIG. — In sad and loving memory of a dear little son, Calvin, who passed away four years ago to-day.

A silent thought, a secret tear,
Keeps his memory ever dear.
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory turns by every leaf.

—Lovingly remembered by his Grandmother, Father, Mother and Brothers.

HAGGART.—In loving memory of my dear husband, James E. Haggart, who died suddenly June 24, 1941.

Great sorrow came, but hope and trust, within may heart abides.
For He who loves and cares for me
Is always by my side.
Some day, dear one, we will meet again,
When God's great will is done,
I'll stand once more beside you, dear,
When He calls for me to come.
Good was his heart, his friendship sound,
Loved and respected all around.
To a busy life came a sudden end,
He died as he lived:
Everyone's friend.

—Lovingly remembered his his wife, Lillian.

vital activity.

Of the 1,550,000 in agriculture, a good many came within the "subsistence class" — not doing much more than raising enough for themselves and their families. The question was whether some farmer with capital and greater productive capacity would not be better raising the food for the subsistence group and have such people go into construction or munitions work or other lines where they could be used to the best possible purpose.

Must Release Fit Men

Canada could not win the war without its army. Men above or below military age should be moved into the factories to release fit men. There would have to be a great movement of women to factories to take the place of men.

There was nothing sinister about conscription. Between 30,000 and 35,000 men now training or serving in Canada had been conscripted. He would prefer to see the Canadian Army Overseas as a volunteer force but if it were necessary to requre men to service overseas there would be no alternative and the men must be sent.

Home Shorthand Course Help in Business Life

Symbols Simple to Learn

She's never caught in a rut—the worker who increases her value from year to year. If you seem to be standing still in business, think—perhaps you should learn something more, shorthand, perhaps!

You can teach yourself shorthand and it's a wanted skill which is bound to add to your business value.

Hard to learn shorthand by yourself? No, the Pitman system is simple. You write by sound, not by spelling, and there aren't many sounds. For each you learn an easily written symbol—"M" an arch, "A" a dot, "K" a dash.

To write "make" you'd join the "M" arch to the "K" dash, putting the "A" dot under the arch. You don't write "E" because you don't hear it in the word "make."

But now shorthand becomes even simpler! To help you keep up with your boss' dictation there are "short forms" for long words. "Representative" (thirteen sounds!) is like an upside-down V with a hook.

Our 32-page booklet gives 18 easy, step-by-step lessons for home study in Pitman shorthand. Has exercises, short forms to help you acquire accuracy and professional speed. Can serve as a foundation for a business college course.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of SELF-INSTRUCTION IN SHORTHAND to Peterborough Examiner, Home Service. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T GIVE IT AWAY

IF YOU hold possession of a vital war-time secret, you are going to guard it from the enemy, aren't you? And the same is true of lesser secrets, such as the fact that you have a trump holding which will beat the opponents if they don't learn of it. So many points are at stake when the opponents have bid a voluntary game that you had better keep your mouth shut when you think you have the setting tricks, if a double may tell the declarer how to play the hand, or at least make it easier for him to figure out the successful method.

North: ♠ 8 6 4 ♥ J 6 4 2 ♦ J 6 2 ♣ K Q 7

West: ♠ K 3 2 ♥ 8 ♦ K 9 8 5 ♣ A J 6 5 3

East: ♠ 10 ♥ A Q 10 9 7 ♦ A 7 ♣ 10 9 8 4 2

South: ♠ A Q J 9 7 5 ♥ K 5 3 ♦ Q 10 4 3 ♣ None

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♥
2 ♠	Pass	Pass	4 ♣
Pass	5 ♣	Dbl

When North came to life with that double, after having been silent the rest of the time, almost anybody could tell he probably was counting on trump tricks, most particularly after West saw the dummy. Sitting at his left he would almost surely find the three missing trumps.

North led the spade 8 to the A, and South decided then to attack the side entry for dummy's hearts by returning the diamond 3. West had to feel his way and calculate North's distribution, in order to end-play him. He took the second trick with the diamond A, scored the heart A, ruffed a heart with the club 3, cashed the spade K, ruffed a spade with the club 2, ruffed the heart 9 with the club 5, the K dropping, scored the diamond K, ruffed the diamond 8 with the 4, discarded a diamond on the heart Q, then led the club 10.

That licked North, when West played low. Now all he could get was one trump trick, and he had to lead back from his K-7 into the A-J.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ J ♥ A J ♦ Q 8 6 5 3 ♣ Q J 8 5 2

West: ♠ A K 9 8 4 2 ♥ K 9 6 5 2 ♦ None ♣ A 6

East: ♠ 7 ♥ 10 8 4 ♦ A 10 9 7 4 2 ♣ K 9 4

South: ♠ Q 10 6 5 3 ♥ Q 7 3 ♦ K J ♣ 10 7 3

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If during the bidding of this deal, East makes a business double of diamonds, West shows both majors and finally winds up in 4-Hearts, what defensive tactics should North employ, and why?

Over 125 Attend Jolly Party For Newlyweds

LAKEFIELD, June 24—(ENS).—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clifford (nee Phyllis Darling) were again honored when about 125 friends gave them a miscellaneous shower at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Darling of Douro on Friday evening. Mrs. Dave Farrow, Mrs. Truman Dunford, and Mrs. Roy Farrow were the organizers of the party and were in charge of the evening's program.

Under an archway very artistically decorated with white bells and streamers the bride and groom received the gifts which their friends had brought. Gweneth Darling and Ronald Farrow, both three years of age, made a very adorable miniature bride and groom. They drew the presents into the living-room by long streamers attached to big baskets. The gifts were then presented to the newly-weds by the bride's two sisters, Rolleen Darling and Mrs. Russell Mundell of Peterborough. Miss Mabel Hockaday read an address to which the groom, Harold Clifford made a suitable reply.

The evening was then spent in round and square dancing. Wright's Orchestra of Warsaw supplied the music and George Kearney of Peterborough called off for the square dancing. Lunch was served at 11:30 and dancing continued until 2 a.m.

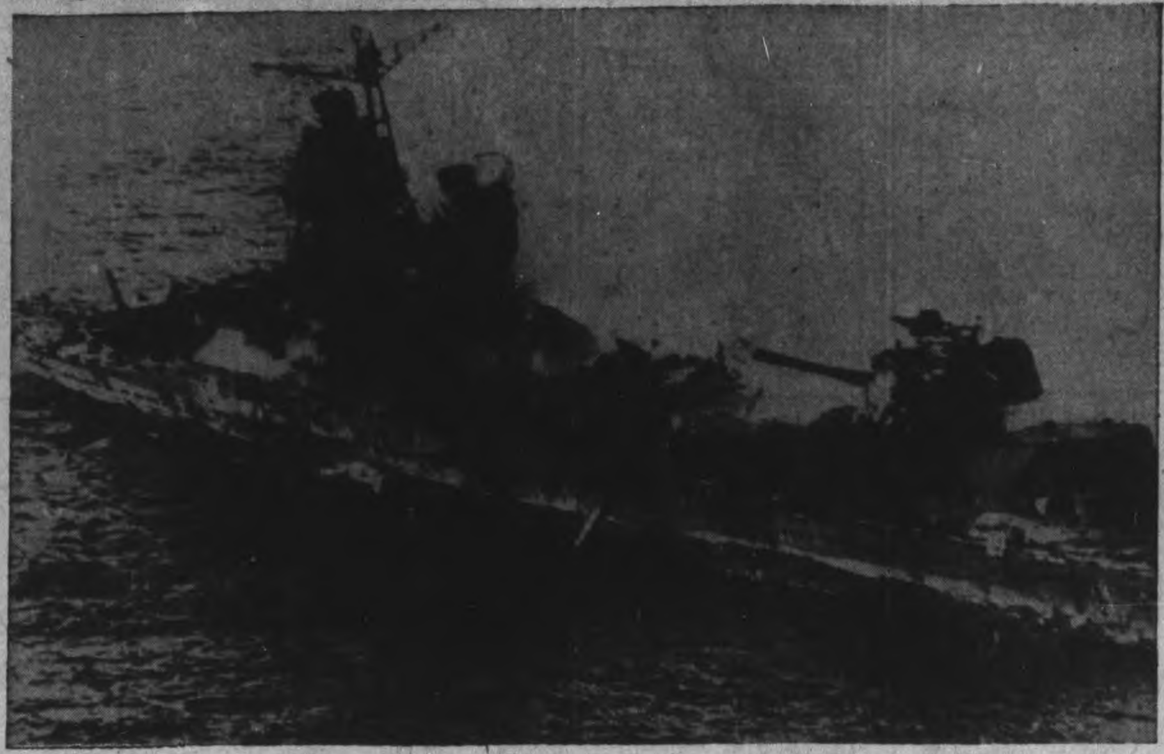
Burning Jap Cruiser Wallows After Hits By American Bombers



This is one of the first pictures of the Battle of Midway Island and shows a side view of a Jap cruiser of the Mogami class after it was bombed by carrier-based U.S. navy aircraft. This may be one of the cruisers that the U.S. navy planes sank. Smoke from the dying monster fills the ozone as it lists to one side. Uncle Sam's forces are taking drastic steps to even the sneak attack by the Japs on Pearl Harbor, and their efforts seem to be bearing fruit.

Cavan Pupils Give Concert

MILLBROOK, June 24 (ENS). — The first Musical Festival to be held locally drew a capacity audience to the town hall on Monday at 8 p.m., when pupils from the schools of South Cavan and Millbrook, under the direction of their musical supervisor, Homer Oullette, provided a program of peculiar enjoyment, and gave tangible evidence of the fine work being accomplished through the 'music in schools' project, now firmly established in this district.

G. T. McPherson, representing the school board, was chairman, and considering that over two hundred school pupils took part in the program ranging from tiny folk of the kindergarten age to one grade of the Continuation school, the order maintained was remarkably good. Mr. Oullette gave explanatory remarks, as necessary, regarding various schools and individual pupils, and was the accompanist of the evening.

The schools taking part included Fallis Line Miss Dorothy Clydesdale, teacher; Zion, Miss Gladys Williamson, teacher; Carmel, Miss Muriel Ball teacher; Whitfields, Miss Hilda Johnston teacher; Marsh, Mrs. Ferguson, teacher; who however has supplied only since Easter, Miss Betty Carveth, previously at this school, and having wider opportunity for helping with their training in music; Millbrook junior, intermediate and senior rooms, Percy Hamilton principal, and Misses Jean Burnham and G. Williamson, teachers.

Before the evening closed the draw for the handsome comforter in rose and blue shades, made by Mrs. J. H. McKnight, Fallis Line, was made by Master Herbert Fallis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allie Fallie, Mrs. L. Porter holding the lucky number.

Pupils from Fallis Line, and others throughout the district, sold the tickets and over $47.00 was realized for war work. A silver collection was taken, which will be divided between the Red Cross and British War Victims' Fund, the hall being given free by the municipal council on condition that the offering would be received and devoted to charitable purposes.

A lovely number, sung as a massed chorus, "Abide With Me," and with the audience joining later, preceded the National Anthem.

Rex Frost Heard At Millbrook

MILLBROOK, June 24—(ENS).—An audience that filled the Town Hall almost to capacity gathered on Wednesday evening to hear Rex Frost, of Toronto, and to view the pictures, "Cavalcade of Europe," with the accompanying lecture.

The guest speaker was introduced by Rev. A. L. Sisco, his appearance, tall, slim, sunburned, wearing a well-fitting grey suit, and with a decided English accent, familiar to listeners to this popular radio announcer, made a strong and favorable appeal to the audience.

The fascinating story unfolded by lecture material, and made more vivid by the views as film after film was thrown on the screen, covered the period of the war from 1936 up to Pearl Harbor, 1942, and also showed the various countries in peacetime and then by contrast their condition and that of their peoples when ravaged by war.

Indies Guerilla Warfare Keeps Japs Wary

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH, Canadian Press Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, June 24—(CP Cable). — A story of guerilla warfare in the Netherlands East Indies, harassing the Japanese invaders and pinning their troops to principal towns and main roads, has been told to Netherlands authorities and army men here by the leader of the guerilla band, who just returned to his forces after a conference here.

Ceaseless underground warfare, he reported, is being waged against the Japanese by the guerillas, who have ample supplies and secret methods of replenishing them.

He told how, when the moment for withdrawal of The Netherlands East Indies forces came, a strong band began a long, dangerous journey to previously planned positions in the hills.

Although they found the Japanese outnumbered them 10 to 1, they lashed out on frequent sorites and attacks with the result that the invaders soon remained only in the principal towns, used only the main roads and avoided clashes with the guerillas wherever possible.

Several times the Japanese Commander sent letters asking the mountain band to surrender. Each request was spurned.

Finally the invaders supplied guns to the natives and offered a cash reward for each guerilla they killed. However, the leader said, this drive proved unsuccessful.

Regular attacks on Japanese posts are carried out successfully, the Netherlanders shooting only when they are certain of killing an invader.

The Japanese are working hard among the natives, trying to convince them that the invaders are really liberators and to enlist their support in the fight against the Netherlanders.

The guerilla leader predicted the value of his men would be realized when the United Nations begin their reconquest of these islands. His men, he said, have kept the Japanese forces tied down, have inflicted heavy losses, gathered much information and distributed Allied propaganda to the natives while awaiting the Allied offensive.

Plebiscite Sets Voting Record

OTTAWA, June 23 (CP)—Canadians voted in record numbers in the April 27 plebiscite to release the government from past commitments on military service. Voters totalled 4,638,847 or 30,000 more than marked ballots in the 1940 general election, the previous high.

Final official figures released today by Jules Castonguay, chief plebiscite officer, show that 2,945514 Canadians—civilians and servicemen—voted "Yes," 1,643,006 "No." There were 50,327 spoiled ballots.

Of 6,502,234 civilians on the voters list, 4,323,856 turned out to vote, 2,694,396 "Yes" and 1,562,121 "No." That was a "Yes" vote of 3 per cent based on valid ballots, turned in by 66.5 per cent of all the voters in the country.

Official figures for the service vote announced today were unchanged from those given May 5—251,118 "Yes"; 60,885 "No"; with 2,986 rejected ballots. The Services' "Yes" percentage was 80.49 and that of the country as a whole, civilians and servicemen, 64.19.

Figures for the 1940 general election show 4,672,531 votes cast, but these included ballots from two dual-member constituencies where two votes could be cast by each elector. Allowing for this, the actual number of voters was figured to be 4,608,423 of 30,424 fewer than in the plebiscite.

Brides-to-Be Feted

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23. — (ENS)—Two Campbellford brides-to-be were entertained at a shower in their honor by members of the choir at St. John's United church on Thursday evening. The affair took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bates, Canrobert street, and Miss Betty Blake, whose marriage to Samuel Castle will take place here on June 27th, and Miss Jean Tubbs, whose wedding to Arnold Bates will occur in Lindsay on the same date, were the guests of honor. Each of the young ladies was presented with a radio lamp with Miss Edna Slumsky presenting the gift on behalf of the choir to Miss Blake and Mrs. Jack Potter making the presentation to Miss Tubbs. The affair was arranged in the form of a surprise party by the choir, of which both Miss Tubbs and Miss Blake have been members, and the choir president, G. W. Lucy, took advantage of the occasion to express appreciation for the valuable service both had rendered. This same feeling was also voiced by Dr. H. O. Richardson, who subsequently moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Bates for her co-operation in planning the evening Rev. G. N. Maxwell, pastor of St. John's United church also addressed the gathering briefly and the remainder of the evening was spent in a social time followed by refreshments.

DID YOU TAKE A LAXATIVE TODAY?

Do you really know why constipation is so harmful?

You probably know that constipation sets up poisons in the large intestine or colon. But do you know that these poisons seep through the walls of the colon and infect the bloodstream? They set up toxic accumulations in kidneys and liver and are contributing causes of rheumatic pains, sciatica and backache.

Most laxatives only act in the colon. Kruschen does more. It is the laxative with a double action. Besides ridding the colon of stagnating waste matter, Kruschen's mineral salts have a diuretic action. They flush the kidneys, help to clear the bloodstream of all poisonous matter, and so protect your whole system from that form of infection.

Kruschen is a British product, obtainable at all drug stores, 25c and 75c.

Cavan Institute Hears Fine Talk

CAVAN, June 24—(ENS).—Miss Beatrice Turner, B.A., of Millbrook was the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute, held on Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Herb. Snider in Cavan village.

The roll call, a piece of salvage, was answered by each member; the president, Mrs. Mervin Smith, being in charge of the salvage collected.

There were 20 members and three visitors present, and six more members paid their yearly fee. A report on the hostess tea, held June 8, was given by the treasurer, Mrs. Norman Braithwaite. Mrs. Robert Howden gave a report of the district annual. As a result of this report, the Institute was asked to pay its federation fee and convention fee. Each member was also asked to pay five cents toward the district fund.

The sending of boxes to the Cavan boys overseas was again discussed, and it was decided to accept gifts of money as well as parcels for these boxes.

Miss Turner, the guest speaker, gave an interesting account on the work of the Red Cross. She explained how they succeeded in filling their quota of sewing. She gave more insight on how our money is spent by the Red Cross and several other interesting details. When Miss Turner had finished her talk, Miss Annie Tinney, who distributes the material for the Red Cross in Cavan, handed out a number of articles to be sewn.

The next Institute meeting is in charge of Group 1, of which Miss Malone is the leader. The topic of the meeting is "Historical Research."

ROMMEL 60 MI. IN EGYPT FRONTIER FORTS GONE

CAIRO, June 25 (AP)—Powerful Axis tank forces thrust more than 60 miles into Egypt today, forcing the British 8th Army to fall back under a covering fire, but Royal Air Force and United States army fliers dealt the enemy a punishing blow with a second raid on the big supply base of Bengasi, 350 miles to the rear.

British army headquarters announced that the 8th Army had abandoned the frontier strongholds of Salum and Sidi Omar and that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's advanc forces were southeast of Sidi Barrani, with British mobile units fighting a fierce rearguard action.

The R.A.F. disclosed that the Germans and Italians in heavy strength were moving all day yesterday to the south of Bir Sheferen, which is 15 miles south of Sidi Omar and about .0 miles from the Mediterranean.

Take Battering By Air

The enemy then swung northeastward, being kept under continual and damaging attack by bombers and fighters of the R.A.F. and the South African Air Force.

Meanwhile the United States fliers in their four-motored Consolidated Liberator bombers teamed with R.A.F. pilos in Wellington bombers for the second time this week to launch a heavy overnight bombardment of Bengasi, principal entry port in Libya for Axis supples.

Air headquarters announced that shipping in the harbor was the objective as Rommel raced to make good his earlier Libyan losses in anticipation of his drive toward Cairo and Alexandria, now about 300 and 220 miles, respectively, away from his advanced elements.

Fighter formations kept up a constant attack all over the forward area and ranged westward to Tmimi and Derna the R.A.F. announced

2 Axis Convoy Ships Fired.

Bombers roaring out to sea in the hunt for Axis supply ships en route to Africa, set fire to one of two large enemy vessels in a convoy off Palermo, Sicily, on Monday night.

By contrast, Axis air activity over the forward battle area was described as slight, although enemy bombers caused slight damage in raids on Tuesday night and last night on coastal areas near Daba nad Matruh.

For the moment, at least, the Axis seemed to be concentrating on the land push.

Although British headquarters reported its troops were fighting a fierce rearguard action and had inflicted heavy losses on the enemy, it appeared possible that they intended to make their main stand somewhere before Matruh, vital railhead approximately 130 miles east of the Egyptian frontier.

Abandonment of Salum and Sidi Barrani was announced in a terse British communique which have only the barest outline of the swiftly developing situation on which the fate of Egypt may well depend.

British forces other than the mobile units engaging the enemy have been withdrawn from the frontier area.

The British command obviously will defend Egypt on the terrain it deems most favorable, and when the enemy smashes at the positions British officers have selected, a terrific battle probably will be fought.

Most of the Axis armored forces, travelling in at least three columns, crossed into Egypt 25 to 50 miles south of the coast, between Sidi Omar and Fort Maddalena, through gaps in the much-battered barbed wire which the Italians originally strung along the border.

His strength includes one Italian and two German armored divisions plus much truck-borne infantry.

(This is the army with which he began his offensive in May. It has suffered many losses but may well have been reinforced to approximately its original size.)

Second Czech Village Wiped Out

Hun Charge Hamlet Helped Hide Heydrich Slayers

LONDON, June 25—(CP).—The Czech commnnity of Lesaty in Bohemia has been razed by the Nazis on the accusation that the village hid parachutists involved in the slaying of Reinhard Heydrich, "protector" of Bohemia-Moravia, it was reported today in Budapest radio broadcasts heard by a Czech Government listener here.

The Vichy French News Service quoted the Prague announcement as saying all the adult male population was executed. Lesaty was described as a community of about 100 inhabitants.

This was the second village wiped out by the Germans in vengeance for the death of Heydrich, the Germans having boasted June 10 they had slain the male population of Lidice, near Prague, sent the women to concentration camps and the children to "educational" institutions.

About 350 men faced the firing squads in that village.

What happened to the Lesaty population was not disclosed by the Budapest broadcast, which quoted an announcement in Prague newspapers.

The annoucnment charged the villagers with shielding from police the so-called "parachute agents" involved in the Heyrich plot."

Another 30 Doomed

Other phases of the terrorizing of anti-Axis Czechs continued. The Budapest radio said that 18 Czechs were sentenced to death at Prague yesterday and 12 at Bruenn (Brno).

Mark-up In Price To Cover New Tax, Ruled Out

OTTAWA, June 25 — (CP). — Manufacturers and distributors will not be permitted to charge any profit or mark-up on new taxes or tax increases on various goods and services, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced last night.

The budget provided for new or higher taxes on a number of goods and services.

The Board issued an order dealing with four classifications of the goods and services affected by the budget. It said: "The intent is that prices of the actual goods or services shall not be affected, and that ceiling prices fixed by the maximum prices regulations of the Board may be maintained."

The Board said that was a simple matter in respect of taxes collected by affixing excise stamps but with regard to some other forms the procedure required clarification.

The new order in one part provided that where Federal sales tax is levied on the price of goods or services inclusive of the new or increased taxes it may be reckoned as a part of these taxes and added to the authorized maximum price.

The Board said where manufacturers or distributors have on hand stocks of goods affected by the new taxes or tax increases, but on which taxes have been paid at the old rates, they are not entitled to add to their prices any part of the new taxation.

It added: "In respect of goods and services in the group first listed in the order, the taxes are clearly separate from the price, and chargeable to the purchaser over and above the price.

"This applies to telegrams, long distance telephone extensions in domestic establishments; railway vessel and aircraft tickets; pullman and parlor car seats, railway sleeping accommodation; the tax payable by excise stamps on any charge or similar places of entertainment, and the excise tax on tobacco.

'Big 2' Cheer Leaders Of Congress

Egypt, Suez to Hold Says Churchill, In 40-Min. Review

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt gave United States Congressional leaders today a 40-minute review of "the world situation," touching on the British defeat in North Africa and the opening of a second front in Europe, and the legislators called the survey "very satisfactory and very encouraging."

Speaker S. Rayburn told reporters that the Libyan phase of the war was covered "in some detail" and that a second front was mentioned "incidentally." That subject, he added, "always comes up, of course."

Mr. Churchill's meeting with leaders from both Republican and Democratic ranks started off a round of conferences which set the day apart as one of the most important since the prime minister flew the Atlantic a week ago to confer with the president a second time.

The president and prime minister followed up the Congressional conference with an appointment with the Pacific War Council.

None of the legislative leaders would go into details of the conversations with the two United Nations leaders, Rayburn remarking that a great many of these were a military nature.

As the principal spokesman for the Congressional group, Representative Rayburn asserted as he left the front portico of the White House:

"Well, it was a review of the world situation by the President and Prime Minister. And it was made in a fashion that was very pleasing to all of us.

"It gave us information that of course we couldn't have had before, a great deal of it of a military nature. It will be the President's business to make any announcement of specific subjects discussed.

"I, and it is safe to assume the others, came away from the meeting feeling very hopeful and very good."

Representative Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, the Republican leader, told reporters that Mr. Churchill "indicated that Britain would hold, and that there is no danger of losing Egypt and Suez."

24-Inch Howitzer

MOSCOW, June 25.—(AP)—In addition to dropping more than 1,000 bombs a day on the city of Sevastopol, the Germans have been shelling it steadily with the heaviest of artillery, Russian reports said today.

Among the heavy artillery trained on the city, Russian dispatches said, was "a 615-millimetre weapon never before used." (This would be a 24-inch gun, far larger than an yartillery rifle or howitzer known and might be a mine mortar.)

Chinese Smash Japs Back For 12 Miles

CHUNGKING, June 25 —(AP)—Chinese forces have pushed the Japanese back 12 miles from recaptured Kweiki, widening the gap between eastward and westward driving enemy columns on the important Chekiang-Kiangsi Railway from 50 miles to more than 60 miles, an army spokesman announced today.

The Chinese thus tightened their grasp on the segment which keeps the Japanese from joining forces to turn the railroad into an important supply line in eastern China.

This success came as aircraft—the deficiency the Chinese have felt most acutely against the well-supplied foe—were disclosed to have gone into action against the invaders for the first time in the current east China fighting.

The air action included two operations by the American Volunteer Group, backing up the ground forces

Attack Nazi Rear; Heavy Fighting Rages at Kharkov

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, June 25.—(AP)—The German offensive against Sevastopol is slackening somewhat, because of the great losses suffered by the attackers, Russian dispatches said today, but the battle still is violent against the outnumbered garrison of the Crimean port.

Already, in the 21-day assault, six German and Rumanian divisions have been defeated, three others have suffered staggering losses, and 150 Nazi tanks and hundreds of planes have been destroyed, said the Russian accounts.

The defeated divisions were listed as the German 22nd, 50th, 132nd and 72nd, and the Rumanian 1st and 18th; those suffering great losses were named as the German 25th and 117th and the Rumanian 4th.

"In the last few days the Germans have weakened a little in their attacks on our positions as a result of immense losses," said the army paper Red Star, "but they still are superior in number, thus permitting them to carry on violent battles in a number of sectors."

(Reports received by Reuters in London said the Russians had landed troops on Crimea from a strong convoy to attack the German lines from the rear and thus aid in relieving pressure on Sevastopol.)

While the Russians held doggedly on at Sevastopol, there was a developing struggle for the Donets and Oskol basin southeast of Kharkov in the Ukraine.

A Russian Black Sea warship was reported to have entered Sevastopol Bay with supplies and reinforcements and taken away the wounded after turning its own heavy guns for two hours on the nearest German positions.

Dispatches from the beleaguered port said the Germans had penetrated into fortifications at the north and south of the city, but said the Russian Army and naval infantry still held the inner defences The intensity of the fire the Germans have directed on Sevastopol for 21 days was described as surpassing anything so far in the war.

Two operations on the Kalinin front, north-west of Moscow were declared to have cost the Germans 400 dead.

Drew Turns Fire On St. Laurent 'Facts To Speak'

TORONTO, June 25 — (CP). — Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader today issued the following statement on the charge laid against him under the Defence of Canada Regulations for his comment on the Hong Kong Commission's report:

"I hope this will make Canadians realize that we have a fight for freedom on our hands right here at home. I have too much faith in my own people to believe they will be fooled for a minute. They know that I have done everything within my power from the day war broke out to encourage recruiting and stimulate our war effort. Now this charge is laid under instructions of the same Hon. Louis St. Laurent, who last week explained and defended the attitude of the Province of Quebec in these words: 'French-speaking Canadians have no sentimental attachment for the Government of the British Isles or for Imperialism.'

"He also denied the very principle under which we despatched our expeditionary force when he said: 'It may be great and glorious to fight and die for the world's salvation of the United Nations, for the salvation of democracy and Christian civilization; but that is a privilege of each man, a privilege he has the right to choose for himself. It is not a duty which citizenship imposes as an obligation correlative to the rights which citizenship guarantees as a privilege."

"And he reduced loyalty to its lowest possible terms when he made this statement: 'Our loyalty cannot be expected to be one of traditional affection and sentiment but it is one based almost solely on a utilitarian viewpoint.'

"No more harmful speech has been made in Canada since the beginning of the war than that of Mr. St. Laurent, and yet this is the man who charges me with making a statement prejudicial to recruiting. The facts will speak for themselves."

Dutch Harbor Raid A Surprise

Rifles, AA's Fight Back In 30-Min. Scrap 35 Killed, 11 Japs Down

SEATTLE, June 25.—(AP). — In the first eyewitness report of what happ ned at Dutch Harbor, evacuees and seamen told upon arrival of a transport here how the Japanese air attack on the United States naval base at 5:45 a.m. June 3 caught civilians by surprise and how the gunners on their ship and ashore laid a deadly screen of anti-aircraft fire about the raiding planes.

While army and navy men manned the anti-aircraft guns, some of the ship's crew snatched up rifles and fired at the dive bombers.

Lifting of military restrictions disclosed that the commander of the Dutch Harbor naval base issued a commendation for courageous duty under fire by the army transport's crew and the gunners.

How many Jap planes were shot down has not been announced. Reports brought by the witnesses to the raids did not clarify the point.

(The United States Navy announcement of the raid on the Dutch Harbor base reported four bombers and 15 fighter planes were involved in the raid early on June 3, with an unreported number of planes returning six hours later for what apparently was a reconnaissance flight. The navy reported damage was not extensive, although some warehouses were set afire, and casualties were not great.)

2 Midland Towns Raided In Night

LONDON, June 25 (CP) — The air war returned to the Industrial West Midlands last night when a "fairly strong" force of German planes bombed two towns.

Five of the attacking planes were shot down there and over East Anglia where lighter enemy bomber groups scattered incendiaries at several points.

While bad weather kept the R.A.F. from attacking Germany during the night, British bombers nevertheless raided the German submarine base at St. Nazaire, France.

In addition, fighter command aircraft operated over enemy airfields.

These activities were carried out without loss of a plane, the air ministry said.

Some persons were trapped in the wreckage of buildings in the stricken Midlands communities but rescuers dug many out alive by daybreak today and it is believed the casualty list will be light.

Damage was described as fairly extensive. Villages near industrial centres suffered from widely scattered incendiary bombs. A 12th-century Church in an East Coast town was destroyed after hundreds of incendiary bombs were showered on it.

Poisoning Kills One, Sickens 4

OTTAWA, June 25—(CP). — Alphonse Racine, 55, died at his home yesterday of what doctors believed to be ptomaine poisoning, and four other persons are receiving hospital treatment for ptomaine poisoning.

Meat bought by a roomer at the Racine household, Tony Gertil, was believed to have been responsible for the poisoning.

Gertil became ill and went to hospital after cooking and eating some of the meat himself. Subsequently members of the Racine household ate some of the meat.

Racine was taken ill Tuesday night. In hospital are Mrs. Racine, daughter; daughter, Solange, 21; a son, Royal, 18, and Gertil.

Canadians Leave Japan For Home

TOKYO, (From Japanese Broadcasts), June 25 (AP)—The Japanese liner Asama Maru left Yokohama today bearing 416 citizens of Canada, the United States and Latin American countries to be exchanged for Japanese nationals who were interned in the Western Hemisphere.

The passenger list included 142 diplomats and 274 civilians, the foreign office said. Additional passengers will be taken aboard at Hong Kong and Saigon.

At Singapore the Asama Maru will join the Italian liner Conte Verde, which is scheduled to leave Shanghai June 29 with North and South Americans being evacuated from various parts of China, and the two vessels will travel together to Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, where the exchange is to be effected. Safe conduct has been granted the ships by all belligerent nations.

Arrangements have been effected for an additional exchange to take place later, the foreign office declared.

Nurse Shortage Serious

LONDON, Ont., June 25 (CP) — William Loveday, chairman of Victoria Hospital Trust, predicted today that the general shortage of nurses will soon force many hospitals to use girls trined by the St. John's Hospital Association and the Red Cross as general aides.

Mr. Loveday said that Victoria Hospital, teaching intitution of the University of Western Ontario Medical School, had temporarily experimented with such a plan last fall and results had been satisfactory.

Adolf's Big Push Goes Slow Against Reds

Dint Line, But Cost In Men, Goods Comes High With Production Past Peak

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The weight and ferocity of the new Nazi attack against the Russians in the Kharkov sector indicate that Hitler finally is settling down in earnest to the bloody business of trying to crack the Red line in this gateway to the Caucasus.

The master gangster's previous assault in this zone more than a fortnight ago apparently was to improve his positions in preparation for a major offensive. Just how much he achieved hasn't yet been made clear, although he did force the Russian line back in places. This fresh drive, now in its fourth day, may be the real thing.

Judging from reports the battle thus far has in effect been a triumph for Red Marshal Timoshenko's troops. The Germans have dented the Soviet line in the Donets Basin, but appear to have done so at a terrific cost in life and material. Naturally the attackers' losses are heavier than those of the defence—something like three to one under normal circumstances.

Thus so long as the Bolshevists can prevent a break-through they are making long strides towards victory even though they remain on the defensive. This is so because Hitler is suffering damage which he no longer can repair. He has under arms about all the physically fit men he can call, without bringing out the very young or those beyond their prime. Further—and this important—he has passed the peak of his war production and cannot increase his output. He is facing the down grade.

Down on the Crimea there is perhaps even more sanguinary fighting as the Nazis press their siege of the great Red naval base of Sevastopol Berlin this morning reported that Axis troops had penetrated deeper into the Russian defences and that street fighting was proceeding. The position of Sevastopol appears critical.

Over on the Egyptian desert one would expect the British to begin their real stand at Matruh on the coast. This about 90 miles east of Sidi Barrani and is an important point. Matruh was head of the railroad to the great naval base of Alexandria until the line recently was extended into Libya by British engineers

The new British withdrawal thus far is strategic and was expected in view of the circumstances of the defeat in Libya.

US May Scrap Metal Fences

'Too Little, Too Late' Forcing Hand—Nelson

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP)—Donald Nelson, United States' War Production Board head, told Congress to-day that raw materials shortages, admittedly due in part to a "too little and too late" policy eventually might force the scrapping of metal fences, gates, statuary and other decorative works.

"There are very few important materials concerning which the government does not need to take positive action," Nelson said in a report to the special senate investigating committee. "Some programs we now realize, were clearly undertaken too late, and others were conceived in far too niggardly a fashion. Lack of foresight in requirements has certainly been all too prevalent, whatever the causes of such lack may have been."

While asserting that production of raw materials is steadily increasing, Nelson cautioned that scrap collections must be stepped up markedly. "We may indeed find it necessary before we are through to go well beyond what is normally considered scrap," he declared.

Claim Forces Bolstering Posts in Other Islands

TOKYO, (From Japanese Broadcasts), June 25 (AP)—A communique reporting that Japanese naval and military forces in the Aleutian Islands had occupied Kiska on June 7 and Attu a day later claimed today "they are at present consolidating their positions in neighboring islands."

The announcement, made by imperial headquarters, said that Kiska henceforth would be known as Narukami and Attu as Atsuta.

A dispatch written by Makoto Saito, attached to the Japanese Marine Corps, said the weather on the voyage north was so bitterly cold ship sentries had to be relieved every two hours.

Crews and equipment were selected carefully and quantities of seeds and potatoes were transported to the Aleutians for planting, he reported, saying "this alone reveals that our action was not meant to be merely temporary."

CAPT. WHITE WARNS QUEBEC OF RISING TIDE AGAINST PROVINCE

MP Urges End Of Quebec 'Domination'

Anti-Conscriptionists Sowing Revolt Seeds Capt. White Charges

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 25. — (CP). — French and English speaking members clashed in the House of Commons yesterday in the plainest talk that has featured the conscription debate since it opened two weeks ago.

Capt. G. S. White (Con. Hastings-Peterborough) brought cries of "shame!" from Liberal members when he declared that Quebec opponents of unlimited conscription were "sowing seeds of bloodshed and revolution in this country." He called for an end of Quebec "domination" of the other eight provinces.

He was followed by L. Phillipe Picard (Lib. Bellechasse) who declared that "extremists and demagogues" in Quebec thrived on such utterances as those of Capt. White.

While Capt. White said he would support the conscription-enabling bill with the hope that the government would act upon it immediately Mr. Picard said he would oppose it, not because it was conscription but because it was unnecessary and might lead to "internal disturbances" which would interfere in the war effort.

Horrors If War Lost.

Earlier the House heard Postmaster General Mulock support the bill in a speech in which he starkly pictured the horrors which would descend upon Canada if the war were lost and prophesied a mass attack upon Canada if the enemy is not stopped abroad.

Col. Mulock, a veteran of the First Great War, as is Capt. White, said he did not believe conscription was necessary at the present time but the government should be free to impose it when necessary.

Debate on bill 80, Prime Minister Mackenzie King's measure to clothe the government with power to impose conscription for service overseas by order-in-council, was resumed after the house had adopted State Secretary McLarty's resolution to set up a Commons committee to inquire into the question of honors and awards.

MRS. HOWARD BARNARD

BAILIEBORO, June 25.—(ENS)—The community mourns the loss of one of its mostly highly respected residents in the person of Margaret L. Thompson, beloved wife of Howard Barnard, who passed away suddenly at her home early Monday morning from a heart attack.

Mrs. Barnard was born in South Monaghan in 1863. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson and was one of a family of 4 brothers and two sisters all predeceased.

Following her marriage in 1892 she and her husband resided for a number of years on the farm now owned by H. Howson later moving to Baillieboro where she resided until her death. Her pastor, Rev. Morgan Rowland, had charge of the service and then paid tribute to the life of this Christian woman. With a quiet and friendly disposition, she had become a friend of every one, as was evidenced by the large number of people who attended the funeral. The floral tokens gave further evidence of the esteem held for this grand lady of 79 years of age. Surviving are her sorrowing husband, several nieces and nephews.

Interment took place in the Union Cemetery, Baillieboro, Wednesday at 2 p.m.

Pall bearers were all nephews of the deceased, Stewart Thompson, Harold Beebe, Joseph Edgerton, Reginald Perrin. Flower-bearers were: Reeve Fred Barnard Thomas Thompson, Fred Perrin, Offa Williamson, Harry Campbell. Members of the council of which Mr. Barnard is a member walked on either side of the funeral coach to the cemetery.

Board Demands Beef Prices Slashed Cent

OTTAWA, June 6. — (CP). — Maximum wholesale prices of beef will be reduced one cent a pound July 13 and retailers will adjust their prices accordingly, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced today.

To provide for the normal seasonal decline in wholesale beef prices from June to November, a second reduction of one cent a pound will become effective Aug. 3, a third one-cent-a-pound decrease Aug. 24, and a further decrease of ½ cent a pound Sept. 14. Thus, at Sept. 14, maximum wholesale prices will be 3½ cents a pound below the June figure.

Seasonal increases will be permitted from November, 1942, to June, 1943.

Price adjustments are uniform throughout Canada for all grades of beef carcasses, sides and quarters.

The new order, which will be issued shortly, also empowers Foods Administrator J. G. Taggart to fix maximum wholesale prices for 28 different cuts of beef. A schedule of these prices, in appropriate relationship to the maximum price for a whole carcass, will be made public soon.

May Specify Grades

"It is also expected that specific discounts for beef at lower than first quality will be available within a short time," the board's an-

Three Drown As Boat Upsets

DALHOUSIE, N.B., June 25 — Three persons were drowned in the Restigouche River here last night and eight were rescued after a sailboat capsized.

The dead.—Gordon Angle, 19, Montreal, a son of Mrs. Jessie Angle; Hector Burke, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Burke, Dalhousie; Dunny Esliger, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edouard, Esliger, Dalhousie.

The group of young people were aboard a 15-foot, outboard motor-equipped sailboat owned by Arthur O'Brien. After a four-mile crossing of the Restigouche from Dalhousie to the Quebec shore, they were 50 yards from Dalhousie on the return trip when the boat capsized.

Declining to identify himself, an army corporal acted as spokesman for half a dozen walking wounded. The wounded men were included among the passenger list of 64 persons from Dutch Harbor and 34 from nearby Cold Bay. Seventeen women and 18 children evacuees were included.

"It was hot stuff," he said. "We were credited with knocking down 11 of their planes. Personally, I didn't see any planes fall. How many the Navy got, I don't know . . ."

Mayor Fletcher, on his way to confer with Indian Bureau authorities at Washington about evacuation of natives "who were shaking like leaves" after the air attacks, said in a description of the scene:

"There was a hell of an attack in the harbor on this ship we came down on. It occurred before the passengers were aboard. The men at the guns put up a curtain of fire that was deadly. The dive bombers couldn't get in very close.

"The ship had docked in Dutch Harbor only the night before the first dawn bombing raid. She was taken out into the harbor after the bombing started. She was rushed out from the docks where she could have manoeuvring space . . .

Came Without Warning

"We had heard that a sizable Task force was in the Pacific off the Aleutians, but the recollection I have most vividly of the bombing was the surprising suddenness with which it came . . .

"It was an ideal day from the Japanse standpoint. The planes came over the Island head out of broken clouds, and could not be heard until they were in close. Then they broke down through the scattered cloud formations . . ."

Fletcher estimated the raid lasted 30 to 40 minutes. The bombs "just seemed to float down slowly."

"They talk about these Jap having bad eyesight," he continued. "That's a lot of bunk. Their eyesight is plenty good and they didn't lack for courage up there. I saw one getting a blaze of anti-aircraft fire on his nose, but he kept right on coming."

The Unalaska mayor said action of the bombs after exploding led military authorities to conclude they included incendiary qualities.

Mess Room Chatter From Britain

By LOUIS HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, June 25 — (CP)—Flt.-Lt. Bud Connell of Nipawin, Sask., is back in England from Malta where he destroyed two Axis aircraft and probably a third in addition to damaging three others. His score might have been higher but he became a casualty.

Connell ranked PO. R. W. McNair, D.F.C., of North Battleford, Sask., as the best Canadian scorer in Malta. When Connell left, McNair had at least seven victories confirmed, as well as many probables and damaged.

It was a different story when this Canadian convoy reached port. Usually new arrivals are sure depth charges bagged a "couple of submarines." This time the men reported depth charges knocked out two whales whose carcasses floated to the surface. The contingent was a small one. It included pilots, observers, air gunners and ground crew.

Flt. Lt. Bill Napier's career as a fighter pilot with a Canadian Spitfire squadron has been interrupted by a flying accident and the 25-year-old Campbellton, N.B., airman is returning to Canada as instructor . . . He has had 140 operational hours in the air . . . Napier suffered a fractured skull and spine in a crash two months ago . . . but he expects to be flying again at home "in no time."

The Paige brothers of Bridgeport, Ont., Frank 26, Bert 27, and Bob 22, are looking forward to leave together soon. Arrangements were made in hospital, where Frank, a D.F.C. pilot with the Canadian "Demon Squadron," is recovering from shell wounds. Bert, also a pilot officer and holder of the D.F.M., is a navigator. Bob is in the army. The airmen-brothers have never flown together on operational flights but they have made test and cross-country fights.

4-Time Slayer Goes To Gallows

LONDON, June 25 — (CP).—Gordon Frederick Cummins 28-year-old Royal Air Force Cadet, stigmatized as the most notorious killer since Jack the Ripper, was hanged to-day in Wandsworth Prison for the slaying of Mrs. Evelyn Oatley, 32, one-time actress.

Mrs. Oatley was one of four women Cummins was accused of killing in a series of blackout murders which terrorized London's West-end last winter.

Two attempted slayings also were charged against the young airman, whose bland appearance and polished manner won him the nickname of "The Duke."

The jury before which Cummins was tried for the murder of Mrs. Oatley required only 35 minutes to convict him. Sir Cyril Asquith, who passed sentence of death, described the crime as "a sadistic sexual murder of a ghoulish type."

Cummins stoutly maintained his innocence during the trial.

The women he was accused of slaying, in addition to Mrs. Oatley, were Mrs. Margaret Low 43, Mrs. Doris Jauannet 23, and Miss Evelyn Hamilton 40.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, June 25 — (CP). — The outlook is gloomy for any immediate relief in the local beef shortage as cattle deliveries have not shown the increase expected last week-end. Grass cattle should be coming to market now, it was reported, and next week may see some improvement in receipts, but this has yet to be seen. Short runs most of this week carried cattle prices 30 to 50 cents a hundredweight higher, with the bulk of the cattle being sold for military requirements and not for domestic civilian needs.

Wartime demand for beef in this country is estimated to have carried total requirements to 40 per cent above normal, the Dominion Marketing Service revealed yesterday, and to meet this greatly increased demand, approximately 8,900 head of beef cattle would be required by Toronto in order to feed this city, Eastern markets and the various military supply depots from here to the east coast, all of which sources depend upon Toronto for their beef. Local receipts have never reached such a volume, it was stated.

All killer cattle offered sold steady up to mid-session on the Livestock Market here today. Weighty steers traded at $12.50 to $13.50; a few light butcher steers at $13.35, and butcher cows at $9 to $10.50.

Veal calves sold steady at $9 to $14.50 for the few offered.

Good lambs sold steady at $16.50. No sheep were offered.

Hogs sold stead at $15.60 dressed-weight, and sows at $12 dressed.

McNaughton Loses His Son Ian

Fails to Come Back From Operational Flight—Over 10 Mos.

LONDON, June 25—(CP Cable)—R.C.A.F. headquarters today confirmed the report that Sqdn. Ldr. Ian McNaughton, son of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Army in Britain, is missing.

The 25-year-old aviator has been missing since he made an operational flight June 22, it was stated.

Headquarters denied a report published by the Daily Express which said that Gen. McNaughton did not know his son was on operational duties. Air officials said the father knew this and considered it his son's business.

Sqdn.-Ldr. McNaughton came overseas as a pilot officer in August, 1941, for navigational instruction and later applied for posting to active flying against the enemy.

After receiving training he was sent to an R.C.A.F. bomber squadron last October. He was promoted to the rank of Flight Lieutenant last February and posted to an R.A.F. squadron as a flight commander.

Ian McNaughton, a flying officer, is one of the five children of Gen. McNaughton and the former Mabel Clara Stuart of Montreal.

His two brothers are both in uniform, Flt. Lt. Andrew McNaughton with the R.C.A.F. and Capt. Edward McNaughton with the Royal Canadian Artillery.

His sisters are M. T. K. McDougall of Ottawa and Miss Leslie, who is attending a convent school in Montreal.

Ian McNaughton is 25. He was educated at Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont.

Already French children gaze hopefully across the misty sea whispering 'What sort of ship is that on the horizon?' The name of that ship is 'Second Front.'"

The article lauding the United States said:

"Five years ago Americans hissed Fascism in their cinemas. To-day they express their hatred more eloquently—by producing arms at unprecedented speed, by their determination to open a second front in Europe in 1942."

He said that Britain would reach her production limit in a few months, but that there was no limit to American production except the availability of raw materials.
